At dawn today, members of our side's civil police were on routine patrol duty in areas of our side located north of marker No 0810 along the demarcation line. But between 0520 and 0530 this morning, the South Korean puppet army suddenly fired machineguns and automatic rifles at our side's personnel from a site located some 600 meters south of the demarcation line at marker No 0805.

Again at around 0645 and around 0705, the South Korean puppet army fired automatic weapons, including machineguns, at the members of our side's patrol from a site 1,200 meters south of MDL marker No 0810 and fired 90-mm recoilless rifles from another site some 1,000 meters southeast of the MDL marker No 0816. The enemy side fired some 15,000 rounds from large-caliber machineguns; some 8,000 from automatic rifles; and some 30 from 90-mm recoilless rifles.

Due to [illegible] armed provocation perpetrated by the South Korean puppet army, casualties occurred among [illegible] side's personnel who were on normal patrol duty. Under these circumstances, our side h[illegible] take necessary self-defense measures.

Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, our side's chief representative to the Military Armistice Commission, in two telephone messages sent to the enemy side today exposed the criminal act committed by the enemy and said that our side cannot but consider it very grave that the rascals deliberately committed such a dangerous armed provocation at a time when the enemy side is intensifying its scheme for war against the northern half of the republic more frantically than ever before in South Korea.

Lodging a stern protest with the enemy side against its violation of the armistice agreement by firing against our side, he strongly demanded that the enemy side take responsible measures to prevent recurrence of such an incident. If it continuously adheres to provocations against our side, the enemy side must bear in mind that it will have to assume full responsibility for the consequences arising therefrom.

NODONG SINMUN HITS CHON'S MORAL REFORM CAMPAIGN

[NODONG SINMUN 19 April commentary: "Disposition That Cannot Be Changed"]

[Text] Chon Tu-hwan recently made an absurd remark slandering us at the Academy of Korean Studies. He babbled that a moral reform movement should be staged to cope with the unstable international situaiton and the people should win in the struggle against the North for survival not only militarily but also ideologically.

Chon Tu-hwan, who prowled about the military academies of the puppet army, navy and air force in a bid to inspire North-South confrontation, showed up at a civilian organization in government pay in a bid to inspire North-South confrontation. At a time when, in order to end the division of the country and expedite the cause of national reunification at the earliest possible date, the great national unity of the North and South -- transcending differences in ideologies and ideals -- is more urgently desired than ever, it is an intolerable and treacherous act running counter to the times to prowl about many places to inspire North-South confrontation.

For Chon Tu-hwan, who lacks an ideology and ideas and who is a dirty pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese flunkeyist element, to clamor about an ideological struggle and confrontation is an act exposing his treacherous nature seeking confrontation with the support of foreign forces.

Under the pretext of moral reform, the puppets are trying to instill pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese subjugation ideology in the people, to harm the independent national consciousness of the people by dragging in U.S. culture and to destroy national culture and our good morals and manners. They are also trying to justify the U.S. imperialist policy of colonial subjugation and their military fascist rule.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring is trying to infuse fascist ideology in the people. It has arrested, imprisoned and put on trial patriotic personages advocating reunification of the fatherland and democratization of society. Thus, it has forces the dark politics of the middle ages on the people.

The puppets recently arrested and imprisoned patriots and young students who struggled against the Americal Cultural Center in Pusan. They are imposing brutal punishment on them under the signboard of South Korea-U.S. friendship. The Chon Tu-hwan ring is a stooge of the imperialists and a military fascist group which has no qualification to talk about morality.

At this very moment, a large-scale military exercise racket against us is being staged in South Korea. Staging a frantic war racket to heighten tension, while inspiring an ideological struggle, is a scheme designed to create mistrust and discord in the nation, hinder national reunification and perpetuate division.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring, isolated from the people, is trying to find a way to survive by using North-South confrontation. Chon Tu-hwan's treacherous nature will not vanish even after he dies. The puppets' deliberate heightening of tension through military and ideological confrontation between the North and South again clearly shows that the dialogue and reunification they are talking about are nothing but a sophistry to cover up their splittist nature.

As long as the Chon Tu-hwan ring is allowed to exist and to inspire North-South confrontation, the reunification of the country cannot be expected, and peace cannot be maintained in Korea. Only when the dictatorial rule is liquidated, a democratic regime is established and social and political life democratized in South Korea can tension be alleviated and the door of dialogue for reunification be opened. The South Korean people are struggling to expedite that very day.

PRC PROTEST OF U.S. ARMS SALES TO TAIWAN CITED

[Text] Beijing, April 18 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the Foreign Ministry of the People's Republic of China recently issued a statement protesting against the U.S. sale of military-related spare parts to Taiwan, according to a XINHUA report.

Noting that on 13 April, 1982, the U.S. Government officially notified the U.S. Congress that it was going to sell military-related spare parts to Taiwan, the statement says: The Chinese Government hereby lodges a strong protest with the U.S. Government against this act of infringing upon China's sovereignty.

It recalls that with regard to the U.S. Government's sale of military-related spare parts to Taiwan, back in December 1981 when the U.S. Government unofficially notified the U.S. Congress of the matter, the Chinese Government already expressed its strong objection.

If the U.S. Government should continue to disregard China's sovereignty, it must be held responsible for all the consequences arising therefrom, it warns.

[Text] Pyongyang, April 21 (KCNA) -- Follows the full text of the joint statement of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Romanian Socialist Republic signed in Pyongyang on April 20:

Joint Statement of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Romanian Socialist Republic

Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, paid an official goodwill visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea from April 17 to 21, 1982, upon the invitation of Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. The Korean people warmly welcomed the high-level guests from Romania with particular fraternal intimacy and deep respect.

Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, awarded the order "Star of the Romanian Socialist Republic" First Class and the band to Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, in high appreciation of his outstanding contribution to the development of cooperation between the Workers Party of Korea and the Romanian Communist Party and between the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Romanian Socialist Republic, to the strengthening of friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Romanian peoples and promotion of the overall cause of socialism, peace and international cooperation, on his 70th birthday.

Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, held official talks, at which they exchanged views of wide range on further deepening and developing friendship and cooperation between the two parties, two states and two peoples of Korea and Romania and on a series of internaional problems of common concern. Consensus was reached on the problems discussed at the talks which proceeded in an atmosphere of warm friendship and mutual respect and understanding.

The two sides expressed deep satisfaction over the continued favourable development of the traditional fraternal friendship and militant solidarity between the two countries in the spirit of the treaty of friendship and cooperation between the DPRK and the RSR and decided to continue to expand and develop these excellent relations in many fields, political, economic and cultural. Both sides laid stress on the decisive significance of meetings and talks between the heads of state of the two countries in continuously strengthening friendship between the two peoples and successfully developing beneficial mutual cooperation in all fields.

Both sides highly appreciated the relations between the Workers Party of Korea and the Romanian Communist Party and agreed upon continuing the exchange of experiences of the two countries in socialist construction and consultation on bilateral relations and international problems of common concern. And the successes of the governments and assemblies of the two countries in deepening and expanding cooperation between Korea and Romania were positively appraised.

Contacts and cooperation between the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland and the Front of Socialist Democracy and Unity and between trade unions, youth and women's organisations of the two countries will be encouraged as ever.

Both sides pointed to successes achieved in implementing the decisions adopted at a high level on the development of economic and scientific-technological cooperation. At the same time, both sides stressed the necessity of expanding and strengthening cooperation in production and increasing trade interchange in order to contribute to satsfying the national economic demand of the two countries for raw materials, power, modern machinery and equipment and consumer goods.

For this purpose, the heads of state signed an agreement on the basic direction of economic and scientific-technological cooperation between the DPRK and the RSR which is of very weighty importance in developing the relations between the two countries.

During the visit, an agreement on cooperation in the development of non-ferrous mineral deposits between the Governments of the DPRK and the RSR, an agreement on cooperation in the filed of utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes between the Governments of the DPRK and the RSR, and an agreement on cooperation in social insurance between the Governments of the DPRK and the RSR were signed. And an 1982-1983 plan for implementing the agreement on cultural cooperation between the governments of the two countries and a 1982-1983 plan for cooperation in public health and medical field between the ministries of public health of the two countries were signed for a continued promotion of cooperation in scientific, educational, cultural, public health and other fields.

Both sides noted with deep satisfaction the great successes made by the Korean and Romanian peoples in socialist revolution and socialist construction and appraised this as a great contribution to strengthening socialist force and its influence in the world.

The Korean side highly estimated the shining successes registed by the Romanian people in ensuring the socialist development of their motherland and promoting the overall well-being of the working people under the wise leadership of the Romanian Communist Party headed by Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, their outstanding leader, and wholeheartedly wished them new successes in their struggle for the implementation of the decisions of the 12th Congress of the Romanian Communist Party which would lift Romania to a new stage of socio-economic development.

The Romanian side highly appreciated the shining successes made by the Korean people in converting their country into a powerful independent socialist country with a modern industry and developed agriculture in a short period by carrying through the revolutionary line of independence, self-sustenance and self-reliant defence under the wise leadership of their great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and wholeheartedly wished them greater victory in their future struggle for implementing the decisions of the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea.

In the course of exchanging views on the international issues, both sides confirmed that the assessment and conclusions on the development of the present international situation given in the joint statement adopted in Pyongyang in May 1978 and the communique published in Bucharest in May 1980 were correct. Expressing deep apprehensions as to the fact that the international situation is very complicated and strained at present and the danger of a new world war is daily growing, both sides stressed that it is more important than ever before for the socialist countries and non-aligned countries, the developing countries and all the democratic, progressive and anti-imperialist forces to strengthen cooperation and solidarity to safeguard sovereignty and national independence and world peace and security, against the policies of aggression and war of imperialism and its manoeuvres to redivide the world into spheres of influence.

If a lasting and durable peace and security are to be safeguarded, the military blocs must be brought to an end and the right of each nation to shape its destiny by itself without any foreign interference be strictly respected. Expressing concern for the arms race intensified on a vast scale, both sides held that the arms race must be ended, overall disarmament be effected, the nuclear weapons be totally banned and destroyed for the sake of peace and security. Both sides assert that military appropriations, armies and weapons must be reduced, the military blocs be disbanded, the foreign troops be withdrawn from others' territories, the military bases be dismantled and nuclear-free, peace zones be established and constantly expanded in Asia, Europe, Africa, Latin America and other parts of the world.

The Korean side expressed active support and solidarity for the just struggle of the Romanian Communist Party and Socialist Romania and the peaceful initiatives of Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu to remove the danger of a nuclear war growing ever more serious in Europe, stop the deployment of new medium-range nuclear missiles on the continent and have all types of medium-range nuclear weapons reduced and completely destroyed and turn the Balkans into a nuclear-free zone of good-neighbourhood and cooperation.

The Romanian side expressed full support to and solidarity with the new reunification proposal put forward by Comrade Kim Il-song to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the country by means of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and with the stand of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for resolutely opposing the "two Koreas" policy of the imperialists and the South Korean authorities, having all the foreign troops and the military equipment including nuclear weapons withdrawn from South Korea without delay and replacing the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement through negotiations between the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the United States to remove the danger of a new war on the Korean Peninsula and peacefully solve the Korean problem.

Both sides consider that efforts must be made to terminate the use of strength and the confrontation policy and settle all conflicts and disputes among countries peacefully through talks on the basis of equality, sovereignty and respect for national independence.

The DPRK and the RSR actively support the struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples against imperialism, colonialism, old and new, racism, the apartheid policy and all forms of domination and suppression and for national liberation and independence and the right to free development. Both sides stressed the necessity of increasing efforts to destroy the old international economic order, a product of the colonial system and a lever of exploitation and plunder, and establish a new fair international economic order, in order to do away with the economic inequality between the developed and the developing countries and guarantee a rapid progress of the developing countries.

Both sides highly appreciated the Nonaligned Movement for its great contribution, as a powerful anti-imperialist, independent force in the present-day world, to opposing all forms of domination and subjugation, defending the independence and sovereignty of the people, opposing the imperialists' policies of aggression and war and preserving world peace and security.

The Workers Party of Korea and the Romanian Communist Party recognized that it carried very weighty significance to strengthen unity and international solidarity among the communist and workers parties, socialist and social democratic parties, all progressive and democratic forces and national liberation movements under the condition where the situation is complicated and a grave tension has been created. The two parties consider that to respect independence is the basic condition for constantly raising the role of each party and the international communist and working-class movements and strengthening international unity and solidarity among them. The two parties expressed the resolution to hold fast to independence and strengthen solidarity with communist and workers parties, socialist and social democratic parties, national liberation movements and all revolutionary and progressive forces in the struggle for peace, disarmament, democracy, national independence and socialism.

Expressing satisfaction over the great success recorded in the official goodwill visit of Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, to the DPRK, both sides recognized that the agreement and unanimity of views reached at the meetings and talks between Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, are a new and great contribution to further strengthening and developing the fraternal friendship and cooperation between the two parties, two countries and two peoples and cooperation in the international life and to promoting the unity and solidarity of the socialist countries and the international communist movement and the cause of socialism and peace.

Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic, invited Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, to pay an official goodwill visit to the Romanian Socialist Republic. The invitation was accepted with pleasure.

VRPR VIEWS KIM CHONG-IL'S INHERITANCE OF CAUSE

[Roundtable talk: "Life of 70 years of Glory" -- date and place not given; participants unidentified except moderator who is introduced as (Yi Un-chong), a station announcer]

[Excerpt] [Moderator] That Gen Kim Il-song has brilliantly solved the question of inheriting the revolutionary cause is a very important achievement.

[First speaker] As the leader's revolutionary cause continues for many generations, not ending in a simple generation -- a long-range cause -- the question of inheriting the revolutionary cause is a very important question related to the future of the revolution.

[Second speaker] Yes, it is. Looking back on the international communist movement in particular, there were many instances where it experiences oscillations or vicissitudes because of its failure to solve the question of inheriting the revolutionary cause. Correct? However, with the great leader having brilliantly solved the question of inheriting the revolutionary cause, we can, without twists and turns, accomplish the revolutionary cause of chuche. This means that a firm guarantee for the ultimate victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche has been provided by the great leader. We consider this a valuable achievement which the great leader has scored for the revolution in our country and the world revolution as well.

[Moderator] We have emotionally reviewed the great Gen Kim Il-song's 70-year life of glory. The more we think of him, the deeper our respect toward him becomes. At the same time, we feel terribly sorry that we have failed to present him with the joy of reunification.

[Third speaker] Yes, we do. The more we feel proud of the fact that we uphold the sun of the nation, the great leader, who is revered by mankind, the greater regrets we have over the fact that we, as members of the nation, have not fully discharged our duties.

[First speaker] The respected and beloved general, who is a leader who loves the country and the people more than anything else, agonizes at the sufferings and difficulties stemming from national division. He spares no efforts to advance the country's reunification. He has correctly elucidated all the theoretical and practical problems related to the country's reunification, such as the basic policy for reunification and the means of reunification, and led our nation along the road of reunification. Had the revolutionaries and patriotic masses in this land fought more courageously, as he had done, the country would have been reunified. The thought that we have failed to achieve reunification and greet his 70th birthday makes us feel really sorry for him.

[Second speaker] However, the prospects for reunification are bright insofar as there are the great leader and the wise policies he has elucidated. The fact that the dear leader Kim Chong-il assists the general and inherits his cause convinces us that the future of our nation will be brighter and prosperous forever.

[Moderator] To sum up, I think that our RPR members and patriotic people from every social spectrum should further dedicate themselves to the revolution for reunification, cherishing that national pride that they uphold the great Gen Kim Il-song and the dear leader Kim Chong-il who inherits the general's lofty will. Thank you for being with us today.

YUGOSLAV PAPERS PRAISE KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

[Text] Pyongyang, April 21 (KCNA) -- Yugoslav papers published articles on the 70th birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, according to reports. BORBA April 15 ran an article together with his portrait, saying that the Korean people under his leadership have turned the Democratic People's Republic of Korea into a developed socialist state with modern industry and agriculture. It extended support to the Korean people in their struggle for the peaceful reunification of the country.

A recent issue of MLADOST carried an article headlined "Example Set by the Great Leader," together with a photograph of the statue of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the Mansudae Hill. The paper said: Comrade Kim Il-song is the person who leads the advance of the Korean people to socialism and communism, the lodestar of reunification, and the supreme strategist and tactician who guides the struggle for attaining the goal. He defined the chuche idea as the guiding idea for the revolutionary turn of Korea and indicated the way of building socialist society by displaying the spirit of self-reliance engendering from it.

The DPRK is taking an active part in the Nonaligned Movement in accordance with the foreign policy based on the basic idea of independence, friendship and peace. Comrade Kim Il-song again put forward a proposal for peacefully reunifying the North and South of Korea at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea. The progressive forces of the world support the proposal advanced by him.

Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrade Kim Chong-il, who is the successor to the revolutionary cause of the great leader, take utmost care of the activities of the youth and the youth organisations. On display are a photo showing the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song standing on top of Mt Paektu with Lake Chonji in the background, another showing the dear Comrade leader Kim Chong-il on the platform on the plaza where a demonstration of working people in Pyongyang was being staged in celebration of the 35th anniversary of the founding of the KWP and the party's sixth congress, and many others showing our people struggling for the development of the economy, education and culture and the reunification of the fatherland.

Chon Myong-su, DPRK ambassador to China, and officials of the embassy were invited to the opening ceremony. Present at the ceremony were Huang Zhen, minister in charge of the Commission for Cultural Relations With Foreign Countries; Wang Bingnan, president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries; other functionaries concerned and many Beijing citizens.

In his speech, Huang said: On the occasion of opening the photo exhibition arranged to celebrate the 70th birthday of President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and the close friend of the Chinese people, I sincerely wish him good health and a long life.

President Kim Il-song is the man who founded the KWP, the DPRK and the Korean People's Army, and over half a century has been dedicating his wisdom and energy to the Korean people's cause of national liberation and the cause of the proletarian revolution. He led the heroic Korean people to oppose the aggression by the imperialists and achieved brilliant successes in their struggle for socialist revolution and construction and for the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification.

At the first session of the Seventh SPA which was held some time ago, he was reelected president of the DPRK. This manifests the Korean people's respect and trust in him. The photo exhibition fully shows the successes the Korean people, under the wise leadership of President Kim Il-song, have registered in their arduous efforts to build their fatherland, which was ravaged by war, into a prosperous socialist state.

The photo exhibition also shows the heroic appearance of all the Korean people who are struggling against the Chon Tu-hwan clique's criminal acts of obliterating democracy and seeking division of the country under the instigation of the U.S. imperialists and who are struggling for the achievement of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The Chinese people always rejoice, as their own, over the success the fraternal Korean people have registered under the wise leadership of the great leader President Kim-Il-song. They have been greatly encouraged by this. We sincerely wish that the Korean people are firmly rallied around President Kim Il-song and achieve greater success in their future struggle for the revolution and the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland under the leadership of the KWP.

MINISTRY SPOKESMAN REPORTS DMZ FIRING INCIDENT

SK210454 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0308 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Text] Spokesman Pak Chong-sik of the Ministry of National Defense has announced that in an effort to thwart a group of North Korean soldiers fleeing from (Yanggye) post, a guardpost on the enemy side in the Demilitarized Zone [DMZ] about 26 kms north of Hwachon on the central frontline, North Korean soldiers, in early hours of today, fired some 800 rounds of shells, including 82-mm recoilless rifle rounds, against our side's guardpost.

Spotting four North Korean soldiers fleeing under cover of darkness along Kumsong stream, which flows south, toward the nearest guardpost of our side at around 0205 this morning, North Korean soldiers started a pursuit, firing some 50 light tracer rounds. At around 0400 they used a loudspeaker eight times to demand that the defecting soldiers halt where they were. Between 0525 and 0545 enemy mines exploded and they started shooting rounds of various calibre at our side's guardpost, including two 82-mm recoilless rifle shots, the spokesman said.

From what was observed from our guardpost, he said, it was confirmed as of 0730 that four North Korean soldiers are either dead and/or injured due to the mine explosion at a site 600 meters north of the military demarcation line.

Viewing the shooting as an incident started by the enemy side in an effort to prevent several North Korean soldiers from fleeing to the South, the spokesman described the North's firing of 82-mm recoilless rifle rounds as a clear violation of the armistice agreement and a grave provocation. He also said that our side immediately shot back in self-defense and that the indiscriminate shooting by North Korean soldiers resulted in no casualties on our side, but there was partial damage to barbed wire fences at our side's guardpost.

At 0952 Rear Admiral Storms, chief UN side representative to the Military Armistice Commission, lodged a strong protest with the North Korean side.

SEOUL PROSECUTOR PROBES CHURCH COUNCIL STATEMENT

SK210432 Seoul YONHAP in English 0309 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Text] Seoul, April 21 (YONHAP) -- The Seoul District Prosecution Wednesday announced that it has summoned four Protestant clergymen to probe the "anti-American" statement released over the weekend by the Korea Christian Action Organization.

The prosecutor's office said it has decided to investigate the cause and background of the statement which urged the recall of U.S. Ambassador Richard L. Walker and Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., commander of the United Nations Command in Korea for their remarks allegedly critical of Koreans.

The office said, "The statement was judged to bear some problematic points and the details of the prosecution's investigation will be made public later if it is necessary." The office said the statement expressed a justification of the recent arson in Pusan, that it was sympathetic to North Korea, and that the issuance of such a statement was a political activity which went beyond religious boundaries.

Anticommunist League Reaction

SK210145 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 21 Apr 82 p 8

[Text] The Korea Anti-Communist League yesterday called on the government to take immediate disciplinary action against those who signed a statement recently issued by a Christian organization demanding the recall of Amb. Richard Walker and Gen. John Wickham for their "contemptuous remarks" on Korean people.

In a five-page statement read by its chairman So Chong-chol yesterday afternoon, the league expressed its displeasure with those Protestant and Catholic priests who petitioned the United States to recall the U.S. ambassador and the commander of U.S. forces in Korea.

So, who was once minister of national defense, also said in the statement that the action taken by members of the Korean Christian Action Organization (KCAO) over the weekend could shake the stability of national security by taking sides with the suspected arsonists in the March 18 fire at the American Cultural Center in Pusan.

"We hope the government invokes tough measures against these people at the earliest possible date for their apparent attempt to disrupt the friendly ties between Korea and the United States," So said. The statement was referring to the allegation by the Christian clergymen who called the arson at the U.S.-owned facility a sign of growing anti-American sentiments among the Korean people.

Reading from the text of the statement, So said it is apparent who would benefit from this and other remarks made by the Christian leaders, adding that he was told the North Korean Communist regime was using the Christians' protest as propaganda material against this country.

So also said in the statement that such activities by Christian clergymen, if left unchecked, might cause severe social unrest similar to what occurred in the final days of South Vietnam. He said that South Vietnam fell to the communists after a long period of social unrest.

Other Groups Hit Statement

[Text] Seoul, April 21 (YONHAP) -- A group of 42 South Korean Protestant leaders said Wednesday that the recent statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization on April 17 "is not the opinion of the entire Korean church."

The leaders said that remarks threatening the friendly ties between Korea and the United States, or the national defense of Korea should be withheld. The statement was a dangerous action that could bring many losses to current U.S.-Korea relations and national defense.

Meanwhile, Kim Chong-hwan, president of the Korea Veterans Association, said Wednesday that veterans could not hide their anger and surprise over the April 17 statement which "is against not only the national interest but also the Korea-U.S. relationship." In a statement, Kim said the North Korean authorities are taking advantage of the recent statement to drive a wedge between South Korea and the United States and to hurt the national integrity of South Korean people.

Further Report

[Text] Seoul, April 21 (YONHAP) -- The Korea Christian Action Organization (KCAO)'s April 17 statement was announced against the wishes of the Catholic side, although a number of Catholic priests were known to have signed it, was learned Wednesday. KCAO had demanded in the statement the recall of U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard L. Walker and Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., commander of the U.S. forces in Korea, for their "contemptuous remarks" concerning Koreans.

A Catholic priest who participated in the drafting of the statement said the Urban Industrial Mission (UIM), a Protestant organization affiliated with KCAO, arbitrarily made the statement public despite the Catholic opposition. "They (UIM) promised not to announce the statement, since we did not endorse the contents," he said. The priest said Bishop Chi Hak-sun of the Wonju Diocese had demanded a substantial deletion from the draft because the contents were "too radical."

Another Catholic clergyman, who took part in the composition of the statement, said representatives from the UIM asserted the Catholic position was "too moderate" and suggested another meeting to work out a final statement. The UIM, however, ignored the idea by announcing the statement without any revisions, he said. He added that the Catholic representatives did not know the statement was made public until local newspapers carried it April 19.

KOREA TIMES VIEWS JAPAN'S POSITION ON AID

[By Cho Pyong-pil]

[Text] Despite various rhetoric and gestures from Tokyo, there is still considerable uncertainty over what productive and far-reaching efforts it will make for a solution of the stymie concerning the long-disputed loan issue. According to foreign news dispatches from Japan Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki was quoted Tuesday as having vowed as much economic cooperation as possible with Korea but the positions of the concerned offices such as the Foreign Ministry and the Finance Ministry on the matter still differed. As the weeks wore on, the possibility loomed for a package political settlement of the knotty problems -- the size and terms of the loans -- in May during Korea-Japan foreign ministers' talks in Seoul.

This prospect was indicated in a meeting between Premier Suzuki and Japanese Ambassador to Korea Toshikazu Maeda during which the former was quoted as saying that Japan was urged to respond to Seoul's bid for $6 billion in loans "with sincerity" before Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi visited Seoul next month. Ambassador Maeda returned to Seoul Friday night and yesterday informed Foreign Minister No Sin-yong of the results of his talks with his superiors.

It is believed that Maeda did not carry a finalized Japanese alternative which may provide asignificant turning point in determining whether the Seoul-Tokyo ties will slide downhill or otherwise be put on a normal track. News reports from Tokyo made it clear Friday that the positions of the Japanese Government offices concerned on the loan issue have yet to be adjusted finally, as Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa has been quoted as saying, and accordingly the foreign ministers' talks would be held in late May or in July for solution of the issue.

Diplomatic observers here believe that unless Japan changes its "nimble" attitude and is prepared to show an affirmative response in dealing with economic cooperation, the foreign ministers' talks will be futile. Pointing out that Japan's reluctance to accept Korea's bid is contrary to the principle of interdependence which all free world countries embrace now in their foreign policies. The observers said that the Korean request for $6 billion in ODA yen credits plus $4 billion in Japanese Export-Import Bank loans should be considered from the standpoint of special relations between Seoul and Tokyo.

Economic cooperation in the form of Japanese Exim Bank loans can not be taken as economic cooperation but instead, will be none other than a Japanese attempt to seek economic advance to Korea, they opined. The ODA loans are repayable in 17 years after an eight-year grace period at an annual interest rate of 4 to 5 percent on average, whereas the bank loans are redeemable in 15 years at a minimum annual interest rate of 9 percent.

The Korean Government will not back down from its original position in tackling both the total amoont of economic cooperation and the loan terms, Foreign Ministry sources emphasized. Still suspicious of Japan's blowing hot and cold in handling such questions as trade, the observers took note of the Washington-Tokyo ties in terms of both economic relations and security interests. For instance, Japan has stubbornly refused to accept a U.S. bid for increased defense spending and for conversion of the current one-sided U.S.-Japanese security ties into a truly reciprocal, mutual security alliance to cope with their common adversary in the Asian-Pacific region on the pretext of the no-war constitution.

[Text] On the occasion of the 7th founding anniversary of Democratic Kampuchea, Ye Jianying, chairman of the PRC National People's Congress Standing Committee and Zhao Ziyang, premier of the PRC State Council, sent a greetings message to Khieu Samphan, chairman of the State Presidium and prime minister of the Democratic Kampuchean Government and to Nuon Chea, chairman of the Kampuchean People's Representative Assembly Standing Committee. The text of this message is as follows:

Respectfully to His Excellency Khieu Samphan, chairman of the state presidium and prime minister of the Democratic Kampuchean Government; and His Excellency Nuon Chea, chairman of the Kampuchean people's representatives assembly, Democratic Kampuchea:

On the occasion of the 7th national day of Democratic Kampuchea, on behalf of the Chinese Government and people, we would like to extend our warmest greetings and best wishes to you and, through you, to the Democratic Kampuchean Government and the fraternal Kampuchean people. We would also like to extend our high regards to the Kampuchean people and the valiant, patriotic army.

In the past year, under the leadership of the Democratic Kampuchean Government, the Kampuchean people's struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors progressed another step. With a seething combative spirit, the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas fought valiantly against the enemy, launched widespread guerrilla activities throughout the country and dealt heavy blows on the Vietnamese aggressors. The situation of this resistance is developing more favorably for the Kampuchean people. The Kampuchean people's just struggle is significant for the defense of their independence, sovereignty and national survival and constitutes a great and important contribution to safeguarding peace and security in the Southeast Asian, Asian and Pacific regions.

By placing national interests above all else, the Democratic Kampuchean Government has held aloft the banner of uniting all patriotic forces to fight against the Vietnamese aggressors, initiated many proposals for talks and discussions with the other Kampuchean patriotic forces and made active efforts to rally all Kampuchean patriotic forces for fighting against the Vietnamese aggressors. The Democratic Kampuchean Government -- which has thoroughly implemented the political program of the PDFGNUK -- has enjoyed greater support and assistance from the Kampuchean people.

As in the past, the Chinese Government and people will resolutely give unswerving support to the Kampuchean people's just struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors.

We are convinced that the Kampuchean people -- provided they adhere firmly to resistance and unity -- will be able to surmount all obstacles to their advance, finally defeat the Vietnamese aggressors and undoubtedly achieve permanent victory in their war of resistance against the Vietnamese aggressors and for national salvation.

SPOKESMAN ANSWERS U.S. ENVOY'S BASING SUGGESTION

BK210221 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 21 Apr 82 p 6

[Text] Thailand yesterday reacted quickly to defuse an apparent suggestion made by the U.S. ambassador that the United States may be interested in reopening its former military bases in Thailand.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Jetn Sucharitkul said Thailand's present policy was not to allow foreign troops or foreign military bases on its territory.

He said he was making a preliminary reply to remarks made in Honolulu on Monday by Ambassador to Thailand John Gunther Dean, who suggested that the Thais might be willing to consider to plan to reactivate bases for use in Southwest Asia.

"We think that Thailand can cope with the situation in this area by our own manpower," Jetn said, adding that Thailand's military need from friendly countries was for military equipment to supplement its defense capabilities.

Jetn said it was necessary to state Thailand's position clearly to the world. He said as far as he was aware, there had been no request to reopen bases received from the U.S. administration.

Jetn said there were no American military personnel in Thailand except for those at the U.S. Embassy, and some to assist in military training of newly-delivered weapons.

He said some American military aircraft were allowed refueling facilities in Thailand, "but that is totally different from having bases."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said there were fewer than 100 American military personnel in Thailand, including marine guards for the embassy and 35 people in the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group (JUSMAG).

INCIDENTS ON KAMPUCHEAN BORDER REPORTED

BK161403 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 16 Apr 82

[Text] The following is a report by the Supreme Command Information center on the past week's incidents along the Thai-Kampuchean border in the two eastern provinces of Prachin Buri and Trat.

On 8 April at 2030 a Thai military security team clashed with an unidentified group of four or five armed Khmers along the strategic ditch east of Ban Nong Samet, Ta Phraya District, Prachin Buri Province. The clash lasted about 10 minutes after which the armed Khmer group was forced to pull back, leaving one dead. Thai officials suffered no losses. The Khmer forces took some food with them.

On 9 April at 1015 an unidentified Khmer patrol unit intruded into Thailand and clashed with a Thai patrol at Khao Khlong Pun Haeng, Ban Dan Chumphon, Bo Rai District, Trat Province. The clash lasted about 30 minutes after which the armed Khmer group pulled back. Thai officials suffered no losses, while casualties on the other side are not known.

On 9 April at 1530 the Kampuchean forces of Khieu Samphan attacked the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces' camp near kilometer marker 4 and Srah Chup camp in Poipet, Battambang Province The clash, which lasted about an hour, resulted in Thailand's Ban Khok Sabaeng, in Aranyaprathet District, Prachin Buri Province, being hit by 13 stray mortar shells. KHMER ROUGE CLAIM BIG BATTLE VICTORIES

BK190227 Bangkok POST in English 19 Apr 82 p 5

[Text] Khmer Rouge guerrillas have inflicted heavy losses on Vietnamese-led forces in battles on the western highlands opposite Aranyaprathet and Watthana Nakhon Districts of Prachin Buri, sources close to the Khmer Rouge said yesterday.

The sources claimed that the guerrillas had killed or wounded 3,000 Vietnamese-Heng Samrin troops and knocked out 23 tanks in fighting in Phnum Malai, Phnum Mak Hoeun, Khao Loem and Khao Din mountains since the beginning of this year.

Most of the Soviet-made tanks destroyed, including several PT-76 amphibious tanks, were knocked out by Chinese supplied landmines, according to the guerrilla sources. These, they claimed, explode with such force, that in some cases tanks were flung several feet off the ground and had their armour torn off like scrap.

The sources said the guerrillas had launched flanking and rear attacks against the advancing Vietnamese-led forces and harassed their logistics supplies as well as blowing up strategic roads.

They said the Vietnamese had sustained such heavy losses that all troops were withdrawn last Monday from 12 contested zones in Chakrei, Barang Thleak, Phnum Sampeou Lun, kilometres 12 and 13 of Highway 502 which runs parallel to the Thai border, Toek Sap, O Trang, Veal Vong Airfield, Damnak Chek, Damnak Cham, Dan Kting and O Krus.

The sources said the pullout led to a dramatic decrease in fighting near the border, allowing the guerrillas time to celebrate the Songkran festival last Thursday.

The sources added that all the Khmer Rouge strongholds in the western highlands opposite Aranyaprathet and Watthana Nakhon districts were intact even though a few of them, including the one at Khao Din, were briefly overrun by the Vietnamese-led forces.

One informed source said that the Khmer Rouge has not yet ruled out the possibility of a last-ditch assault on their western border strongholds before the rainy season really gets underway and bogs down the enemy's armoured units.

He also claimed that Hanoi had trained a brigade of paratroopers in Battambang for a possible airborne strike.

The Thai Supreme Command said last weekend that Vietnam was busily building and repairing roads in Kampuchea and readjusting troop formations.

BURMA ASKED TO ARREST TROOPS IN BORDER INCIDENT

BK210735 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 21 Apr 81

[Text] Thailand called on the Burmese authorities to arrest 12 soldiers who attacked an embankment under construction on the Thai side of the Moei River border over the weekend. According to Deputy Governor Wanit Phonphibun of the northwestern province of Tak, the Burmese soldiers pulled out 70 wooden posts and razed a workers shelter in the incident last Friday [16 April] afternoon. In talks with a team of Burmese officials summoned to Mae Sot district over the weekend, Thailand demanded the arrest of the attackers and $391 in compensation for damage.

Deputy Governor Wanit says that the soldiers based in the Burmese town of Myawadi also opened fire on the Thai border village of Huai Muang, but there were no casualties. The deputy governor says that the Burmese officials have been given a deadline to round up the attackers. Although Thailand could not punish them, it could cause considerable inconvenience on the border if Burmese authorities fail to deal with them, the deputy governor added.

MATUPHUM ON U.S. 'YELLOW RAIN' PRESS CONFERENCE

["Foreign news" column: "Yellow Rain"]

[Text] It was some time before the arrival of the U.S. Government team of specialists in Bangkok to search for more evidence of the use of toxins from Indochinese refugees that reports about the use of mycotoxins, commonly known as "yellow rain", came out in several areas of Indochina. During the press conference given by the group on 7 April at the USICA on Sathon Road, many Thai and foreign news reporters were present. Many wondered if the issue would be merely U.S. Government propaganda, since it is the only one raising its voice on the matter.

According to the U.S. specialists, the United States was first aware of this issue in 1973, 2 years before the end of the Vietnam war. There have been reports of Vietnam's use of certain kinds of "toxins" against the Mong soldiers of General Van Pao in Laos before 1978. In 1979, following reports from Afghanistan that Soviet occupation troops were using toxins of the same yellow rain type against the mujahidin rebel troops, the United States realized that the Soviet Union was seriously resorting to this kind of weapon. In December 1980 the United States presented the issue to the UN General Assembly and the assembly adopted a decision setting up a team to probe the matter. The term of duty of this committee has been renewed up to the present year.

Although the seriousness of the United States and its evidence provided from various sources were rather convincing, the reporters at the press conference did not seem to be convinced. This might be because most of the evidence was supplied by U.S. intelligence agencies and because they conflict with the data and results obtained by the UN investigation team in certain areas. Phichai Watsanasong wanted the U.S. specialists to explain about the conclusion of the Geneva international conference of scientists which said there is still no clear evidence. U.S. specialists noted that Europe shirked the responsibility because it does not want East-West relations to be affected. A Bangkok-based AP correspondent questioned the U.S. Government's intentions behind this special campaign and noted U.S. silence on its own use of defoliants and lethal chemicals in the Vietnam war. To this, the U.S. experts who seem to be intelligence experts rather than experts on toxins complained that this is the attitude of mass media worldwide. Mass media and public opinion tend to condemn the United States for whatever it does. People in many countries protested when they saw U.S.-made weapons being used by troops of the regime in El Salvador whereas the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan met with demonstrations by a small number of people, adding that when dogs bite men, it is not news; but when men bite dogs, it becomes big news. The statement reflects how U.S. officials feel about it. The briefing on "chemical warfare in Southeast Asia and Afghanistan" then became a forum of questions and answers. A women reporter from the Thai news agency asked whether the U.S. campaign is intended to make it legitimate for the United States to go ahead with its biochemical weapons production plan to compete with the Soviet Union.

Whatever the U.S. toxin experts may say, the fact is that the Reagan administration late last year approved a considerable budget for the production of biochemical weapons for use in war. It must also be said that the U.S. team of toxin experts achieved a certain amount of success, especially in that they alerted us to the atrocity of this kind of weapons. We can never forget the pictures of the distorted figures of the victims of toxins which they showed to us.

We will not call on just one or the other side to stop the use of chemical weapons, but we appeal to both the United States and the Soviet Union to stay away from this path of brutality.

PAPER URGES COMMUNIST RESPONSE TO CBW CHARGES

[Editorial: "When Dead Men Do Tell Tales"]

[Text] Once again, there has been a flurry of reports on the so-called "yellow rain," the alleged chemical warfare upon the people of two neighbouring countries, Laos and Lampuchea. The reports have come from a U.S. team of experts, from Laotian resistance sources and from diplomats in Thailand whose fulltime occupations are to ascertain more information on this emotional issue.

There are many who are already convinced that Soviet, Vietnamese and Pathet Lao military forces are killing Laotians, Khmers and at least one Thai with a variety of chemical and biological weapons. Many of the dead -- in fact, probably most of them -- have been civilians. And, because the strong appear better able to resist death from the chemicals, the very young and the very old have died more often than those in this middle stage of life.

The United States government team which visited Bangkok recently charged that chemical warfare was continuing in Kampuchea and Laos, as well as in Afghanistan, and presented for our perusal a booklet which summarised the case against the Soviet Union in great detail. Anti-Vietnamese resistance movements in Kampuchea and in northern and southern Laos also have charged that the yellow rain of terror has continued, and have presented more samples of allegedly toxic material for analysis.

There has been a lack of a serious response to the allegations from the communist governments involved. They have from the first refused to discuss the important issues at stake, and have blocked a United States team of investigators from pursuing even the most elementary search for information in areas under their control. We have maintained since this issue first came to public light in our news pages that we deserve a more thoughtful answer to our questions than a flat denial.

We are not yet entirely sure exactly what is happening out there in the jungles and tiny villages deep behind the communist army lines in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan. But we do know that something is happening. First-hand tales of what sounds like chemical warfare have come from too many sources, too widely scattered, to dismiss as propaganda or the ravings of refugees.

Vietnam in particular and the other Indochinese countries have a point when they point an accusing finger at the United States for its use of agent orange and other toxin-containing defoliants. But even if it were true that agent orange was a monstrous war weapon (and it never was used as a war weapon) that would not excuse Hanoi and others from having to explain their current actions. Their outright denials at earlier stages that they had troops in Kampuchea and Laos, that they transported goods along the Ho Chi Minh trail to South Vietnam, and that their troops participated in the overrunning of Phnom Penh in 1979 means that they have to offer something more than outright denials on chemical warfare.

It is probably too much to ask for, but we hope that the Soviet Union and Vietnam will agree to talk seriously about chemical warfare in Southeast Asia and Afghanistan.

PHAM VAN DONG ATTENDS ECONOMIC EXHIBITION

[Text] On 18 April, Pham Van Dong, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers, visited the exhibition on Vietnam's economic and technical achievements being held at the Ciang Vo Exhibition Center in Hanoi. Le Thanh Cong, vice minister of culture and information and member of the exhibition organizing committee, welcomed and briefed Pham Van Dong on various displays and products representing the economic and technical achievements of our country over the past 5 years.

Pham Van Dong carefully inspected goods and products of economic and technical value produced by almost 40 sectors, provinces and army units. He paid particular attention to many goods of high economic and technical value which have concretely served the requirements of the people's daily life, production and export, especially unique goods with high export value produced by various localities throughout the country.

Various of the products, goods and results of scientific research programs displayed at the exhibition demonstrate our cadres, workers' and people's creative abilities in applying modern science and technology to the cause of national building and defense.

After hearing Le Thanh Cong report on the initial achievements of the exhibition since its opening, Pham Van Dong urged various sectors and localities participating in the exhibition to study and thoroughly understand the economic lines, orientations and tasks set forth by the Fifth VCP Congress and strive to develop their great potentials and strength to produce more products and new goods. He added: These products and goods are not only for exhibition but also, first of all, to serve the requirements of the people's daily life, production and national defense and for export.

USSR ACADEMICIAN CITES U.S. TOXIC EFFECTS IN SRV

OW211317 Hanoi VNA in English 0751 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 21 -- "By producing and stockpiling most sophisticated chemical weapons the United States is challenging the whole mankind," said Soviet Academician Aleksandr Fokin, member of the Secretariat of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, in an interview by TASS on April 19. Fokin, who recently returned from Vietnam where he had seen some of the tangible proofs of U.S. chemicals warfare noted that the White House's decision to mass produce toxic chemicals is based on its experience gained from the U.S. chemical war in Indochina.

He recalled that U.S. troops had sprayed on Vietnam more than 9,600 tonnes of herbicide (orange, white and blue) and more than 8,000 tonnes of chemical poisons, mostly C-5. The massive use of chemical weapons will have durable effects on men, animals and other living organisms, the scientist pointed out. In Vietnam, he went on, 1.6 million persons were victims of the chemical weapons and 44 percent of the forests and 40 percent of the fields were affected.

Fokin further said: "Besides the innumerable victims of the long-term consequences of the chemical weapons is a very large number of persons directly affected during the war. Considerable changes have been observed in their blood composition and the physiology of the internal organs. The premeditated use of substances containing poisons, especially dioxin (tetrachlorophenoxyaradcoxin) of high toxicity, extremely resistent in the atmosphere and permanently embedded in the soil, has proved most especially disastrous. It is this substance that is responsible for a series of deadly retarded effects such as liver and blood cancer, birth defects, perturbations of pregnancies and high rate of infantile mortality."

"We have seen in Vietnam deformed children born after the chemical war. It is very sad sight," the academician said. He likened the harm done to the Vietnamese people by U.S. chemical weapons to that done by the atomic bombs to the populations of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. He said that today perturbations of the human genital system are observed only in two places of our planet, Japan and Vietnam. "Their sufferings and those of their future generations are the direct result of the crime perpetrated by the U.S. militarists," Fokin remarked.

DIRECTIVE ISSUED ON TECHNICAL MANAGEMENT

[Text] According to VNA, the chairman of the Council of Ministers on 13 April issued a directive on intensifying scientific and technical management in all provinces and those municipalities and special zones directly subordinate to the central government. After assessing the status of scientific and technical management in all provinces and municipalities over the recent past, the directive says:

In the days ahead all provinces and municipalities must mobilize scientific and technical forces from all local sectors and echelons and research establishments at the central level to survey and satisfactorily study the natural resources and natural and social conditions in their localities and, on that basis, adopt the necessary measures to exploit their natural resources and manpower. Meanwhile, they must apply advanced techniques and advanced production innovations and experiences quickly and broadly to production and the people's livelihood; satisfactorily organize work related to the supply and dissemination of information on science and technology; standardize the management of production techniques on the basis of criteria and norms; ensure accurate measurement and perfect control of the quality of products; and effectively prevent a situation in which production is irresponsibly carried out and is focused only on quantity, as well as a situation in which fake goods is made, which is detrimental to the national economy and people.

To vigorously develop agriculture, expand various professions and occupations for the production of consumer goods and increase the source of export goods, it is necessary satisfactorily to exploit the potentials of all localities. To achieve this goal, all localities must scrupulously implement the regulations, systems and decisions already promulgated by the state in regard to scientific and technical planning and the development of innovations in improving techniques and rationalizing production. It is also necessary to disseminate information on science and technology, standardize technical management, establish criteria, control the quality of products and goods, inspect measuring instruments and so forth.

Finally, the directive points out the responsibility of the chairmen of the provincial and municipal people's committees and the chairman of the State Science and Technology Commission in directing the intensification of scientific and technical management in all provinces and all municipalities and special zones directly subordinate to the central government.

DIRECTIVE ISSUED ON ADMINISTRATIVE SCHOOLS

[Text] According to a VNA report, the Council of Ministers recently issued Directive No 272-CT on consolidating the structure of administrative schools in all provinces and in municipalities directly subordinate to the central government. The directive says:

Administrative schools in all provinces and municipalities are dutybound to train and foster state management cadres for localities in accordance with the plan and policy of the state, such as providing advanced training for incumbent cadres who are members of the people's committees at the village, city ward and township levels or personnel responsible for administrative work at various state management organs at the district and provincial or equivalent levels; training statemanagement cadres under a middle-level program to reinforce the administration at the grassroots level; and cooperating with other organs concerned in providing advanced training for representatives of the people's councils at all levels and cadres appointed to be in charge of certain schools and units in accordance with the administrative system applied to organs belonging to the people's committees in all provinces and in municipalities directly subordinate to the central government.

The directive stipulates that efforts must be made to care for and develop the contingent of full-time and part-time teachers and expand and equip all schools with the necessary facilities in order to create favorable conditions for their scholastic and academic activities.

The directive also stipulates that the central administrative system is dutybound to open refresher courses for teachers of provincial and municipal administrative schools and unify the teaching program and ensure its quality in all schools in accordance with the new requirements and tasks.

LAO ROCKET SAID NOT TO BE BIOLOGICAL WEAPON

BK200850 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 20 Apr 82

[Text] What is claimed to be a chemical warfare rocket from Laos has been examined by Australian Defense Department officials in Thailand and is now believed to be nothing more than an unexploded weapon from the Indochina war. Radio Australia's Bangkok correspondent Paul Lockyer says the rocket, which has a warhead carrying Russian markings, is thought to have been manufactured more than 10 years ago.

Lockyer says the weapon is believed to be simply an unexploded rocket-propelled grenade. He says the rocket was delivered to Australian Government officials in Thailand by a Sydney television news team which is believed to have paid Laos resistance leaders U.S.$10,000 for it.

MULDOON, ANTHONY END TALKS WITHOUT AGREEMENT

[Text] The Australian deputy prime minister, Mr Anthony, and the New Zealand prime minister, Mr Muldoon, have ended 2 days of negotiations without reaching agreement on several issues affecting the proposed trans-Tasman trade agreement. However, they said the target date for the implementation of the so-called closer economic relations agreement remained at 1 January of next year.

Mr Anthony told a press conference that discussions had made enormous progress but that there were certain areas of difference requiring further examination. Neither leader would give details of progress in specific areas, particularly on the question of New Zealand's import licensing and export incentive system which Australia wants to phase out.

TREASURER PREDICTS LARGE DEFICIT THIS YEAR

[Text] The treasurer, Mr Howard, has told Parliament that the national budget deficit is likely to be seven times larger than first thought. He says he expects the budget deficit for this financial year to be about $1,000 million, that's about U.S.$1,050 million. This compares with the projected estimate of $146 million at the time the budget was brought down. Mr Howard told Parliament that on current indications, the deficit would be about $1,000 million but revenue collections still to be carried out could have an important bearing on the final outcome. He said to keep that figure in perspective, it should be pointed out that it represented well below 1 percent of the gross domestic product.

He told Parliament the government recognized the risks involved in Australia being part of the Commonwealth military training program in Uganda. But while the internal security situation there was unsettled, the government believed there was no serious danger to Australian personnel.

SINGAPORE

OWNERSHIP OF NEWSPAPERS TO BE RESTRUCTURED

BK201517 Singapore Domestic Service in English 1300 GMT 20 Apr 82

[Text] The ownership of the English and Chinese newspapers in Singapore is to be restructured. A statement from the prime minister's office says after considerable discussions between ministers and the chairmen of the boards of NANYANG and SIN CHEW, the board of directors of the two Chinese newspapers have agreed to merge into a single holding company, through the Singapore monitor private limited, the proposed holding will take over the readership of NEW NATION as an afternoon paper and SUNDAY NATION as a Sunday paper.

For helping the NANYANG-SIN CHEW group to take over the English afternoon paper, THE STRAITS TIMES group will not have a morning paper to compete against for 3 years. At the same time it will be given a permit to publish an afternoon Chinese newspaper.

The statement said these new arrangements are designed to create two economically viable and eventually competitive publishing houses each capable of producing a Chinese and an English newspaper. As a first step, NANYANG and SIN CHEW will pool their financial and manpower resources to achieve the economies of scale essential for viability. The pooling of manpcwer resources will also help to raise journalistic standards. To provide strong management backing to the new NYANG-SIN CHEW holding company, the government has decided to allow 30 percent of the shares to be held by (?overseas union bank groups), just as the overseas Chinese banking corporation group and associated companies have been allowed to have 33 percent of the shares of THE STRAITS TIMES group. The NANYANG-SIN CHEW holding company will have 52 percent of the shares of the Singapore monitor private limited. The remaining 48 percent will be equally shared between the United Overseas Bank, the Overseas Union Bank and the Development Bank of Singapore.

In the initial stage, the Singapore monitor private limited has agreed with THE STRAITS TIMES press limited that it will borrow the title of the NEW NATION and SUNDAY NATION at a nominal fee from STRAITS TIMES group as from the 1st of next month for up to 1 year in the first instance.

The times group had told the government in January this year that it wanted to stop publishing NEW NATION and BUSINESS TIMES, because it wanted to concentrate its available journalistic resources on THE STRAITS TIMES. The newspapers had not been up to standard because the limited number of trained journalists was spread thin over NEW NATION, SUNDAY NATION and BUSINESS TIMES.

Explaining the restructuring, the statement says there is presently a growing readership of English newspapers and the stagnant and later declining readership for the Chinese newspapers. This development threatened the long-term viability of Chinese newspapers and could lead to redundencies of Chinese journalists. The restructuring will also prevent a sudden increase in the demand for English language journalists, which will be the case if the NANYANG-SIN CHEW newspapers start up now with the new English morning newspapers to compete with THE STRAITS TIMES.

The statement points out that a sudden increase in demand will lower journalistic standards, because the available pool of journalistic talent is limited. It is not desirable to have too many expatriate journalists running Singapore's English newspapers. It is an awareness of this shortage of English language journalists that left THE STRAITS TIMES [word indistinct] to want to stop publishing the NEW NATION and the BUSINESS TIMES and concentrate its efforts on THE STRAITS TIMES, in part to meet expected competition from the new English morning newspaper.

The statement adds that at a later date, when there are enouhg competent English-language jouranlists to produce two morning newspapers, there could be free competition between the NANYANG-SIN CHEW monitor company and THE STRAITS TIMES group.

LDP GROUP URGES NO EASING OF FARM, FISH IMPORTS

OW220123 Tokyo KYODO in English 0114 GMT 22 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 22, KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP)'s farm, fishery and forestry blocs Thursday adopted a joint resolution calling for no liberalization of imports of farm and fishery products, such as beef and oranges. This is the first time that LDP units formally adopted a resolution against import liberalization.

It is believed that this action by the party's overall Farm Administration Research Council, Agriculture-Forestry and Fishery Panels and the Forestry Administration Research Council will affect the efforts by the government and the LDP to adjust their differences over a new market-opening package, now being drawn up.

SUZUKI FAVORS CLOSER RELATIONS WITH PRC

[Text] Tokyo, April 22, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Thursday that his government would do its utmost for closer relations between Japan and China in political, economic and cultural fields as well as in sports. In an interview with Chinese television, Suzuki said that he will visit China in fall to return the visit of Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang to Japan next month.

Referring to China's modernization efforts, the prime minister said his government would do everything possible to help China develop into an industrial nation before the current century ends. Suzuki also said that the Japanese Government and people would warmly welcome the visit by the Chinese premier. Zhao is scheduled to visit Japan from May 31 through June 5. Japan and China have agreed to exchange visits of their heads of government on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of Japan-China diplomatic ties this year.

FOREIGN MINISTRY 'REGRETS' ISRAELI LEBANON RAID

[Text] Tokyo, April 22, KYODO -- Japan Thursday expressed regret about the latest Israeli bombardment of Lebanon in a comment announced in the name of the Foreign Ministry's director general of the Public Information and Cultural Affairs Bureau.

The comment said that the Israeli raid runs counter to the cease-fire agreement and rudely violates Lebanese sovereignty and territorial integrity as well as damages the atmosphere for peace emerging from the agreement reached in July, 1981. It is much to be regreted that the air raid could lead to the effect that mutual mistrust grows, the tension in the Middle East region is raised and the possibility to create peace is diminished, according to the comment. The comment expressed strong hope that the Sinai Peninsula will be returned to Egypt on April 25 as scheduled.

AGREEMENT REACHED WITH USSR ON SALMON QUOTA

[Text] Moscow, April 22, KYODO -- Japanese-Soviet negotiations to fix 1982 catch quotas for salmon caught in the northwestern Pacific concluded Thursday in Moscow after the two parties agreed to keep Japan's quota at 42,500 tons, the same as that in 1981. The two parties also agreed that Japan should again pay yen 4 billion as fees, also the same as in 1981.

During the negotiations, the Japanese side accepted a Soviet proposal on joint surveillance of the fishing operations which would involve the presence of Soviet observers on Japanese patrol ships. The joint surveillance is intended as a precautionary measure to prevent Japanese fishing boats from violating the rules and restrictions imposed on their salmon fishing operations in the northwestern Pacific waters. It will be the first time that such steps have been implemented.

ROUNDTABLE CONFERENCE WITH USSR OPENS IN TOKYO

[Text] Tokyo, April 20, KYODO -- Shigeyoshi Matsumae, an influential figure in Japanese political circles, Tuesday called on Japan and the Soviet Union to start negotiations immediately to seek ways to improve bilateral relations and detente in the Far East.

In a keynote speech to the opening session of the third Japan-Soviet roundtable conference here, Matsumae said that a summit meeting between the two countries could find a solution which would satisfy both Japan and the Soviet Union. Matsumae is chairman of the Japan Cultural Association with Foreign Countries, one of the five organizations sponsoring the three-day, non-governmental meeting. Almost 500 participants, including some 120 Soviet representatives, will discuss international and bilateral problems in meetings of five subcommittees Wednesday and Thursday.

Matsumae had earlier made the proposal to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in a meeting with Premier Nikolay Tikhonov last September and said that it had drawn a positive reaction in the Soviet Union.

Matsumae said that Japan-Soviet relations have deteriorated since the previous roundtable conference in Moscow, in November, 1980, reflecting increased tension between the United States and the Soviet Union. He reaffirmed his willingness to establish stable relations with the Soviet Union on the basis of new principles which stipulate the relationship between the two states.

In regard to "the problem which has remained unsolved since World War II," Matsumae said that it was advisable to confirm the existence of "the problem" on the basis of the 1956 Japan-Soviet joint declaration and the 1973 joint communique and to leave its final settlement to future negotiations. He was speaking of the territorial problem involving four Soviet-held northern islands off Hokkaido, claimed by Japan. Tokyo says that Moscow had shown a positive attitude toward the territorial issue in the two diplomatic documents referred to by Matsumae. The Soviet Union, however, now insists that there exists no territorial problem between itself and Japan.

On the disarmament problem. Matsumae said that the Soviet military presence poses a threat to neighboring nations, including Japan -- even if it is only defensive in character as Premier Tikhonov told him earlier. He said that visible reduction and limitation of military forces by the Soviet Union was a precondition for establishing a new relationship between that country and neighboring nations.

A clear gap in perception between the Japanese and Soviets on the bilateral issue was unveiled when Chief Soviet Representative Timofey Guzhenko, chairman of the Soviet-Japan society and merchant marine minister, delivered the keynote speech for the Soviet Union.

Guzhenko called for promotion of political contacts, cooperation in economy and trade, exchange in science and technology, culture and sports, as well as personal contacts among the representatives of nongovernmental organizations.

But Guzhenko attributed the deterioration in bilateral relations to some quarters in Japan trying to abandon the gains already realized and to obstacles created by external forces.

Guzhenko, the first high ranking Soviet Government official to visit Japan since the imposition of sanctions by Japan in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, supported Brezhnev's new proposals made last month for improvement of Soviet-Japan relations and for nuclear disarmament.

Conference Continues

[Text] Tokyo, April 21, KYODO -- Japan should pledge to maintain its three non-nuclear principles and the Soviet Union commit itself not to use its nuclear weapons against Japan in an agreement between the two countries, a socialist dietman proposed Wednesday.

The proposal, made by Takumi Ueda, received positive response of Soviet participants at a working session on the second day of the third Japan-Soviet roundtable conference here. Ueda's proposal was part of his seven point plan to improve the strained Japan-Soviet relations through reciprocal confidence building.

Soviet delegates called it constructive and interesting and said that their country would not ignore it. But they said the U.S. military bases in Japan posed a threat to the Soviet Union. They hope the Japanese people would express their wish not to be integrated in the U.S. global strategy.

The three-day conference is sponsored by five nongovernmental groups promoting friendship with the Soviet Union. Japanese and Soviet participants showed a clear difference of view over the territorial issue. Japanese delegates representing various political orientations urged the Soviet Union to acknowledge the existence of the territorial issue between the two countries and discuss the matter in official bilateral talks. They were referring to four small Japanese islands off Hokkaido which have been occupied by the Soviet Union since the end of World War II.

But the Soviet participants merely reiterated Moscow's position that there exists no territorial problem between the two countries. I.A. Latyshev, a senior researcher in the Institute of Oriental Studies of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said that his country has no intention to change borders fixed as a result of World War II, as many Soviet citizens are leading peaceful and stable lives on the islands claimed by Japan. He added, however, that negotiations for a peace treaty would, of course, include border demarcations.

The participants continued discussion in four other working groups on peace and disarmament, economics and trade, cultural exchange and friendship movement. A joint communique is expected to be issued at the close of the conference Thursday.

MAC REPRESENTATIVE PROTESTS 'ARMED PROVOCATIONS'

[Text] Our side's senior member of the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] has sternly warned against the enemy side's continuous armed provocations. As was already reported, our side's senior member of the MAC, in telephone messages sent to the enemy side at 1121 and 1307 on 21 April, sternly protested against the South Korean puppet army's large-scale firing against our side's civil police who were on patrol duty in the Demilitarized Zone. He strongly demanded the enemy side take responsible measures to prevent recurrence of such acts.

However, the enemy side, far from taking measures to stop its military provocations, is continuously committing reckless and provocative acts. At around 1700 on 21 April, the South Korean puppet army, at a site about 1,300 meters south of military demarcation line [MDL] marker 1008 on the eastern frontline, fired several rounds of large-caliber machinegun fire toward our area on the opposite side. Earlier, at around 1510, the South Korean puppet army, at a site 350 meters southeast of MDL marker 1055 on the eastern frontline, fired several rounds of automatic rifle shots toward our guardpost on the opposite side.

The South Korean puppet army's armed provocations continued on the western frontline as well. At around 2125 at a site at latitude 37 degrees 49 minutes 33 seconds north and longitude 126 degrees 40 minutes 48 seconds east and again at around 0622 on 22 April at a site at latitude 37 degrees 50 minutes 02 seconds north and longitude 126 degrees 41 minutes 49 seconds east -- both sites are on the estuary of the Imjin River -- the South Korean puppet army fired several rounds of M-16 rifle shots against our areas on the opposite side.

Such acts committed by the rascals are flagrant violations of the armistice agreement and a very grave military provocation which can lead to an armed clash between the two sides.

In the telephone messages Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, our side's senior member of the MAC, strongly protested against the enemy side's armed provocation against our side and strongly demanded the enemy side take responsible measures to prevent recurrence of such incidents. The rascals must bear in mind that their continuous military provocations could lead them to pay a dear price. They should behave discreetly.

[Statement of the spokesman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF], issued on 21 April -- read by announcer]

[Text] The South Korean fascist clique has recently committed a barbarous, tyrannical act of randomly arresting and imprisoning courageous students who set fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and waged an anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle, conscientious democrats and religious figures. As is known, the puppet clique has arrested several students, including Mun Pu-sik and Kim Un-suk -- alleged leaders of the recent arson -- and Kim Hyon-chang, the alleged mastermind of their struggle. It has also arrested conscientious religious figures, including Father Choe Ki-sik -- director of the training institute of the Wonju Catholic Parish in Kangwon Province, South Korea, who allegedly assisted them in seeking refuge -- and many residents. It attempts to cruelly punish them on charges of violating fascist evil laws, such as the national security law and the law on assembly and demonstration.

In addition, availing itself of the incident, the fascist clique has launched a full-scale search operation against patriotic youths and students and democratic forces, including those involved in the Kwangju people's uprising, who took the lead in the struggle to achieve democratization. It has raised unprecedentedly frantic, fascist rows in randomly searching campuses, enterprises, churches and residential houses.

Patriotic youths and students and innocent people have been frequently subjected to checks and searches; they are dragged to prison, bound in iron shackles, making the whole of South Korea terror stricken.

The frantic repressive campaign launched by the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique is a high-handed and vicious fascist outrage against the South Korean students and people, who desire independence, democracy and reunification, and is a despicable and dastardly treachery which can only be committed by the dirtiest pro-U.S. flunkeyist traitors. Regarding the unprecedented tyranny committed by the Chon Tu-hwan clique in the wake of the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan as the clearest token of an act opposing independence, democracy and reunification, the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland bitterly denounces it with surging rage.

The arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and the scattering of anti-U.S. handbills are a natural outcome of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule, the root cause of all misfortunes and sufferings of the South Korean people. Occupying South Korea for 37 years and obstinately opposing freedom and democracy for the people and Korea's reunification, the U.S. imperialist aggressors have maintained the most barbarous, outrageous fascist colonial rule, using the puppets as the executors of this rule. The U.S. imperialists have seized substantial power in all sectors, including the political, economic, cultural and military sectors, in South Korea; have exterminated everything which is people-minded and democratic; and have made everything serve their policy for converting South Korea into a colonial base.

It is none other than the U.S. imperialist aggressors who took command of the barbarous mass holocaust in Kwangju, which has left indelible rancor in the hearts of our people. It is none other than the U.S. imperialists who assisted in arresting, imprisoning and cruelly suppressing and persecuting democrats, including Kim Tae-chung, and patriotic youths and students. It is none other than the U.S. authorities who have instigated the South Korean fascist military clique in criminally maneuvering to provoke war and to perpetuate division and who have profited by selling rice and goods to South Korea at high prices.

The South Korean people and students have already, through actual experience, gained the faith that neither the democratization of society nor the country's peaceful reunification can be achieved and that no desire can be fulfilled as long as the U.S. imperialist aggressors remain in South Korea.

The South Korean students' and people's setting fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and holding aloft the torch of the anti-U.S. struggle was an eruption of the pent-up wrath and grievances from the protracted colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and was natural chastisement meted out to the U.S. imperialist aggressors, the people's sworn enemy, who have imposed all sorts of misfortunes and sufferings on them.

Nevertheless, while defining the South Korean people's and students' righteous anti-U.S. nation-saving struggle as nation-ruining violence and as indiscreet acts committed by impure elements, and while disgracefully apologizing to the United States, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, a group of faithful stooges of the U.S. imperialists, has kicked up unprecedentedly suppressive rackets by fully utilizing police and intelligence networks and even by mobilizing puppet army troops, thus revealing its dirty color as a group of pro-U.S. toadyist traitors.

While declining to lodge a protest against the U.S. imperialist aggressors' barbarous acts of randomly killing Koreans everywhere in South Korea, making playthings of women, usurping property and setting fire to residential houses, and while even patronizing these acts, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has run wild with bayonets against the fellow countrymen's righteous anti-U.S. nation-saving struggle. What a filthy group of traitors they are!

By linking the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan with us by force, they are trying to further step up the suppression of youths and students and people and to more wickedly kick up anticommunist rackets.

This is a stereotyped method used by the puppets to link with us all crises which stem from within South Korea so that they can hatch intrigues against us. No matter how desperately the puppets may try to pick a quarrel with us by hatching intrigues against us, no one will believe them.

If the puppets further suppress the South Korean people's patriotic struggle by fabricating lies to pick a quarrel with us, they will commit graver crimes. Today, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is getting more feverish in the fascist suppression of the South Korean people and in pro-U.S. treacheries in the wake of the anti-U.S. struggle in Pusan. This is aimed at quelling anti-U.S. sentiments and the trend for democracy and reunification, which have daily increased in South Korea, and at winning confidence from their masters so that they can fulfill their wild desire for long-term power. However, this is a futile act committed by those who have been driven into a corner.

No matter how frantically the puppets may run wild, wielding bayonets, they will be unable to thwart the righteous struggle of the South Korean people and youths and students to found a reunified fatherland -- a new free world without aggressors and traitors and a new democratic society free from fascism and division. The more the fascist elements challenge the trend of the times, the more they will expedite their downfall.

If the Chon Tu-hwan ring does not want to suffer the miserable doom of the previous dictator who met his downfall while faithfully executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of colonial subjugation, it must immediately stop its treachery, unconditionally and immediately release the patriotic students and people it has illegally imprisoned and step down from power without delay.

The U.S. imperialists must give up their illusions concerning the maintenance of fascist colonial rule by employing such a murderous devil as traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who has been isolated and rejected by the South Korean people, and withdraw, taking with them their aggressive troops and all lethal weapons, including nuclear weapons, before they are driven out by the fierce anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people.

On this occasion, we express the firm belief that the South Korean people, youths and students will surely win final victory by holding higher the torch, which they already hold, of the anti-U.S., antifascist struggle.

NODONG SINMUN RAPS ARREST OF S. KOREAN PRIEST

[Text] Pyongyang, April 21 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is persecuting Priest Choe Ki-sik for the reason that he protected patriotic students who set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan, and cracking down on the religionists who prayed for democracy and civil rights at a church. NODONG SINMUN today brands this suppression as an unbearable infringement upon human dignity and conscience and a vicious challenge to the religionists of South Korea and the world who set store by democracy and social justice. The author of its commentary titled "New Fascist Attack" notes that the South Korean puppets' outrage patently showed what their much-vaunted "freedom of religion" and "freedom of belief" are. It continues:

South Korean priests did right as religionists when they helped their believers who requested protection after setting fire to the "American Cultural Centre," a tool of the U.S. imperialists for ideological and cultural aggression. The Chon Tu-hwan clique's suppression of churchmen is another intolerable treachery currying favor with its U.S. imperialist master and leaving fellow countrymen to the tender mercies of the master and part of the criminal moves to deflect the South Korean churchmen from the ranks of struggle for the right to existence and democracy and bind them hand and foot forever with the chains of fascism.

This tells that the Chon Tu-hwan group is perpetrating a new fascist attack on the South Korean religious circles and democratic forces on preposterous pretexts. Fascist suppresion, however, will never be a way out for the Chon Tu-hwan gangster. The South Korean fascists who are talking about freedom of religion in words but in deeds trying to suppress even the church by fascist dictatorship cannot go scotfree.

The commentary stresses: The Chon Tu-hwan clique must stop suppressing South Korean churchmen and students, release without delay all the arrested people including priest Choe Ki-sik and step down from power, as demanded by the people.

VRPR CITES THREAT TO U.S. EMBASSY, OSAN AIRBASE

[Excerpts] At a time when anti-American sentiment is growing among our people, on 18 March the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was set on fire by patriots. The fire is said to be the work of patriotic citizens who did it out of anti-American sentiment. Here is Ms Yun of our station who reports the reactions from people in Pusan, Seoul and Kwangju:

When the news that the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was set on fire reached them, people across the country hailed it. Pusan citizens show a look of contentment, acclaiming the acts of the patriotic citizens at the U.S. Cultural Center. A certain Kim, who is a Pusan University student, has this to say:

The fire at the U.S. Cultural Center is our expression of wrath toward the United States. This is manifested by the anti-U.S. handbill which reads "The United States should not subjugate South Korea any more. It should withdraw from South Korea."

Kwangju citizens, who say their grievances will not be eased until they tear traitor Chon Tu-hwan to death, view the fire as an eruption of pent-up anti-U.S. sentiment among our people. A resident, who lost his son during the Kwangju popular uprising, has this to say: The fire at the Pusan Cultural Center was not done on the spur of the moment. It was an eruption of pent-up anti-U.S. sentiment. The U.S. Cultural Center in Kwangju was gutted in December 1980. This time, the cultural center in Pusan was burned. Today it was the Pusan cultural center that was set on fire. Who knows, tomorrow it could be the U.S. Embassy and the U.S. airbase at Osan that will be reduced to ashes. I hail the patriotic citizens' buring of the U.S. Cultural Center. I would like to appeal to the people to protect these patriots.

Seoul citizens, who had been listening to radio reports on the fire, commented, "Well done," "Bravo," and "Due punishment" and called for the prompt withdrawal of U.S. troops from this land. A certain Pak, a dismissed journalist whom I met at a tea room in Songbuk District in Seoul, has this say:

It is of great significance that the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was gutted at a time when "Team Spirit 1982" is ongoing and the Chon Tu-hwan clique is trying to play up the centennial of the establishment of Korea-U.S. relations. In a nutshell, the fire at the Pusan cultural center is our people's warning that the frantic war exercise be stopped and U.S. troops be withdrawn. The United States should withdraw U.S. troops and their military equipment. Chon Tu-hwan, a traitor to the nation, should promptly step down from power.

NODONG SINMUN HAILS KIM IL-SONG POLICY SPEECH

[NODONG SINMUN 20 April editorial: "Let Us Complete the Communist Cause Along the Road Illuminated by the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-song"]

[Text] Amid great concern and expectation expressed by all the people throughout the country, a joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly has been held. This joint meeting was an important one having epochal significance in strengthening our revolutionary government and in expediting the bright future of communism.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and leader of our party and the government of the republic, made a historic policy speech at the meeting on the task of the people's government for imbuing society with the chuche idea. In his speech, based on scientific insight into the requirements of the development of our revolution which entered a new, higher stage and the correctness of the work of carrying out the cause of communism, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song illuminated the path to be followed by our people and the revolutionary government. This is an epochal event laying a new milestone on the revolutionary struggle of our people who have accelerated the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

Today, all party members and workers see the bright future of communism in the leadership assumed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song who has led our republic with profound wisdom and extraordinary energy. They are firmly determined to implement the instructions that the leader set forth in his policy speech. The basic spirit of the task of the people's government for imbuing society with the chuche idea, reflected in the great leader's policy speech, is to completely achieve the sovereignty of the working people by continuing the revolution to the end under the banner of the chuche idea. The revolutionary mission of the working class is basically the struggle to achieve the sovereignty of the people. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's magnificent plan is to build the paradise of communism in which the people fully enjoy an independent, creative life by vigorously advancing this sacred cause under all circumstances.

Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our revolution has reached a very high stage at which we regard the work of completely achieving the sovereignty of the working people as our struggle goal. Clearly delineated in the policy speech are strategic and tactical policies for achieving the cause of independence and the methods for implementing these policies, such as the tasks of fulfilling the people's demand for independence in all social sectors in accordance with the practical requirements for our revolution and the trend of the times, protecting the sovereignty of the nation and achieving independence on a global scale.

The source of the inexhuastible might of the policy speech is that it illuminates the road of accomplishing the cause of liberating men based on the immortal chuche idea. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is an immortal classic document which has summed up and developed the chuche-type communist revolutionary theory onto a new, higher stage.

The leader of the working class invents, develops and enriches the communist revolutionary theory which represents the contemporary era. Through energetic ideological and theoretical activities during the entire period of revolution and construction, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has uniquely resolved many difficult and complicated ideological and theoretical questions in carrying out the cause of socialism and communism. This course has been a proud one in which a new communist revolutionary theory has been invented with the working people as the central figures.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech occupies a conspicuous position in the history of the development of the chuche-type communist revolutionary theory. Theoretically generalized in this document are rich experiences and achievements the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has attained during a long period, such as the basic requirements for building communism, the correctness of the taks of completing this cause and the task of strengthening the people's government, a revolutionary weapon.

Thanks to the work which has illuminated the road of completely achieveing the sovereignty of the working people with many unique principles and clear logic, the chuche-type communist revolutionary theory has developed. The reformative role of this theory has grown. Because of this, the work has become a monumental document which has opened a new way for developing the revolutionary ideology of the working class.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's publishing of the work on the task of the people's government for imbuing society with the chuche idea is of great theoretical and practical significance in the struggle of our people and in the revolutionary cause of the working class. The work is a programmatic document which has provided a new opportunity for change in the struggle of our people to complete the cause of communism under the banner of the people's government and the three revolutions.

In his policy speech the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forward a new, great proposition that communism means the people's government plus the three revolutions, based on the rich experiences he had gained while leading the cause of socialist construction and a revolutionary government to victory. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: To build communism, we should vigorously forge ahead with the revolution and construction under the banner of the people's government and the three revolutions. The respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song's proposition that communism means the people's government plus the three revolutions is a most correct, classic formulation of a lawful rule for the completion of communism. The people's government is a political weapon for guaranteeing the independent, creative life of the working people. The three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural -- are a basic method of building communism. Only when we firmly grasp both the people's government and the three revolutions can we completely achieve the sovereignty of the people.

With the new proposition of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song for adding the three revolutions to the people's government, the fundamental guideline to be adhered to in the entire course of building communism, the form and content of the revolution under the socialist system and the reature of a future communist society have been clarified. This is a great creative discovery that shows a clear-cut road to communism not be outlines and presumptions but on the basis of the chuche idea.

Since they seized power and began to build a new society, our people have vigorously struggled under the banner of the three revolutions to achieve sovereignty in all social sectors. The new proposition that adding the three revolutions to the people's government will produce communism constitutes a factor more steadily encouraging our people's struggle to achieve the cause of independence. Provided with this powerful ideological, theoretical weapon, our people have victoriously accelerated the work of remodelling men and nature without the slightest turns or twists and built a prosperous paradise of communism with confidence in the future and a clear-cut goal.

The struggle to build communism under the banner of the people's government and the three revolutions is very difficult and unfamiliar work. In his recent policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a militant task for the people's government to implement the chuche idea and a mass line, strengthen its uniform guidance of society, place priority on the ideological revolution and vigorously forge ahead with both the technical and cultural revolutions so that it can achieve this historic cause. As a result, our people's government is able to successfully accomplish its role as a political weapon which provides the working people an independent, creative life. Our people are able to more vigorously forge ahead with the struggle to achieve sovereignty in all sectors, including the political, economic and cultural sectors.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is a resplendent blueprint which assists in successfully occupying the material fortress of communism through the vigorous acceleration of socialist economic construction. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: To completely achieve the sovereignty of the people by building a communist society, we should vigorously forge ahead with socialist economic construction.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught, communist society is not only a society in which all people have comprehensively developed and the people's social and political sovereignty has been completely achieved but also a very affluent society in which material demands have been smoothly met in the social sector. Expounded in the policy speech are the fighting tasks and ways for implementing the magnificent program for socialist economic construction set forth by the sixth congress of our party to meet the independent demand of the people in the sector of material life.

The 10-point prospective goal for socialist economic construction set forth by the sixth congress of our party is a milestone for developing the independent national economy of our country onto a new, higher stage and for raising the people's material and cultural life. With the accomplishment of this task, a firm material and technical foundation will be laid to suit a socialist society which will achieve complete victory, and our people will become the most happy and proud people who more successfully enjoy communist benefits in all sectors of material life, including diet.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech, which reflects a noble desire to build a society in our fatherland reflecting the people's long-cherished desire and the ideal of communism, has greatly encouraged our people and vigorously called them to an all-out advance movement to achieve the goal of the new prospective plan for socialist economic construction.

The significance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is that it make epochal advances in the struggle to achieve the fatherland's independent reunification, the greatest desire of our people.

Based on profound insight into the essence of the struggle to achieve the fatherland's reunification and the present situation, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly expounded the tasks of forcing U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea, resolutely checking the South Korean authorities' policy of relying on foreign forces and founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo in accordance with the proposal advanced by the sixth party congress. This is of great significance in achieving national sovereignty on a nationwide scale and pioneering the future of the people. With the brilliant implementation of the magnificent plan for the fatherland's reunification set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our Korea will magnificently advance to the world arena as a reunified, independent country which does not rely on foreign forces and does not join any blocs.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is a banner powerfully encouraging the struggle of the people to build an independent new world. The people's cause of independence is a global cause for which the struggle is waged not only on a national scale but also on an international scale. Today all the people demand sovereignty. Every country traverses the road of independence. This is the basic trend of our era which no force can block. Correctly reflecting this trend, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a unique policy for making the world independent and elucidated the fundamental stand and fighting tasks to achieve this end.

The policy for making the world independent is a correct guideline for completely eliminating all forms of domination and subjugation and completely achieving sovereignty on a global scale. This great policy has opened a broad way for preventing a world war, preserving lasting peace in the world and helping each country and each nation build an independent, prosperous and new society. Because of this, the policy speech has become a great banner vigorously encouraging the world's revolutionary people who value independence and love peace to achieve the final victory of the cause of independence. Indeed, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is an unprecedented, great classic document in light of the greatness of its influence onthe advance movement of the era of independence and its contribution to developing the theory on the construction of socialism and communism.

Possessing such a programmatic document is a great honor and pride for our people to carry out the revolution in the chuche fatherland under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who after creating the new history of the era of independence, has led a sacred cause to victory for the working people. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's classic work on the task of the people's government for imbuing society with the chuche idea is the precious fruition of the great revolutionary activities of the great leader in leading the revolution and construction to victory and his profound and unique ideological, theoretical activities. Since he pioneered the bright future of our revolution, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, regarding the cause of achieving the sovereignty of the working people as the supreme historic task, has wisely led the struggle to achieve this cause.

The course of our revolution for independence has been a grim fighting course strewn with many difficulties and trials. This course has been a strange, untrodden road. Thanks to the wise leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has illuminated the future path of the contemporary era and the revolution with profound wisdom and scientific insight, our people have successfully achieved the cause for national and class liberation in the northern half of the republic. They are now comprehensively accelerating the cause of liberating men. While victoriously leading the historic struggle of our people to achieve sovereignty, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has always paid close attention to the struggle to strengthen the people's government and carry out the three revolutions. As a result, the government of our republic has been strengthened into an invincible revolutionary government which firmly protects national sovereignty and brilliantly achieves the sovereignty of the working people under all circumstances. All political, ideological and material foundations have been laid in this land to complete the cause of independence.

Without the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's wise leadership, we cannot imagine either today's great reality in which the people's independent, creative life has fully blossomed or the brilliant future of communism, in which sovereignty will be completely achieved. By assuming responsibility for the destiny of the contemporary era and the revolution and victoriously leading the people's cause of independence, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has attained truly great achievements and rich experiences for history and mankind.

The historic work published at a joint meeting of the party Central Committee and the Supreme People's Assembly is the systematization and generalization of the matchlessly rich and diversified achievements and experiences the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has attained on the road of the protracted and arduous revolutionary struggle. Because the respected and beloved leader's historic work has systematized, summed up and developed the great chuche-type communist revolutionary theory which has been invented in grim struggles and activities and whose truth and just nature has been fully tested, it will highly display an inexhaustible vitality in accelerating the advance movement in the era of independence and completing the cause of communism.

Today, we are assigned a heavy task of more vigorously accelerating the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea by implementing the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The government of the republic should brilliantly accomplish its historic duty by building a paradise of communism in this land at the earliest possible date by vigorously struggling to imbue society with the chuche idea. The struggle to implement the programmatic tasks set forth by the great Comrade Kim Il-song in his policy speech is a glorious struggle to build a paradise of communism in the fatherland by completing our revolutionary cause, which has been victorious under the banner of the chuche idea.

All party members and workers should unanimously rise in the struggle to implement the great leader's speech with pride to carry out the revolution under the leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great pioneer and leader of the cause of independence, and with new hope and confidence. We should resolutely protect and materialize the chuche-type communist revolutionary theory under all circumstances by closely studying the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's speech, which is significant in the construction of socialism and communism, and by firmly arming ourselves with the profound idea and theory in this speech.

Strengthening the people's government and carrying out the three revolutions is a great historic task which we should grasp until we complete the cause of communism. Implementing the proposition that communism means the people's government plus the three revolutions, set forth by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his recent policy speech, is a true road toward glorifying forever generation after generation the immortal revolutionary achievements attained by the leader and advancing our revolution only along the single course of chuche.

The more the revolution develops onto a higher stage, the more firmly we should solidify the people's government -- the weapon for the class struggle and for building socialism and communism -- and increase its role in various ways. At the same time, we should strengthen the independent force of our revolution and occupy the two fortresses of communism ahead of schedule by enacting a new change in carrying out the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural.

Today's worthwhile struggle to strengthen the people's government and to accelerate the three revolutions has been organized and led by our party. Our party is the guiding force of the proletarian dictatorial system and a militant staff headquarters which leads the Korean revolution under the banner of the chuche idea. Our party, which struck root in the glorious era when the cause of independence was pioneered and which has been hardened in the storm of the grim revolution, has become the most dignified, authoritative and victorious party which possesses invincible might and tested leadership.

Because this great party leads us, we can brilliantly implement the magnificent program for building communism set forth by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his recent policy speech.

All party members and workers should bear deep in their hearts that holding the party and the leader in high esteem is a way for achieving the final victory of our revolution and the endless prosperity of the era of independence, firmly trust and follow the party and the leader under all circumstances and firmly unite around them. We should brilliantly implement the programmatic tasks clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song by more firmly establishing and maintaining revolutionary discipline and order in the party and society, with which the people move in accordance with the party's intent, and by promoting the spirit of unconditionally implementing party decisions and directives.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a great ideological theoretician and a man of action who clearly illuminates the future path of our era with the immortal chuche idea and who leads the working people's cause of independence to victory. It is the firm will and conviction of our people that when they follow the leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and thoroughly implement the chuche-type line and policy set forth by the leader, they can win victories. They have developed this will and conviction through a protracted and grim struggle. Our people will invariably cherish this profound conviction and continuously and tenaciously advance along the single road of independence illuminated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

There is no force in the world which can block the revolutionary advance of our people vigorously struggling to build the paradise of communism under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Let us all vigorously struggle to win the final victory of the cause of independence by firmly uniting around the party and the leader and under the revolutionary banner of the chuche idea.

PROSECUTORS EXPAND PROBE OF KCAO STATEMENT

[Text] Seoul, April 22 (YONHAP) -- Three more Christian activists, including Rev. In Myong-chin of the Urban Industrial Mission, will be questioned in addition to nine already under investigation in connection with the April 17 statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization (KCAO), a high ranking official at the Seoul Prosecution Office said Thursday.

The summons came after an overnight interrogation of seven other KCAO members, including Catholic priest Rev. Kim Sung-hun. The prosecution office is still searching for two others who have been summoned but have not yet made appearances, the official said. He said criminal indictments are not being considered for the clergymen under investigation. Amomg the churchmen currently under investigation, Rev. Pak Hong, a Catholic priest teaching at Sogang Jesuit University in Seoul, was released Wednesday night.

The Seoul District Prosecution began its probe of the statement Wednesday when it first summoned four of the 42 KCAO members who reportedly signed the document.

Meanwhile, KCAO Secretary General Rev. Kwon Ho-kyong claimed that "the April 17 statement was not anti-American, but it noted the problems of current Korea-U.S. relations and demanded their rectification." In his "conscience declaration" submitted to the KCAO's Human Rights Committee shortly before he made a voluntary appearance at the Seoul Prosecution Office, Kwon asserted that "the statement was adopted as a formal resolution on April 9 after a series of discussions by the leading members of the organization."

The controversial statement demanded, among others, the U.S. Government recall Gen. John A. Wickham, commander of the U.S. forces in Korea, and U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard L. Walker because of their allegedly "insulting remarks about the Korean people."

EXPATRIATE PAPER CLAIMS CHOE HYON POISONED

[Text] Tokyo, YONHAP -- The death of the North Korean puppets' Choe Hyon, which was suddenly announced on 9 April, was caused by poisoning, reports the Korean-resident daily in Tokyo TONGIL ILBO.

TONGIL ILBO has reported this, saying that the information was secretly conveyed to Japan by a source who is knowledgeable about the circumstances surrounding the death of Choe Hyon and who has a special relationship with the North Korean puppets' hierarchy. According to the news report, Choe had presented Kim Il-song representations on the two occasions, in February and March, harshly criticizing the present ruling system, which is pushing ahead with the Kim Chong-il succession, and calling for its improvement.

TONGIL ILBO argues that this caused the mysterious upheavals in the North Korean puppet society in April and that Choe was finally poisoned to death by the faction which is pushing ahead with the Kim Chong-il succession.

HENG SAMRIN INTERVIEWED BY SOVIET DELEGATION

BK200957 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 19 Apr 82

[Text] On 15 April Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee, granted an interview to a delegation of the Soviet journal PROBLEMS OF PEACE AND SOCIALISM in Phnom Penh. Comrade Heng Samrin stated in the interview that for more than 3 years since liberation the Kampuchean people have enjoyed their rights and freedom to the fullest and are presently striving to further stabilize their lives.

He went on to say that in 1980 -- under the wise leadership of the KPRP -- the Kampuchean people successfully avoided the danger of famine left behind by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime. Moreover, in 1981, the Fourth KPRP Congress and the Third National Front Congress clearly defined for the people the future tasks of national defense and reconstruction.

Comrade Heng Samrin also stressed that the Kampuchean people, who are the masters of their country and who are united around the KPRP and Kampuchean Government, are proceeding to build a new life with freedom along a path they have already chosen.

The victories scored by our people in the political, military, economic, cultural and social fields have greatly influenced the prestige of the PRK on the international stage, he said.

Afterwards, Comrade Heng Samrin talked about the successes of our people in production. He stressed that in 1980 our people doubled the rice harvest compared with 1979. They reaped 1.4 million hectares of rice that year. In 1981, despite drought and floods, our people harvested 1,305,000 hectares of rice in addition to 24,000 hectares of subsidiary crops.

Comrade Heng Samrin stressed that these successes were attributable to the all-round assistance and support of Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union and other socialist countries. The Kampuchean people have successfully checked the return of the genocidal regime and other forms of oppressive regimes to the land of the PRK despite the fact that the Beijing expansionists, in collusion with U.S. imperialism and reactionary forces, have resorted to the odious maneuvers of instigating the Pol Pot remnants and other reactionary Khmer groups to sabotage the revolution and peaceful life of our Kampuchean people.

Dealing with foreign policy, the comrade general secretary said that the PRK pursues a policy of peace, friendship and cooperation with neighboring countries in the Southeast Asia in order to turn this region into a zone of peace and stability. Now as in the future, the militant solidarity with Vietnam and Laos constitutes the vital part of the PRK's foreign policy.

In conclusion, Comrade Heng Samrin said: The PRK has the desire to strengthen solidarity with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries which are the firm basis for the preservation of world peace.

VODK DETAILS 1981-82 SRV USE OF TOXIC CHEMICALS

BK211052 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 20 Apr 82

[Unattributed commentary: "The Vietnamese Enemy Aggressors' Heinous Crime of Massacring the Kampucheans With Toxic Chemical Weapons in the 1981-82 Dry Season"]

[Text] In 1979 and 1980 the Vietnamese enemy aggressors waged toxic chemical warfare throughout Kampuchea, fatally poisoning thousands of innocent Kampucheans and seriously crippling several thousand others through the firing of toxic gas shells with artillery pieces, mortars, B-40's and B-41's; through the spreading of toxic gas canisters; through the spraying of toxic chemical powder from aircraft and helicopters; and through the dumping of toxic chemicals in water sources such as wells, ponds, pools, streams and brooks used daily by our people.

In 1981 -- particularly in the 1981-1982 dry season -- however, the Vietnamese enemy aggressors have intensified the use of toxic chemical weapons in a premeditated and systematic manner both in the zone under the control of Democratic Kampuchea and in the battle zone, as well as in the zone under the temporary control of the Vietnamese enemy. Particularly, in the zone under their temporary control, the Vietnamese enemy aggressors have sent their male and female Vietnamese agents to mix with the people in the villages and communes, in the townships and marketplaces and to pour poison surreptitiously in food, sweets and fruits on sale in the markets, every day killing and incapacitating our people of both sexes and all ages.

According to initial, still incomplete figures, during this dry season our people have suffered from this use of toxic chemical weapons as follows:

1. 1,216 people have died, including 42 whole families that perished to the last man.

2. 411 persons have been seriously incapacitated. Why have the Vietnamese enemy aggressors intensified the use of toxic chemical weapons in their war of aggression in Kampuchea with a complete disregard for world condemnation? This is due to the fact that the Vietnamese have become inextricably bogged down and totally and completely cornered on the Kampuchean battlefield. The Vietnamese have exerted their utmost efforts on the battlefield for the past more than 3 years and still cannot make any progress. Worse still, they have become bogged down more deeply in all fields -- military and political -- particularly in the military field. For this reason, the Vietnamese have intensified this chemical warfare in order to delay their defeat and gain some time to carry out their misleading diplomatic maneuvers on the international stage. On the other hand, this expansion of the Vietnamese enemy's chemical warfare in Kampuchea also clearly confirms the extremely ferocious, savage and arrogant nature of the Le Duan authorities who completely disdain world opinion and international law and practice.

Regarding this extremely heinous crime perpetrated by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors in massacring the Kampucheans with toxic chemical weapons in such an inhuman and savage manner, the Kampuchean people and Democratic Kampuchea hope that the international community and world opinion would give it maximum attention and continue to promote efforts to check this heinous crime of the Vietnamese enemy in time.

Regarding the United Nations alone, we hope that the UN investigation commission would continue to make every effort to fulfill its mission to which it was assigned by the UN General Assembly by conducting an on-the-spot investigation where the Vietnamese and Soviets have used toxic chemical weapons.

The Kampuchean people and Democratic Kampuchea are always ready to cooperate with the UN investigation commission and to provide it with evidence and documents proving the Vietnamese enemy aggressors' crime of massacring the Kampucheans with toxic chemical weapons.

The concerted efforts to check the chemical warfare of the Vietnamese and Soviets in Kampuchea, Laos and Afghanistan are an act of justice which will help to save the lives of the Kampuchean, Lao and Afghan peoples and contribute to the defense of world peace and mankind.

PRAYUT DENIES REPORT ON REOPENING U.S. BASE

BK220220 Bangkok POST in English 22 Apr 82 p 3

[Text] Both the American Embassy and Army Commander-in-Chief General Prayut Charumani yesterday denied a news agency report that the United States wanted to reopen military bases in Thailand. The denials followed an ASSOCIATED PRESS report of remarks which US Ambassador to Thailand John Gunther Dean was purported to have made in Hawaii.

General Prayut said he had never heard an American official of any level say that the United States wanted to reopen military bases in Thailand.

The US Embassy in Bangkok said yesterday a statement attributed to Mr Dean was "completely erroneous." "The United States is not seeking to reopen military bases in Thailand," an embassy statement said.

General Prayut said that allowing foreign powers to establish military powers in Thailand would give other countries the excuse to say "that we are threatening them." He said this would particularly apply to those countries which were unfriendly towards Thailand.

He said Thailand would have to consult with its ASEAN partners before a foreign military base could be allowed on her soil. General Prayut said Thailand appreciated offers of military aid from friendly countries. "But for us, we will have to choose which is the best option that most befits our national interest," he said.

PRIME MINISTER PREM DEPARTS FOR EUROPE

BK220300 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0000 GMT 22 Apr 82

[Text] Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon left Bangkok at 2230 last night for an official visit to Belgium, Austria, the United Kingdom and France. The prime minister was accompanied by a delegation comprising a 13-member official party, 20 government officials, 26 representatives from the private sector and 3 from the mass media. The prime minister gave a press conference prior to his departure.

[Begin Prem recording] This trip, just as with my two or three previous trips, is aimed at the following three objectives: First, it is aimed at strengthening our friendly relations with these European countries; second, we want to encourage them to invest more in our country; third, we plan to request these countries to cooperate in facilitating our exports to the EEC members. As you know, there are still problems with this matter which are under negotiation. Those are our major purposes of the trip. As I have already told you, this will not be as easy as what I have achieved during my previous visits abroad, for the EEC countries have their own problems to tackle. In addition, we might not be able to do our work easily since they now have the Falklands issue as another problem. Anyway, I will try my best to do my duty. [end recording]

LT GEN SOM ON LAO, KAMPUCHEAN BORDER SITUATIONS

[Text] Lt Gen Som Khattaphan, director of the Supreme Command Information Office, told a news conference which was held at building 604 in the compound of the supreme commander's office this morning about the situation along the Thai-Kampuchean border areas as follows:

[Begin Som recording] The situation around our country affects our national stability, particularly that along the border with Kampuchea. Since the beginning of March, the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side has launched a massive and continuous suppression drive against the Khmer Serei factions.

This year's suppression drive seems to be more violent than that of last year in terms of heavy weapons and air support. The Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side, however, has not yet been able to subdue its enemy because the Democratic Kampuchean forces have resorted to guerrilla warfare by using hit-and-run tactics, cutting several logistics routes of the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side.

During this period, there was an incident which affected us. On 2 and 3 April, the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side sent about two battalions to suppress the Khmer Rouge and Khmer Serei along the Thai border area. After the operation, a number of the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin troops chased the fleeing family members of the Khmer resistance groups inside Thai territory as deep as Khao Din village. They even seized the village temporarily. Upon learning of the incident, our forces used heavy weapons to push them out of the country. The invaders suffered heavy casualties before they retreated from the areas. We also captured gas masks from them. We will have to investigate this matter. More importantly, the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side is now rotating forces and sending in new fresh forces along the border with Thailand. As I told you earlier, there are seven infantry divisions and one marine brigade stationed along the border with Thailand. The reason for this new force movement is that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin troops in the Phnum Malai area south of Poipet, are suffering from malaria; therefore, they must be replaced with fresh troops.

Additionally, the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side is repairing its logistics roads damaged by the resistance forces, and one of them extends to only 1 kilometer from our border at Khlong Yai District and can be used throughout the year. The airport in Battambang has been upgraded to almost standard size and has a radar unit. Pochentong and Siem Reap airports are the two standard airports of Kampuchea. [end recording]

Touching on the situation along the border with Laos, Lt Gen Som Khattaphan said:

[Begin Som recording] Two major incidents occurred during the past month. The first incident was the smuggling of goods from Thailand to Laos. The Mekong River operation unit in Tha Uthen District sent officials to arrest the smugglers but failed because they came under heavy fire by Lao troops. The smugglers managed to escape the scene into Laos. So we do not know whether those smugglers are Thai or Lao.

In the second incident, Thai authorities arrested a Lao soldier who was trying to smuggle large quantities of weapons and explosives on board many boats into Thailand across the Mekong River at Chang Khan district, Loei Province. [end recording]

NATION REPORTS ON UPCOMING SON SANN TALKS

BK220234 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 22 Apr 82 p 3

[Excerpt] Kampuchean resistance leader Son Sann, leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), is to visit Singapore and Malaysia over the weekend and early next week to discuss the proposed tripartite summit to be held in Kuala Lumpur next month, diplomatic sources told the NATION yesterday.

Son Sann, accompanied by two senior aides, is due to be in Singapore around Saturday and Sunday (April 24-25) and will proceed to Malaysia on Sunday for a few days of discussions before departing Kuala Lumpur on April 27.

The sources said that Son Sann is scheduled to meet Singaporan Deputy Premier S. Rajaratnam and Foreign Minister S. Dhanabalan, who will attempt to persuade him to take part in the proposed loose coalition of the three major Khmer resistance forces.

In Kuala Lumpur, Son Sann is due to hold a private round of talks with Malaysian Foreign Minister Ghazali Shafie. Observers in ASEAN are speculating whether Ghazali will remain in this portfolio following today's general elections in Malaysia.

"It's Son Sann's own initiative to go around to Singapore and Malaysia to have a little bit of a chit-chat with the leaders there," the sources said.

"We very much would like to see a Kampuchean resistance coalition formed before the next ASEAN foreign ministers' conference scheduled in Singapore June 14-15," according to a senior ASEAN diplomat.

The tripartite meeting of the three Kampuchean resistance faction leaders is expected to be held in Kuala Lumpur towards the end of May.

Son Sann appears ready to take part in the meeting although he failed to be in Beijing to hold the proposed three-party summit with Khieu Samphan and Prince Norodom Sihanouk in late February.

The diplomatic sources said that the new tripartite summit in the Malaysian capital will be attended by Khieu Samphan and Son Sann while Prince Sihanouk may be represented by In Tam.

Son Sann's visit Kuala Lumpur April 25-27 will come after today's Malaysian general elections. "At least, that's when the political picture in Malaysia will be clearer," the diplomatic sources said.

ADDITIONS TO PHAM VAN DONG VCP CONGRESS REPORT

Part I

The following additions to the item headlined "Part I of Pham Van Dong Report to VCP Congress," published in the 6 April DAILY REPORT on page K 1, were taken from Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese published on 30 March.

Insert the following passages after the second paragraph of the item on page K 1:... 5-year state plan.

First Part

Reflecting on the Economic and Social Situation in the Years 1976-80 and the present

The 5 years 1976-80 — which marked the beginning of a new stage of the Vietnamese revolution -- saw a heroic struggle carried on by our entire people on two fronts: Fighting against the schemes and acts of sabotage and aggression by all sorts of enemies; and building a new life under extremely difficult conditions. This was also the period in which our efforts in combat and labor vividly reflected the heroic character and noble qualities of the Vietnamese laboring people and nation.

On the economic front, noteworthy achievements were recorded by our people. We strove hard to overcome the serious consequences of the wars of aggression waged by the U.S. imperialists, the Chinese expansionists and their henchmen -- restoring the majority of industrial and agricultural establishments and communications lines in the north and rebuilding rural areas devastated by war in the south. The state-run and collective economies in the north continued to be consolidated. In the south, the process of socialist transformation helped eliminate the comprador bourgeoisie and private industry and commerce were initially transformed and reorganized. Some of the peasants in Nam Bo were reorganized into production collectives; and the peasants in southern Trung Bo were introduced to collective work. A socialist countryside, especially in the north, was taking shape with improvements made in material and cultural life. The social work force was initially redistributed. The material-technical bases of the national economy and the production capacity of almost all sectors and localities kept expanding. Production developed faster than previously in a number of fields, especially in agriculture. Thanks to efforts by the state and the entire people in reclaiming fallow and virgin lands, practicing multicropping, carrying out water conservancy and enlarging the cultivated area, we persevered through repeated and serious natural calamities and overcame famine which had once posed a grave threat to large regions of the country. Many achievements were also recorded on the cultural, educational, scientific, technological, literary, artistic, public health and other fronts.

Progressive models and diverse experiences emerged from every field of activities; and this is a favorable factor for development in subsequent years. We must accurately assess these achievements, which were recorded with innumerable efforts by our workers, peasants, intellectuals and armed forces. These efforts were exerted amidst extreme difficulties and privations plaguing a basically impoverished country which had gone through a fierce, arduous and protracted struggle necessitated by the very complicated developments of the international and regional situation.

In the 5 years 1976-80, however, the results of production did not justify the spent labor and invested capital; the major economic imbalances still remained grave; the national income failed to ensure social consumption while the population was growing at a fast rate; the market, prices, finances and money were unstable; and the life of the laboring people -- especially that of workers, civil servants and peasants in areas afflicted by natural and enemy-caused calamities -- was still fraught with difficulties.

The prouder we are of the heroic people who have recorded victory, the more serious we should be in analyzing shortcomings and mistakes and in drawing lessons from our experiences so as to respond more satisfactorily to the people's legitimate aspirations.

In reviewing what we have or have not yet been able to accomplish, and in trying to find the causes of our achievements and difficulties and of our strengths and weaknesses, a major question arises: Why is it that while the lines of socialist revolution and socialist economic building set forth by the fourth party congress are correct -- and after having been implemented for 5 years -- we have not yet obtained economic results commensurate with the country's requirements and our capacity?

First of all, let us have another look at the lines laid down by the fourth party congress.

The lines of socialist revolution and socialist economic building clearly pointed out that we must hold fast to proletarian dictatorship; promote the working people's collective mastery; simultaneously carry out the three revolutions -- the revolution in production relations, the scientific and technological revolution, and the ideological and cultural revolution -- of which the scientific and technological revolution is the kingpin; build the system of collective mastery in all respects, large-scale socialist production, new culture and a new type of socialist man; thoroughly understand the central task for the entire transitional period -- namely, carrying out socialist industrialization nationwide, giving priority to the rational development of heavy industry on the basis of the development of agriculture and light industry, and integrating agriculture and industry into an agroindustrial structure; build the centrally run economy while developing the regional economies, and integrate the centrally run economy and the regional economies into a unified national economic structure; combine developing productive forces with establishing and perfecting new production relations; combine economic building with national defense; and combine the development of the national economy with the expansion of economic relations with foreign countries, especially the Soviet Union and the socialist community.

These lines are a correct application of the laws of socialist revolution and socialism to the conditions of our country on the basis of a correct evaluation of the major characteristics of our country and the world in our time. They also reflect the will and aspirations of our people, who are striving to advance directly from an economy in which small-scale production still prevails to socialism, bypassing the stage of capitalist development. Realities of the revolution in our country, with our achievements and our shortcomings in the process of organizing the implementation of our tasks, have proven the correctness of the party's line.

Because these lines were to be applied for the entire period of transition to socialism, they must highlight nationwide socialist industrialization as the central task of the transitional period. We should have, as the political report stressed, "concretized the general line and the economic line, and based ourselves on the economic line to devise a socioeconomic strategy, development plans, and major positions, policies and measures for the entire country as well as each sector and each field of activity, which were consistent with the specific historical conditions of our country and the demands and capabilities of our people in each stage." We have not yet, however, carried out this task satisfactorily. We have failed to define clearly a strategy for the initial stage of socialist industrialization and, on this basis, to formulate a scientific 1976-1980 State Plan. We have not applied the general line and economic line in a manner consistent with the specific situation of our country which has just been reunified after more than 30 years of destructive war, so as to meet the most pressing socioeconomic demands in conformity with the real and latent capacities of the country.

We still have not seen all the difficulties and complexities in numerous aspects during the long period of time which we were compelled to go through in an effort to advance to socialism from an economy in which small production was still popular; we still have not fully seen the scope of postwar economic and social upheavals and the disastrious consequences of neocolonialism; we have not yet foreseen all the difficulties caused by the hostile policy pursued by the Chinese expansionists and the two wars of aggression they have waged along the southwestern border and northern border of our country; we still have not seen all the difficulties and complexities in the struggle to overcome the weaknesses in our economic and social management; and we still have not anticipated all the developments that could adversely affect the world situation. Meanwhile, we have not even seen all the practical and great potentials which could be developed in order to satisfy the needs arising from the first stage of our struggle for socialist industrialization.

The enormous waste of manpower and materials stemmed from such incorrect assessments of the situation and from our subjectiveness and haste in setting forth the tasks and norms for the state plan -- which were too heavy and too high compared with our abilities -- and the policies concerning production, construction, distribution and circulation, which were not fully based on the facts. On the other hand, we were too conservative and sluggish in implementing the party's lines and the party Central Committee's resolutions, as well as in assessing and employing the country's potential in numerous aspects. We have long maintained a system of management which is fraught with red tape and subsidization and a restricted and inflexible method of planning, thus making it impossible for all grassroots units, localities and sectors to uphold their responsibility and develop their initiative, and for the central level to concentrate logically on matters that it should control. We have also maintained too long a number of economic policies which are no longer suitable, thus hampering production and the effort to develop the revolutionary zeal and creative working strength of laborers.

Failing to react quickly to new developments in the situation with effective measures was one of the big shortcomings in our managerial work and operational guidance. When the national economy encountered big changes, if we had known how to adjust all plans promptly and basically, to bring forth uniform and decisive measures, and to enable all sectors and echelons to coordinate their activities closely in order to overcome the imbalances gradually and partly, the situation would certainly have changed and become better than it is now.

When the economy is developing slowly and declining in certain aspects, it is natural that it will adversely affect other activities. Meanwhile, the economy itself can also be affected by shortcomings in other non-economic domains.

Because ideological and cultural work was carried out with inadequate effectiveness and militancy, it failed to make the entire party and people thoroughly aware of the party's lines. Because the socialist legal system was less effective, the struggle against negative manifestations and criminals was less decisive and radical. There were shortcomings -- in terms of training, assignment and treatment -- in tasks related to cadres, including the use of scientific, technical and managerial cadres.

The shortcomings and errors committed in leadership and economic and social management over the past 5 years are very serious. In succession to the vehement self-criticism of the party Central Committee which was presented by Comrade General Secretary Le Duan in the political report, I would like to emphasize that the responsibility for the aforementioned shortcomings -- especially in formulating and directing the implementation of various plans -- first of all, rests with our Council of Ministers. These are the well-deserved lessons for us to carry out our tasks in the immediate future and later on.

Comrade delegates, at present, the socioeconomic situation of our country is facing acute problems.

The people, especially the workers and civil servants, encounter many difficulties in their lives; the sources of energy and raw material supplies and the communications and transportation force cannot bring into play the existing production capacities; exports are not enough to pay for imports; the market and prices undergo complex developments; in some aspects, the socialist battlefront is invaded by capitalist and nonsocialist elements; the management and planning systems are still permeated with bureaucratism and subsidization; and the negative phenomena in the socioeconomic life persists.

Our country is now in a situation in which it enjoys peace while having to cope with a multifaceted war of destruction waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with U.S. imperialism; at the same time, it must stand ready to deal with a possibly large-scale war of aggression unleashed by the enemy. Such a situation requires that we always remain alert, pay the utmost attention to consolidating national defense and security and maintian high combat readiness. The capitalist world's economy continues to undergo upheavals in the 1980's. The energy and raw material crisis, soaring international prices and the sabotage and embargo policy of the U.S. imperialists and Chinese reactionaries have created new difficulties for our national economy.

We have great capacities and favorable conditions for overcoming the difficulties and advancing the economy.

These include millions of hectares of agricultural land which can be opened and put into production; the capacity for multicropping, practicing intensive cultivation and increasing crop yields; and millions of hectares of forested land which have not yet been protected and exploited satisfactorily.

These include the work forces which have not yet been fully mobilized, and the contingent of skilled workers as well as the large contingent of scientific and technical cadres who have not yet been used rationally to step up various economic activities; to develop agriculture, forestry and fishery; to develop various sectors and trades; to produce consumer and export goods; and to build the material and technical base of socialism gradually.

"These include the existing production capacities which have not yet been fully exploited, and a number of projects which will be completed and put into production such as various cement, electrical power, fertilizer, chemical and mechanical engineering projects, and ship building and repair plants, spinning plants, paper mills, sugar refineries, piers, and so forth.

These include diversified resources in the form of minerals, water sources, and oil and gas deposits which are being explored and which will be exploited.

These include our progress in economic leadership and management and in social management, our deeper knowledge of the country's realities, our more profound understanding of the party's lines, and the lessons drawn from our own experiences over the past 5 years.

These include the great and effective assistance of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries. Our country's all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other CEMA countries is an extremely important factor which helps us to overcome difficulties and to advance. The multifaceted and increasingly closer relations among the three Indochinese countries have opened up new prospects for their economic cooperation and mutual assistance and have created additional sources of supplies for the economy of each country. In our economic relations with other countries, we can use many forms of activities to expand exchanges and cooperation.

In 1981 the first year of the 1981-85 5-Year Plan, our people made encouraging initial progress in some fields of activities, especially in agricultural, industrial, artisan and handicraft production. Worth noting is that, to implement the resolution of the sixth plenum of the party Central Committee and the newly promulgated party and state policies, a number of establishments, localities and sectors have recently carried out innovations in production, business and management. These new factors should be studied thoroughly and profoundly and useful conclusions drawn therefrom for application in reality.

In agriculture, we either fulfilled or overfulfilled the plans for the production of grain and various types of industrial crops although fertilizer, insecticides and energy were provided in lesser amounts than previously. The need for grain in the countryside was met more satisfactorily; the peasants discharged their grain obligation toward the state with enthusiasm; and the serious consequences of natural calamities that had befallen the north in 1980 were primarily overcome. At present the form of contracting out product quotas to groups of workers and individual workers is becoming a driving force in our effort to promote the emulation movement to develop production and increase economic results in agriculture. This contractual form is posing new problems concerning organization and management, the consolidation of coopratives and material-technical installations which must be promptly resolved by state organs in order to continue advancing the movement for developing agriculture and advancing it to socialist large-scale production.

In industry as well as in capital construction and communications and transportation, the broadening of the socialist entrepreneurial right in production and business and the application of product-based and contract wages and bonuses together with other policies designed to stimulate production are motivating workers in many establishments, sectors and localities to bring their creative capabilities into play and overcome difficulties in production. Encouraging initial results have been recorded: Industrial output, especially that of local industries, small industry and handicrafts, increased over 1980; a number of key capital construction projects were carried out on schedule; and the new method of "the central and local levels work together, the state and the people work together" has been applied on a gruadually broader scale.

Although the changes brought about in 1981 were not vigorous and steady, they testify to the fact that the abundant labor and creativity of our people and our country's contingent of scientific and technological cadres have been initially developed thanks to the improvements made in the managerial system by the promulgation of new policies. They also mark a new step forward in the development of the laboring people's right to collective mastery in economic and social management. The process of preparing for the fifth national party congress provided an opportunity for the entire party and people to look back upon and think about the past, draw useful lessons and see more clearly the way ahead. This is our maturity and also a new factor we can count upon. We have taken a step forward after the years 1976-80.

Our people's cause of building socialism still remains difficult and far from completion. The old difficulties that have yet to be overcome, together with the fresh ones, are further aggravating the imbalances of the economy in some respects. As an immediate step, we must urgently resolve scores of problems concerning grain, food, clothing, medicine, energy, raw materials, communications and transport, prices, wages, finances, money and so forth.

With the valuable experiences gained along the path they have just raversed, our people are determined to develop their stalwart tradition, bring all their minds and energy into full play and struggle persistently to triumph over difficulties. Our people have adequate capabilities to bring about revolutionary changes in the economic and social fields in order to continue advancing our country in furtherance of the great revolutionary cause, successfully build socialism and defend our beloved fatherland.

[Pham Van Dong report to Fifth VCP Congress on 27 March, Part II, "Main Orientations, Tasks and Targets in the Economic and Social Fields for the (1981-85) 5-Year Period and for the 1980's"]

[Text] 2. Consumer Goods Production

It is extremely important to step up consumer goods production to meet society's material and cultural needs. We must create many more jobs, increase sources of goods for local consumption and export, stimulate agricultural production, expand division of labor, increase social products and national income as contributions to the accumulation for our economy. This very pressing task can help stabilize the people's livelihood and can greatly contribute to achieving a money-goods balance and stabilizing markets and prices.

There must be policies and uniform measures to develop all available production potentials and the capabilities of light industries, foodstuffs industry and even the centrally run and local industries. We must strive to develop various branches and trades, small industries and artisan industry in cities and countryside; properly employ individual artisans; achieve cooperation among state-operated enterprises, cooperatives and individual workers to step up goods production and fully use production facilities of national defense enterprises to produce consumer goods. In particular, we must exploit the strengths of Hanoi, Haiphong, Da Nang and Ho Chi Minh City in consumer goods production; quickly promulgate policies on investment, credit, supply of raw materials and discarded materials, product consumption and prices; increase technical equipment; insure material supplies; create more sources of local raw materials; expand trade businesses, exports and imports, and cooperation with other countries in production; achieve rational labor division and cooperation in production in every branch and locality and in the entire country; use economic levers to stimulate the intensification of consumer goods production, especially the broad development of small industries and artisan industry ranging from traditional occupations to new trades and occupations; properly exploit the available spinning and textile factories; complete the construction of new spinning factories in order to produce from 380 to 400 million meters of cloth in 1985; and increase the export of farm produce in order to import more cotton thread, spare parts, chemicals and dyestuffs for the textile sector.

We should increase production of sugar and honey of various kinds from 350,000 to 400,000 tons in 1985, make full use of the capacity of available sugar refineries, develop manual sugar mills, continue construction of the La Nga and Lam Son sugar refineries, and manufacture equipment for the construction of small and medium sugar refineries in various localities.

We should supply sufficient raw materials and fully develop the available capacity to produce more than 1 billion packs of cigarettes in 1985, reserve the greater part of cigarettes for export and improve the processing technique in order to increase the amount of export tobacco leaves.

We should supply sufficient raw materials for paper mills, encourage the production of hand-made paper in various localities in order to produce from 90,000 to 100,000 tons of paper of various types in 1985 and increase the production of cement bags.

We should intensify and expand salt production, especially in North Vietnam, to insure sufficient household and industrial salt.

We should increase the production of bicycles, especially accessories, tires and inner tubes; satisfy the people's need for soap, detergent powder and medication; develop and expand the production of goods and improve the quality of wooden works, pottery works, earthenware, chinaware, glassware, items made of rattan, bamboo, jute and rush, household utensils, school implements, medical and cultural equipment, and labor protective tools.

We must concentrate efforts to quantitatively and qualitatively improve export goods and produce goods manufactured with skill, especially chinaware, tailoring material, embroidery, knitwear, tapestry, fine arts articles, metallic objects and consumer goods.

3. Heavy Industry

We must reorganize, improve and upgrade available production establishments and create additional sources of energy and raw materials to make full use of these establishments' capacity. We must practically develop the very important effect of heavy industry on agriculture and consumer- and export-goods production sectors and continue to build a number of major establishments to meet the immediate needs and prepare for subsequent years. Meanwhile, we must strive to step up basic survey work, establish economic and technical projects and designs, carry out planning work and train technical and management cadres and workers. We must gradually strengthen the economy's infrastructure make active preparations for a more vigorous and broader development of heavy industry in subsequent plans.

We should always remember that the central task for the transitional period is to carry out socialist industrialization and that the material-technical base of socialism is large-scale mechanized industry. The decisive factor for achieving high labor productivity is the new technical equipment, not only for agriculture but for other sectors of our national economy.

We should consider agriculture the first front and must step up consumer goods production to meet present urgent needs of everyday life. To create accumulation in our economy is to contribute to achieving socialist industrialization in one step and to strengthen the foundations for the present and future development of various heavy industries.

Electricity: we must formulate a general project for developing power production countrywide for a 15- to 20-year period and map out specific plans for implementing that project in the direction of coordinating the production of hydroelectric power and thermoelectric power and accelerating the production of thermoelectric power with large-, medium- and small-scale projects for the 1981-85 period. We must ensure a balance between development of power production and the power transmission network and projects supporting the electricity sector and between the power-generating source and power-consuming installations in order to best tap the energy potential. We must strive to produce from 5.5 to 6 billion kWh in 1985, fully develop the production capacity of the existing hydroelectric and thermoelectric powerplants, rationally use the power produced by diesel-operated generators, and drastically reduce electricity and waste and loss, self-consuming power and fuel used in production. We must urgently build the Pha Lai thermoelectric plant the synchronized projects, put the first group of generators into power production in early 1983, complete the installation of three groups of generators in 1985, and ensure the proper construction rate of the Hoa Binh hydroelectirc powerplant at an early date. We must seek by all means to provide more power to the southern provinces, make urgent preparations for an early construction of the Tri An hydroelctric powerplant, and build medium- and small-scale hydroelectric projects in central Vietnam, the Central Highlands, and Northern mountain provinces. We must fully use the available gas for power education, step up studies and the tapping of other power sources, and strictly economize on electric power in production and the people's lives. Priority in power distribution must be accorded to the main production targets and key installations.

Coal: We must strive to increase the 1985 coal production to 8 to 9 million tons, and, in addition, produce approximately 5 million tons as overlap production for the 1986-90 plan. We must rapidly increase the production of coal and enhance its quality at the Ha Tu Deo Nai, Vang Danh, and Mao Khe coal mines and at subsidiary coal mines. We must continue construction and expansion at the Cao Son Na Duong, Nui Beo Nui Hong and Nong Son coal mines; complete construction work at the Mong Duong, Khe Cham, Ha Lam Dang and Throng Nhat Coal mines; complete the renovation work at the Phan Me bituminous coal mines; accelerate construction work at the Lang Cam Bituminous coal mine; and maximally exploit coal at the anthracite, bituminous and peat mines in various localities.

We must improve organizational and managerial work in the coal sector, step up geological work, increase efficiency in the use of vehicles and machines, accelerate equipment repairs and supplies of spare parts, synchronize exploitation, transportation and cargo-handling work, and expand transportation by conveyor belts [bawngf bawng] and other means.

We must improve working conditons and the people's livelihood and adopt policies to promote labor enthusiasm and enhance coal miners' productivity. We must effectively manage transportation and distribution work, raise the effectiveness of coal consumption, strictly apply the coal-saving policy, gather coal pieces of all types scattered in coal-mining areas, recover and put to best use the cinder gathered at the powerplants and satisfactorily resolve the problem of using processed coal as a replacement for kerosene in cooking.

Oil and gas: Oil and gas is an economic and technical sector which is having an increasingly important impact on the overall development of our national economy. For the immediate future, we must concentrate our efforts on satisfactorily carrying out our cooperation with the Soviet Union in order to accelerate oil and gas surveys and then proceed to oil and gas exploitation in southern Vietnam's continental shelf. We must strive to produce crude oil during the current 5-year plan. We must establish logistics installations and oil and gas services in Vung Tau and push ahead the gas survey in the Bac Bo Delta.

Machinery: We must plan and rearrange the operations of the machine industry in the direction of specialization and cooperativeness countrywide. We must pay attention to making in-depth investments, raising the capacity of existing facilities and building new projects. We must strive to raise the quality of products, reduce waste in the use of material supplies and energy and, through combined business transactions, import, export and secure more raw materials for machine industry production in order to fully use production capacity.

During the 1981-85 period, we must mainly ensure adequate repairs for equipment and machines and sufficient production of spare parts for various sectors, especially for agriculture, the industry for production of consumer goods, and the coal, electricity, communications, transportation, and construction materials sectors. We must produce sufficient ordinary tools, improved tools, and medium- and small-sized equipment and machines for agriculture, barges, railroad cars, mining equipment, electric motors, equipment for small hydroelectric projects, and equipment for the production of sugar, paper, and the processing of secondary crop products. We must raise the quality of products in order to increase the export of a number of engineering products such as bicycles, machine tools, electric fans, tool kits and so forth.

We must attach importance to developing the electronic industry in accordance with our country's situation and progress. We must fully tap our existing assembly and production capacity and build additional assembly and chain production installations in order to better meet our economic requirements in electronic equipment. We must raise the quality and production of assembled electronic products for export. We must complete construction of the Go Dam diesel engine factory for production of diesel engines, the Ha Long and Pha Rung shipbuilding and repairs works, and the Gia Law railroad factory. We must enlarge the Cam Pha machine industry factory and the Dong Anh electric equipment repair works and begin construction of the automobile spare parts factory with an annual production capacity of 6,000 tons and so forth. We must make intensive preparations for building a number of heavy industry projects for the next plan.

Metallurgy: We must mobilize the total steel refining and lamination capacity available in Thai Nguyen and the south, fill the need for bituminous coal and electrodes and gather scrap iron to increase production of laminated steel twofold in 1985 compared with 1981. We will expand the experimental application of the direct recycling method [phuwowng phaps hoanf nguyeen trucj tieeps] in metallurgy, study alloyed steel production, actively continue preparations for building large-scale steel-refining projects in subsequent plans, build and perfect the Tinh Tuc and Son Duong tin mines, begin construction of the Quy Hop joint tin enterprise, complete construction of lead and zinc production plants and expand chromite ore exploitation. Along with building plants, we should organize production of tin, lead, zinc and chromite by semi-mechanized and manual methods. We must cooperate with the Soviet Union and other CEMA member countries in studyiying bauxite exploitation. We must develop the exploitation of precious metals and stones.

Fertilizers and chemicals: We should step up production of nitrogenous and phosphate fertilizers and insecticides to serve agriculture, exploit and use local raw materials, organize medium- and small-scale production of essential chemicals which must replace imported chemicals in time, restore and expand the Lao Cai apatite mine, make preparations for building an apatite enrichment factory, expand the Lam Thao superphosphate factory, exploit and import more pyritic ore, develop the production of roasted phosphate fertilizer in order to increase the production of phosphate fertilizers of various types from 350,000 to 400,000 tons in 1985, exploit the potential of the Ha Bac nitrogenous fertilizer plant, prepare to build a new nitrogenous fertilizer plant in the subsequent plan and increase production of tires and tubes for autos and bicycles, technical rubber products, insecticides, paint, acetylene, baking soda sulfates and light powder. [bootj nhej].

Building materials: We should complete construction of the Bim Son, Hoang Thach and Ha Tien cement factories; consolidate the Haiphone cement factory; reorganize the minor cement production installations; provide sufficient electricity, coal, gypsum, paper bags and fuel for factories; boost cement production in 1985 at least up to 2 million tons; concentrate on producing bricks, tiles, iron sheets, and ceramic and porcelain materials and heat-resistant materials; expand production of commonly used materials with local raw materials, especially unbaked materials, and step up production of export goods and materials.

Geological survey: We will selectively push forward geological survey work; pay special attention to geological work which directly serves the intensified exploitation of various resources right in the 1981-85 5-Year Plan period; and, at the same time, continue the survey of various resources in the country; pay attention to protecting for new mines of high-value minerals such as tin, wolfram and molybdenite; make intensive efforts to discover and exploit bituminous coal, pyrites and manganese; and survey small peat and phosphate mines, building materials and undercurrent water in the service to local industries.

4. Communications and Transportation, Postal Communications

We must urgently readjust and reorganize the forces in these sectors and increase their managerial capacity, productivity and efficiency along with providing more material means to overcome, in one step, weaknesses and the serious imbalance between communications and transportation and the requirements for economic development and consolidation of national defense. Domestic freight will increase on the average from 10 to 12 percent annually, while there will be a 3-fold increase in export freight and freight transported between the north and south. We must work out a plan for rationally developing a communications and transportation network throughout the country; give priority to developing sea and river transport services; consolidate and develop railroad transport capacity; reorganize auto transport services in accordance with the capacity of gasoline, oil, spare parts, tires and tubes; continue building the civil aviation sector; widely develop rudimentary transport means; develop communications and transportation in rural areas, and especially in mountainous areas, while developing agriculture and forestry and consolidating national defense.

We must concentrate on building a network of sea and river ports and dredging river beds; complete the improvement of the Haiphong harbor area; build Cua Lo harbor; reinforce the harbors in central and southern Vietnam; consolidate and increase the capacity of the available railroad network, especially the north-south railway; build a number of railways leading to industrial centers; develop a number of main highways and land communications centers; promptly repair and increase transport means, especially barges, river boats, seagoing vessels, locomotives and coaches; intensify unloading work; shorten the turnaround time for vehicles; increase speed; insure safety; rapidly unload goods at harbors, railroad stations, piers and railway terminals; concentrate efforts on unloading the import cargo; insure export goods loading and north-south transport service; give priority to coal and grain transport and to transport service for agriculture, construction sites, major enterprises, border areas and Laos and Kampuchea, the two fraternal countries, and assign adequate duties and powers to various sectors and between the central level and localities.

Regarding economic planning, we must insure rational transport service and carefully calculate transport capabilities. We must consolidate, improve and exploit the potentials of available communication networks, build more material-technical bases, improve and increase the capacity of the postal communications sector and closely coordinate the national communications network with the communications network for special use of various sectors in order to properly serve economy and national defense.

5. Capital Construction

Our material and capital potential is limited when priority must be given to meeting the urgent needs of life and export. We must therefore rationally employ investment for capital construction and correctly and effectively use the invested capital. To this end, we must concentrate our capital on key projects and sectors and on the most important products. We must avoid the situation of dispersion and equal distribution in construction; make uniform investments with a view toward developing, first of all, the available production capabilities; pay great attention to making investment in depth and correctly coordinating intensive with extensive investment; actively carry out the precept: The state and the people work together, the central level and localities work together. We must consolidate and improve professional knowledge of the construction and assembly forces; rationally organize specialized construction forces and rearrange capital construction projects in order to reorganize the labor force and increase effectiveness and quality in construction.

The total capital invested by the state in capital construction for 5 years, 1981-85, is estimated at approximately 16 to 18 billion dong according to the old monetary value. In addition, all sectors and localities must mobilize their own capital and the capital of cooperatives and the people to improve and expand the production establishments and social welfare, cultural, educational and public health facilities. We must reexamine every project, discard unnecessary projects such as administrative facilities and conference halls, change a number of designs and materials, make full use of existing establishments for installing equipment and build new projects only when necessary. We must strictly practice economy to reduce capital for construction and assembly by 10 to 15 percent. We must accelerate construction of key projects of the agricultural, coal, electricity, oil and gas, machinery, paper, spinning, sugar, communications, transportation and export sectors. We must actively prepare to build major projects for the metallurgic, mechanical, chemical and building materials branches in subsequent plans; step up the improvement of the system of managing capital construction according to the method of general contract for construction and installation, ensure adherence to technical pattern and projects quality.

6. Labor and Population

We must urgently study and promulgate a labor code; resolve the employment problem for social laborers by distributing local manpower to the agricultural sector, developing trades and occupations, especially small industries and artisan industry in the countryside, cities and towns; exploiting forestry and fishery and developing services in the cities. Each province and district must have a plan for manpower arrangement and concentrate on solving the employment problem for demobilized servicemen and graduates, especially students in Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh City, Haiphong, Da Nang and other cities and towns. The Mekong Delta provinces should have plans and measures to step up intensive cultivation, increase crops, expand the cultivated acreage and develop trades and occupations in order to increase manpower utilization. We must organize the sending of 1 million people, including laborers and dependents, to build new economic zones in their own localities or in other areas and from the north to the south. The people may volunteer to develop the cultivated acreage of grain and industrial crops with state assistance or the state may make investments and send people to build major areas of specialized cultivation. We must properly solve problems of policy and organization to create a revolutionary mass movement to reclaim land and build new economic zones according to well-elaborated plans and correct technical projects which will bring successful results. The nonagricultural labor force and population is presently heavily engaged in industrial production is presently very large and must be partly transferred to agriculture and forestry. We must adopt policies and measures to encourage, motivate, organize and assist the people in the cities and towns, including those on the state staff.

We must develop trades, occupations, small industries, artisan industry, services and agricultural production; transfer more technical cadres and economic management cadres to districts and agricultural cooperatives; simplfiy the administrative apparatus; resolutely reduce the state staff; change the labor structure; qualitatively improve state machinery; recruit only trained personnel; step up educational work; resolutely apply a number of administrative and economic measures and create favorable conditions for the people to carry out the birth control plan, to reduce the nationwide average annual birth rate from 2.4 to 1.7 percent in 1985.

7. Distribution and Circulation Front

It is necessary to establish a socialist new order on the distribution and circulation front soon in order to contribute to stabilizing life, step up production and improve the economic and social situation. The state must control goods and money, rationally distribute national revenues, adjust irrational and illegitimate revenues, strengthen market management and oppose illegal speculations and business transactions. To this end, it is necessary to carry out the following policies and major measures: To increase and consolidate state finance; urgently adopt a national financial policy which is practical and suited to the present situation; strongly mobilize all sources of capital for the state, including goods in nature and finance; yield all interests and taxes to the state; and ensure adequate collection of agricultural, commercial and industrial taxes. All sectors and units must understand that financial mobilization is extremely important for the state.

We must first expand international cooperation with socialist countries, strive to properly exploit and rationally use all foreign capital resources to supplement our domestic capital resources; closely manage and effectively use all capital resources; strictly practice thrift in all spheres; observe the watchword: Turn out much more and better wealth with the same or a smaller amount of capital resources; markedly cut administrative expenditures and correctly implement the state's general regulations on expenditures.

Distribution of materials, manpower and capital in the production sector must be highly efficient while distribution of consumer goods must be based on the amount and quality of work performed. Any budget deficit, especially deficits related to consumption, must be minimized. Improvement and expansion of banking credit operations must be linked to expansion of noncash payment in the economy.

We must ameliorate the distribution of capital invested in capital construction through banks; step up capital mobilization and management as well as savings mobilization; strengthen monetary management; make money rapidly circulate through banks; apply positive measures to gradually reduce cash overexpenditures on the basis of balanced budgets and balanced credits; ensure economic effectiveness of borrowed capital and provide borrowed capital and ready money for rational, essential needs in production and life. State control and inventory regarding production and social product distribution must be intensified through financial, credit and payment operations.

Livelihood is a very important problem. Our primary concern is to provide jobs for all laborers in society and to insure full labor output. This is the basis for increasing income, improving living conditions and enabling each person to earn an income commensurate with his or her work.

We must properly organize distribution of goods sold at stable prices, including staple goods and necessities for food, clothing, housing, travel, learning and medical treatment. Supply of grain and foodstuffs to major cities and industrial centers must be improved. An adequate amount of industrial goods must be reserved for rural and border areas and the high region.

Efforts must be made to improve the livelihood of workers, civil servants, scientific and technical cadres, teachers and medical cadres. The real value of wages must be maintained. The supply of fixed amounts of goods must be insured. The scope of piecework and contractural wages must be widened according to set progressive norms. We must continue to improve wages and urgently study plans and create conditions for improving the wage system.

Prices are a very complex problem. The party and state policy regarding readjustment of purchase prices, bulk sale prices, retail prices and service charges is essential and correct. As far as implementation of this policy is concerned, shortcomings exist and errors have been made in setting some prices; announcements and application of new price scales have not been prepared in advance; there has been no coordination of financial, pricing and trading plans and some sectors and localities have arbitrarily implemented the pricing policy. At present, it is urgently required to continue implementing the central level's policy regarding price readjustment, to overcome past shortcomings and errors and to immediately readjust irrational prices of some goods which affect production and the people's livelihood. We must strive to gradually stabilize prices by developing production and overcoming imbalances regarding production, finance, money and foreign currencies. Special attention must be paid to management of cost prices and circulation costs. Lowering cost prices and circulation costs will greatly help create a basis for setting rational prices, stabilizing prices and increasing socialist accumulation while positively contributing to achieving a balance in state finances. We must step up the study and preparation of conditions for reforming the pricing system as well as the wage system by taking proper steps to readjust prices. Prices must always be closely linked to financial, monetary and commercial plans and market management. The main point is to strengthen price management according to plan. We must uphold state discipline regarding prices, put an end to the situation that permits arbitrary price hikes and the application of free market prices, urgently promulgate regulations on price management and achieve strict unified price management.

Trade must help concentrate in the state's hands the sources of materials and goods, including agricultural, forestry and marine products and industrial, domestic and import goods. We must closely manage and equitably distribute goods to meet the interests of the state, collectives and laborers. State-operated trade and marketing cooperatives must be consolidated so they can assume their guiding role in the market. State-owned production establishments and installations having economic relations with the state must earnestly carry out their obligation of delivering products to the state. The contingent of trade cadres must vigorously advance to learn the trade business and vividly apply socialist trade methods in order to control the market. Goods must be distributed to the right customers. We must resolutely oppose corruption, waste and negative practices in trade; improve material supply while consistently improving management and planning; achieve uniform and prompt supply of materials for production; give priority to implementing important tasks; insure effective use of materials; encourage material economization; consolidate and expand the socialist trade field; control wholesale and retail trade; basically control the social market; restrict and strictly control unorganized markets; strictly eradicate hoarding, smuggling and theft of state materials and goods; and properly organize and carry out the tasks of customs and tax offices in order to fight smuggling of goods across the border.

Regarding market management, it is necessary to properly coordinate economic, administrative and educational measures and all sectors and echelons, especially those sectors directly connected with market management such as the trading, financial, public security and customs sectors, under the guidance of party committee echelons and administrative echelons. This is one aspect of the fierce revolutionary struggle in the economic, political and social spheres -- a struggle that determines who wins over whom, a struggle in which we must come out victorious and must by one way or another establish socialist order in the field of distribution and circulation and in our economic and social life.

8. Economic Relations With Other Countries, Exports and Imports

Our tropical country is endowed with abundant natural resources, manpower and capabilities and has very favorable conditions for developing economic relations with other countries. We must, first of all, expand the overall cooperation between our country and the Soviet Union and the CEMA-member nations in depth as well as in scope. We must try our best to obtain maximum valuable aid from the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries and must effectively utilize this aid. Meanwhile, we must satisfactorily implement our obligations on the principle of reciprocity and not in an arbitrary and subservient manner.

In this spirit and in accordance with actual conditions and capabilities, our country should actively participate in the process of international labor distribution, specialization and international cooperation within the framework of CEMA in the appropriate spheres.

The alliance of the three Indochinese countries is a special one of comrades and friends assisting each other in the effort of protecting and building socialism in each country.

We must develop, together with Laos and Kampuchea, a program and plan to expand economic cooperation and mutual assistance in many fields and must properly develop all potentials and create new supplementary ones for each country.

We must expand our political, economic and cultural relations with the nonaligned countries; develop Vietnam's position and impact on the Nonaligned Movement and in the struggle for a new world economic order; strive to establish relations with other countries; develop in many ways exchange services and cooperation activities; and foil all enemy economic sabotage maneuvers.

Export is a very strategically important task and a great obligation for every sector and echelon. We must endeavor to step up exports in order to ensure the importation of necessary equipment and materials for the normal operation of our national economy and for our socialist industrialization and to gradually achieve an import-export balance and a proper international balance of payments.

Along with boosting production and thriftily using consumer goods with a view to increasing our supply of export goods, we must further expand services, tourism and other businesses to increase our sources of foreign currency.

We must strive to double our exports in terms of value in the 5 years of 1981-85 compared with the 5 years of 1976-1980. Priority must be given to investment to increase our export capacity. We must struggle to build a main supply of export goods which will be economically effective and ensure a stable position on the world market. We must also pay attention to exporting agricultural, forest and marine products, minerals, machinery, consumer goods and so forth.

The various sectors and regions are dutybound to make the largest possible contribution to the national export plan, striving to increase exports so as to achieve a balance with their respective import requirements and help increase our state's exports in terms of value.

We must adopt policies that encourage the sectors and regions to step up production of export goods and participate in the export business on the basis of maintaining the principle of unified management of foreign trade and currency by the state. We must promptly perfect foreign trade organizations, resolve irregularities in managerial structure, planning and policies that impede export activities. We must be extremely strict in regard to imports. We must fully utilize the existing equipment in our country -- machine tools, trucks, tractors -- and must resolutely readjust surpluses and shortages. We must import only the most essential equipment and supplies that cannot be produced locally, and must use imported goods thriftily and efficiently while consistently considering our ability to pay for them. We must expand tourism, making it gradually become an important economic sector worthy of our country's potential in this field.

9. Scientific and Technical Tasks

The Political Bureau's resolution on scientific and technical policy sets forth the main targets, tasks and orientations in scientific and technical development aimed at achieving immediate and long-term economic and social objectives. This resolution manifests the party's line on the scientific and technical revolution. The various echelons and sectors should thoroughly grasp and organize well the implementation of this resolution. The current urgent requirement is to efficiently implement key scientific and technical projects, paying particular attention to promptly applying scientific and technical progress in production and day-to-day life. Science and technology must be one of the primary factors in raising output, quality, conservation, efficiency and in pushing forward expanded reproduction. First of all, science and technology must support in the best manner the transformation of agriculture into large-scale socialist production within a rational agroindustrial structure. We must widely apply the achievements of the scientific-technical revolution, paying special attention to those in biology, first of all in regard to seeds, aimed at promoting agriculture, forestry, fishery and the processing industry. At the same time,we must make science and technology support important industrial sectors such as the power, coal, oil and gas, engineering, metallurgical, chemical, communications and transportation sectors.

For the immediate future, we must actively study the main economic and technical projects and help in formulating the 5-year plan for 1981-85 aimed at resolving difficulties in energy, raw materials and spare parts. We must push forward scientific studies on organization and management and must selectively promote basic survey and forecasting activities in order to prepare a scientific base for analyzing and assessing resources, zoning, programming and formulating economic and social strategies.

We must closely combine natural sciences, applied sciences and social sciences, and develop the creative strength of the scientific and technical sectors by taking into account the superiority of socialism and our nation's fine traditions. We must step up the working people's movement of developing innovations, improving techniques and rationalizing production. We must develop to a high degree the positive spirit of and at the same time expand international cooperation in science and technology with other countries in the world, first of all with the Soviet Union and the other CEMA countries. We must pay special attention to cooperation with fraternal Laos and Kampuchea.

We must develop and effectively exploit our existing and future scientific and technical potentials, set up and consolidate the system of research organizations and develop the system of education and training. We must strengthen the system of scientific and technical management agencies. We must make appropriate investments in and statisfactorily ensure the material-technical base for scientific and technical activities. We must adopt policies to foster, use and create working conditions aimed at developing the capabilities of the contingent of scientific and technical cadres. We must formulate well the regulations governing distribution of labor and cooperation in studying, developing and applying scientific and technical progress and raise the effectiveness of scientific and technical activities in economic and social life. We must give utmost importance to economic, scientific and technical information activities.

We must strive to gradually build an advanced science and technology for the SRV with a structure compatible with the requirements of economic, cultural and social development and capable of resolving immediate requirements and long-term objectives of production, day-to-day life and national defense. We must anticipate and open up new directions for development to the economy and society and pay attention to developing scientific and technical sectors in coordination with our advantages in terms of natural resources, tropical conditions and population.

10. Educational, Training, Cultural, Medical and Social Tasks:

We must carry out educational reforms intensively and steadily and in accordance with our economic capabilities. We must also pay attention to stepping up educational activities in the mountain region and the Cuu Long River Delta so as to gradually raise the level of these activities to the same level as in the other regions. We must consolidate and develop the education of young children and gradually spread basic general education, using various methods to provide education. We must have proper policies for building up and strnegthening the teachers body and improving the educational management tasks. We must pay great attention to enhancing the overall quality of education and further linking education with scientific and technical studies and with production and the people's livelihood. We must accelerate the general technical education and job orientation education for general school students and pay attention to educating students in political, ideological and ethical matters. We must satisfactorily organize the schools' participation in productive labor; strive to develop the complementary education movement; firmly grasp the motto "The state and the people work together" in promoting education; and achieve a close coordination of activities among the school, the family and society in order to successfully carry out the educational reforms.

We must continue to train a balanced and homogenous contingent of skilled workers, scientific and technical cadres and economic management cadres to meet the revolutionary requirements for the present and future stages. We must rearrange the system of colleges, higher schools, and vocational middle schools; do well in coordinating training work and productive labor; determine a rational training scale; expand on-the-job training; and train cadres for the collective economic sector. We must continue to train graduated technical cadres of all echelons and, especially, train cadres from among college graduates and graduates from advanced studies schools. We must adopt proper measures for training workers and cadres of ethnic minorities and make a census of and reassign the existing body of technical cadres in order to use them more rationally and efficiently. We must rearrange the vocational schools and classes of the ministries, localities and installations; improve student enrollment work; enhance the quality and result of training; determine a workers training scope in line with the requirements for production development; and pay great attention to training highly skilled technical workers. We must also strive to develop and enhance the quality of cultural, information, physical education and sports activities. Besides state investments, we must notivate the people, installations and mass organizations to make contributions and must use to the fullest the welfare funds of installations in order to promote the cultural, information, physical education and sports activities, especially the mass cultural movement and the physical training movement. We must pay attention to serving grassroots level units such as work sites, state farms, state forests and armed forces units, especially in border provinces and new economic zones.

We must intensively and continuously struggle to wipe out the enslaving, reactionary, backward and depraved cultures; resolutely eliminate outmoded customs, superstitions, and social evils; further care for the people's health; and build up Vietnamese medicine on the basis of combining modern and traditional medicine. We must satisfactorily perform sanitation, prophylactic treatment and environmental sanitation work; expand and raise the quality of public health and maternity work; care for the people's health through the use of state and public welfare funds; and motivate the people to make contributions.

We must tap the locally available pharmaceutical products to make common drugs and strive hard to overcome the lack of medicine. Every village and district must earmark land and work forces for the cultivation of medicinal plants. We must accelerate exports and cooperate with foreign countries in planting medicinal plants for them and endeavor to produce drugs for them in order to get chemical and pharmaceutical products and modern medicine in exchange.

We must make intensive preparations for producing antibiotics ourselves. We must improve our positions and policies and wholeheartedly care for and assist those families that performed meritorious services for the revolution, the brother and sister war invalids and the families of war dead. We must consolidate the war invalids care centers and rehabilitation centers in order to restore their labor capabilities and must expand the teaching of trades to them. We must satisfactorily organize the raising of orphans and assistance to the elderly, the weak and the infirm. The party and state should adequately care for the retirees and extend special love and respect to the elderly comrades.

The aforesaid major economic and social guidelines, tasks, and objectives are contained in the fifth party congress draft directive for guidance on the formulation of the 1981-85 5-year plan. On the basis of the congress directive, all echelons, sectors and installations must work together intensively in order to complete the economic and technical projects, pay out concrete policies and measures, determine objectives and satisfactorily formulate and carry out the 1981-85 5-year plan. According to the major guidelines, tasks and objectives mentioned in this report, it is estimated that during the 1981-85 5-year plan there will be an average annual increase in agricultural production of about 6 to 7 percent; industrial production -- 4 to 5 percent; and national income in production -- 4.5 to 5 percent. By 1985, the total increase in grain production will be 32 percent over 1980; pork -- 30 percent; fish -- 25 percent; sugar and honey of various types -- 111 percent; cloth and silk -- 119 percent; paper -- 87 percent; electricity -- 51 percent; coal -- 54 percent; cement -- 184 percent; chemical fertilizer -- 23 percent, and lumber -- 14 percent.

Thus, our economic and social situation is changing for the better, especially in stabilizing and further improving the people's livelihood. However, great economic imbalances still remain, though in lesser degrees. Proceeding from small-scale production after 30 years of fierce war, we must go through stages of arduous struggle; yet, we will gradually gear our national economic activities toward a trend of orderly socialist development and continue to advance in our surefire undertaking.

VICE PRESIDENT BUSH ARRIVES IN TOKYO 23 APR

[Text] Tokyo, April 23, KYODO -- U.S. Vice President George Bush arrived in Tokyo Friday afternoon on the first leg of his five-nation Asian and Pacific tour. In an arrival statement, the vice president said that he looked forward to useful exchanges with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and other senior officials.

Bush is to be received by Emperor Hirohito, and is scheduled to meet with Suzuki and Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Saturday. Agenda topics will center on the bilateral trade problems and the defense issue.

Suzuki will give to Bush brief outline of Japan's additional market opening package which is due to be approved at the May 7 ministerial meeting. He is also expected to explain the defense estimate for fiscal 1983-87, now under preparation by the Defense Agency. Bush will leave for South Korea Sunday. He will also visit Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

MITI ANNOUNCES PLANS TO LOWER IMPORT TARIFFS

[Text] Tokyo, April 23, KYODO -- The Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) Friday disclosed plans to drastically lower import tariffs on such items as machine tools, computers and color photographic film, effective next fiscal year, to help ease trade friction with the United States and European countries. MITI said it hoped to include this in a new package of measures to open the Japanese market wider to foreign imports, expected to be formally adopted by the government on May 7.

This action may come in for strong criticism from other government ministries and agencies opposed to such tariff reductions but it was necessary to alleviate the two major trading partners' discontent, ministry officials said. If the inclusion of the projected tariff cut in the new market-opening package proves difficult, the officials said, MITI will enforce this as an additional measure.

Under present plans, they said, MITI will cut import tariffs on machine tools, now ranging from 4 to 7.5 percent, to zero and reduce the tariff on computers and peripheral equipment to around 4.9 percent and 7 percent, respectively, from the present 7 percent and 10.3 percent. The import tariff on color photographic film will also be lowered from the present 6.6 percent as much as possible to the same level as the U.S. rate of 4.5 percent, they added.

MITI hopes to enforce the tariff reductions in fiscal 1983, which begins in April next year, they said. The officials said MITI also planned to take other market-opening steps, such as foreign-affiliated companies' participation in a government-industrial joint project to develop a next-generation computer, and expansion of imports of such commodities as soda ash and paper-pulps. MITI hopes to announce the enforcement of these measures before the June summit of seven industrial nations in France, they added.

GOVERNMENT CALLS FOR SEALANES DEFENSE STUDY

[Text] Tokyo, April 23, KYODO -- In a written answer to an inquiry made by an opposition dietman, the government Friday called for a governmental comprehensive study on the defense of sea-lanes off the Japanese coasts.

The written answer was decided on at a Cabinet meeting in reply to a written inquiry made by Yutaka Hata, a Shinsei-club member of the House of Councillors.

Hata questioned whether the government has an idea to legislate for defense of marine transportation in case of emergency while interpellating the government's views about the necessity and feasibility of inauguration of a military control system for defending marine transportation. The answer said there is the need for the government to make a comprehensive study of sea-lane defense as a part of urgent measures to be taken to keep up the people's livelihood and economic activities when marine transportation off Japan is jeopardized.

Hata also asked whether Japan would be able to take part in such a military control system if it is inaugurated by participant countries in the Rim of the Pacific Maneuvers (RIMPAC) after the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The government avoided giving its judgment by saying in the answer that each country has its own system for defense of marine transportation and thus it is not proper to consider the matter in a general way.

Since sea-lane defense has become a major focus in defense controversy, the Defense Agency has begun its study of sea-lane defense but the government has yet neither worked out its policy on sea-lane defense nor started such a study.

TOKYO ROUNDTABLE TALKS WITH USSR END 22 APR

[Text] Tokyo, April 22, KYODO -- Soviet delegates to the Japanese-Soviet round table conference Thursday accepted the existence of a "territorial demand" by Japan for the first time in the history of the private level gathering, according to conference sources. The sources said participants of a working session dealing with bilateral political relations agreed in their written report to the plenary session that there were different points of view in the discussion over the territorial demand. The paper was not made available because details of wording were yet to be determined.

Japan claims four northern islands, off Hokkaido, which have been occupied by the Soviet Union since the end of World War II. But the Soviet Union has persistently maintained that there is no territorial problem between the two countries, so no progress toward conclusion of a peace treaty has been possible.

Soviet delegates to the previous conferences, in accord with their government's official stance, had rejected mention of the territorial issue in any form in written documents. The sources said that the participants of the second working session agreed on the need to conduct dialogue on "problems concerning national interests." They said that "national interests" may be interpreted in different ways, and may be taken as a reference to the territorial issue.

The conference participants called for starting negotiations for a peace treaty. They also acknowledged Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's comment in a 1977 interview with a Japanese newspaper that negotiations for a peace treaty would include demarcation of border lines shared by the two countries.

The conference, attended by some 500 Japanese and Soviet representatives of political, economic, cultural, academic and other private sectors, ended its disucssion after adopting a joint communique calling for further efforts by both sides for improvement of the present cool relations between Japan and the Soviet Union.

The communique said that development and strengthening of Japanese-Soviet ties would not only bring benefits to the two parties but would also be an indispensable element of peace and security in Asia and the world.

At the same working session, the Japanese delegates took note of the Soviet comment that the Soviet Union would not attack a nuclear-free nation and the Soviet side took note of the Japanese insistence that this country would maintain its three non-nuclear principles. Thereupon, the participants expressed their hope than an official document concluded between the two governments would seal these principles, the sources said.

The communique emphasized that the most important task is to protect the peace and the appropriate way to realize that goal is by maintaining the ultimate target of total abolishment of armed forces, and by taking concrete steps to limit and reduce armed forces, as well as ban nuclear, neutron, chemical and other weapons of mass annihilation. The communique expressed support for all moves toward establishing mutual confidence in the Far East and for increased security of nuclear-free nations.

In regard to economic affairs, the communique said that the participants agreed to make efforts to conclude a government-level long-term plan for economic cooperation. They agreed to exert their efforts to lift the economic sanctions imposed by the Japanese Government against the Soviet Union over the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the Polish crisis, according to the communique. It said the sanctions are disturbing the development of bilateral economic cooperation.

Participants also agreed to hold the fourth conference in Moscow. The date and details of the next conference are to be determined by a preparatory committee, it said.

The conference, the largest and broadest private meeting between Japan and the Soviet Union, is jointly sponsored by five Japanese non-government organizations promoting friendship with the Soviet Union and their Soviet counterparts.

Soviet Merchant Marine Minister Timofey Guzhenko, who led the Soviet delegation, praised the discussions as frank and fruitful at a press conference following the closing session. Guzhenko told reporters that the two countries would benefit from efforts to materialize the ideas fixed in the joint communique.

Shigeyoshi Matsumae, chairman of the Japanese Cultural Association With Foreign Countries -- one of the five sponsor groups -- said that he believes that the conference created a warm atmosphere for political dialogue in the future.

DMZ 'PROVOCATIONS,' SR-71 FLIGHTS PROTESTED

[Text] Kaesong, April 22 (KCNA) -- The South Korean puppet army is persisting in armed provocations in the area along the military demarcation line in disregard of our repeated protests. At around 15:50 on April 22, the South Korean puppet army fired scores of large calibre machinegun shots from a spot 900 metres south of the military demarcation line marker No. 0829, near a spot where it committed large-scale rifle and gun firing against our side on April 21, at our post on the opposite side.

Through his telephone notice senior member of our side Major General Han Chu-kyong resolutely protested against this provocation, denouncing it as a continuation of the armed provocation on April 21. Noting that there is a limit to our patience, he said the enemy side should look straight at the situation created due to the continued military provocations of the South Korean puppet army and act with discretion.

Meanwhile, at around 9:59 on the morning of April 22, the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated the "SR-71" high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the sky above the Kangnyong Peninsula on the west coast of our country. At around 9:40 and 11:27 in the morning they sent the reconnaissance plane into the sky above the coastal waters east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country. The senior member of our side said such aerial espionage is a wanton violation of the armistice agreement and a crude infringement upon the sovereignty of our country and our side cannot but take it serious that the aerial espionage of the enemy is synchronising with its continued armed provocations against the northern half of the republic.

Our people and People's Army soldiers are watching the enemy's acts with heightened vigilance. The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet army must think over the possible consequences of their reckless military provocations and stop running riot.

[Text] Pyongyang, April 23 (KCNA) -- The U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, frantic with the manoeuvres to provoke a new war of aggression in Korea, are further intensifying military provocations of late against the northern half of the DPRK, thereby leading the situation of our country to a dangerous stage.

As already reported, at around 9:59 on April 22, the U.S. imperialist aggressors again infiltrated the "SR-71" high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the sky above Kangnyong Peninsula southwest of South Hwanghae Province of our country to commit espionage against the northern half of the DPRK. At around 9:40 and 11:27 yesterday they also sent the spy plane to intrude deep into the sky east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country, crossing the military boundary. The infiltration of spy planes deep into our eastern and western airspace by the U.S. imperialist aggressors numbered as many as 14 in April alone.

Synchronising with the intensified aerial espionage by the U.S. imperialist aggressors against our country, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is ceaselessly committing adventurous military provocations against our side in the Demilitarized Zone. From around 5:20 to 7:05 on April 21, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique fired more than 23,000 bullets and shells at civil policemen of our side on their routine patrol duty in our portion in the Demilitarized Zone and, in its wake, from around 15:10 to 21:25 on the same day it fired large calibre machineguns and automatic rifles three times at civil police posts of our side.

At around 7:22 and 15:50 on April 22, too, the enemy committed rifle firing at our civil police posts in the Demilitarized Zone in the western and central sectors of the front.

Such continued reckless military provocations perpetrated by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets in disregard of our repeated warnings have created a grave situation which may expand into irrevocable armed clashes at any moment. Now the entire Korean people and officers and men of the People's Army are watching with heightened vigilance the rash acts of the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique which are becoming ever more adventurous. They must know that there is a limit to our warning and act with discretion.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique must be clearly mindful that if they persist in their adventurous armed provocations and espionage acts against the northern half of the DPRK in defiance of our patient efforts and warnings, they will have to pay dear for their acts.

23 Apr DMZ 'Provocations'

[Text] The senior member of our side of the Military Armistice Commission lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against ominous acts of the South Korean puppet army in the Demilitarized Zone [DMZ] in the eastern sector of the front.

The South Korean puppet army is showing ominous maneuvers against our side in the DMZ in the eastern front. From around 1515 today, the South Korean puppet army has been perpetrating provocative acts by taking aim at our post on the opposite side of the area 700 meters east of military demarcation line [MDL] marker No. 1250, with recoilless rifles and antiaircraft machine guns, which it illegally brought into the DMZ. A similar provocative act has been committed by the rascals from around 1255 in the area 500 meters south of MDL marker No. 1145. Such a reckless provocative act by the South Korean puppet army is continuing even now.

Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, senior member of our side, said that such provocative acts by the South Korean puppet army are alarming moves to commit again a military provocation similar to the large-scale armed provocation which the rascals perpetrated on 21 April. He strongly demanded an immediate end to the reckless provocations. If the enemy commits an armed provocation, ignoring our demand, it will face due punishment.

MAC Meeting 27 Apr Proposed

[Text] Kaesong, April 23 (KCNA) -- Our side to the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] proposed today to the enemy side to hold the 412th meeting of the Military Armistice Commission at 11 a.m. on April 27, 1982, in connection with the recent repeated armed provocations of the enemy.

NODONG SINMUN DENOUNCES U.S. ARMS SALES TO TAIWAN

[Text] Pyongyang, April 23 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today in a signed commentary denounces the U.S. sale of military-related spare parts to Taiwan, a part and parcel of the Chinese territory, as a grave infringement upon China's sovereignty and a crude interference in her internal affairs. The U.S. imperialists must immediately stop their military assistance to Taiwan and discontinue barring the peaceful reunification of China, it warns.

The commentary is carried in support of the statement of the spokesman of the Foreign Ministry of the People's Republic of China issued in connection with the U.S. administration's official notice to the Congress that it was going to sell military-related spare parts to Taiwan. It says: The U.S. delivery of weapons to Taiwan is a problem of principle related to China's sovereignty. It is not a matter to be arbitrarily settled by the United States.

The United States recognized the Government of the People's Republic of China as the only legitimate one of China and Taiwan as part of the Chinese territory and abrogated the "defence treaty" concluded with Taiwan. But after the establishment of diplomatic relations with China, the United States passed the so-called "law on Taiwan" and continued supplying weapons to Taiwan, talking about the "maintenance of Taiwan's defence capacity."

Why are the U.S. imperialists persistently supplying weapons to Taiwan, twaddling about its "defence capacity?" It is evidently aimed to create "two Chinas."

In increasing Taiwan's military potentials the U.S. imperialists try to maintain the present division of China, keep hold on Taiwan indefinitely and turn it into their base of aggression. It is in pursuance of this heinous ambition that they are zealous in offering military assistance to Taiwan in disregard of the unanimous opposition of the Chinese Government and people. This is a vicious challenge to the entire Chinese people desirous of the peaceful reunification of the country.

The Korean people bitterly denounce the U.S. imperialists' infringement upon the sovereignty of China and resolutely support the stand of the Chinese party and government on the Taiwan question.

RENMIN RIBAO Cited on Sales

SK230910 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0826 GMT 23 Apr 82

[Text] Beijing, April 22 (KCNA) -- A recent issue of the Chinese PEOPLE'S DAILY carried an article by commentator protesting against the decision of the U.S. Government to sell military-related spare parts to Taiwan. Noting that the U.S. Government on April 13, 1982, officially notified U.S. Congress that it was going to sell military-related spare parts to Taiwan, the paper says:

The U.S. arms sales to Taiwan is an infringement upon China's sovereignty. There is only one China in the world and Taiwan is a part of China. The Government of the People's Republic of China is the sole legitimate Government of China. After the formal establishment of Sino-U.S. diplomatic relations, the United States continues to sell arms to Taiwan to interfere in China's internal affairs. This is an open violation of the principles guiding Sino-U.S. relations stipulated in the Sino-U.S. joint communique. This also shows that the U.S. Government has renounced its commitment undertaken explicitly in the joint communique.

It is only natural that the Chinese Government has consistently opposed the U.S. act of disregarding China's sovereignty. Recalling that when the U.S. Government in December 1981 unofficially notified U.S. Congress of its decision to sell this batch of spare parts to Taiwan, the Chinese Government immediately lodged a protest, the paper stresses: China's consistent stand against the U.S. arms sales to Taiwan surely will never change.

The U.S. Government insists on continued arms sales to Taiwan and goes ahead with implementing the policy of "two Chinas" or "one China and one Taiwan" by playing some tricks openly or covertly. This, of course, is impermissible.

NODONG SINMUN DISCUSSES KPA LOYALTY TO PARTY

[NODONG SINMUN 23 April special article: "KPA's Proud Path of Struggle Is Brilliantly Inheriting Tradition of Loyalty to Party and Leader"]

[Text] Fifty years have passed since the founding of the KPA was announced to the whole world. The historic path of the KPA has been brilliantly embroidered with a most impressive epic in which our People's Army has been endlessly loyal to the party and leader. It is the greatest honor for our People's Army to brilliantly inherit the tradition of loyalty to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the founder and leader [yongdoja] of our revolutionary armed forces.

There is no other army in the world like our People's Army which is endlessly loyal to the party and leader. Because of the presence of a loyal army which is upholding the leader and party from generation to generation, the future of our party and revolution is all the more brilliant.

1. To correctly inherit the tradition of loyalty to the party and leader is a fundamental requirement for building, consolidating and developing the revolutionary armed forces.

The basic element in the tradition of the revolutionary army is loyalty to the leader who is leading them to victory and glory. The ardent faithfulness to devotedly struggle for the party and leader is a basic source of all strengths of the revolutionary army. The tradition of loyalty to the party and leader is a precious ideological and spiritual asset enabling the revolutionary army to unswervingly hold fast to its character as the army of the leader and the army of the party and to consummate the leader's cause to the end.

Only the army which endlessly inherits the tradition of loyalty established in the days of its birth can fulfill its mission as the armed forces of the party in the entire period of carrying out the revolutionary cause. Therefore, the question of inheriting the tradition of loyalty to the party and leader is a task of vital importance which determines the destiny and prospects of the army.

The KPA is the glorious revolutionary armed forces which has set a great example of loyalty to the party and leader and is brilliantly inheriting this tradition. Our army's tradition of loyalty in upholding the party and leader was established in the days of pioneering the revolution and has been firmly inherited in the protracted and arduous path of struggle. Our People's Army was born cherishing noblest loyalty to the leader from the beginning. Such a noble feature of our army from its beginning is based on a historic foundation.

Without the armed struggle to vanquish the heavily armed imperialist aggressors from the very beginning, the Korean revolution could not advance. Thus, the destiny of the revolution in our country has depended on the army from the beginning. The fate of the army has been directly linked to the question on how it defends, safeguards and upholds the leader of the revolution.

Because they were deeply aware of this, the members of the Korean Revolutionary Army [KRA] -- the first members of our country's revolutionary armed ranks -- entrusted their destiny to the care of the respected and beloved Gen Kim Il-song, believed only in him and followed him. In the gloomy days of national suffering, the KRA members had wandered about in search of a leader of the revolution after receiving a bloody lesson. They learned the truth of revolution and became a revolutionary army in the bosom of the respected and beloved Gen Kim Il-song.

Because they ardently uphold the leader, our army can possess a clear-cut understanding of the leader [suryong] -- unlike other people -- and ardent loyalty. The noble ideology and emotion of endlessly admiring and following the leader [yongdoja] arises from the personification of the greatness of the leader.

Since he set out on the road of revolution, young General Comrade Kim Il-song had possessed the special nature and lofty personality of a great leader [yongdoja]. Deeply aware that the destiny of the fatherland and people depended upon upholding the respected and beloved Gen Kim Il-song, our People's Army made a solemn vow to follow the leader [suryong] to the end of the world and fought to purely defend this vow. Thus, already in the early days of its founding, a tradition of loyalty was established in our People's Army. This tradition and example have become deep and firm historical roots which enable our People's Army to render its loyalty to the party and leader forever.

The most important thing in the tradition of loyalty established by our revolutionary army in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolution was sincerity in upholding the great Gen Kim Il-song with a pure mind and resoluteness in unhesitatingly sacrificing our lives in order to safeguard the general and to realize his plan. This was really the highest expression of the stance and attitude of upholding the leader [yongdoja].

Many years have passed since the tradition of loyalty was established in our People's Army. The revolution, after passing through several stages, has advanced far. However, the tradition of loyalty in our People's Army is being purely inherited on the road of upholding the party and leader. The long history of the communist movement and revolutionary armies has never seen the tradition of loyalty being firmly maintained for such a long span of time.

The KPA has traversed a path of difficulties beyond description. The difficulties have been strenuous and the ordeals have been rigorous. This notwithstanding, because it has firmly maintained the tradition of loyalty, our army has been able to victoriously march forward despite any storm, thus making great achievements before the party and revolution. The achievements made by our People's Army on the road of inheriting the tradition of loyalty lie in resolutely defending, safeguarding and upholding the party and leader in the van at every important instance when the destiny of revolution has been at a cross-roads.

The anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle was an arduous one to save the country and the nation -- which was in crisis -- with our people's own strength. By faithfully fighting, day after day for the entire period, upholding the great Gen Kim Il-song under unimaginably difficult conditions, the anti-Japanese guerrillas greatly contributed to achieving the cause of the fatherland's liberation. Truly rigorous were the complicated circumstances in which rabble claimed to be heroes or gallant men after the liberation, in the severe days of war -- on which our fate hinged -- with the U.S. imperialist aggressors, and in the days after the war when the enemies at home and abroad challenged the party. During those days, our People's Army always led in the van of the ranks, determinedly defending and safeguarding the party and leader.

It was our army that positively assisted in the great Gen Kim Il-song's cause of founding the party, country and army in the disorderly situation after the liberation. It was also the army's officers and men that resolutely defended and safeguarded the party and leader in the days of difficulties after the war by cheering, "Long live Gen Kim Il-song!" and blocking the enemy's gun muzzles with their chests during the war. Our People's Army has also greatly contributed to carrying out the chuche cause by upholding the party and leader as the center of the leadership even in the historic days when the future of revolution became brighter under the slogan of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea. The soldiers of our People's Army personally witnessed how a turn was effected by our party in building the army and how epoch-making changes were created in this land during these rewarding days. They came to more firmly renew their will and determination to uphold the party and leader as guides of the revolutionary forces. Therefore, our People's Army has been able to be an army endlessly loyal to the our party, glorifying the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary cause.

This is the noble summation of our People's Army's history. Thanks to the tradition of loyalty, which has been purely inherited on the road of upholding the party, the history of our People's Army is most precious.

The significance of the KPA's brilliantly inheriting the tradition of loyalty to the party and leader lies in its providing a firm military guarantee for the consummation of the revolutionary cause pioneered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. The revolutionary cause of the working class is long-term work inherited from generation to generation and an arduous struggle which is carried out victoriously through fierce struggle against the class enemies. To consummate this cause to the end, the party's military foundation should be continuously consolidated. Such a military foundation is firmly consolidated only when the army is further developed as the party's armed forces which consummate the leader's cause. The key in so doing is to truly inherit the tradition of loyalty. For this reason, for the revolutionary army to inherit the tradition of loyalty is a very important issue for the consummation of the revolutionary cause.

As the tradition of loyalty has been purely inherited by our People's Army in the course of imbuing the entire army with the chuche idea, the party's military foothold has been consolidated rock-firm. The entire army, upholding our party in high esteem as the organizer and guide of all victories won by the KPA, is firmly guaranteeing the party's cause militarily. Our party's military base, thanks to firm backing from such a loyal army, is unwaveringly firm and a more brilliant future is unfolding before the cause of the chuche revolution.

The history of our People's Army, which has been loyally upholding the party and leader, is a proud path which has taught us the source of military might and the key for building the army. The true power and might of the revolutionary army stems, first of all, from political and ideological superiority -- in particular, from the continued inheritance of the tradition of loyalty to the party and leader. The army which inherits the tradition of loyalty sustains revolutionary zeal and militant verve no matter how old it may be, and is capable of advancing to victory breaking through any kind of tribulations.

Our People's Army, throughout its history, had to confront and fight enemies incomparably superior in number, technology and equipment. The reason why our People's Army has always been able to rout the enemies, however, has been because the heart of every warrior burned with loyalty. The tradition of our People's Army's loyalty is displaying its highest form on the road of realizing the party's cause. Because of this peerless strength, the KPA is undefeated and is resolutely advancing, confronting any kind of enemy, never yielding to threats or aggressive maneuvers. The history of our People's Army shows that only the inherited tradition of loyalty displays invincible might and evinces brilliant rays. The proud history of our People's Army lies in inheriting the tradition of loaylty to the party and leader through many generations.

2. Our People's Army is maintaining the trait as revolutionary armed forces endlessly loyal to the party and leader at the noblest height.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Now, the spiritual state of men and officers of our People's Army is excellent. The party's unitary ideological system has filled the army and every soldier is determined to safeguard and defend the party and revolution with his life. Today, fiery loyalty to our party is becoming the most basic ideological and spiritual trait and fundamental element of the KPA, filling its entire ranks. This trait of our People's Army has reached a height not seen in any other time or army from the standpoint of its warmth or degree of nobility.

The noble trait of the KPA as the revolutionary armed forces of our party lies, first of all, in holding the party center in high esteem, with firm conviction in trusting its entire fate to the party and leader. For the revolutionary army to fulfill its mission as the armed forces which consummate the leader's cause, the entire army should be dominated by the firm conviction to uphold the party.

Faith in the party is the idea and thought that the party's cause is most just and great and that the communist cause can be accomplished only when one follows the party to the end. Only an army which has such a strong belief can uphold the party's leadership in its heart and share weal and woe with the party. The firmness of its faith in upholding the party and leader is an excellent traditional trait of our army which is being inherited over the generations. Today, the army is brimming over with the view of not recognizing anything except the party and leader and the political conviction of upholding the party until the end.

It is our army's firm belief that only the party is the bosom of guidance in which the army can trust its fate and that the future of the revolution exists because of the leadership of the party and leader. Such a noble trait is based on the understanding by the men and officers of our People's Army of the greatness of the party and leader, understanding which they have acquired over long historical experience. In particular, our People's Army has come to have absolute confidence in the party as a great guide capable of leading the overall revolutionary armed forces while engaged in the struggle to imbue the whole society with the chuche idea, and has trusted its fate and future entirely to the party center.

Pulsating in the ranks of our People's Army is the revolutionary spirit of the members of the Korean Revolutionary Army, who, out of a firm belief, upheld the young general, Comrade Kim Il-song, and defended and safeguarded the general with their lives. The slogan being shouted by our People's Army now, "Let all the army become Kim Hyok's in the 1980's," clearly shows how firm is the confiction of our People's Army to uphold the party.

At the dawn of the revolution the People's Army upheld the respected Gen Kim Il-song as the sun of the revolution and commander of the revolutionary armed forces out of revolutionary faith, not at someone's directive. The People's Army has raised such a slogan because this spirit is boundlessly precious even today for building the army and accomplishing the chuche cause. At the time the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was pioneering the revolution, indomitable warriors rallied around the leader.

For this reason, we were able to achieve victories in the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary armed struggle. To carry out the revolutionary cause to the end, there should be many indomitable warriers.

The Korean revolution, which began under the banner of the chuche idea, is now being inherited brilliantly at the height of the 1980's. However, we are faced with heavy tasks to defeat the frantic last-ditch efforts of the enemies, to reunify the divided fatherland and to consummate the chuche cause. To consummate this historic cause, our People's Army should hold the party and leader in still higher esteem. This is a paramount task to hasten the national reunification and the brilliant communist future.

Our People's Army has made a solemn vow that it will becoem another Kim Hyok in the 1980's as it is deeply aware of such a lofty mission. To become Kim Hyok of the 1980's means becoming an indomitable fighter who upholds, defends and protects the leader with the same rock-firm faith, stand and attitude as Kim Hyok and who carries out the cause of the party to the end. It is the idea and ambition, hope and pleasure of all officers and men of the People's Army to become Kim Hyok's of the 1980's. In particular, the slogan on becoming Kim Hyok includes the firm will of of soliders of the new generation to become staunch defenders and protectors of the party. The new generation is the generation which should achieve the cause of the fatherland's reunification and accelerate the cause of democratization of the entire world by upholding the party and the leader. Thus, it should prepare itself as indomitable fighters more firmly than anyone else.

Today, the officers and men of the People's Army are vigorously growing as indomitable revolutionary fighters following the example of the young communists. This is a proud feature of the KPA as the revolutionary armed forces of the party. Because the entire army is upholding the party center with indomitable revolutionary spirit, the strength of the KPA as our party's revolutionary armed forces is increasing a hundredfold. The lofty outlook of the CPA as our party's armed forces is that the entire army is rallied rock-firm around the party and the leader.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: All the officers and men of our People's Army are united with revolutionary comradeship and are firmly rallied with one idea and one intention. Therefore, they are ever-victorious and invincible. The important mission and duty of the revolutionary armed forces is to safeguard the party and the leader at the risk of their lives and to militarily ensure the cause of the party. Thus, the revolutionary army should be connected with the party with blood-ties and they should be one body, sharing their destinies with each other. Be doing so, the party and the army will share indomitable strength and the revolution will victoriously advance without the slightest twists or pain.

Today, all the officers and men of our People's Army are rallied more firmly than ever before around the party Central Committee led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and are rock-firm in defending and safeguarding the party and leader. Our party and army have attained unprecedentedly close relations with each other. The relations between our party and army are indomitable and historic relations, are relations based on one will to share the trials of the revolution to the end and are relations based on the warmest comradeship and moral sense.

With such vigorous and unbreakable ties, the unity between our party and army is indeed rock-firm and the strength of our party is indomitable. Such unity is a great price for our army and decisive factor for all victories. The source of the greatness of the unity and cohesion of the KPA is in upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, its founder, and the party center, which is leading the revolutionary armed forces to endless glory, as the center of unity and center of leadership.

With the firmness of the center of unity and the center of leadership, the unity and cohesion of our People's Army are firm and great.

The unitary ideological basis for realizing the firm unity of our People's Army is the revolutionary ideology of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and our party's idea and intentions, which embody the leader's revolutionary idea. Included in the ideas and intentions of our party center are directions and measures to implement overall military tasks, from implementing the political and ideological work and military lines within the army to building the branches of the army, in accord only with the intention of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Soldiers of our People's Army firmly believe that the only guideline which can correctly guide the revolutionary armed forces without the slightest deviation, as intended by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is the idea and theory of our party. Thus, our People's Army has become a unified body with ideological unity and one will, which thoroughly breathes with the leader's idea and acts in accord with the party's intention. Our party and People's Army formed the deepest and most vigorous moral and faithful relations in the course of the long history of struggle, overcoming arduous revolutionary storms. The officers and men of our People's Army regard rendering their loyalty over generations to the party and leader, who are leading them along the road of the rewarding revolution and taking care of them, as due morality and principle. They are filled with the single thought of how they can better repay their indebtedness to the party and leader.

The party is extending boundless trust and love to the army's officers and men, while the army is upholding and following the party and leader with peerless affection Such unity and cohesion will not be shaken by any trial. That a chain of command [yonggyejoggin myongnyong chihwi chegye] upholding the party's leadership and that discipline have been firmly established in the army is another important trait of our People's Army as the armed forces of the party.

Thorough implementation of the leadership of the party and leader by the revolutionary army is a basic principle in building the army and is a prime demand for its being strengthened and developed as the party's army. The party's leadership over the army is firmly guaranteed by the chain of command and strong revolutionary discipline. It is the life of the revolutionary army to act only in accord with the order of the party and to unconditionally implement it. For the army, directly standing against the enemy, the demand that it execute orders is stronger than for any other rank. Observance of the principle of unconditionality in executing the party's orders by all the officers and men affects the operation of units and commands the destiny of the party and the revolution. Thus, we can never safeguard the cause of the party without establishing rock-firm discipline within the entire army.

All party's plans and policies for building the army are being successfully implemented in our People's Army. This is because the firm discipline that the entire army acts as one organic body in accord with the order and directions of the party is established. Today, the trait and discipline that all the ranks of our People's Army act only under the leadership of the party and leader and that they know only the order and directions of the party are firmly established. Overall activities and army building are being carried out thoroughly under the party's unified guidance. The party's order and directives are being unconditionally implemented, going through fire and water. This is a proud feature of our People's Army in which order and discipline are firmly established.

That such a system of order and command is being firmly established in the entire army is because our party's leading authority is lofty and all soldiers are voluntarily observing discipline, with the conviction to uphold the party.

Our party put forward various policies for strengthening and developing the revolutionary armed forces, while leading the overall work of revolution and construction. Thus, it effected a great turn in building the army.

The officers and men of our People's Army, deeply realizing that they cannot advance even a step forward and they cannot have any glory and happiness without the party's leadership, are thoroughly and unconditionally implementing the party's orders and directives, regarding the party as the great bosom of guidance leading their destiny.

With the establishment of a firm system and order of upholding the party's leadership throughout the entire army, the party's guidance over the army's military work is being further strengthened and the method of commanding and managing units in the manner of anti-Japanese guerrillas is being firmly established under the slogan "training, study and life -- all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrillas!" Thus, the party's military line is being thoroughly implemented and our People's Army has been strengthened and developed politically and ideologically, militarily and technologically into indomitable ranks.

The firmness of organization and discipline is a characteristic nature of the revolutionary army. The KPA has a precious tradition of a lofty degree of discipline and organization. There has never been such a time in the history of the building of our revolutionary armed forces as today, when the system of moving under the party's guidance has been established throughout the entire army and when our army's ranks have become regularized.

The system of command and discipline of our army, which was founded based on a high degree of consciousness, cannot be shaken by anything. No phenomena, even a minor one, which runs counter to the party's orders and directives, can occur within our army. Thus, our army is now able to adhere to the nature of armed forces which implement the party's leadership forever. Indeed, the fact that our People's Army has the lofty outlook of the party's armed forces, which uphold the party and leader, serves as a great revolutionary turning point in building, strengthening and developing the army. Such a lofty outlook of the KPA shows what type of stand and attitude the revolutionary army should take in inheriting the tradition of loyalty and how it should defend and protect the party and leader.

The future of the KPA, which is brilliantly inheriting the tradition of loyalty to the party and leader, will be brighter. The glory of the revolutionary armed forces lies in that they have a proud past and a bright future, too. The revolutionary armed forces are militant ranks fighting for the future of the revolution and the accomplishment of the communist cause. Only armed forces which have a future can add lustre to the achievements of the past and march forward courageously.

The future of the armed forces lies in that they are creditably inheriting loyalty, upholding the great leader [yongdoja]. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the great leadership of our party are the fundamental factors which have unfurled a boundlessly bright future for the armed forces. Our People's Army is the force of the nation led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who founded the revolutionary armed forces half a century ago and has come through the storms and trials of the revolution and created ever-victorious military miracles.

Our People's Army is always invincible as it has been under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the outstanding military strategist and the iron-willed commander, who leads it with the extraordinary energy and tested maneuvers he demonstrated when defeating two imperialists. The future of our People's Army shines brighter because of our party, which adds lustre to the great leader's military ideology. The KWP is a mature and refined party which, with extraordinary wisdom and vigorous leadership, has achieved immortal achievements in building the army and carrying out the revolution and construction.

For our People's Army soldiers, the KWP is the banner of guidance which always leads them to victory. Carrying out the revolution under the leadership of this great party is the greatest happiness and supreme honor of our armed forces.

Our People's Army is overflowing with the rock-firm will to uphold the leadership of the party and the leader and to fight to the end for the accomplishment of the chuche cause.

An important factor ensuring our People's Army a bright future is the revolutionary will to maintain the tradition of loyalty under any difficult circumstances. Old revolutionary fighters of our People's Army, who have been upholding the great Gen Kim Il-song since the early days of the founding of the anti-Japanese guerrilla units, form the core and backbone in upholding the party center. With the veterans of the revolution -- who have undergone bloody struggles in guerrilla bases such as (Sowangchon) and followed a road replete with tribulations -- firmly and thoroughly determined to uphold the party center, the future of the People's Army is more certain.

In our People's Army the new generation of soldiers, learning from the loyalty demonstrated by old timers, is faithfully struggling, entrusting its future to our party. With the core and backbone of the army loyal to the party and to the leader firmly provided, our party's organizational and ideological foundations are being further consolidated, Today's reality, in which the core and backbone of the army -- which has been upholding the leader [yongdoja] since the days of the anti-Japanese struggle -- are firmly supporting the foundation of the party, ensures our people's conviction that our party's cause can be firmly safeguarded and defended in the future.

A long time has passed since the founding of the anti-Japanese guerrilla unit. In the course of this time, loyalty to the party and the leader has become the essential revolutionary nature and the supreme life of our People's Army.

Our People's Army, which, following the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, has covered countless thousand-li of rugged road, will, in the future, too, advance forever on the single road of loyalty, following the great star of guidance. Because of the powerful revolutionary armed forces which continuously add lustre to the tradition of loyalty to the party and the leader, the ultimate victory of our party's cause is firmly guaranteed.

PROSECUTORS DROP KCAO CASE, RELEASE LEADERS

[Text] Seoul, April 23 (YONHAP) -- Following three days of questioning, South Korean prosecution authorities Friday released all of 11 leaders of the Korean Christian Action Organization [KCA] that last week issued an anti-American statement, a government prosecutor announced. Kim Kyong-hui, a senior prosecutor in Seoul, said at a news conference that the prosecution authorities have decided not to charge the Christians because they have "deeply repented and pledged not to recommit such a wrong doing."

"The act of issuing the statement, which incites anti-American sentiments and aims to create social upheaval cannot be condoned, because it is tantamount to supporting the cause of communist North Korea," Kim said. "In light of the compelling need for national reconciliation at this juncture, however, we have decided to release them with a stern warning for their violation of the law."

The Christians' statement said the March 18 arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan was an expression of anti-American sentiments amongst Koreans and demanded the recall of U.S. Ambassador to South Korea Richard Walker and Gen. John Wickham, commander of the U.S. forces in Korea for their remarks allegedly critical of South Koreans.

Kim described the issuance of the statement as "unconstitutional" under the Korean constitution, which separates the state from religion. He said "some personalities" who participated in the drafting of the statement were "justifying their radical social engagement," invoking progressive schools of theology. But he added that the social and government system they envisage is incompatible with the country's constitution. "Their belief in unlawful violence with which they justified the arsons at the American Cultural Centers in Pusan and Kwangju jeopardizes national security," Kim said.

One of the Christians connected with the statement acknowledged that the act of damaging the traditional ties of frienship between South Korea and the United States would only "weaken our defense posture and benefit the communist regime in the North," he said.

Kim said the statement was adlpted with 20 of the organization's 42 leaders absent, and added "only a handful" of persons masterminded the act, despite the objections of a "considerable" number of the organization's members.

KOREA HERALD VIEWS 21 APR DMZ FIRING INCIDENT

[Editorial: "N. Korean Shooting in DMZ"]

[Text] The shooting incident which occurred within the Korean Demilitarized Zone [DMZ] early Wednesday morning is an unprovoked and unilateral work of the North Korean forces manning their outposts. It once again gave a sign of the trigger-happy war machine based in Pyongyang bent on taking every opportunity to harass or attack us. Although we have had enough of such shootings and thrusts by the North Korean Army so far, we are all the more alarmed and infuriated at the continuing communist provocations that seem to know no end. However, these provocations are self-defeating to the North Koreans for they only serve to heighten our vigilance and preparedness against their machinations.

According to the Defense Ministry announcement, North Korean military personnel at two guardposts in the northern sector of the Demilitarized Zone north of Hwachon fired some 800 round of shells discharged by an assortment of automatic weapons and 82-mm recoilless guns.

The cross fire was aimed at a group of North Korean soldiers who apparently attempted to escape to the South. The firing was also directed at opposite guardposts on the side of our army to keep the would-be defectors from reaching them. Many tracer shells and big-caliber bullets were employed to check the poor North Koreans who were eventually killed in a ground mine explosion. It touched off defensive return fire for a brief span of time.

The unprovoked military action of North Korea inside the sensitive Demilitarized Zone that cuts across the Korean Peninsula as the buffer between the two military adversaries is a serious threat to the peace and security of Korea. Technically it is a flagrant violation of the truce terms designed to prevent a renewal of hostilities in this tension-ridden part of the world.

The adventurous and foolhardy military strategists in Pyongyang should know that a full-scale armed conflict may break out at the slightest provocation and another such war would prove disastrous to them. If they are not yet ready to promote the chances of peace and reunification, they could at least refrain from aggravating the prevailing tension.

The fact that an increasing number of North Koreans, both civilian and military, are seeking defection to freedom in South Korea speaks for the unbearable impoverishment and repression gripping the whole territory of North Korea. Naturally more of them are reacting violently to the communist dictatorship, looking for an exit outside.

Kim Il-song's war and propaganda machine has stepped up its militant campaign for stifling domestic discontent within North Korea and for drumming up anti-Seoul and anti-American sentiments here and abroad. The devastating mass riot in Kwangju two years ago and the latest burning of American Cultural Center in Pusan offered good occasions for North Korea to capitalize on to weaken the cohesiveness and stability of South Korea.

However, we are no longer unprepared to meet any provocation and challenge from Pyongyang, military or otherwise. That preparedness must rest firmly on the rock of strong national unity and harmony. A divided house with treacherous elements sympathizing with its enemy outside cannot protect itself and work for its growth.

SUCCESSES REPORTED IN WINTERING OF LIVESTOCK

OW191332 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1453 GMT 9 Apr 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 9 Apr (MONTSAME) -- Favorable conditions this winter in most of the country's regions, selfless and purposeful work of cattle breeders and organizational work of the party and state organizations are the main reasons for the successes achieved by the leading branch of the country's agriculture in the first quarter of the year.

Wintering of livestock is completed. Over 24 million head of livestock were wintered in 35,000 barns. Livestock losses were reduced by 2.5 times compared to the preceeding winter losses. This is an indication of the effectiveness of the measures for consolidating the livestock industry.

Now, at the height of mass livestock breeding, as reported by the MPR Central Statistical Administration, 47 percent of offspring-bearing livestock have given birth by 1 April 1982. Now over 5.3 million head of offspring, which is almost 112,000 head more than in the corresponding period of last year, are being successfully reared. Farms of Ubsa-Nurskiy, Dundgobi and Ubur Hangayskiy Aymags, where the offspring survival percentage is the highest, are confidently in the vanguard of this most important agricultural campaign.

FRENCH WRITER INTERVIEWS KHMER ROUGE OFFICIALS

PM141453 [Editorial Report] Paris FRANCE-SOIR in French on 5 and 6 April 1982, carries a 5,000-word, two-part Jean-Lous Morillon article on his recent stay with the Khmer Rouge guerrillas in Kampuchea. In part I he describes his visit to Phum Thmei, the Khmer Rouge's "temporary capital," and to the hospital there where he saw "three victims of the merciless chemical war being waged by the Vietnamese in violation of international conventions, who told of the effects of an enemy raid in the Pailin region 26 and 27 February. During that attack, followed by several others in the past few weeks, 183 Khmer Rouge were seriously injured, and 3 died. 'The aircraft flew over us. They poured out a cloud of yellow rain. A minute later we began to feel our eyes and noses burning and had a feeling of suffocation. People suffered internal hemorrhaging and their urine was mixed with blood.'" Morillon goes one to say that in Sivouth, a Khmer Rouge official from the Foreign Ministry, showed him "a gas mask recently captured from a Vietnamese unit. The Soviet star decorated the air filter. Indeed the Vietnamese have good reason to take precautions before entering zones cleared of all human life by their gas, or to protect themselves against head winds blowing back toxic fumes." Morillon concludes the first part of his article by discussing reports of desertions from and low moral in the Vietnamese Army.

In part II Morillon reports on a conversation he had with Khmer Rouge Social Action Minister Ieng Thirith, wife of Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary, who admitted to him: "Yes, we made mistakes. We wanted to move too quickly to become stronger because we knew the Vietnamese intended to engulf us. We believed the whole world was against us and we became too isolated. But how can people imagine that we filled the skeleton-filled graveyards displayed by the Vietnamese 6 months after their invasion. It is they who want to exterminate the Khmer people." Ieng Thirith reportedly said: "We have changed completely. The West thinks: 'They are born communists. How can they change?' And yet people must believe us. We are sincere. Nothing remains of the communist system among us. The party has been dissolved and its principles abandoned. We have restored religious beliefs, private property and individual freedoms.... We must not be called Khmer Rouge. That is very pejorative. We are Democratic Kampuchea's fighters." Ieng Thirith claimed in conclusion: "The Americans now realize that we want to stop Soviet expansionism in Asia and they have given us the assurance that we could keep our UN seat in 1982."

PRESS REACTION TO U.S. BASE REACTIVATION

BK231010 [Editorial Report] Two Thai-language dailies -- MATUPHUM and MATICHON -- on 22 April carry editorials commenting on the possibility of the United States' being allowed to reactivate its former military bases in Thailand and the Thai Government's attitude toward this matter.

MATUPHUM's editorial, "We Have Our Own Armed Forces," quotes U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean as saying in Honolulu recently that the United States is interested in reopening its former military bases in Thailand for use in Southeast Asia -- although not against Kampuchea -- and cites reaction from the Thai Foreign Ministry when the ministry's spokesman, Chet Sucharitkun, said that "Thailand has no policy of allowing any foreign troops to be stationed in its territory."

The paper says: "We resolutely support the foreign ministry spokesman's statement, although the United States has not yet brought this matter up officially. We believe that our policy of no foreign military bases in our country should be strictly implemented regardless of pressure from any side." The editorial concludes by saying: "No independent and fully sovereign state has ever allowed foreign troops or military bases to be in its territory for any purpose."

MATICHON's editorial, "The U.S. Military Bases; A Test of Our Reaction?", notes: "It has been learned with pleasure that the Thai side -- officials of the Foreign Ministry and the army commander -- has denied the report on the reopening of former U.S. military bases in Thailand, which has been periodically mentioned during outbreaks of crises in various regions of the world." The paper reveals that the AP report on the U.S. ambassador's statement had been denied by the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok as inaccurate.

The paper hails the Thai Government for its prompt reaction in connection with the AP report and says: "The most appropriate course of action for Thailand is to continue its policy of not allowing any foreign military bases to be in its territory because the presence of foreign military bases can create suspicion between Thailand and other countries in Southeast Asia. Meanwhile, AP should clarify the matter by saying whether the U.S. Ambassador had made such a statement or not, or whether it was just a mistake by its correspondent."

ARMY ANTICOMMUNIST DRIVE RESULTS REPORTED

[Text] Suppression drives staged by the Third Army region against communist insurgents in the north during the past 4 months have produced satisfactory results, according to the Supreme Command.

About 1,500 and 800 communist insurgents from Chiang Rai and Phayao Provinces, respectively, surrendered to authorities and a large amount of arms and ammunition have been seized, the supreme Command said.

During the 4-month effort to suppress communists in five areas in the north, 16 insurgents were killed, 31 wounded, 22 arrested and 1,837 insurgents surrendered. Among the large amount of weapons seized were assorted arms, ammunition, and war equipment, plus a large quantity of medicine and food supplies, a radio station and communist documents.

Of the five communist-infested areas, the supreme command disclosed that the army was most successful in the area of Chiang Rai and Phayao Provinces. The communists' camps at Doi Yao and Doi Phamon in Chiang Khong and Thoeng districts in Chiang Rai were destroyed. The Supreme Command also added that the communist base at Doi Phachi was later destroyed and occupied by troops of the Third Army region.

The suppression drive against the insurgents in the other four communist-infested areas also met with some success where there were sporadic clashes between the army and the insurgents. In addition, the Third Army region with the cooperation of other government officials, waged many political campaigns among the local villages to counter communist infiltration and influence in the area. According to the Supreme Command, 236 villages around the area have been instructed and trained in the local self-defence volunteer programme.

The Third Army region has also participated in the local development for promoting security projects. The supreme command pointed out that at present there are six such development projects of which five have been 65 percent completed. The project involving Ban Bo Khiao in Nan Province was under a research study, the Supreme Command said.

ARMY OFFICIAL: SRV GAS MASKS CONFIRM CBW REPORTS

[Press statement given by Director of the Supreme Command Information Office Lt Gen Som Khattaphan on 22 April -- recorded]

[Text] Our policy is an impartial one. Our country is open for the UN and other charity organizations to carry out humanitarian operations along the border. If we used them [toxins], it would be known to all those people. Our border areas are accessible to foreign and local journalists who have made frequent visits to these areas.

Previously we had no knowledge of Vietnam's having gas masks, but as a result of the 2-3 April incident in which Vietnamese forces intruded into Ban Khao Din in Khao Saraphi area, our forces successfully repulsed foreigners and captured gas masks left by them. The 9th Army Division has already made a statement about them, and I myself planned to get those masks to demonstrate them to you. Anyway, the fact that they are using gas masks confirmed the reports by the United States and the evidence sent to Australia by Lao resistance forces that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side is waging chemical warfare. Previous reports, however, stressed the use of poisons against the Mong people in Laos. Since we have now found gas masks being used in the Phnum Malai area, I assume that the gas masks are for their own protection against chemicals being used in mopping-up operations against their enemy. If they wage chemical warfare, they must have gas masks. Otherwise they will be victims of their own weapons.

CZECHOSLOVAK DEFENSE MINISTER DZUR ARRIVES

OW221612 Hanoi VNA in English 1553 GMT 22 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 22 -- A high-ranking military delegation of the Czechoslovak Socialist Republic led by General Engineer Martin Dzur, member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia and minister of national defence, arrived here today on an official friendship visit at the invitation of the Vietnamese Ministry of National Defence.

At 12:30 hrs the motorcade carrying the delegation from the Hanoi International Airport to the town drove up in front of the Defence Ministry guest house. As they got out of the cars, the Czechoslovak guests were warmly embraced by General Van Tien Dung, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam and minister of defence, General Chu Huy Man, member of the Political Bureau and head of the General Political Department of the Vietnam People's Army and Senior Lieutenant-General Le Trong Tan, chief of the General Staff of the V.P.A. After reviewing the guard of honour, General Martin Dzur was presented with a bouquet by a woman soldier.

General Van Tien Dung introduced the welcoming high-ranking officers to the Czechoslovak delegate, who warmly shook hands with them and returned greetings to the other well-wishers. Among those welcoming the delegation were also Deputy Foreign Minister Ha Van Lau, Dang Duc Loc, vice chairman of the Hanoi People's Committee, Czechoslovak Ambassador Bohuslav Handl, Colonel Pravomil Resch, military attache, and other officials of the Czechoslovak embassy.

Soon after its arrival, the delegation was cordially received by General Van Tien Dung, General Chu Huy Man, Senior Lieutenant General Le Trong Tan and other senior officers of the Defence Ministry, and representatives of the Foreign Ministry and the Hanoi People's Committee.

The Defence Ministry gave a reception here this evening in honour of the delegation. Speaking on this occasion General Van Tien Dung hailed the big achievements recorded by the Czechoslovak people in socialist construction and the important role played by the Czechoslovak People's Army. He expressed gratitude for the strong support and wholehearted assistance given by the party, government, people and army of Czechoslovakia to the Vietnamese people's revolutionary cause in the past and at present.

The delegation's current visit to Vietnam will strengthen further the time-honoured friendship between the peoples and armed forces of Vietnam and Czechoslovakia which were fostered by the late Presidents Ho Chi Minh and Klement Gottwald, he said.

In reply General Martin Dzur said: "Although our two countries are far from each other geographically, Czechoslovakia is deeply aware of Vietnam's history of struggle for national liberation, independence and freedom. We express our admiration and love for the entire Vietnamese people". The general wished the Vietnamese armed forces still greater successes in socialist construction and national defence, as well as in the implementation of the resolutions adopted at the recent Fifth Congress of the C.P.V.

On the same day the military delegation visited the army museum.

PARTY HISTORY REVIEWED ON EVE OF LPRP CONGRESS

[Text] To greet the forthcoming Third National LPRP Congress, VNA recently carried a commentary entitled: "The LPRP, Political Party of the Working Class."

The commentary says: The Indochinese Communist Party at its second congress in February 1951 decided to split itself into three parties, one for each Indochinese country. Five years later, on 22 March 1955, a group of official representatives -- representing members of the Lao Communist Party who were performing their tasks or fighting in various battlefields in areas from the northern to the southern parts of Laos -- held a congress to establish the LPRP.

After reviewing the glorious revolutionary struggle stages of the LPRP to triumphantly fulfill the resolutions of its first and second congresses, the commentary adds: Under the LPRP's clear-sighted and capable leadership, the Lao people have scored great achievements in their nationalist revolution by defeating the U.S. imperialist aggressors, overthrowing the reactionary regime and establishing the Lao People's Democratic Republic.

Since liberation the LPRP has led the Lao people through numerous difficult stages to great and comprehensive victories in socialist transformation, economic building and cultural development. The Lao people have foiled all of the acts of sabotage and armed provocations by the Beijing reactionaries and expansionists and other reactionary forces, thereby defending Lao independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Embarking on the new stage of national building and defense, the LPRP has decided to hold its third national congress.

PHAM HUNG REPORT AT FIFTH VCP CONGRESS

BK211700 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 30 Mar 82 pp 7, 8

[Report presented by VCP Political Bureau member and SRV Interior Minister Pham Hung, representative of the Ho Chi Minh City party organization, at the Fifth VCP Congress on 28 March in Hanoi]

[Text] The party Central Committee has presented before the congress reports having a deep Marxist-Leninist character that comprehensively review our people's efforts to build socialism and defend the fatherland since the fourth party congress, clearly analyze the characteristics of the present stage, draw accurate conclusions and set forth strategic revolutionary tasks, and define the major policies and measures in the socioeconomic, national defense, security and party-building fields. I agree totally with these reports.

In these glorious moments of this party congress, we call to our minds with deep gratitude venerated and beloved President Ho Chi Minh who painstakingly built, trained and forged our party, our people of various nationalities, our army, our security forces and the various economic, cultural and social sectors, instilling in them the spirit of unity and revolutionary offensive for the independence and freedom of the fatherland. Great President Ho Chi Minh lives forever in our cause!

The past 5 years have been a period in which our people -- under the clear-sighted leadership of the party Central Committee headed by respected and beloved Comrade Le Duan -- recorded very glorious success and created great capabilities in the cause of advancing the entire country to socialism and defending firmly the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Based on a scientific analysis of the domestic and international situation, the party Central Committee has asserted in its political report: "Our country is now in a situation wherein it enjoys peace while having to face a kind of multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists acting hand in hand with the U.S. imperialists, and at the same time, to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression initiated by the enemy."

This situation requires that our entire party, army and people vigorously build the country to make it stable and strong in the economic, national defense and security fields; improve the people's material and cultural life; and at the same time, uphold vigilance with the determination to defeat the kind of multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, and stand ready to fight victoriously if the enemy recklessly starts a large-scale war of aggression.

After going through various stages of revolutionary struggle under the correct leadership of the party Central Committee, the Vietnamese nation has gained complete independence and freedom and the Vietnamese fatherland has been totally reunified. The people throughout our country are now embarking on a broad struggle for socialist transformation and socialist construction in order to triumph over poverty and backwardness and advance step by step, alongside the vanguard nations of the world, on the path of the socialist revolution. Our revolutionary cause, however, is being carried on amid many very complex developments in the world situation.

The struggle between revolutionary and counterrevolutionary forces on a worldwide scale has continued in a very fierce and intense manner. The three revolutionary currents have unceasingly grown bigger and stronger and are now on the offensive. The socialist system -- with the Soviet Union as its pillar -- has been constantly consolidated and developed; it is generating a decisive impact on the developmental trend of the epoch and serves as an impregnable fortress and a reliable support for various nations in their revolutionary struggle. In spite of the very complex developments of the situation and the extreme tension and unrest in many regions, the socialist community and the revolutionary forces in the world are vigorously developing their capability for defending and preserving peace. Imperialism, which is growing ever weaker and being caught ever deeper in an ever-worsening general crisis, has been driven back from one position to another. In this predicament, imperialism -- headed by U.S. imperialism -- is intensively colluding with the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists and international reactionary forces to launch frenzied counterattacks against the revolutionary movement, chiefly against the Soviet Union and other countries of the socialist community. In Southeast Asia, the enemies are directing the spearhead at Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea; and the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists are the direct and dangerous enemy of the Vietnamese revolution. They hold that an independent, unified, prosperous and powerful socialist Vietnam with a genuine Marxist-Leninist line is a great danger and obstacle to their expansionist and hegemonist schemes against Southeast Asia.

Following their defeats in the wars of aggression on our country's southwestern and northern borders, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists have further intensified their collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces. On the one hand, they have continued to dispatch troops close to our country's northern border and start armed conflicts in many areas in an attempt to nibble at our lands, maintain constant tension along the border and create the dangerous possibility of a war of aggression conducted on different scales. On the other hand, they have tried persistently to undermine our people's efforts to build socialism by intensively conducting sabotage activities against our country in many fields, from many directions, in many forms and with many extremely perfidious and cunning maneuvers, in a bid to upset our country's political, economic and social situation, weaken us, incite rebellions and invade our country when the opportunity presents itself.

They have stepped up the sending of spies, scouts and commandos across the border or from the sea into our country to gather intelligence, infiltrate and sabotage our ranks from within, establish contact with and rally reactionary forces at home, organize sabotage activities and plot rebellious and subversive schemes.

They have frenziedly escalated the psychological war with the aim of destroying our people's morale, ideology, confidence and spirit of revolutionary struggle, undermining the great national unity bloc and distorting and criticizing party and state viewpoints and policies. Through these means they hope to paralyze our revolutionary spirit and spread a feeling of dissatisfaction among our people in an attempt to create a volatile poltiical situation.

They have striven to distort and falsify the truth; exaggerate the difficulties facing our economy and life; and at the same time, engineer cases involving the destruction of machinery, arson and losses in production and organize smuggling, speculative, hoarding and money and market-manipulating activities in a bid to aggravate further the difficulties facing our people's economy and life and obstruct our efforts to build and develop the national economy.

The enemy has, through the use of different maneuvers, introduced into our country various types of reactionary and decadent cultural works and promoted a debauched lifestyle, especially among the youths and teenagers, in a plot to create a group of selfish and lazy people given to hedonism.

They have also enticed people to flee abroad or have used them, through coercion or persuasion, as its henchmen to oppose the Vietnamese revolution. It has also sought by every means to take advantage of and encourage diehard hooligans, professional thugs and other social dregs -- vestiges of the exploitative ownership system of old and new colonialism -- in an attempt to sabotage the economy and undermine social order.

The negative aspects and weaknesses in economic and social activities, coupled with the existence of a number of degraded, decadent and arrogant elements who abuse authority and engage in under-the-counter dealings or theft and bribery in state organs in different forms and on different scales, are all aiding the enemy in undermining our people's independent, free, plentiful and happy life.

In the international arena, the enemy is trying every means possible to isolate our country from the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea, other members of the socialist community and other countries in the world.

All of this shows that the enemy is very perfidious and it will not spare any maneuver, any form or any chance to counter the revolution in Vietnam, as well as in Laos and Kampuchea, in an attempt to realize its expansionist and hegemonist dream in Southeast Asia. This perfidious scheme is part of its counterrevolutionary global strategy against socialism, national independence and world peace.

Therefore, defeating the kind of multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces is an extremely important task of the socialist revolution in our country. It is also as extremely pressing political task of our entire party, people and army in the new stage of the revolution.

Only by frustrating the enemy's multisided war of sabotage will be be able to create stable conditions for carrying out economic development; building the material and technical bases of socialism; accelerating production; stabilizing and gradually improving the people's livelihood; and strengthening our potential in terms of our economy, national defense and security. Moreover, to frustrate the enemy's multisided war of sabotage means to take the initiative in preventing and repelling their attempt to wage another war of aggression while actively maintaining a high degree of combat readiness to cope with the situation in which the enemy could recklessly launch a large-scale war of aggression.

From this conception, we can see clearly that it is necessary to achieve close coordination between economic development and the consolidation of national defense and security, and that it is also necessary to closely combine the consolidation of national defense with the effort to safeguard political security and maintain social order and safety. Through this process, we can understand even more profoundly the close relationship between the two strategic tasks -- to build socialism successfully and to stand ready for combat to defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland firmly.

The struggle to frustrate the multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists is an extremely difficult, complex, decisive and protracted revolutionary struggle.

If we want to be victorious in this struggle, it is necessary for our entire party, people and army to carry out our work in all fields intensively, comprehensively and simultaneously while expanding the responsibility of all echelons and sectors from the central to the grassroots levels under the unified and centralized leadership of various party committee echelons.

Efforts must be made to ensure that our cadres, party members and people -- especially our key and leading cadres in all sectors, localities and establishments -- maintain vigilance against our direct and dangerous enemy without the least amount of vagueness or neglect and understand their sinister and perfidious schemes and acts clearly.

This is aimed at enhancing their socialist patriotism and instilling in them a profound hatred for the enemy, with political sensitivity and a strong reaction so they can promptly prevent and smash all sabotage tricks by the enemy.

It is necessary to develop and protect the structure of the party organizations and administration at all levels as well as that of the mass organizations in such a way as to make them truly pure and firm and enable them to maintain solidarity and achieve unanimity of views on the basis of the party and state lines and policies; step up indoctrination activities in order to improve the revolutionary quality of the cadres, party members and youth union and women's union members, with special attention given to educationg and fostering youths and teenagers; and resolutely overcome all manifestations indicating a decline in our political quality while carrying out the struggle against all manifestations of negativism among all organs, enterprises and mass organizations and in society along with the struggle against the enemy's sabotage activities.

Efforts must be made to strengthen the socialist legal system, ensure the people's right to collective mastery, and conduct social management in accordance with the laws provided for both political and economic affairs so as to be able to struggle against all counterrevolutionary activities and other crimes effectively, thus safeguarding the party, administration and socialist property as well as protecting the lives, property and legitimate rights of the people. It is necessary to conduct regular disseminations and explanations on the socialist legal system among the people of all strata so as to make it possible for every citizen to abide by the law voluntarily and to struggle for the preservation of this legal system. We should learn to grasp V.I. Lenin's teaching that "whenever the law is slightly violated and whenever social order in the Soviet Union is slightly disrupted, there is always a gap from which opponents of the working people will profit." In view of this, efforts must be made to consolidate and strengthen all organs of control -- tribunal, justice and inspection -- while establishing a close relationship and coordination among the people's control, people's court, justice, inspection, and people's security sectors.

Led by the party and managed by the administration, we must establish and develop the laboring people's collective mastery in various economic establishments, enterprises, cooperatives and production collectives. We must link the formulation of production plans with the protection of production. We must develop the strength of the political, economic, cultural and social sectors and of the mass organizations of various levels. With the People's Security Forces and the People's Armed Forces serving as a foundation, we must develop the combined strength of strategies in national defense and people's security in all areas throughout the country -- from the frontiers to jungles, mountains, and coastal, rural and urban areas. We must promptly detect and suppress espionage and reactionary organizations; prevent enemy agents from infiltrating into our ranks; stop the people from fleeing abroad; do away with reactionary and decadent culture; track down aggressive rascals and hooligans and professional profiteers and smugglers; eliminate other social vices; maintain internal security; oppose negativism; safeguard socialist property and the people's lives; and thwart all of the enemy's counterrevolutionary moves. This is a comprehensive revolutionary struggle which is complex and full of difficulties and which requires that we must prepare specific plans for each particular task in the political, economic and social security fields. Such plans must be studied and implemented by various echelons down to the grassroots level. Led by various party committee echelons, we must create for ourselves an invincible strength to frustrate all of the enemy's sabotage and aggressive schemes, firmly protect independence, freedom and happiness for the people, and ensure the successful implementation of all socialist revolutionary tasks laid down by the fifth party congress.

In order to constantly improve political and ideological knowledge and organizational qualities, we must continue to struggle to carry out successfully the movement to "develop the fine character and improve the fighting strength of the people's Armed Forces" in the People's Army along with the movement to "build a clean and steadfast People's Security Force and step up the mass movement to safeguard the fatherland's security in the new situation" in the People's Security Force. We must constantly develop the tradition of militant solidarity between these two essential forces of the proletarian dictatorship.

We highly praise the great contributions to the struggle to build socialism, maintain political security and social order and safety and defend the fatherland made by the mass movement for the defense of the fatherland's security, by various people's security organizations, by self-defense militia forces, and by the many semiprofessional security guard units in the border and coastal areas, on offshore islands, in the rural and urban areas and in various public organs, enterprises and cooperatives.

We highly acclaim the many successes of various movements -- such as the "three-volunteers movement for collective mastery" among youths, the "new women's movement for national construction and defense" among women, the movement to "emulate in productive labor and in the practice of thrift" among office and manual workers and others -- initiated by various sectors and localities. These movements have, in the past, greatly contributed to the cause of socialist construction and national defense as well as to the struggle against the enemy's multisided war of sabotage, and will certainly be able to score still greater successes in the coming period as anticipated in the political report presented at the fifth party congress.

We must step up building the party, the administration, and various mass organizations (trade unions, youth unions and women's associations) so that they can become clean and steadfast. We must enhance socialist legislation, develop the laboring people's collective mastery, and launch an emulation movement to implement the Third 5-Year 1981-85 State Plan and especially the 1982 State Plan. By so doing, we will certainly be able to overcome all difficulties and score new successes in developing production, stabilizing and gradually improving the people's livelihood, strengthening national defense and security, and defending the fatherland.

We must evaluate the situation, recognize the enemy and determine orientations and tasks for advancement in accordance with the resolutions of the congress. Every patriotic and socialism-loving Vietnamese must translate his feelings into concrete revolutionary actions. We must vigorously develop those new positive factors which have already emerged, along with efforts to improve organizational measures and incite an attitude of working more closely to the grassroots level. By changing the economic management mechanism to suit the practical situation, we will certainly be able to overcome all difficulties and score new successes in socialist transformation and construction in our country; and to defeat the enemy's multisided war of sabotage.

With a profound confidence and a determination to struggle persistently to implement the resolutions of the fifth national party congress in a successful manner, I wish all comrade delegates to the congress and all distinguished guests good health and still greater successes.

All for the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness! Long live the glorious Vietnamese Communist Party! Great President Ho Chi Minh lives forever in our cause!

LE VAN LUONG REPORT AT FIFTH VCP CONGRESS

BK210500 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 29 Mar 82, p 2

[Report by Le Van Luong, head of Hanoi Municipality party organization delegation to the Fifth VCP Congress]

[Text] Following the fourth nationwide party congress, in an atmosphere of seething emulation among the people who were struggling to implement the congress resolutions, the working class, the collectivized peasants, the socialist intellectuals and the laboring people of all strata in the capital stirred up a movement to emulate in production and thrift, a labor movement to build the capital and a movement to build a civilized lifestyle and new cultural families. In light of the lines of socialist revolution and economic construction mapped out by the congress in the party Central Committee resolutions, we have scored achievements in several fields to develop the capital.

The party organization and people in the capital have struggled to overcome difficulties and develop industrial and handicrafts production. Consumer and export goods industries have developed well, strengthening the production force. Many central and local state-run factories and many handicraft and artisan industry cooperatives and production units have expanded. Such advanced models as the tool and equipment factory No 1, the Thong Nhat electromechanical plant and the Dong Da carpet weaving cooperative have appeared. Their valuable experiences lie in the fact that they know how to develop socialist collective mastery and creative dynamism by continuously accelerating the movement to promote initiative in improving technical work, increasing the quality of products and manufacturing new items. They have improved management, increased exports so as to be able to import more raw materials and correctly combined the three interests, thus promoting the workers' productive zeal.

Many efforts have been made in agriculture: The food belt and some areas for industrial crops are being formed, while the volume of vegetable, meat, fish and eggs supplied to the urban people has increased. Handicrafts in some districts have developed well, accounting for 50 percent of the agroindustrial output value. The productive labor movement in agriculture has developed vividly since the party Secretariat directive on contracts for finished products with groups of workers an individual workers was implemented.

The cooperatives of Yen So (Thanh Tri), Song Phuong (Dan Phuong), Yen So (Hoai Duc) and Duong Lam (Ba Vi) are good production and management units.

The new Hanoi economic zone in Lam Dong Province has been established and production has begun to stabilize gradually and improve the people's livelihood.

The plan for improving and developing the capital has been approved by the political bureau and government. This is a project of great importance and a project of friendship and cooperation which has received valuable Soviet assistance. At a time when the country is still rife with difficulties, the state is constantly paying attention to making investment in housing construction in the capital. Hundreds of thousands of families of cadres, workers, civil servants and the laboring people have moved into new houses. The supply of water to production and peoples' homes has also increased, while electricity supply has begun to improve. Some important communications and transportation projects such as the Thang Long and Duong bridges, the Red River port and the Noi Bai airport have been and are being built.

The scientific and technical cadres together with workers and various primary installations have conducted many research projects and have adopted several innovations with important effects on the development of the national economy.

The cultural, educational, health, sports and physical training activities in the capital have developed. There have been many valuable literary and artistic works. All people have received first level education. Half the children of school age attend kindergartens and nurseries, twice the figure recorded in 1975. The material bases of education have been strengthened, with some universities, general schools, nurseries, kindergartens and cultural halls being built.

Apart from the progress and achievements recorded, we should frankly point out shortcomings, primarily in our party organization. We have not concentrated on the transformation and development of the capital. Production has developed slowly; labor productivity remains low; economic results and quality are poor; and the industrial production capacity and the potentials -- in terms of scientific and technical abilities, manpower and land -- have not been used optimally. Our leadership has not been keen enough. The administration of subsidization still prevails in the management system. The struggle between the two paths is weak. Negative phenomena in economic and social life still prevail. Proper emphasis has not been placed on the ideological education of the people, especially youths and teenagers.

Implementing the resolution of the party Central Committee's fourth plenum, the party organization and the people of the municipality have become fully aware of their new enemies and have quickly shifted their efforts toward carrying out the two strategic tasks, namely, building the capital while remaining combat ready. The armed forces and people in the capital have enthusiastically participated in the movement to develop national defense and maintain security. They have urgently carried out activities concerning combat preparedness and the construction of combat fortifications. They have satisfactorily conducted many troop recruitment drives and have participated in many combat and combat support activities. The armed forces in the capital have developed both quantitatively and qualitatively.

Remaining vigilant against the mutifaceted sabotage schemes and actions of the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists, the U.S. imperialists and other types of reactionaries, Hanoi has been active in the struggle against the enemy's psychological and espionage warfare, determined to suppress the counterrevolutionaries, foil the enemy's sabotage and trouble-making schemes and struggle to maintain public order and security.

Party congresses of various echelons from the grassroots to the municipal levels have discussed with great zeal various reports to be presented by the party Central Committee at the fifth national congress of party delegates. They have unanimously agreed on parts dealing with the appraisal of the situation as well as with the analysis of strong points and shortcomings shown in the past. The capital party organization has unanimously noted the correctness of the socialist revolutionary line and the economic construction line laid down by the fourth party congress. We, the delegation of the Hanoi party organization, totally endorse the party Central Committee's political report presented by esteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, a report on the orientations, tasks and main targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-85 5-Year Period and for the 1980's, and the party Central Committee's report on party building.

In order to express their determination to endorse various resolutions of this party congress, the people in the capital have launched an emulation movement for productive labor among various sectors such as the industrial, agricultural, communications and transportation, circulation and distribution sectors and so forth in order to greet the congress. At 340 grassroots-level units, there have been 1,480 projects, both minor and major, named "Congress-Greeting Projects" with 136 products of good economic and technical value being turned out so far. We are very pleased to report to the congress that Soviet experts now serving in Vietnam have also actively participated in this emulation movement in order to express their feelings for us.

With its indomitable revolutionary tradition, Hanoi has always been a historic and revolutionary capital of the entire country. We are very pleased to note that the congress has raised the problem of stepping up efforts to renovate and build the capital -- the country's cultural and political center -- into an economic, scientific, technical and international trade center, and that it has assigned Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City -- the country's two major industrial centers -- with the task of turning out large quantities of consumer and export goods and other high-quality technical goods in order to meet the requirements of the country. Hanoi must be renovated and built into a modern capital with traditional character in order to deserve the pride in which it is held by our country and people as required in a resolution of the party Central Committee Political Bureau.

As already pointed out in the political report, the responsibility for building the capital rests not only with the party organization and the people in the capital but also with the entire country, the center and various ministries, which, in this capacity, can ask for contributions from various localities. The party organization and people in the capital will strive to develop its great potential in all respects in order to carry out this important task.

At present, we are continuing to revise a number of targets for our 1982 plan and are urgently devising orientations and tasks in the economic and social fields and establishing a number of major targets for the 1981-85 5-Year Plan in a bid to achieve the four economic and social targets as outlined in the party Central Committee's political report.

We know that we will face many difficulties in moving from the formulation of guidelines, tasks and objectives to the actual implementation of these objectives. We must formulate specific guidelines, policies and measures to create the necessary material conditions. We think the essential thing is to fully implement what the general secretary has told us several times: to extend more independence in production, business and finance to primary production units, correctly implement the guidelines for the three interests including the assignment of product contracts to groups of workers and individual workers in agriculture, improve the planning task and further intensify the relations between industry and agriculture within the municipality and between the muncipality and the various sectors, ministries and provinces, and the relations between imports and exports and the manufacture of goods ordered by foreign countries. Our party and state must struggle to look after the livelihood of cadres, workers and people in the capital; ensure the steady supply of rationed grain and food products; meet the demands for clothing materials, writing paper and medicines; actively repair houses and build new ones; increase the sources of water and electricity supply; resolve the transportation problem; care for and educate children; organize the people's cultural life; build a new lifestyle; strengthen national defense; and assure political security and social order and security.

In the economic and cultural construction of the capital, we will pay attention to strengthening the material and technical bases in depth, make full use of all potential and existing installations, while continuing to build and complete major projects. We will strive to basically resolve the unemployment problem by developing handicrafts and artisan industry production combining agriculture with forestry. We will apply family planning through positive measures in order to reduce the population increase in the capital. There must be in all sectors and primary installations a technical improvement movement and a plan to apply scientific and technical innovations. All sectors and primary installations must improve management regularly, consolidate and perfect socialist production relations, strictly economize on energy and raw materials, and intensify the struggle between the two paths by controlling the market, opposing speculation and smuggling, and overcoming all negative phenomena.

In all fields of activities, we must thoroughly understand and implement the motto: "The state and people work together" and "The center and local government work together."

The party Central Committee report has clearly indicated that it is absolutely essential to intensify the ideological and organizational tasks in order to ensure the successful impelementation of the set tasks.

It is imperative to intensify the ideological task to make all party members, people and primary installations thoroughly understand the resolutions and viewpoints of the congress. We must overcome the phenomenon of declining militancy and the attitude of dependence, refusing to develop all the potentials of localities and primary installations. We must overcome the bureaucratic method of nonaccounting management, which conflicts with the concept of planning in combination with the system of socialist business and economic accountability.

We must establish specifically the mechanism of party leadership, state management and the people's mastery by actually implementing the laboring people's collective mastery; strengthening the leadership and militancy of the party organizations and the effectiveness of the administrations at all levels from the municipal to grassroots levels, and quickly perfect the organization and classification of precinct, district, city ward and village authorities.

The key point in the organizational task is still the party development and cadre training task. As a party organization of 150,000 members in 1,824 party bases, we must strive to consolidate the grassroots-level organizations, enhance the quality of party members, perfect the party committee echelons and train cadres. Party organizations must truly be the advisory and leading staff of the people. They must be perserveringly militant, sensitive to the problems arising from life, sufficiently knowledgeable to materialize party guidelines and policies and capable of organizing the implementation of party and state resolutions and not simply issuing resolutions and prescribing objectives. Consequently, the party members must have a sense of sacrifice and devotion. They must struggle bravely and study consistently to raise the standard of their economic and social management knowledge. We must continue to eliminate from the party ranks all those speculative, profit-seeking and demoralized members who lack a sense of organization and discipline and do not pay enough attention to the people's interests. At the same time, we must recruit qualified people into the party, paying attention to recruiting qualified workers and youth union members in order to make the capital party organization truly healthy, firm and worthy of the traditions of a stalwart and indomitable capital where the first party chapter was established. This party chapter has been trusted, loved and educated throughout the revolutionary struggle by Uncle Ho, Comrade Le Duan and other party leaders. It has been the cause for hope and confidence for the people throughout the country. The capital party organization resolved to lead the emulation movement and create a vigorous change in all fields of activities in order to victoriously implement the fifth party congress resolutions. This is a sacred duty which the capital party organization must strenuously and necsssarity struggle to filfill.

May the congress succeed!

I wish all the delegates and distinguished international guests good health!

ELECTION RETURNS SHOW NATIONAL FRONT SUCCESS

BK230648 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0600 GMT 23 Apr 82

[Text] The Barisan Nasional [National Front] has gained control in Parliament as well as in all the state assemblies in Malaysia. Even without the results from Sabah and Sarawak, the Barisan has already exceeded the two-thirds majority in the 154-seat Dewan Rakyat [parliament].

The Barisan won a total of 110 seats as of now. This morning the Barisan Nasional won 109 parliamentary seats, including those uncontested seats in Sabah and Sarawak.

The Democratic Action Party, DAP, won six parliamentary seats, one in Melaka, one in Penang and three in the federal territory. The pan-Malaysan Islamic Party [PAS] won four seats in Kelantan and one in Kedah state.

In the state assemblies, Barisan Nasional won all the seats in Johor state. The results from four parliamentary seats in peninsular Malaysia -- Ipoh, Ulu Kelantan, Padang Terap and Bagan Datok -- are yet to be received.

Another 32 returns, 18 from Sarawak and 14 from Sabah, will only be known on Monday [26 April].

The prime minister, Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed, thanked the people for placing their trust in the Barisan Nasional to continue to hold the reign of government. In a special interview over radio and television Malaysia this morning, he hoped that all misunderstandings and harsh words during the election campaign could be forgotten, so that all Malaysians could cooperate to build up the country.

To a question, Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said the aim of forming a clean, efficient and trustworthy government had always been the objective, but this could not be brought about overnight. It would take time. The Barisan Nasional must take steps, so that it would be accepted not only as an image to be exhibited to the people but also as a practice of the entire government to be formed.

On the formation of the new Cabinet, he said there would be changes as some ministers did not contest in the election.

The deputy prime minister, Datuk Musa Hitam, who was also present, described the Barisan Nasional's victory as being due to the efficiency of the front's machinery in conveying to the people its aspiration to form a clean, efficient and trustworthy government. Another factor which ensured success for the front he thought was the people's awareness for development. Datuk Musa said the people were no longer attracted to the issues solely based on racial and religious matters.

A notable feature of the result has been the defeat of Pas leader, Datuk Mohamed Asri, and DAP Chairman Dr Chen Man Hin at parliamentary level, and Mr Lim Kit Siang, the DAP secretary general, for a state in Melaka.

The results also reflected the considerable inroads made by Barisan Nasional candidates into opposition strongholds, particularly DAP territory.

[Text] Leaders of the 12 opposition parties formed themselves into a grand coalition yesterday and elected Assemblyman Salvador Laurel as interim president. Former Senator Eva Estrada Kalaw was elected interim vice president. The other elected officials were former Senator Benigno Aquino as commissioner for external operations, and former Senator Raul Manglapus as commissioner for external affairs. These three are presently facing rebellion and subversion charges, with Aquino and Manglapus at large in the United States.

Meanwhile, the Liberal Party leadership will meet today to elect a new president who will replace former Senator Gerardo Roxas, who died in New York early this week.

MARCOS ORDERS CUTS IN GOVERNMENT EXPENSES

HK220043 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Excerpts] All government expenses will have to be cut down by 12 percent to reduce government deficits. President Marcos took the drastic move in the face of a slumping world economy. One effect of the move is an immediate stop in all lump-sum outlays. The president stressed however that the cut down will not affect the economic goals and development programs, because the cut down will center on non-income-producing expenses which are not urgent. Overall the 12 percent reduction of government expenses will bring down this year's deficit in half, from 10 to 5 billion pesos. The president said the move is drastic, but it has to be done even though most of this year's 59.7 billion pesos has already been committed.

Immediately after ordering the cut back, the president issued a memorandum detailing its implementation. Correspondent (Bert Asuke) reports on the immediate effects of the cut back order:

[Begin recording] The president circulated a memorandum to the prime minister and all Cabinet members elaborating the measures to be strictly followed to achieve a budgetary savings this year of not less than 5.1 billion pesos. These include control of unnecessary expenses for government personnel, efficient implementation of the ongoing reorganization and rationalization of regional operations of agencies, to control the growth of operating expenses and of low-priority capital projects, and it means that plans to construct costly regional office buildings will have to be deferred. The president also directed the continued rationalization of foreign-assisted projects, since these require mandatory [word indistinct] funding, resulting in additional deficits, and a review of the operations of government corporations to eliminate duplication of functions.

In his memo, the chief executive also ordered that a mechanism be adopted to prevent costly delays in the implementation of public-built projects. At the same time, he noted that requests for readjustment and escalation of contract [word indistinct] have been submitted to [word indistinct]. This practice cannot continue, the president declared.

In ordering these cost-cutting measures, Mr Marcos directed all ministries to restucture their expenditures and implement savings [words indistinct] [end recording]

SUZUKI, BUSH HOLD WIDE-RANGING TALKS IN TOKYO

OW240641 Tokyo KYODO in English 0554 GMT 24 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 24, KYODO -- Visiting U.S. Vice President George Bush Saturday said that the U.S. administration attaches importance to promote amicable relations with China. He made the statement in talks with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, Japanese officials said.

Bush told Suzuki that the United States has no intention to provide Taiwan with sophisticated warplanes and to accept the existence of two Chinas, they said. Bush made the remark when Suzuki expressed Japan's concern about the strained Sino-American relations triggered by Washington's decision to sell dollar 60 million worth arms spare parts to Taiwan. Suzuki said Japan hopes [for] a stable relationship between the United States and China, which was essential for the stability in Asia, the officials said. The prime minister added that he would convey the U.S. position to Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang when he comes to Japan in late May.

The talks between Bush and Suzuki, which covered wide ranged topics of bilateral and international problems, lasted about 80 minutes. Also at the meeting were Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi and Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa, as well as the vice president's chief aide, Daniel Murphy, and John Holdridge, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, and other officials.

In regard with Japan-South Korean relations, Suzuki explained about prolonged negotiations over Seoul's dollar 6 billion loan request from Japan. Suzuki was quoted as saying that Japan will do its best to help its neighbor and close friend achieve its five-year economic development program covering 1982-1987 and that the two countries have, however, failed to reach agreement so far. Bush, who will fly to Seoul Sunday on the second stop of his five-nation Asian tour, appreciated Suzuki's "helpful remarks", suggesting that he would convey the Japanese views to South Korean leaders, according to the officials.

Referring to economic sanctions against the Soviet Union for its intervention in Afghanistan and the Polish crisis, Bush said that President Ronald Reagan will bring up a proposal for suspension of additional credits to the Soviet Union in a concerted action by the Western bloc at the Versailles summit meeting of seven major Western nations in June. Suzuki said Japan would join in imposing sanctions, but stressed the need for concerted action by the Western bloc.

Suzuki asked the vice president to lift the ban on provision of U.S. licences for high technology needed for the offshore oil drilling in Sakhalin. "Japan will suffer, unless the licence is issued," he told Bush, the officials said. The vice president gave a positive response, saying that the matter be considered by taking Japan's position into account, they said.

They said defense problems were not touched at the meeting because time was short.

On the bilateral economic relations, the vice president called for further Japan's efforts to open its market wider to American goods in order to alleviate the trade imbalance and to promote the free trade system. Suzuki told Bush that his government is preparing an additional package of market-opening measures, which will include steps in regard to high technology.

Suzuki proposed another working-level talk on import expansion of farm products, following a previous one earlier this month, as the United States made new requests recently.

It is to be confirmed whether measures to ease import of agricultural products from the United States be included in the second package which is expected to be announced on May 15 or later. A government spokesman said Saturday the second package of market-opening measures will not be adopted on May 7 as earlier planned. The vice president was non-committal, but Foreign Ministry officials said the working-level talks will be held next week at the earliest.

After the talks with Prime Minister Suzuki, the vice president attended a luncheon given by Emperor Hirohito at the Imperial Palace.

Bush later met Foreign Minister Sakurauchi and exchanged views on the Middle East situation and the Falkland Islands issue between Britain and Argentina.

The vice president told Sakurauchi that the Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai peninsula will certainly be carried out on April 25 as scheduled, Japanese officials said.

Bush added the United States will maintain good relations with moderate Arab nations even though, he said, the relations had been strained somewhat by the recent Israeli bombing of Lebanon, they said.

Bush also met International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe and exchanged views on Japan-U.S. trade and sanctions against the Soviet Union in the field of official export loans. Abe told reporters after the meeting that Japan's package of market-opening measures, to be announced next month, will include further improvements in import procedures, tariff cuts of manufactured goods and stepped-up cooperation in high technology. Abe quoted Bush as saying pressures exist from American farmers insisting Japan should increase foreign access to its market in agricultural products in which the U.S. is competitive because American market is open to Japanese manufactured goods which have competitive edge.

MSA ANNOUNCES DPRK RELEASE OF FISHING BOATS

[Text] Fukuoka, April 25, KYODO -- Five Japanese fishing boats seized by North Korea in waters off the Korean west coast Saturday were all released within hours, according to the Maritime Safety Agency (MSA) officer here.

The five vessels of two fishing companies in this western Japanese city were captured by North Korean warships while operating in the North Korean-proclaimed exclusive fishing zone.

North Korean authorities were quoted as saying they released the boats as a guesture to mark celebrations of President Kim Il-song's 70th birthday.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES DMZ INCIDENT, SR-71 FLIGHTS

[NODONG SINMUN 25 April commentary: "They Should Act Discreetly"]

[Text] The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique have committed grave military provocations against us one after another. As reported, in a telephone message on 21 April, our side strongly protested the South Korean puppet army's large-scale firing at members of the patrol unit of our side's [words indistinct], who were on routine patrol duty in the Demilitarized Zone in the early morning of the same day, and stongly urged the enemy side to act responsibly to prevent the recurrence of similar incidents.

Nevertheless, the South Korean puppet army on the afternoon of the same day repeatedly committed armed provocations by firing at our territory from various places on the east and west frontlines. Such grave armed provocations of the South Korean puppet army continued on 22 April. On the morning of 22 April, the U.S. imperialist aggressors committed an espionage act by repeatedly infiltrating the SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the skies over the Kangnyong Peninsula in the west coastal area of our country and the skies over the coastal area east of Kosong, Kangwon Province.

The repeated firings and the air espionage of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique are an outrageous violation of the armistice agreement and very grave military provocations which might touch off an armed confrontation between the two sides. This shows that the rascals' hostility has become more brazen and that it has grown step by step.

Today, our people and impartial public opinion have labelled the adventurous provocations of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring as an intolerable crime disturbing peace. They are bitterly denouncing these provocations. The U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring have stepped up as never before manuevers in South Korea to provoke a new war against our republic. After staging a large war exercise called "Team Spirit 1982" by deploying many aggressive troops in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have continuously deployed in South Korea units capable of professionally handling various missiles carrying nuclear weapons and nuclear warheads and sophisticated fighter bombers carryying nuclear bombs and strategic aircraft. They have deployed U.S. and puppet army troops in the area near the military demarcation line on the assumption of an all-out attack against us and repeatedly staged war exercises on land, at sea and in the air, such as offensive air and ground [illegible]ations and combat-support operations.

In addition, war maniacs, including U.S. Secretary of Defense Weinberger, the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and the commander of the U.S. forces in the Pacific region, crawled into South Korea where gunfire blazed away, held the annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Conference and a meeting of the South Korea-U.S. military Committee with the puppets one after another and criminally discussed matters concerning implementation of the U.S. imperialists' military strategy against Korea and their intrigues to provoke war.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' aggressive maneuvers to provoke a new war, which have become indiscreet, peace has been gravely threatened in Korea and the danger that war might break out at any moment has increased. Threatening others at this juncture with firing and espionage acts is a very dangerous act which might touch off a military confrontation at any moment. We need not explain what the consequence will be of a military confrontation in the area along the military demarcation line or an expansion of this confrontation.

The babble about peaceful reunification and dialogue by those who, repeatedly committing military provocations, have created a grave situation is a brazen trick to conceal their bellicose and aggressive nature. Peaceful reunification and maneuvers to provoke war are not compatible.

By extremely heightening tension in our country by stepping up military provocations against us, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are trying to thwart the anti-U.S. and antifascist trend for democratization, which has been promoted in South Korea, and divert the attention of the people. However, they will be unable to achieve this end. The South Korean people and students have fanned the flames of the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle to achieve democratization.

Our era is an era in which the people oppose war, demand peace, reject all forms of domination and subjugation and follow the road of independence. The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique should understand that, no matter how frantically they run wild to provoke a war, they cannot threaten the people and thwart the anti-U.S. and antifascist trend for democratization and reunification which has increased in South Korea and should act discreetly. If the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwa ring continue to resort to hostility against our republic, they will be unable to avoid chastisement and will pay a high price for the acts they have committed.

MASS RALLY HITS SOUTH'S 'REPRESSIVE CAMPAIGN'

[Text] Pyongyang, April 23 (KCNA) -- A Pyongyang mass meeting denouncing the fascist repression of South Korean people and students by the Chon Tu-hwan group was held on the afternoon of April 22 at the Central House of Workers. A large number of working people and students in the city attended the meeting with surging indignation and hatred against the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique who are brutally suppressing South Korean students and people after the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan.

The platform was occupied by Comrade Ho Chong-suk, secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and Presidium member of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; Chong Sin-hyok, chairman of the Central Committee of the Chondoist Chongu Party; Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland; Kim Song-yol, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Christians Federation; and other leading functionaries of power organs and public organizations, presidents of universities and rectors of colleges and representatives of workers, youth and students.

Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, spoke first at the meeting. He said: The Chon Tu-hwan group started an allout search against patriotic students and democratic forces including those involved in the Kwangju popular uprising who had stood at the head of the struggle for democracy, taking advantage of the "search operation" surrounding the incident of arson; they have launched an unheard-of repressive campaign, breaking into campuses, enterprises and churches, not to speak of houses, to search and arrest people.

He sharply denounced this with surging national indignation. The arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan, he noted, reflected the ever growing anti-U.S. sentiments among the South Korean people and it was a natural product of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule over South Korea.

Noting that it was quite natural and just for the South Korean students and people to have raised the torch of the anti-U.S. struggle, the speaker stressed: This is worthy of a high praise by history and nation and cannot be a target of repression.

I, together with the entire people in the northern half of the republic, extend warm compatriotic greetings to the South Korean patriotic students and religionists and people of other sections who boldly kindled the flames of the anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle in Pusan and are now valiantly waging a just struggle for democracy and national salvation against the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, their stooge, in Seoul and the other parts of South Korea and express full support and encouragement to their patriotic struggle, he said.

The U.S. imperialists must give up the foolish dream of maintaining the colonial fascist rule through such fascist murderer as traitor Chon Tu-hwan and withdraw forthwith, taking along their aggression troops and all destruction weapons including nuclear weapons before they are driven out by the powerful anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people, he stressed.

Then, representatives of workers, youth and students, men of culture and believers took the floor. The speakers said in unison that the Chon Tu-hwan group must look straight at the situation and act with discretion, discontinue the fascist repressive campaign at once and unconditionally and promptly release the patriotic people, students and democratic figures under arrest.

KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL VISIT KPA UNITS 25 APR

[Text] Pyongyang, April 26 (KCNA) -- The great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song on April 25 visited the unit of the Korean People's Army to which Comrade Kim Kyok-sik belongs and congratulated the officers and men of the People's Army on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA.

A portrait of the respected leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song, the great military strategist and ever-victorious iron-willed brilliant commander, was set up in the unit decorated in festive attire. Put up there were the slogans and streamers reading "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" "Long live the glorious Workers Party of Korea!" "Long life and good health to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" "Let us devote our lives to the struggle for the great leader!" and "Let us safeguard with our lives the party Central Committee headed by Comrade Kim Il-song!"

Generals and officers of the KPA lined up in the unit to meet the respected comrade supreme commander of the KPA, founder and leader of our revolutionary armed forces. At 10:00 a.m. the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and supreme commander of the Heroic Korean People's Army, arrived at the unit. That moment, the welcome music was struck up and the cheers of "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" burst forth.

Kim Il-song Speech at Banquet

BK252255 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2227 GMT 25 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 26 (KCNA) -- Follows the full text of a speech "Let Us Firmly Guarantee the Fulfilment of the Revolutionary Cause of Chuche by Force of Arms" the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song made at a grand banquet arranged at the Kumsusan Assembly Hall on April 25 in honour of the 50th anniversary of the foundation of the heroic Korean People's Army:

Comrades: Today were are commemorating the 50th anniversary of the foundation of the Korean People's Army with a high sense of dignity and pride when the whole country is in a great political upswing vibrating with revolutionary enthusiasm.

Greeting the auspicious revolutionary holiday of the heroic Korean People's Army, our party's glorious armed forces, and of all the Korean people, I would like to offer warm congratulations to the officers and men of our valiant People's Army and people's security forces who are defending the country impregnably with fervent loyalty to the party and the revolution.

In the long years of struggle since the days of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, we have lost a large number of precious revolutionary comrades. Allow me to pay a high tribute to the anti-Japanese revolutionary forerunners and the soldiers of the People's Army who laid down their valuable lives for the independence of the country, for the liberation of the people, and in the cause of the party and the revolution. I also extend hearty congratulations to the anti-Japanese revolutionary veterans, the disabled soldiers and the demobilized servicemen who performed heroic services in the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and the great fatherland liberation war and are still caring for the beautiful flower of the revolution in building socialism. My warm gratitude also goes to our workers, farmers, and all the rest of the people who are working hard to build the economy and defence and wholeheartedly assisting the People's Army, loving them like their own flesh and blood, in order to strengthen the nation's defence power in accordance with our party's military line of self-reliant defence.

Comrades, half a century has elapsed since we founded the Korean People's Revolutionary Army, the first revolutionary armed forces of our people, to realize the cause of national liberation under the banner of the chuche idea. At this great moment when we are celebrating the jubilee of the birth of the Korean People's Army, I look back with deep emotions upon the glorious road of struggle traversed by our revolutionary armed forces and their immortal achivements.

The formation of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army was the precious result of the bloody struggle of the young Korean communists who had devoted all their bloom of youth and lives to raising an army against the Japanese, braving all difficulties and hardships, taking to heart the bitter lesson taught by the anti-Japanese national-liberation movement in our country which had undergone setbacks and tortuous course because it had no genuinely revolutionary armed force of its own. The foundation of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army was an august emergence of a truly revolutionary armed force of a chuche type in our country.

The founding of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army was a historic event that marked an epochal turn in the development of the anti-Japanese national-liberation struggle of our people and the communist movement. With its formation, our people now had a genuinely revolutionary army for the first time in their history and were able to launch a victorious struggle of a new, higher stage for the independence of the country and the liberation of the people. That was the very beginning of the glorious history of our revolutionary armed forces.

Our revolutionary armed forces which opened fire in the forests of Paektu have advanced on a proud road of victory through the flames of a grim and arduous struggle for half a century and heroically fought to perform the immortal exploits that will shine long in our history.

As a genuine army of the people and an army of the revolution, the Korean People's Revolutionary Army expanded its ranks with the active support and encouragement of the popular masses and grew stronger in the fierce struggle against the enemy. It waged a 15-year-long heroic struggle under the most trying conditions in history, and at last brilliantly won the historic cause of national liberation by defeating the Japanese imperialist aggressors. In the course of arduous armed struggle against Japanese imperialism, the foundations of the Korean revolution as a whole were firmly laid and the brilliant revolutionary traditions of our party established on a solid basis.

After liberation the Korean People's Revolutionary Army developed into regular armed forces -- the Korean People's Army as its direct successor. The Korean People's Army displayed mass heroism and unparalleled self-sacrificing spirit in the great fatherland liberation war in which the destiny of the country was at stake. It gave an ignominious defeat to the U.S. imperialist aggressors who had boasted of being the "strongest" in the world, and defended the independence of the country and the gains of the revolution with honour. It frustrated the enemy's ceaseless acts of aggression and war provocation at every step, defended the security of the country and the people in good faith and firmly guaranteed the victorious advance of the revolution and construction by force of arms. It not only carried out its mission of national defence with credit, but also made a great contribution to the construction work for the prosperity of the country and the happiness of the people.

The priceless gains of our revolution and all the victories achieved by our people in the revolution and construction are associated with the imperishable exploits performed by our revolutionary armed forces and are permeated with the blood shed by the anti-Japanese guerrillas and the officers and men of the People's Army. The immortal services to the country and the people rendered by the Korean People's Revolutionary Army and the People's Army, its direct successor, will shine long in the glorious history of the revolutionary struggle of our party and people. During the half a century of arduous, fierce revolutionary struggle, our revolutionary armed forces have been trained and tempered politically and ideologically and in military technique and have grown into an invincible army which has acquired the chuche-oriented art of war and rich combat experience.

Today the political and moral traits of our People's Army are excellent. All the soldiers are firmly equipped with the chuche idea, our party's revolutionary idea, and are afire with a resolve to fight to the last for the victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche under the leadership of the party. The People's Army is imbued with the chuche idea and the noble traits of revolutionary comrades, voluntary military discipline and unity between superiors and subordinates and between army and people. These are the political and moral advantages unique to a genuine People's Army, the revolutionary army, and precisely here lies the source of our People's Army's unbreakable strength capable of defeating any aggressor army. Military technique and troop composition of the People's Army are also excellent. It is armed with modern weapons and equipment. Highly trained in military know-how and skill, every soldier handles his weapons and equipment efficiently. Since their foundation our revolutionary armed forces have gone through guerrilla actions and regular and modern warfare.

In this course a large number of competent revolutionary hard-core elements with a wealth of experience have grown. The revolutionary hard-core elements trained during the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and the fatherland liberation war are the precious treasure of our party and a great pride of our People's Army.

The security of our country and the victory of our revolution are firmly guaranteed by the unconquerable Korean People's Army which was founded in the flames of the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, tempered in the trials of the great fatherland liberation war and the fierce class struggle and is firmly armed with the chuche idea and modern military science and technology and up-to-date weapons and equipment. We strove to strengthen the People's Army and, at the same time, to arm the entire people and fortify the whole country. In this way we set up a solid all-people defence system with the peoples army as the core. Today we take great pride in saying confidently that we have built up indestructible self-reliant defence power capable of destroying aggressors from any quarters and firmly safeguarding the socialist motherland .

Comrades, our revolution is not yet over; we have to continue our struggle until we accomplish the revolutionary cause of chuche. The enemies of our revolution are still surviving, and we must reunify the country independently and build socialism and communism completely through fierce struggles against the enemies. As long as the enemies of the revolution exist, the People's Army must resolutely fight back all their acts of aggression and provocation and firmly defend the country. It should ensure the struggle of our party and people to reunify the country and model the whole of society on the chuche idea. It is the basic mission of the People's Army to firmly guarantee the fulfilment of the revolutionary cause of chuche by force of arms.

Today the situation in our country is very strained. The U.S. imperialists are shipping into South Korea a large number of aggressive troops and mass destruction weapons including nuclear weapons, and are instigating the South Korean military fascists to provoke a new war. By drawing in even the Japanese reactionaries, who are watching for a chance of reinvading our country, the U.S. imperialists are building up the military alignment of the United States, Japan and South Korea in an overt attempt to invade our country. The clamorous war exercise "Team Spirit 82" now being staged by the massive aggressive armed forces of the U.S. imperialists and South Korean military fascists is a "test of war" designed to attack the northern half of the republic; it is an undisguised act of provocation against us. The developments in South Korea today show that the moves of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges towards a new war against us have reached a critical stage and brought the situation to the brink of war.

If we are to smash the ever-blatant clamours of the enemies for a new war, defend the socialist motherland and provide a sure guarantee for the accomplishment of the revolutionary cause of chuche by force of arms, we must further strengthen the People's Army. The People's Army is the armed forces of our party, which are guided by the churche idea and fight for the triumph of this idea. If we are to strengthen the People's Army so that it can fulfil its honourable mission as the revolutionary armed forces of our party, we must model the entire army on the chuche idea by training all the soldiers to be true communist revolutionaries of a chuche type and fully applying the chuche idea in all aspects of military work and activity.

Modelling the whole army on the chuche idea is the law of developing our revolutionary armed forces and the general task of the People's Army at present.

We must vigorously struggle to strengthen the People's Army still more politically and ideologically and in military technique, under the slogan: "Let us model the whole army on the chuche idea!"

First of all, the monolithic ideological system of the party must be established more thoroughly in the People's Army. Firmly establishing this system provides the basic guarantee for increasing the might of the People's Army and is the central task in modelling the whole army on the chuche idea. Education in the chuche idea should be intensified among the soldiers of the People's Army so that all of them will be equipped firmly with our party's chuche idea, defend it stoutly and strive devotedly to materialize it fully. Education in party policy and revolutionary traditions should be promoted so as to induce every soldier to defend and carry out the party policies unswervingly and learn from the intense loyalty of anti-Japanese revolutionary forerunners to the party and the revolution and their indomitable revolutionary spirit.

The People's Army must be infinitely loyal to the party's leadership. Without this leadership, it would be impossible to maintain its revolutionary character and successfully fulfil the important mission entrusted to it by the country and the people. It should defend our party politically and ideologically and with lives and build up the revolutionary habit and work system of carrying out the party's orders and directives unconditionally.

The policy on training the whole army into a cadre army and modernizing it should be fully implemented so as to further reinforce the People's Army in military technique. Combat and political training must be stepped up among its soldiers so that every one of them will be well versed in modern weapons and equipment, master the chuche-oriented art of war which suits our actual conditions and acquire a wealth of combat experience. In this way all of them, from generals to privates, will be qualified to perform the job higher at least by one grade than that they are doing. At the same time, military science and technology should be developed quickly to meet the requirements of modern warfare and thus the technical equipment of the People's Army improved steadily.

In order to make the nation's defence power impregnable we should thoroughly implement the policy of putting all people under arms and building up the whole country into a fortress and further strengthen the all-people defence system. We must ensure that all the people are under arms and study military affairs in earnest. The entire nation including the workers and farmers should not only become distinguished innovators in building socialism, but reliable defenders of the country. The members of the Worker-Peasant Red Guards and the Red Young Guards should intensify combat and political training so that all of them can handle their arms skilfully and deeply study and acquire the chuche art of war and war experience. We must reinforce defences in all parts of the country and make the whole country impregnable.

It is a noble and beautiful tradition of our society that the army and the people love each other and help each other actively.

The officers and men of the People's Army should give full play to the laudable tradition of unity between army and people. They should love the people, defend their lives and property even at the cost of their own lives and actively help them in the struggle for socialist construction. The people should love the People's Army soldiers like their own flesh and blood, assist them heart and soul and intensify support to the army in all spheres.

We must strengthen unity and solidarity with the international revolutionary forces in the struggle against the aggression of U.S. imperialism and its stooges and for national sovereignty and peace. Ever since their inception our revolutionary armed forces have strengthened unity and solidarity with the international revolutionary forces, holding fast to an independent stand. Our people and their revolutionary armed forces have struggled, developing unbreakable solidarity with their neighbours and the revolutionary peoples around the world and forming united fronts with them, and thus won victories both in the national-liberation struggle against the Japanese imperialists and the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialists.

In the future, too, we will continue to cement unity and militant solidarity with the international revolutioanry forces, while carrying out the revolutionary line of self-reliant defence. We will fight on stoutly to check and frustrate the imperialists' moves for aggression and war, ensure durable peace and security in the world and hasten the final victory of the cause of anti-imperialism and independence, in close unity with the peoples of the socialist countries, the non-aligned and other newly-emerging countries and all the revolutionary people the world over.

Comrades, the People's Army is entrusted with a very important mission and responsibility in the effort to consummate our party's revolutionary cause pioneered and developed under the banner of the chuche idea. Our party and people expect from the army a great deal, indeed. I am firmly convinced that all officers and men of the People's Army who are boundlessly loyal to the party and the revolution, will closely rally around the party Central Committee in future too, and perform their honourable mission and militant tasks satisfactorily and meet the great expectations of our party and the entire people without fail.

Availing myself of this celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Korean People's Army, I propose a toast: To the strengthening and development of heroic Korean People's Army, the glorious revolutionary armed forces of our party; to the health of the revolutionary hard-core elements of the People's Army including the anti-Japanese revolutionary veterans who, with unswerving loyalty to the party and the revolution, have devoted their whole lives to the struggle for national sovereignty and independence and the development of our revolutionary armed forces; to the health of all officers and men of the valiant People's Army and people's security forces who are firmly standing on their honourable post for national defence and reliably guaranteeing by force of arms our party's revolutionary cause of reunifying the country independently and modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea; to the health of the members of the Worker-Peasant Red Guards and Red Young Guards who, together with the People's Army, are dependably guarding the security of the country and the gains of the revolution; to the health of the workers, farmers and the rest of the people who are rendering active help to the People's Army while stepping up socialist construction under the banner of the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural; to the health of the military attaches and diplomatic envoys of many countries of the world present here to celebrate the Korean Poeple's Army Day; and to the health of the comrades and friends present here.

[Speech by Gen O Chin-U, DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, at 25 April KPA founding anniversary banquet in Pyongyang -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrades, today we are are significantly celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic Korean People's Army, cherishing great pride in having invincible revolutionary armed forces which are reliably safeguarding the security of the fatherland and the party's revolutionary cause.

On this significant occasion, I respectfully extend greatest honor and warmest greetings, togther with unanimous wishes and boundless reverence of all our people and the officers and men of the KPA, to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who founded the first chuche-type revolutionary armed forces in our country and wisely led them, achieved the fatherland's liberation and safeguarded national sovereignty and turned our country into a powerful socialist state with independence, self-reliance and self-defense through his outstanding leadership.

The path of the glorious 5-year struggle along which the KPA has traveled is a proud course in which the history of victory has been pioneered since the genuine people's revolutionary armed forces were organized in our country by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, together with the sacred chuche revolutionary cause. Thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's brilliant wisdom and outstanding leadership, our revolutionary armed forces registered the military miracles of crushing two powerful imperialist enemies and won a great victory in fulfilling the revolution of national liberation and the anti-imperialist cause for independence, recording a chapter of brilliant expolits in the annals of the glorious chuche revolutionary cause.

Today our people are demonstrating the honor and strength of chuche Korea, while safeguarding the dignity of the splendid independent country with the KPA: one-a-mathch-for-100 revolutionary armed forces which are endlessly loyal to the party and leader, devotedly serving the fatherland and the people, and are armed with rich experiences in both guerrilla warfare and modern war and with up-to-date military technology. This is due entirely to the fact that the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song strengthened and developed our revolutionary armed forces into invincible, ever-victorious armed forces, putting forward the chuche military idea and military line for self-defense. He led our army to a brilliant victory by personally overcoming all difficulties and adversities at the forefront. We can neither talk about our fatherland's glory and our people's dignity and the indomitable strength of our people's strength nor think of all the glories and the happiness of our people apart from the immortal achievements of the respected leader Comrade Il-song by leading the arduous and complex Korean revolution along the single road of victory for a long time for over half a century.

It is the rock-firm conviction of all our people and soldiers of the People's Army which they deeply realized through long revolutionary fights that our people's endless happiness and our nation's brilliant future lie in upholding our party's revolutionary cause, following the great leader's wise guidance.

The officers and men of our People's Army, invariably cherishing such a firm conviction under any storm and trail, will travel only along the road of loyalty by upholding the great leader and our people as the leader's army and the party's army. Our people and the People's Army will staunchly safeguard the great unity and cohesion of our revolutionary ranks, which were firmly united around the party and leader, and will vigorously struggle for the accomplishment of the glorious chuche revolutionary cause -- our party's cause -- based on this indomitable strength.

At this significant function celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the KPA, I propose a toast to the nation's reunficiation and the final victory of the revolution; to the ever-lasting prosperity of the fatherland and the happiness of the many generations to come; and to the long life of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people, together with the unanimous desire and warm wishes of all our people and the officers and men of the People's Army.

Yi Yong-su Addresses Meeting

[Report on speech by Yi Yong-su, chairman of the Central Committee of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea, at 19 April meeting in Pyongyang marking 19 April uprising anniversary]

[Text] The reporter said today we mark the 22nd anniversary of the April uprising of the South Korean people when the nation is overflowing with deep emotion and excitement of significantly celebrating the great leader's 70th birthday as the greatest national festival and celebration, cherishing boundless honor and pride of upholding again the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and leader of our republic and the great sun of the nation, as president of our nation.

He said: The nationwide April uprising in which South Korean students and people of all walks of life resolutely fought 22 years ago was an eruption of their pent-up resentment and grievances against the colonial fascist rule of the U.S. imperialist aggressors, the sworn enemy, and the Syngman Rhee clique,their stooge, and a heroic anti-imperialist, anti-fascist resistance for democracy and national salvation of millions of patriotic people for a new policy, a new system and a new life.

The U.S. imperialists implemented the most outrageous fascist colonial rule with the ambition to invade all of Korea and conquer the world from the first day of their occupation of South Korea by making it their steppingstone. He said the South Korean puppet clique, following the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and colonization, cruelly trampled underfoot the people's freedom and democratic rights and perpetrated unheard of fascist-terrorist police rule, viciously blocking the nation's peaceful reunification.

Because of the policy of fascism and colonization by the U.S. imperialists and the puppet clique, South Korea has been reduced to a land of the dark ages where terrorism and massacre, starvation and poverty prevail. In South Korea national and class conflicts are growing acute. The masses' aspiration for democracy and national reunification is growing. In particular, the brilliant successes achieved in building the most advanced socialist system and socialism in the northern half of the republic under the wise leadership of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great sun of the nation, vigorously inspired and encouraged the South Korean students and people in the nationwide struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys.

The South Korean people, showing great resistance against the barbarous fascist colonial rule by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys over 15 years, finally rose in a nationwide resistance struggle for democracy, touched off by the courageous advance of the Masan citizens against the illegal election of the Syngman Rhee puppet clique on 15 March 1960. Their resistance struggle extended all over South Korea and developed into a nationwide uprising on 19 April.

The April people's uprising, which swept over almost all cities and rural areas in South Korea including Seoul, Pusan, Taegu and Kwangju, developed into a mass resistance struggle for democracy participated in by all the South Korean compatriots including students, workers, peasants, intellectuals, small businessmen and industrialists and even old men and teenagers. Vigorously shouting the slogans "Down with Syngman Rhee," "Down with the police state," and "Let us establish a genuine democratic nation," the uprisers courageously rose in demonstrations.

Frightened and embarrassed by the people's surging advance, the Syngman Rhee puppet clique mobilized the heavily-armed police, armored cars and tanks, declaring emergency martial law, and indiscriminately fired at the demonstrating masses with empty hands and naked fists, staining the streets with the blood of the fellow countrymen. However, the April fighters, who rose in a death-defying resistance struggle for freedom and democracy, advanced toward the stronghold of fascism, crossing barricades guarded by guns and bayonets and carrying the bodies of their fallen comrades in arms.

Repeatedly waging severe, bloody fights against the heavily-armed puppet army and policy, the citizens of Seoul raided the office of the U.S. economic coordinator in South Korea and the Capitol Building -- dens of the aggressors and nation-sellers, the National Assembly building and the counterintelligence corps. They set fire to the headquarters of the Liberal Party and the anticommunist hall.

The reporter indicated that the South Korean students and people, rising in a just resistance struggle like a furious lion, overthrew the Syngman Rhee dictatorial regime, an old stooge of the U.S. imperialists. This was the first previous victory won by the South Korean people in the anti-imperialism, antifascism national salvation struggle for democracy and reunification. This was a great event which shines forever in the history of the bloody struggle for democracy by the South Korean people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: With the 19 April uprising, the crisis of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule in South Korea was deepened, and the situation took a favorable turn for the victory of revolution.

The April people's uprising shook the roots of the U.S. imperialists' colonial ruling system in South Korea and opened a new turn in the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle. Through bloody struggle against the enemy, the South Korean students and people gained keener national and class awareness and turned their struggle gradually toward the U.S. imperialists. Through the April people's uprising, the aspiration for the fatherland's reunification grew higher than ever before in South Korea. After the April people's uprising, the patriotic students and people in South Korea rose courageously in the sacred struggle to achieve the nation's independent and peaceful reunification, rejecting outside forces, under the slogans "Yankee go home," "We can survive only by reunification," "Let us go to the North; people in the North, come to the South," and "Let us meet in Panmunjom."

The April people's uprising greatly inspired the struggle of the students and people of many world's nations against foreign imperialists and domestic reactionaries. The reporter noted: The heroic mettle and unyielding fighting spirit displayed by the South Korean students and people in the April popular uprising proudly recorded a shining page of our people's history of struggle to defend the sovereignty of the country and the dignity of the nation. The reporter paid homage in humble reverence to the patriotic martyrs who fell on the streets of resistance and regards to their bereaved families and all participants in the 19 April uprising, in the name of the students and people in the northern half of the republic on the occasion of the 22nd anniversary of the 19 April popular uprising.

The South Korean students and people, he said, overthrew in their heroic struggle the Syngman Rhee puppet regime and dealt a blow to the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists. They could not win a decisive victory, and they lost the fruit of the struggle they won at the cost of blood to other stooges of the U.S. imperialists.

He said: The April popular uprising provides a serious lesson in the history of the South Korean people's anti-imperialism and antifascism national salvation struggle for democracy. The South Korean people failed to carry out their struggle organizationally to the end under the guidance of a revolutionary party employing correct strategy and tactics. They were unable to develop their struggle into one to establish a new democratic regime after overthrowing the dictator. They failed to make the people from all walks of life, including workers and peasants, join the struggle more broadly in unity with the students. None of the desires of the South Korean students and people for a new policy, a new system and a new life has been achieved, although 22 years have passed since the April popular uprising in South Korea.

The reporter said: The U.S. imperialists responded to the desires of the 19 April fighters with the most outrageous military fascist dictatorship by perpetrating the 16 May military coup. In particular, since the illegal October 1972 Yusin system in South Korea, the situation of the people has gone from bad to worse, and it has been actually turned into a graveyard and a den of fascists where human rights and democracy have been completely trampled. As a result, the struggle in South Korea between those who seek democracy, reunification and patriotism and those who advocate fascism, division and nation-selling had become even more bitter and, finally, the ringleader of the Yusin dictatorship was eliminated.

Since the elimination of the Yusin dictator in South Korea, a favorable situation was created for the democratization of society and acceleration for the cause of the reunification of the country. However, using the same trick to engineer the 16 May military coup by employing traitor Pak Chong-hui following the 19 April uprising, the U.S. imperialists again employed the new military hooligan, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, to repress the aspiration of the South Korean people with guns and bayonets.

The emergence of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique engineered by the U.S. imperialists was a blatant challenge to the spirit of the 19 April uprising and a most barbarous reactionary assault on the South Korean people seeking democracy and reunification. During the past 2 years since the usurpation of power, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique has committed all kinds of crimes which even the former South Korean dictators never attempted and turned South Korea into a prison more miserable than that under the Yusin dictatorship.

The clique's relentless killing of the patriotic Kwangju people, youths and students who had staged a peaceful demonstration for democracy and peaceful reunification of the country is a most outrageous crime that will never be forgiven throughout eternity. Fearing the South Korean youths and students, who are members of the vanguard unit in the struggle against fascism and for democratization, the clique is further intensifying oppressive measures against the campuses and running amok in the repression of students to prevent their advance. Having revised the college regulations for the worse in a fascist discipline, the fascist military elements are further intensifying campus surveillance by assigning five times more intelligence agents than ever before to the campuses. Through the network of horrible campus oppression, the South Korean puppet clique is relentlessly repressing the student struggle for democratization and, through a system of collective penalties, is expelling the progressive students from campus.

In South Korea, not only youths and students but also numerous democratic personages and innocent people are suffering as victims of the fascist suppression. To evade responsibility for the Kwangju mass killing, the Chon Tu-hwan clique has been intent on the basic strategy to lay the blame for the crime on Kim Tae-chung, other democratic personages and those who were involved in the uprising. It has continued the oppressive atrocity of trying and jailing them.

In particular, in connection with the recent arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, the fascist oppression of the South Korean fascist military clique has reached a worse stage.

The fascist clique, which staged a massive manhunt to arrest the arsonists by mobilizing hundreds of thousands of police, intelligence, investigation force and puppet troops, arrested and detained those who played a major role in the incident, the youths who had been on the wanted list as the masterminds of the incident, and the conscientious religious figures who sheltered and protected them. The clique is now going on a facist rampage to imprison them on charges of violating the national security law. Moreover, while investigating the arson, the clique staged an all-out investigation commotion against those who were involved in the Kwangju popular uprising and other patriotic youths and students and democratic forces who had taken the lead in the struggle for democratization. The clique is now committing a fascist atrocity by indiscriminatingly intruding into campuses, public organizations, enterprises and churches. There is an atmosphere of horror in South Korea, where people are randomly arrested and tortured at any time and place.

The reporter said: Adhering to an unprecendented level of fascist suppression, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is resorting to whatever schemes are available to keep the U.S. aggression troops in South Korea indefinitely and to turn South Korea into a permanent colonial military base for the U.S. imperialists, whom the clique serves as if they were the savior. He further said: Having set this year as the year of South Korea-U.S. friendship, the South Korean puppets are playing the game of South Korea-U.S. friendship at great cost. They have falsified the history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression and exploitation of Korea as a history of friendship and are kicking up a pro-U.S. propaganda campaign. They are also sending missions and troupes to the United States and inviting American polticians, social figures, military leaders and religious personages in a bid to promote what they call relations of friendship.

Not only is the Chon Tu-hwan clique committing pro-U.S., nation-selling acts but it is also promoting collusion with the Japanese reactionaries, chiming in with their theory of a common Japan-South Korea destiny. In South Korea, he said, things treasured by the nation have been obliterated by ugly toadyists and traitors and the entire social spectrum -- politics, the economy, culture and the military -- is getting deeper into the hands of the United States and Japan. South Korea has turned into a alien place where only foreign forces and toadyist-traitors who are in collusion with them have a field day.

He pointed out that the South Korean puppet clique, running amok with manuevers of national division, brought splittist plans such as simultaneous entry into the United Nations and crossrecognition, put forward by the fomer dictator, to the international arena and disgracefully begged support for them. Moreover, it is unhesitatingly committing the antinational criminal act of putting forth theories on the unattainability of reunification such as the theory on reunification in the next century.

The South Korean ruling faction, raving about dialogue by putting forward deceitful reunification proposals, are drastically increasing troops and military equipment and running amok in construction and expansion of defense industries and military facilities. They are committing military provocation and staging war exercise maneuvers every day. Holding a so-called annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting in Seoul with U.S. military leaders including Weinberger a while ago, the South Korean puppet clique signed a joint communique which included placing South Korea under the U.S. nuclear umbrella, accelerating reinforcement of U.S. troops in South Korea and modernizing the puppet army. This clearly shows what a dangerous stage the rascals's war provocation maneuvers have reached.

The reporter said: The Chon Tu-hwan clique is attempting to drive the entire land into the flames of war, running counter to peace and peaceful reunification at a time when all fellow countrymen are hoping for early convocation of the 100-man joint conference to realize the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, earnestly aspiring for peace and peaceful reunification of the nation. Its acts are intolerable criminal acts which can be perpetrated only by those who think nothing of their nation and the destiny of the people.

The desire of the 19 April fighters for a new policy, new system and new life has not been realized in South Korea and such a military gang as the Chon Tu-hwan clique came to power and is freely committing antidemocratic and antinational crimes. This has been possible because of the instigation of the United States. He said: The U.S. authorities, who once disguised themselves as the protectors of human rights by even openly expressing regret and concern over acts violating human rights in South Korea, are today nakedly patronizing the puppets, removing their veil of pretense. This clearly shows the true nature of the U.S. imperialists as stranglers of democracy and the ringleaders of division.

In the name of the entire Korean students and people, he sternly denounced the criminal acts of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, which puruses fascism and nation-selling, division and war, and the acts of the U.S. imperialist aggressors, who are actively supporting it.

The reporter noted: The patriotic struggle of the masses against aggressors and nation-sellers and for democracy and the fatherland's reunifcation has been constantly waged in South Korea for last 22 years since the April popular uprising. The resistance struggle for democracy in October 1979, overthrowing the mastermind of the notorious Yusin dictatorship, and the heroic Kwangju popular uprising in May 1980 marked a new brilliant chapter in the history of anti-imperialism and the antifascist national slavation struggle of the South Korean people for democracy.

Today, the South Korean people have courageously risen in a just resistance struggle against the military fascist rule even amid cruel repression by the fascists, constantly raising the banner of struggle. They are gradually turning their struggle toward the U.S. imperialists. After setting fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Kwangju, the South Korean people burned the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan in broad daylight and scattered a number of anti-U.S. leaflets. Thus, they have carried out courageous anti-U.S. struggle. This is a just and patriotic struggle displaying at home and abroad their indomitable fighting spirit and firm will not to endure their situation as colonial slaves of the U.S. imperialists any longer. Constantly waged in South Korea against the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, the struggle is broadly spreading among people from all walks of life, including workers, peasants, students, intellectuals and Christians. Their struggle is being deepened and developed with a purpose in mind and is taking a more violent form.

He extended warm fraternal greetings to the South Korean students and people from all walks of life who are vigorously waging the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle for democracy without yielding to cruel repression by the military fascist clique and expressed full support for their patriotic struggle. He continued: The only way to achieve the ardent desire of the 19 April fighters who called for democracy and reunification 22 years ago in South Korea is to put an end to the colonial fascist rule by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and to reunify the fatherland.

South Korean students and people should staunchly struggle to abolish the fascist evil laws and dissolve the fascist suppressive organizations and to obtain freedom of the press, freedom of publication, freedom of assembly, freedom of association and freedom of demonstration, in firm unity under the antifascist banner for democracy. They should, at the same time, carry out a powerful joint struggle for the release of democratic figures, including Kim Tae-chung, and patriotic students who have been illegally arrested and imprisoned.

In order to realize their desire for independence, democracy and reunification, the South Korean students and people should fight to the end to replace military fascist regime with a genuine democratic regime. The South Korean people's antifascist struggle for democracy should be linked with the anti-U.S. struggle. The South Korean students and people should resolutely rise in resistance against the inteference in the internal affairs of another country by the United States, which supports and patronizes the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

They should tenaciously oppose its two-Koreas policy and should rise in a mass struggle to make the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces withdraw from South Korea, taking along their nuclear weapons. The reporter said: Achieving the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification is the ultimate national task which should not be delayed any longer. Today, a brilliant road is being opened up for our people to reunify the fatherland independently and peacefully, preventing the nation's permanent division. The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party considers that the most realistic and reasonable way for reunifying the fatherland independently and peacefully, on the basis of the principle of grand national unity is to found a confederal state between the North and the South, leaving the existing ideologies and systems in the North and South as they are.

The proposal for founding the DCRK made by the great leader is a most realistic reunification program for a just solution of the nation's reunification question, corresponding to the concrete situation in which different systems exist in the north and the south of the nation. This is a most reasonable reunification charter for achieving the fatherland's reunification at an early date, putting an end to the tragedy of national division.

In order to put the excellent reunification plan in practice, we should convene the 100-man joint conference by the politicians in the North, South and overseas, which was put forth by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherlan [CPRF]. Politicians in South Korea and abroad should actively respond to the proposal for convening the 100-man joint conference made by the CPRF, deeply cherishing a sense of duty assigned by the times and history.

The South Korean ruling faction should not block participation in the joint conference by politicians in the southern part. It should release political prisoners immediately and unconditionally -- including Kim Tae-chung -- who have been unlawfully detained and ensure the freedom of their political activities. If the South Korean rulers truly want to come to the table of dialogue for reunification, they should have the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea, carry out democratization and give up the anticommunist confrontation policy. They should abolish the two Koreas policy and apologize to the entire nation for the barbarous Kwangju massacre. The reporter stressed: Today, all students and people in the northern half of the republic are confronted with the glorious tasks of accelerating the cause of the chuche-orientation of the entire society more vigorously and expediting the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland.

Deeply cherishing with boundless emotion and honor and invariably upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the president of the republic, we should more firmly prepare ourselves to become genuine chuche-type revolutionaries boundlessly loyal to the respected leader and the glorious party center. He said: We should continuously effect new upsurges and renovation on all fronts of socialist construction by vigorously accelerating the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural -- and upholding the pragmatic tasks put forward by the great leader in his report at the Sixth KWP Congress and in his recent policy address.

Only victory and glory lie on the road our people are advancing along under the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party center. Finally, he stressed: Let us all struggle more vigorously for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and the final victory of the chuche cause in firm unity around the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the peerless patriot, the sun of the nation and legendary hero, and the glorious party center.

NODONG SINMUN Marks Uprising

[NODONG SINMUN 19 Apr editorial: "The Ideal of the 19 April Uprising Will Surely Be Realized"]

[Text] As the South Korean students and people are persistently struggling to crush the fascist colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique and to achieve the democratization of society and reunification, they are marking the 22d anniversary of the heroic 19 April people's uprising.

The courageous mass uprising by the South Korean people in April 1960 was a proud event marking a brilliant chapter in the history of our people's struggle against outside aggressors and to safeguard the nation's independence and dignity.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The April people's uprising was an eruption of the resentment and indignation of the South Korean people, which had accumulated for a long time under the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys. It was a mass anti-U.S. national salvation resistance participated in by the broad masses of several million throughout South Korea. The terrorist and fascist colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists who occupied South Korea, relieving the Japanese imperialists after the 15 August national liberation day, and their lackeys cruelly trampled underfoot the independence of the South Korean people and reduced the life of the South Korean people to the greatest misery.

The South Korean students and people, unable to live any longer under repression and exploitation finally rose in the mass struggle for new politics, a new system and a new life with the advance of the people of Masan against the illegal 15 March election by the Syngman Rhee puppet clique. With the support of the U.S. imperialists, the Syngman Rhee puppet clique fanatically oppressed the people with empty hands and naked fists by mobilizing the heavily-armed puppet army and police, armored cars and even tanks, declaring emergency martial law.

However, the furious masses from all walks of life, including students, workers, peasants, intellectuals, small businessmen and industrialists and even old men and teenagers, rose in a large-scale resistance struggle in Seoul, Pusan, Kwangju, Taegu and throughout South Korea, shouting the slogans "Let Us Restore Violated Democracy," "We can survive only by reunification," and "Yankee go home." Thus, they overthrew traitor Syngman Rhee, a faithful stooge of the U.S. imperialists.

This was the first victory of the South Korean people in the sacred struggle for democracy and the nation's independent and peaceful reunification. It was a severe blow to the U.S. imperialists' policy for colonization and subjugation of South Korea. The April people's uprising reconfirmed the truth that the South Korean people can smash any stronghold of the reactionaries if they struggle in unity without fear of death and clearly demonstrate the revolutionary spirit and heroism of our people, who indomitably struggled for the dignity and independence of the nation.

After the people's uprising, the South Korean people persistently struggled against the enemy, who took away the gains that the 19 April fighters had achieved with their blood. However, none of the desires ardently cherished by the 19 April fighters has been achieved. Because of the barbarous military terrorist rule and nation-selling acts of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, which usurped power in succeeding Pak Chong-hui, democracy and civil rights are being strangled more severely in South Korea. The danger of the nation's permanent division and of a new war is increasing every day.

Chon Tu-hwan, usurping power at gunpoint with the support and manipulation of the U.S. imperialists, has covered all of South Korea with a repressive military network, immersed Kwangju in a sea of blood and arrested, imprisoned, punished and massacred a number of democratic figures and patriotic people, including Kim Tae-chung. The puppets, on the pretext of security, stability and so forth, are running amok with a more vicious repressive rule than that of their predecessors. The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique expelled and purged all its opponents and militarized and imposed a fascist rule on the social and political life. It has increased the oppressive organizations and repressive forces and intensified fanatic oppression against democratic forces by passing various murderous laws. It made a wholesale roundup of the students demanding the freedom of campus and democratization of society, repeatedly waging the racket of trial against them, and viciously suppressed those involved in the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan. This clearly shows that the puppet clique's antipopular fascist acts are reaching a grave stage.

Under the Chon Tu-hwan clique's reactionary and slanderous rule, South Korea has been reduced to a dark place and a living hell where the nation's sovereignty, democracy and civil rights are being trampled on. The Chon Tu-hwan clique, following the U.S. imperialists' policy of division, are inspiring North-South confrontation by waging anticommunist rackets. It is running amok with the two Koreas plot by putting forth theories of cross recognition and simultaneous entry into the United Nations which were discarded a long time ago.

The general election, pilot projects, talks and so forth raved about by the Chon Tu-hwan clique are another form of the two Koreas script disguised by the signboard of reunification. The fact that the puppets are running amok with war fever on the pretext of a deceptive threat of southward invasion while loudly talking about anticommunist confrontation and putting forward the theory of reunification in the 2000's clearly proves this.

War rackets and peaceful reunification are not consistent with each other. The puppets are begging for the U.S. imperialists' permanent occupation of South Korea, reinforcing the puppet army and intensifying military provocations. They are staging a large-scale war exercise called Team Spirit 1982 against our republic together with the U.S. imperialist aggressors, inspiring a war fever and weaving plots with the U.S. warmongers. The Chon Tu-hwan clique's oppressive rule, anticommunist rackets and war maneuvers are extremely reckless and dangerous antinational maneuvers which block the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle for democracy by the South Korean people, foster division, threaten peace and aggravate tension.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique, cursed and denounced by the people for these criminal acts, is intensifying unprecedentedly cruel repression and adhering to the cunning appeasement trick in an attempt to escape the curse and condemnation of the people.

The democracy, just society, promotion of education and so forth advocated by the puppets clearly show this. The puppets are strangling civil rights and human rights while clamoring about democracy and engaging in corruption and injustices while preaching about justice. They are binding the campuses more tightly with military fascism on the pretext of reorganizing the education system.

With the so-called graduation quota system and professor reappointment system, progressive and patriotic students and professors are being expelled from the college campuses and even minor club activities are prohibited on campus. Moreover, saying that the library is where subversive ideas are created, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is scheming to close all libraries.

At the same time, under the signboard of new politics, the puppets have placed all news media organizations under government control and are tying the people's social and political life with the shackles of fascist dictatorship. This is an outrageous challenge and an atrocious insult to the South Korean youths, students and people seeking freedom, democracy and social justice.

All facts clearly show that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a group of flunkeyist traitors uglier than those who sold the nation to the Japanese imperialists and the U.S. imperialist stooges, dirtier than the former puppets, and that he is a vicious fascist tyrant running counter to the aspiration of the times and the nation, a wicked warmonger running amok by killing compatriots and an obstacle on the road to reunification of the fatherland.

It is because of the treachery of the Chon Tu-hwan clique that the spirit of the 19 April uprising has not been realized and an even greater obstacle is being created on the road to the democratization of South Korea society and to the reunification of the nation. Without the elimination of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, neither the sovereignty of the nation nor the democratization of society can be achieved in South Korea. Nor can the students' right to study and the reunification of the country be achieved.

Where repression exists, there is always resistance. It is entirely natural that the struggle against fascism and for democratization is constantly growing stronger in South Korea where human independence and dignity and the human right to exist are relentlessly infringed under the most atrocious fascist military dictatorship.

Today, in South Korea, despite the antipopular oppressive maneuvers of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the people of all strata, shouting the slogans "Tear Chon Tu-hwan limb from Limb" and "Let us overthrow the fascist regime," are waging a persistent struggle for free political activities, campus democratization, freedom of press, publication, assembly and demonstration, and for guarantee of the three labor rights. At the same time, the overseas compatriots are elevating the voice of cursing the antinational rule of the Chon Tu-hwan clique which is persisting in fascism, division and war maneuvers. They are urging the overthrow of the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

The anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle, which is ceaselessly growing stronger in South Korea against fascism and for democratization, shows the unyielding fighting spirit and determination of the South Korean people who will never succumb to oppression and will continue to fight till the spirit of the 19 April uprising has been realized.

For realization of the South Korean people's desire for the democratization of society and the peaceful reunification of the nation, the U.S. forces must be withdrawn from South Korea. The occupation of South Korea by the U.S. forces is a basic cause of the violation of national sovereignty, the stranglehold on democracy and of endangering peace. At the same time, it is a major obstacle to reunification of the country and a cause of the South Korean people's misfortune and agony. As long as the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces continue to stay in South Korea, the demands and desires of the South Korean people cannot be achieved. They will only face even greater calamity and disaster.

It is quite natural that, since the Kwangju mass killing, anti-U.S. sentiment started to grow among the South Korean people, and it has led to the arson attack on the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and the dissemination of leaflets saying "United States, get out." The anti-U.S. move by the South Korean people is not at someone else's instigation and is not an eruption of hard feelings. Rather, it is a reflection of the will and belief which have been gained in life which will no longer allow the occupation and aggressive policy by the outside force. The U.S. imperialist aggressors must withdraw from South Korea at once.

The anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle of the South Korean people is a patriotic struggle to recover the sacred sovereignty of the nation and achieve the democratization of society and the peaceful reunification of the country. Thus, it will not be quenched by any oppression or attempts to placate the people.

Supporting and encouraging the South Korean people's struggle against the United States and fascism and for democratization and the fatherland's reunification is a sacred national duty of the people in the northern half of the republic. As we did in the past, we will continue to send active support and encouragement to the sacred struggle of our brethren in the South.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique must squarely look at the trend of the times. It must abandon the policy of depending on foreign forces, the policy of national division, the fascist terror rule and the war maneuvers. For the crimes of killing compatriots, it must make an apology before the nation and step down from power. At the same time, all fascist evil laws must be rescinded, the fascist oppressive organizations dissolved, freedom of press, publication, assembly, association and demonstration guaranteed, the policy of anti-communist confrontation discontinued, and Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners who were unjustly arrested and imprisoned must be released.

It is characteristic of our times and an irresistible trend that the aggressive policy of the foreign forces and the nation-selling maneuvers of their stooges are being thwarted and the people's just and patriotic struggle for independence is achieving victory.

The South Korean people will not succumb to the oppression and attempts to placate them by the puppets but will certainly achieve the just cause for independence, democracy and reunification through persistent struggle against the United States and fascism.

CHON, BUSH DISCUSS SECURITY, OTHER ISSUES

[Text] Seoul, April 26 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan met with U.S. Vice President George Bush Monday for 50 minutes, discussing the security situation of the Korean Peninsula and other issues, Korean officials said.

During the meeting at South Korea's presidential mansion Chongwadae, Bush conveyed a personal letter to Chon from U.S. President Ronald Reagan, reaffirming Washington's commitment to Korea's defense, the officials said.

They said Bush, the highest U.S. official to visit Korea since President Reagan's inauguration last year, expressed strong support for South Korea's latest formula for Korean unification, unveiled by President Chon in January.

[Text] Jakarta, 25 Apr (AFP) -- Several people were killed here today when troops clashed with Muslim militants who tried to disrupt a general election campaign rally held by the ruling Golkar (functional groups) Party.

At least two people were shot dead at Jalan Kivai Tapa where a number of youths from the rivalMuslim United Development Party (PPP) refused to disperse during a Golkar procession along the road, eyewitnesses said.

They added that four other PPP youths were wounded by stray bullets and were taken to Sumber Waras Hospital at Grogol, west Jakarta.

Reports said similar incidents had also taken place at Gunung Sahari and Salemba, both in central Jakarta, and a number of youths were wounded.

The mass Golkar processions initially began calmly, but trouble flared when Muslim militants emerged from the sideroads to clash with red-bereted Golkar youths distributing Golkar leaflets.

Armed troops fired warning shots into the air in a bid to disperse the Muslim militants but they ignored the shots and kept moving ahead. The troops fired directly at several Muslims who tried to defy them.

So far there was no official confirmation on the deaths and injuries which have badly marred Golkar's last round of campaigning. Jakarta Military Commander Major General Norman Sasono called on Jakarta residents to remain calm. Heavily armed troops and policemen blocked a number of vital roads here apparently to prevent violence from spreading to other areas of Jakarta.

FOREIGN MINISTRY ISSUES STATEMENT ON FALKLANDS

[Text] Tokyo, April 26, KYODO -- Japan expressed Monday deep concern over stepped up tension between Britain and Argentina in conflict over the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands in a statement issued by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi. The statement was announced in the wake of British recapture of the South Georgia Islands reported earlier in the day.

Japan called for an immediate cease of hostile acts and withdrawal of Argentine troops from the islands, the statement said. In the statement, Japan asked both parties for self restraint to prevent additional armed conflicts.

It also expressed Japan's strong hope for continued international efforts for peaceful settlement of the problems.

SAKURAUCHI COMMENTS ON FALKLAND CRISIS

OW260405 Tokyo KYODO in English 0354 GMT 26 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 26, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said Monday the government is still hoping that the dispute over the Falkland Islands between Britain and Argentina will be settled through the mediation efforts of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Sakurauchi told a meeting of the House of Representatives ad hoc committee on Okinawa and northern problems that meausres should be taken by the U.N. Security Council if the mediation efforts fail.

Replying to a question, Sakurauchi said it is regrettable that the dispute over the islands has developed into a military clash. He, however, said he did not believe it will head toward an all-out war and assumed that Britain took the step of attacking the South Georgia Island with some further intention in mind. The foreign minister added he still believed there was room for a settlement through negotiations.

He noted that the U.N. had adopted a resolution calling for a halt to hostile acts and withdrawal of Argentine forces from the islands and believed Secretary of State Haig has not abandoned his mediation efforts. He thus hoped that efforts will be continued for a peaceful solution.

The Foreign Ministry said it was important for Japan to exert efforts for a peaceful solution in consideration of the respective standpoints of Britain and Argentina.

REVERSION OF THE SINAI TO EGYPT WELCOMED

OW260235 Tokyo KYODO in English 0225 GMT 26 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 26, KYODO -- Japan welcomed the reversion of the Sinai to Egypt from Israel in a statement by the foreign minister, Yoshio Sakurauchi Monday. The statement stressed that all pending problems should be settled by peaceful means on the basis of the U.N. resolutions concerning the area.

To reach the goal, the statement asserted, Israel has to withdraw from the regions occupied in the 1967 war, legitimate Palestine rights based on the U.N. charter, including national self-determination for them, should be recognized and, simultaneously, recognize the Israeli right to live peacefully within secure and acknowledged borders.

The statement expressed the readiness of Japan to make contributions to a comprehensive peace settlement as far as possible, by exerting efforts to communicate with all of the involved parties, including the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

BUSH, SUZUKI EXCHANGE TOASTS AT WELCOME BANQUET

[Text] Tokyo, April 24, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and U.S. Vice President George Bush stressed the importance and maturity of the U.S.-Japan relationship in their toasts at a welcoming dinner for the vice president and his wife here Saturday evening.

Bush said: "For more than 30 years my country has maintained as a fundamental principle of its foreign policy the idea that we have no more important and enduring interest than nurturing our close ties with Japan."

Suzuki characterized the U.S.-Japan relationship as enjoying a "maturity unique in any bilateral relationship in the world." He said it "serves as a model of a bilateral relationship in the international community today."

Suzuki said Japan has learned many things from the U.S. besides politics, economics, science and technology, including movies, music, sports and customs. He also referred to the "tremendous imbalance" in favor of the U.S. in baseball players that play in each other's countries.

Suzuki said he agreed "completely" with President Ronald Reagan's recent characterization of the U.S.-Japan relationship as being like a marriage. There may be "occasional arguments," Suzuki said, but the "relationship today is so mature that its foundation will never be shaken."

However, Bush added that "there are issues that require our most serious efforts," and cautioned against taking the relationship for granted. He said it was important to avoid emotionalism and "quick and easy solutions to complicated issues."

"These jeopardize the credibility and confidence so important to both our peoples. Ultimately, they jeopardized our common endeavor to preserve peace and stability in east Asia," Bush said and added: "Let me assure you tonight that consideration, patience, and a willingness to listen will continue to characterize the relations we have with our friend, Japan."

VRPR SCORES U.S. OFFICIAL'S NUCLEAR ARMS REMARKS

[Text] Richard Burt, director of the Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs of the U.S. State Department said in a briefing on the nuclear issue at the Foreign Correspondents' Club (?yesterday in Washington) that the United States does not rule out the possibility of using nuclear weapons on the Korean Peninsula, disclosing stubborn U.S. opposition to Korean reunification. This is a vicious challenge to our people and the world's peace-loving people, who are struggling for a total ban on nuclear weapons and the establishment of non-nuclear zones and peace zones. It is clear evidence of the ugly nature of the U.S. imperialists, who are aggressors and nuclear war fanatics.

If the U.S. imperialists think they can intimidate someone with nuclear weapons to realize their wicked ambitions, this is an anarchronistic illusion. They should stop the reckless scheme to strain the situation and provoke a nuclear war on the Korean Peninsula. They should unconditionally and promptly withdraw from this land all U.S. troops and all lethal weapons, including nuclear arms, as unanimously demanded by our people and the world's peace-loving people.

NODONG SINMUN HITS ROK SPIRITUAL REFORM MOVEMENT

[Text] Pyongyang, April 26 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today points out that the "movement for the reformation of peoples consciousness" in South Korea is aimed at imbuing the people with servile spirit and maintaining the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and despotism. Its signed commentary captioned "Burlesque for Forcing Submission" says that the Democratic Justice Party, a private political party of Chon Tu-hwan, at a recent "meeting for practising reformation of consciousness" preached the necessity of "reformation of consciousness" in combination with economic crisis. But this is nothing but a camouflage for concealing the real nature of their true crisis.

Today the anti-U.S., anti-"government" spirit against the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and the brutal military-terror rule of the Chon Tu-hwan clique is rising rapidly among the South Korean people of all strata. This spirit has been concentrically manifested in the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan and the anti-U.S., anti-"Government" movement spreading among the students, intellectuals and churchmen. This plunges the puppets clinging to the U.S.- toeing policy and the military-terror rule as the last resort into uneasiness and fear and into a blind alley. The outcries of the gang of the Democratic Justice Party over "service," "sacrifice," "public interests" and "order" under the slogan of "reformation of consciousness" reveal its [illegible]ention to stamp out the people's just struggle against the enslavement policy of [illegible]e [illegible]. imperialists and the brutal rule of the Chon Tun-hwan clique and for defence of human dignity and independence and their consciousness of national independence and keep them chained to oppression.

Though the South Korean rulers are trying to imbue the people with servile spirit and maintain and prolong the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and despotism under the slogan of "reformation of consciousness," this trick will lead them nowhere. The base machinations to arrest the patriotic action of the people started by the Chon Tu-hwan clique in league with the U.S. imperialists will only result in fanning the people's resistance movement.

Kim Il Reads KWP Message

[KWP Central Committee congratulatory message to the KPA read by Kim Il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and vice president of the DPRK, at mass rally marking the 50th anniversary of the KPA's founding held at the 8 February House of Culture in Pyongyang on 24 April -- live]

[Text] On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA, the KWP Central Committee extends warm congratulations to all officers and men of the People's Army who have excellently fulfilled their noble mission as the party's army and the revolution's army while traversing a protracted and glorious path of struggle and are reliably safeguarding the line of defense of the socialist fatherland. [applause and cheers]

In the early days when he set out on the road of revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song indicated the road to carry out the anti-imperialist national liberation revolution through an organizational armed struggle by standing revolutionary armed forces, put forth an original policy of building a genuine revolutionary army of workers and peasants who struggled for the freedom and liberation of the people and the cause of socialism and communism and personally founded the Korean People's Revolutionary Army [KPRA] on 25 April 1932. [applause]

The founding of the KPRA was the birth of a glorious chuche-type revolutionary army struggling for the cause of the independence of the nation and people, taking the chuche idea as a guiding principle, and was a historic event which brought about a new turn in the development of the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle and the communist movement in our country. [applause] The founding of the KPRA realized the long-cherished desire of our people to have a genuine army fighting against foreign aggressive forces and the independence of the country and the dignity of the nation. It signified the beginning of a glorious history of genuine revolutionary armed forces struggling for the national and class liberation and the victory of the cause of socialism and communism. [applause]

Our revolutionary armed forces, born in the flames of the arduous revolutionary struggle, have brilliantly fulfilled an honorable mission and duty of defending and safeguarding the fatherland, people and the revolutionary cause under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the outstanding military strategist and ever-victorious iron-willed commander. [applause]

The anti-Japanese armed struggle had been a revolutionary war to vanquish the imperialists' aggression forces by the revolutionary armed forces and to achieve the country's independence and the nation's liberation. It had been an unprecedently protracted and arduous liberation war. The KPRA dealt annihilating blows at and repeatedly inflicted defeats upon the Japanese imperialist aggressors, superior in number and technology, taking the initiative in each battle against the enemy by embodying the unique military strategy, superb guerrilla tactics and war methods put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

By highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance with faith in certain victory even under difficult conditions in which there was no support from the rear areas of the nation or support from the regular army, the KPRA courageously fought the enemy by overcoming all difficulties and hardships with indomitable fighting spirit and securing all that was necessary by themselves.

The KPRA excellently displayed the noble feature of the revolutionary army endlessly loving the fatherland and the people and devotedly struggling for them. [applause]

The anti-Japanese armed struggle had been waged in close relation to the struggle for laying the organizational and ideological foundations for founding our party and firmly consolidating our revolution's chuche-oriented force. As the political army organizing and mobilizing the people to the revolutionary struggle as well as the armed ranks fighting the Japanese imperialists, the KPRA expanded the party's organizational backbone among the broad masses of all walks of life by penetrating into and positively conducting political activities among the masses and organized the masses under the anti-Japanese banner, vigorously spurring them to the anti-Japanese sacred war. [applause]

Through its 15 year-long bloody struggle, the KPRA performed an imperishable feat -- defeating the Japanese imperialist aggressors and liberating the country -- and played an important role in laying the organizational and ideological foundation for founding the party and building the chuche-oriented force of the revolution. [applause]

Following the liberation, under the wise leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the KPRA was reorganized into the KPA and strengthened and developed as modern regular armed forces. As a result, our people could have powerful armed forces which were able to defend the national independence and sovereignty from the subversive maneuvers of the imperialists and the class enemy. [applause]

The fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialist aggressors was a sacred war to defend the independence of the country and the sovereignty of the nation and was a bitter military confrontation with the allied forces of the U.S. imperialists and other world reactionaries. During the period of the severe fatherland liberation war by which the destiny of the fatherland was to be decided, the KPA officers and men firmly upheld the outstanding tactical and strategic policy of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and displayed the spirit of incomparable sacrifice and mass heroism. By so doing, they relentlessly annihilated the aggressors in every battle, striking devastating blows at the enemy. [applause]

During the course of the war, the KPA officers and men fully realized their noble mission for the party and the revolution and displayed the heroic spirit and the combat capability of the revolutionary army. With political and ideological superiority and tactical and strategic superiority, they defeated the numerical and technological superiority of the enemy, creating a military miracle of defeating the aggressive forces of the powerful imperialists. [applause]

In the sacred war to defend the fatherland, our KPA officers and men, with the boundless loyalty to the party and the leader, safeguarded by blood the people's power and the new system which had brought freedom and happiness to them. By sacrificing their adolescence and lives, they defended every inch of the land of the fatherland and guaranteed victory in the war. [applause] By winning a great victory in the 3-year fatherland liberation war, our People's Army honorably safeguarded the independence of the fatherland and the gains of the revolution, starting the downhill slide of the U.S. imperialists and vigorously encouraging the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle to a new upsurge. [applause]

The victories in the two revolutionary wars against the Japanese and the U.S. imperialists were shining triumphs of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's military ideology of self-reliance in defense and the art of his military operation. At the same time, they were a striking demonstration of the invincible might of our people and People's Army, firmly rallied around the party and the leader. [applause]

In the postwar period, the KPA, by implementing the party's military line of self-reliance in defense, strengthened its political and military might and reliably protected the revolutionary cause of our party and people for the socialist revolution and construction.

Whenever the U.S. imperialists and their stooges aggravated the situation and committed criminal provocations, it firmly thwarted them and displayed the heroic spirit of the People's Army. [applause]

As the true People's Army, the KPA has always loved the people and actively supported them in the socialist construction, greatly contributing to building the great monuments glorifying the era of the Workers Party. [applause]

At a time when the party and the revolution were facing grim trials because of the maneuvers of domestic and foreign enemies, the KPA, without faltering, defended and protected the party and the leader and, under the leadership of the party, actively struggled to overcome difficulties and guarantee the victorious advance of the Korean revolution. [applause]

During the past half century, our revolutionary armed forces fought with the imperialist aggressors and the domestic reactionary force and experienced guerrilla warfare and modern warfare. During this course they have grown as powerful revolutionary armed forces. [applause]

The KPA, which has overcome ordeals and has excellently fulfilled its honorable mission before the fatherland and the revolution, has grown and been strengthened as our party's revolutionary armed forces in which the party's unitary ideology is fully imbued today and which loyally upholds the party's leadership, as the genuine army of the people which is endlessly faithful to the working class' cause and is linked to the popular masses by blood ties, and as the one-a-match-for-100 revolutionary army which has been armed politically and ideologically, militarily and technologically and which has been converted into a cadre arm and a modern army. [applause]

The 50 years of our People's Army are a history of glory in which the chuche-oriented idea of building revolutionary armed forces advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has been brilliantly embodied. It is a proud history in which it reliably ensured with arms the triumphant advance of the revolutionary cause of chuche under the leadership of the part and the leader. [applause]

Dwelling in the resplendent victories and achievements attained by our people in the revolution and construction are the precious blood and sweat shed by the officers and men of the People's Army for the fatherland, the people and the victory of the revolution and the noble revolutionary spirit evinced by them. [applause]

The presence of the heroic KPA -- our party's invincible revolutionary armed forces -- firmly ensures the existence of the socialist fatherland with which no aggressors dare to toy and the boundless prosperity of our fatherland and nation. [applause]

It is a great pride of our party and people to possess the heroic KPA, which has inherited the glorious revolutionary tradition of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, traversing a proud and militant path illumined with victories. It possesses the invincible might to vanquish any imperialist aggression forces. [applause]

Because of its boundless loyalty to the party and revolution and of its devoted service to the fatherland and people, the People's Army is deeply admired and loved by all the people. [applause]

The KWP Central Committee highly values the devoted struggle waged by the anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters, heroic soldiers and all officers and men of the People's Army over the past half century to achieve the country's liberation and defend the nation's honor and independence and win the victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and their immortal exploits, which will shine forever in the annals of the fatherland. [applause]

Today, in conformity with the new lofty demands of the revolutionary development, putting forth the modelling of the entire army on the chuche idea as the general task for building the armed forces, our party is vigorously leading the struggle for its realization.

Modelling the army on the chuche idea is the programmatic task for building our revolutionary armed forces and the noble cause for making the People's Army the glorious chuche-type revolutionary army, endlessly loyal to the party and the leader.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The People's Army is our party's revolutionary armed forces. By imbuing the People's Army with the party's unitary ideology and firmly guaranteeing the party's leadership over it, we should make the People's Army resolutely defend and safeguard the party and ensure the party's revolutionary cause with arms. Thoroughly imbuing the People's Army with the party's unitary ideology is the basic principle which our party is consistently maintaining for modeling the army on the chuche idea. By more thoroughly imbuing its ranks with the party's unitary ideology, the People's Army should more firmly prepare itself as the loyal revolutionary ranks which resolutely defend and safeguard the party and the leader under any adverse situation and as the ever-victorious combat ranks which firmly guarantee the consummation of the revolutionary cause of chuche with arms. [applause]

The officers and men of the People's Army should be armed with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary ideology -- the chuche idea -- and think and act at any time and any place in accord with the party's ideology and will, devotedly struggling for the consummation of the Korean revolution. [applause]

By strengthening the indoctrination of the unitary ideology among the soldiers, the party organizations within the People's Army should model themselves after the pure loyalty and indomitable revolutionary spirit demonstrated by the young communists who struggled, unhesitatingly sacrificing their lives, to accomplish the chuche-oriented revolutionary line upholding the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song in the early days of the Korean revolutions, thereby becoming the chuche-type communist revolutionaries boundlessly loyal to the party and leader. [applause]

The People's Army is the direct successor to our party's glorious revolutionary traditions and its reliable protector. [applause]

Adhering to the question of defending, inheriting and developing our party's revolutionary traditions, regarding this question as an important task in building the army to consummate the revolutionary cause of chuche to the end generation after generation, the People's Army should have all the soldiers deeply comprehend the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition and the brilliant achievements and abundant experiences attained by our party; and the People's Army should have all soldiers model themselves after the indomitable fighting spirit and revolutionary spirit exhibited by the anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters, holding aloft the revolutionary slogan "Training, study, life -- all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrillas!" and have them thoroughly embody our party's revolutionary traditions. [applause]

The uncompromising spirit of struggle against all class enemies, including the imperialists, and the spirit of dedicated service to the socialist fatherland are noble ideological and spiritual features of our People's Army soldiers. Firmly arming them with the anti-imperialist revolutionary ideology and high class-consciousness is an important demand for making the People's Army the army of the revolution and of the working class.

By strengthening revolutionary indoctrination, class indoctrination, and socialist, patriotic indoctrination among the People's Army soldiers, we should firmly arm them with the working-class and the revolutionary views of the world, have them endlessly hate the imperialists and all kinds of class enemies, firmly defend our socialist system against the enemies' invasion and devotedly struggle for the boundless prosperity of the fatherland and the victory of the Korean revolution.

The KPA is the army of the glorious KWP, and the party's leadership is life for the revolutionary armed forces. [applause]

Without the party's leadership, the revolutionary nature of the People's Army cannot be defended, and the People's Army cannot fulfill its noble mission and nor can we anticipate the strengthening and development of our revolutionary armed forces.

We should establish the revolutionary work system within the entire army, under which the army loyally upholds the party's leadership, should firmly establish the revolutionary trait of the army resolving all problems arising in army building and military affairs in accord with the party's intention and demands, and unconditionally and thoroughly accomplishing the party's orders and directives. [applause]

All the officers and men of the People's Army should uphold the party's leadership and resolutely defend and safeguard the party politically and ideologically with their lives under any difficult conditions and hardships. [applause]

Modern military technology should be combined with the political and ideological superiority of the revolutionary armed forces in order to strengthen the revolutionary armed forces. Better arming the People's Army militarily and technologically and strengthening its combat capability in every way is an important guarantee for firmly defending our fatherland and the revolutionary cause. By upholding the program for converting the entire army into a cadre army and for modernizing the entire army and the five-point policy for its realization put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and by more vigorously waging combat training, the People's Army should have all soldiers deeply comprehend the chuche tactics, firmly arm themselves with modern military science and technology and have a thorough knowledge of up-to-date weapons, combat technology and equipment. [applause]

The commanding officers and political functionaries of the People's Army should assiduously manage units by helping and guiding each other. By having all the soldiers possess the 10-points of communist, militant and moral character put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and thoroughly abide by the 10-point standard of conduct in military service, they should endlessly strengthen and develop the People's Army into a one-a-match-for-100 revolutionary armed forces which are firmly prepared politically and ideologically, militarily and technologically. [applause]

The revolutionary comradeship, closeness of upper and lower echelons and the unity between the army and the people are the distinctive features of a revolutionary army. The People's Army soldiers should highly display the traditional good morals and manners of heartily loving revolutionary comrades, strengthening principled unity, defending the people's interests like the apple of their eye, sharing their fate with the people and faithfully serving the people.

Due to the U.S. imperialists and their stooges' more undisguised maneuvers for provoking a new war, a tense situation, in which a war may break out at any moment, is today being created in our country. In conformity with the demands of the prevailing situation, maintaining an alert and mobilized posture, the People's Army should thoroughly smash the enemy's provocative maneuvers and defend the socialist fatherland like an impregnable fortress by further completing the combat preparedness of the units so as to smash the enemy at one stroke, no matter when or where the enemy attacks. [applause]

The KWP Central Committee firmly believes that the KPA will, in the future too, vigorously struggle for brilliantly inheriting and consummating the revolutionary cause of chuche and honorably fulfill its noble mission under the party's leadership [yongdo], firmly rallying around the party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, holding high the revolutionary banner of the chuche idea. [applause]

O Chin-u Speech at Rally

[Speech by DPRK KWP Political Bureau member and Minister of the People's Armed Forces O Chin-u at 24 April Pyongyang rally marking KPA's 50th anniversary -- live]

[Text] Comrades, 50 years have passed since the Korean People's Army [KPA], the revolutionary armed forces of our party, made a declaration to the world on its emergence. During the half century since the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song activated the anti-Japanese guerrillas and began to organize and wage an armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists, our revolutionary armed forces have traversed the proud road of victory and glory and attained immortal achievements which will shine forever in the history of the fatherland. [applause]

Greeting the significant anniversary of the KPA, authorized by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and on behalf of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee, I warmly congratulate our courageous officers and men of the People's Army and the people's security forces on having gloriously accomplished their sacred duty as the armies of the party and the revolution and firmly defending the fatherland's (? line of defense.) [applause, shouts] At the same time, I pay homage to the anti-Japanese revolutionary patriots, the heroic warriors of the People's Army and patriotic fighters who devoted their precious lives to the cause of achieving the liberation of the fatherland, the freedom and liberation of the people, the independence of the country and the victory of the revolution. [applause]

I also extend warm greetings to war veterans and disabled soldiers who courageously fought to achieve the independence of the fatherland and the glory of the people in the fatherland liberation war and who are now continuously making the flowers of the revolutionary blossom on the labor front of socialist construction. [applause] I express deep thanks to all the people who have brilliantly performed labor exploits on all fronts of socialist construction by displaying lofty revolutionary zeal and creative positiveness and who value and love the People's Army just as they do their own flesh and blood and sincerely offer assistance. [applause] I warmly welcome the diplomatic envoys of various foreign countries and the foreign comrades and friends who are attending this meeting with us to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the activation of the KPA. [applause]

Comrades, the activation of true revolutionary armed forces in our country and their brilliant militant course are closely linked to the history of the glorious revolutionary struggle of our people, who have victoriously advanced under the banner of the chuche idea. Without the activation of our revolutionary armed forces and their heroic struggle, we cannot imagine the Korean revolution, which has steadily developed by overcoming grim difficulties. Nor can we imagine the provision of a military factor for defending the people's sovereignty and dignity and achieving the chuche cause.

Because the Korean people lacked true revolutionary armed forces to firmly defend the fatherland and the people, they once were deprived of their country by the Japanese imperialists. They were forced to endure the status of colonial slavery. While maintaining colonial rule over Korea by resorting to anti-revolutionary armed forces after occupying our country, the Japanese imperialists bestially suppressed the patriotic struggle of the Korean people.

During the period prior to and after the occupation of Korea by the Japanese imperialists, our people waged a righteous struggle against foreign imperialist aggressors in various ways, such as militia struggles and independence force movements. However, the Japanese imperialists bloodily suppressed the Korean people's struggle against Japan by force of arms. As shown by the initial communist movement and the national liberation struggle in our country, we can neither repel the imperialists' aggressive armed forces and protect the country's independence and the prople's sovereignty nor victoriously pioneer the future path of the revolution without one's own powerful revolutionary armed forces.

During the dark period when the country was submerged in a sea of blood owing to the Japanese imperialists' bestial tyranny and barbarous acts and the people's sufferings reached their zenith, the Korean people recognized from their experiences that, without struggling with arms, they could not extricate themselves from national ruin. They unanimously and ardently desired a powerful army of their own.

When the great leeader Comrade Kim Il-song embarked on the road of leading the revolution, taking responsibility for the destiny of the fatherland and the people, our people brilliantly fulfilled this ardent desire. [applause]

At the initial stage of embarking on the road of the revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song brought about the glorious origins of our revolutionary armed forces by having profound insight into the significance of the development of the revolutionary armed forces in the revolutionary struggle of the working class and by wisely leading the struggle to solve this question with a chuche stand. [applause]

Having insight into the serous lesson of the preceding nationalist movement in our country and the lawful requirements of the revolutionary movement in our country and the lawful requirements of the revolutionary struggle, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song discovered the previous truth of the revolution that only by smashing the antirevolutionary violence of imperialism can the people in colonial states achieve national liberation and independence, and he set forth the line for the anti-Japanese armed struggle and the policy for building a regular revolutionary armed forces. This line and policy set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song are a chuche-type revolutionary line for the Korean people to take the responsibility for the Korean revolution and to complete it and area unique line which pioneered a new advance in the colonial national liberation war and in building revolutionary armed forces. [applause]

After delineating the correct line for building revolutionary armed forces in our country, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song energetically carried out the preparation work to activate a revolutionary armed force, overcoming all difficulties and trials with an indomitable will and an extraordinary revolutionary ability under difficult circumstances in which there was neither sovereignty nor the foundation of the People's Army and in which the entire country was covered with the Japanese imperialists' suppressive network. As the first preparatory work for activating revolutionary armed forces, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song formed the Korean Revolutionary Army in July 1930 with the nucleus of the Korean Communist Youth League and the Anti-Imperialist League, which he had personally fostered.

The Korean Revolutionary Army was the first revolutionary armed organization in our country. Its military and political activities marked the starting point of the anti-Japanese armed struggle.

By sending members of the Korean Revolutionary Army -- the fresh communists from the new generation -- to many areas, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Il-song saw to it that a vigorous struggle was waged to form an armed rank and file and to obtain weapons, and he energetically waged the struggle to foster the nucleus of the revolutionary army and to consolidate the mass foundation of an armed struggle by personally mingling with workers, peasants, youths and students.

Through the struggle to implement the policy for building a revolutionary armed force and based on the solid political and military foundation which he had personally laid, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song finally formed an anti-Japanese armed rank on 25 April 1932 and made a declaration on the activation of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army [KPRA]. [applause]

The KPRA was a chuche-type revolutionary armed force which had been activated by our people themselves to achieve national independence and social liberation with the great chuche idea as a guideline. The KPRA was a truly popular armed force organized with advanced workers, peasants, and patriotic youths, maintaining blood ties with the people. It was a true revolutionary army with the mission of achieving the liberation of the fatherland and people by repelling the Japanese imperialist aggressors, eliminating all forms of class oppression and exploitation and building socialism and communism. [applause]

The news of the activation of the KPRA spread to the 3,000-ri country, made the Japanese imperialist aggressors shudder and greatly encouraged our people, suffering in darkness, to cherish confidence in the victory of the revolution. Indeed, the activation of the KPRA was a brilliant fulfillment of the long-cherished desire of our people to have a true revolutionary armed force and a magnificent, historic declaration on the emergence of the first, true revolutionary armed force of the working class in our country. [applause]

With the activation of the KPRA, the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle in our country entered a new revolutionary era of colonial national liberation by smashing the imperialist aggressors with a domestic regular revolutionary army to achieve the liberation of the fatherland and the independence of the country. [applause]

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song organized and led the heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle of our people to victory by activating the KPRA and by continuously strengthening and developing it to meet the requirements for developing a revolution and a revolutionary war. [applause]

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The commencement of the anti-Japanese armed struggle by the young Korean communists was a historic event developing our people's national liberation movement and the Korean communist movement to a new, higher stage. The glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle of our people was a colonial, national liberation war waged under the revolutionary banner of chuche; it was a grim, protracted and decisive revolutionary war courageously waged against the piratic Japanese imperialists, who ran wile to dominate the whole of Asia, resorting to their vast military capability, economic potential and fascist colonial system and clamoring about the greatness of the great Japanese empire.

Based on the chuche idea, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song uniquely solved all theoretical and practical questions on the colonial and national liberation war. Based on the scientific analysis of the characteristics of the situation in our country and the colonial and national liberation war, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song defined guerrilla war as the basic form of the armed struggle and comprehensively delineated all strategic and tactical questions in the armed struggle to liberate the people in colonial states, such as matters concerning the continuous expansion and strengthening of guerrilla ranks, the establishment of guerrilla strongholds and guerrilla tactics.

After explaining that the armed struggle to liberate the people in colonial states should develop into a struggle to build a party -- staff headquarters of the revolution -- and to rally the broad strate of the people around the revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth an outstanding line and policy for laying an organizational and ideological basis for founding the party in the course of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle with an armed struggle as the central feature and for forming an anti-Japanese national united front.

The chuche-type revolutionary line and policy on the struggle to liberate the people in colonial states set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was an immortal militant banner which guaranteed the victory of the overall Korean revolution, including the anti-Japanese armed struggle, and was a programmatic guideline which delineated a correct direction and method for people in colonial states to independently smash the antirevolutionary violence of foreign imperialists and to achieve national independence and freedom. [applause]

With the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's setting forth a correct line and policy on the revolution for liberating the people in colonial states, and with the organization and waging of the heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle, our people's national liberation movement and the Korean communist movement developed onto a new, higher stage, with armed struggle as a central element, and our revolution traversed a proud road shining with victory and glory. [applause]

Having a profound insight into the characteristics of guerrilla war and into the changing military and political situation during the entire period of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song correctly defined the strategic stages of the armed struggle and the missions to be performed at these stages, correctly predicted the enemy's maneuvers, discovered its strategic and tactical weak points, invented flexible guerrilla strategies and tactics and wisely led the KPRA in implementing these strategies and tactics. [applause]

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's profound military strategy and flexible guerrilla tactics enabled the KPRA to always take the initiative on the battlefield, to overcome the enemy's numerical and technical supremacy, and to deal severe blows at the enemy and defeat it. [applause]

From the time of its activation, the KPRA brilliantly implemented the strategic and tactical policy on the anti-Japanese armed struggle set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, courageously overcoming mounting difficulties and grim trials. Thus, it successfully performed its glorious role as a leading force of the Korean revolution and continuously developed into a powerful revolutionary armed force. [applause]

At the initial stage of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the KPRA established a guerrilla base which was of significance in developing the armed struggle and in achieving the victory of the Korean revolution, and it performed heroic exploits in the struggle to defend this base. The guerrilla base established in the area along the Tuman River in the first half of the 1930's was the military strategic stronghold of the KPRA, was a reliable logistical base and was a revolutionary fortress which guaranteed unified guidance for the overall Korean revolution in carrying out preparatory work for founding the party and the movement to form a anti-Japanese national united front. With the establishment of a guerrilla base and with the implementation of various democratic reforms in guerrilla districts, the KPRA became militarily and politically active. As a result, armed struggle and, through it, the overall Korean revolution were steadily expanded and developed, dealing great military and political blows at the Japanese imperialist aggressors.

Dismayed at the expansion and development of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the Japanese aggressors carried out ceaseless punitive operations against the guerrilla bases. However, the KPRA members and the people who were residing in the guerrilla bases, under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, smashed every desperate punitive operation of the enemy by establishing an all-out defense system and heroically defended the guerrilla bases for as long as 4 to 5 years in such difficult circumstances. [applause]

In conformity with the prevailing situation and the requirements of the development of the revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the mid-1930's advanced outstanding strategic lines to make preparations for founding the party, more actively carrying out the movement of the anti-Japanese national united front throughout the nation and expanding the armed struggle deep into the country, and wisely led the KPRA to the implementation of these lines. During this period, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who had constantly consolidated and developed the first chuche-oriented party organization established immediately after the (Karyon) meeting, further expanded and developed the party organizations among the armed rank and file and the revolutionary people and consolidated the KPRA party committee and enhanced the combat capability and role of the party organizations. By so doing, he established a firm party organizational system in the revolutionary rank and file and further strengthened the organizational and ideological basis for founding the party.

As a result of the intensification of the activities of the party organizations of the KPRA and the expansion of the grassroots party organizations everywhere, the unitary leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was firmly exercised through the KPRA party committee over the armed struggle, and the Korean revolution as a whole and the preparations for founding our party were successfully carried out.

The great leader Comrade Im Il-song established the Association for Fatherland Restoration -- the first anti-Japanese united front in our country -- and, through the vigorous political and military activities of the KPRA, further expanded its organizational system deep into the country. By so doing, he provided a firm guarantee for further intensifying the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle throughout the nation.

The struggle to vigorously accelerate the nationwide preparations for founding the party and the movement of the anti-Japanese national united front was carried out in a close connection with the vigorous military activities of the KPRA. In the late 1930's, upholding the outstanding strategic lines of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the KPRA moved the arena of its activities by establishing a new revolutionary base in the area of Mt Paektu. By so doing, it smashed all of the so-called blockade and enveloping operations of the enemy, driving them to defensive positions and placing them at bay.

In particular, at a time when the fascist colonial oppression of the Japanese imperialists and their policy to extinguish the nation reached the worst stage, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song victoriously organized and commanded the historic Pochonbo battle, shaking the colonial rule of the brigandish Japanese imperialists and giving our people hope for the restoration of the nation. [applause]

Even when the Japanese imperialist aggressors staged a desperate attack by mobilizing hundreds of thousands of troops and planes to recoup from repeated military and political defeats, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with various chuche-oriented guerrilla tactics and strategies meeting the situation, firmly took the initiative while victoriously organizing and commanding the KPRA's 100-day march of trial, its advance into the Musan area, and its new large-unit operations in the area northeast of Mt Paektu. He presented ceaseless defeats to the enemy, who was superior in terms of strength, and secured the continued development of the Korean revolution. [applause]

In the days of arduous struggle when they had to carve out a rigorous path and overcome the crisis of the death-line at every stage, the KPRA members fought the enemy, highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance in carrying out the Korean revolution to the end with their own strength, while resolving all problems -- such as securing arms and rations -- by themselves.

They fought heroically day after day for the long period of 15-odd years with the indomitable fighting spirit of smashing the enemy no matter how many times they were confronted with death-defying crisis, though they were faced with various kinds of difficulties and hardships -- such as severe cold weather, starvation, endless battles against an enemy many times more numerous, continuous arduous marches, and other adverse situations beyond human description. [applause]

In the rigorous situation in which they had to carve their way through the enemy with their lives to break through the enemy's siege while they carried out dangerous underground operations or team activities far away from headquarters, KPRA members fought like the undying phoenix, overflowing with indomitable revolutionary spirit and revolutionary optimism and fully demonstrating their spirit and courage as a revolutionary army.

The entire people's and nation's unanimous admiration of and absolute trust in the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who won a reputation as legendary commander as a young general in his twenties in the darkest days of the Japanese colonialist rule, and the ardent loyalty of the guerrillas and people who turned out to devote everything to the revolution led by the leader -- these were sources of the invincible strength of the KPRA, which, displaying matchless bravery and feats, smashed at every step the Japanese imperialist aggressors who possessed colossal armed forces and modern combat technical equipment. [applause]

With firm conviction in certain victory of the Korean people as long as they followed the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the KPRA members resolutely defended and safeguarded the revolution's headquarters politically and ideologically and with their lives.

They trusted only in the respected and beloved Gen Kim Il-song and followed him even in the hardships in which they had to substitute grass for every meal and to make their way through a forest of guns and bayonets, thus highly displaying a spirit of self-sacrifice and the indomitable revolutionary spirit of defying bullets, shells and the threat of the guillotine and defending and accomplishing the comrade commander's orders and operational directives to the end. [applause]

The KPRA members, who always regarded the people's interests as the primary factor, upheld the teachings of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who said: As fish cannot live without water, so guerrillas cannot survive without the people.

They resolutely defended the people's interests and thoroughly protected the people's lives and fortunes, fully displaying the noble feature of the revolutionary army which, in unity with the people, mopped up the enemy.

Our people, who possessed firm faith in the future of fatherland's liberation and the national revival thanks to the KPRA's invincible might and brilliant exploits, supported and encouraged the KPRA both materially and spiritually even under the awe-inspiring surveillance and control of the enemy, and they positively assisted in the army's military and political activities.

In the days of the armed struggle against the Japanese, the commanding staff and members of the KPRA highly displayed the noble and good morals and manners of revolutionary comradeship of caring for and loving each other as if they were real brothers. By thoroughly embodying the standards for managing the units of the KPRA personally put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, they always managed the units assiduously and voluntarily abided by the rules and orders.

In reality, by upholding the outstanding and wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the KPRA displayed its invincible might in the battles against the enemy with a firm conviction in the victory of the recolution even under arduous conditions. Although the entire land of 3,000 li was submerged in a sea of blood, our people could strenuously struggle, paying no heed to pessimism and looking forward to a new day of liberation. [applause]

Throughout the course of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the KPRA was always loyal to proletariat internationalism. Shoulder to shoulder with the outstanding sons and daughters of the Chinese people, the Korean communists carried out the joint struggle against the Japanese imperialist aggressors and, under the slogan "Let us protect the Soviet Union with arms," fought in unity with the Soviet people.

In accordance with the demand of the new situation, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, at the turn of the 1940's advanced the strategic policy of taking the initiative in ushering in the great event of fatherland restoration, further strengthened the KPRA and further intensified its political and military activities and saw to it that the people of the broad strata of the country vigorously made preparations for an all-out struggle to be carried out along with the armed struggle. At the decisive time when the revolutionary situation within and without was becoming more favorable to our people's struggle for national liberation, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song perfected an operational plan for the liberation of the fatherland and mobilized the KPRA units in the final decisive battle against the Japanese imperialists. Thus, at long last, he achieved the historic cause of the restoration of the fatherland. [applause]

The shining victory in the 20-year oong anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle against the outrageous Japanese imperialist aggressors was a demonstration of the unyielding spirit and might of the Korean people under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and a historic event which brought an end to the nearly half-century long colonial rule of the Japanese imperialists and enabled our people to set out on the broad road of creating a new life with proud national sovereignty. [applause] The victory in the anti-Japanese armed struggle greatly contributed to defeating the imperialist colonial system in the East and to smashing the Asian shock brigade of international fascism. [applause]

During the course of the arduous anti-Japanese armed struggle, the chuche-oriented political and ideological unity of our revolutionary army and revolutionary rank and file was achieved, the chuche-type revolutionary force to carry out our revolution was organized, and our party's shining revolutionary tradition -- based on the ideological system of chuche, the communist revolutionary spirit, the noble revolutionary gains and fighting experience, the revolutionary working method and the popular working style was formed — were established. [applause]

The revolutionary armed rank and file, nourished and strengthened in the flames of the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, were an organizational backbone for the founding of our party and the regular armed forces and, thanks to this nucleus unit, we could brilliantly achieve the historic cause of founding the party, the state and the army in difficult circumstances following the liberation. For a people who have achieved the independence of their nation, strengthening and developing the revolutionary armed forces, founded in the days of the struggle for national liberation, into powerful regular armed forces is the essential demand arising from the work of defending national sovereignty and the victory in the revolution and carrying out the construction of a new society.

Following the liberation, when the U.S. imperialists -- the ringleaders of world reactionaries -- occupied South Korea and were scheming to make the entire Korea into their colony and a strategic stronghold for the invasion of Asia, the founding of regular revolutionary armed forces was an urgent question in our country, the solution of which brooked not a moments delay. In accordance with the lawful demand for founding the revolutionary armed forces and the prevailing situation of our country and with clear insight into the characteristics of our revolution and its future, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forward a wise policy for building regular revolutionary armed forces, based on the priceless experience in founding the revolutionary armed forces in the period of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, inheriting the anti-Japanese revolutionary traditions and firmly armed politically and ideologically and militarily and technically. Then, he energetically carried out the struggle to implement this policy.

The policy of founding the regular armed forces which was worked out by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a revolutionary policy which reliably supplied a military guarantee for our people's struggle for the construction of a new society. It was an outstanding policy which guaranteed the superiority of the revolutionary over the counterrevolutionary forces and helped accelerate the Korean revolution as a whole in the circumstances in which we were confronting the U.S. imperialists. [applause]

Based on the chuche-oriented army building policy, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song delineated the work for class organization of the army rank and file, the establishment of the system of party leadership over the army, the improvement of the arms and equipment of the army and the development of services and branches in parallel with the nature of modern warfare and the situation of our country, and other principled questions to be considered as guiding principles in the construction of regular revolutionary armed forces. At a time when many able functionaries were needed for the great cause for the founding of the party and the state, the great leader assigned revolutionary cadres tempered in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to the work of founding the people's armed forces, nourished numerous military and political cadres from workers and peasants by establishing military and political cadre training organizations such as the Pyongyang Academy, the Central Security Cadre School and the Security Cadre Training Institute. He established new units in each service and branch, providing the required material conditions one by one.

Based on these complete preparations, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in February 1948 strengthened and developed the KPRA into the KPA -- regular revolutionary armed forces. [applause]

The KPA, which is the successor of the KPRA, is the powerful army of the people and a chuche-type regular revolutionary armed force composed of many services and branches, firmly prepared politically and ideologically and armed with modern weapons and military technology. Thanks to the founding of the regular revolutionary armed forces by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our people have been able to have a reliable military guarantee with which they can defend national independence and sovereignty by themselves, carry out the socialist and communist cause and victoriously advance the cause for independence and against imperialism. [applause]

The correctness of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's chuche-oriented policy for the development of the KPRA into regular revolutionary armed forces and the invincible might of the KPA were fully displayed during the great fatherland liberation war of our people. With the unceasing ambition to make Korea their permanent colony and a bridgehead for controlling Asia and the world, the U.S. imperialist aggressors had desperately accelerated war preparations since the first day of their occupation of South Korea following liberation and ceaselessly committed provocations. And, on 25 June 1950, they launched a large-scale armed invasion against our people.

The fatherland liberation war of our people, which was imposed by the U.S. imperialists, was a bitter, decisive war which would decide whether we would be able to defend the sovereignty of the country and the nation or again become the colonial slaves of the imperialists. It was a severe modern war in which we fought against aggressive troops of the allied imperialist forces supplied with up-to-date combat technology and equipment. At a time when the fatherland and the people were facing a great danger, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, shouldering all the burdens of the front and the rear, rallied the party, the army and the people as a single combat unit with the militant slogan "Everything for victory in the war," vigorously organizing and mobilizing them to the sacred war to smash the enemy.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song had political and ideological education intensified among our revolutionary army and people to demonstrate their political and ideological superiority. By so doing, he made the people and soldiers, convinced of victory and full of revolutionary optimism, demonstrate incomparable courage and mass heroism in fighting against the strong imperialist aggressors. [applause]

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a correct strategic and tactical policy in each stage of the war and confidently led the fatherland liberation war to victory with his outstanding and tested guidance and extraordinary art of command. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song created unique chuche strategies and tactics reflecting the demands of a modern war and the situation prevailing in the country -- such as demands for regular warfare, guerrilla warfare, mountain warfare, night warfare, the formation of the second front in the rear of the enemy, desperate efforts to defend their position by tunneling, the airplane-hunting-team movement and the tank-hunting-team movement -- and wisely led to thoroughly implement them. [applause]

In the grim days of the war the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went to the frontline and organized and commanded the operations and combat missions of the People's Army units. This resulted in the enemy's numerical and technical advantage being crushed by the strategic and tactical advantage based on political and ideological superiority and in the People's Army taking the initiative and giving a succession of hard blows to the enemy. [applause]

Deeply conscious of its noble mission for the party and revolution in the whole period of the war, the People's Army firmly defended the fatherland and the gains of the revolution and fully demonstrated the heroic stamina and military might of the revolutionary army equipped with the chuche idea by implementing the outstanding strategic and tactical policy put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

Our heroic People's Army — which, in a short period since the nation's liberation, had been strengthened into an invincible regular revolutionary armed force under the wise guidance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- promptly started a counterattack on the frontline, repelling the enemy's surprise attack, and achieved the brilliant success of liberating Seoul, the enemy's citadel, in 3 days, and over 90 percent of South Korean territory and over 92 percent of the South Korean population in a month and a half. [applause]

The South Korean people, who had not enjoyed true human life until they experienced the benevolent measures of the people's democratic system established in the liberated areas, supported the People's Army heading south in many ways, and many youths joined the volunteer army and turned out in the sacred war to smash the enemy. In the days of the tactical retreat, which was a time of great hardship to the fatherland and the people, our people's army, upholding the policy put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, waged bloody struggles to crush the U.S. imperialist aggressors' atrocious ground attacks and their landing operations at Inchon and Wonsan and matched frontal attacks by basic units on the frontline with harassments by second front units behind enemy lines, thus tilting the war in our favor.

With the U.S. imperialist aggressors starting a new round of attacks to recover their defeats and with the war protracting, the People's Army thoroughly implemented the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's outstanding strategic policy on active position defense by tunneling. By so doing, it opened a favorable phase in crushing the enemy's repeated and desperate attacks and achieving the ultimate victory of the war. In the days of the fierce war the combat personnel of our People's Army, out of burning loyalty to the party and the leader, demonstrated at every combat site the revolutionary spirit of incomparable mass heroism and invincibility. They, who had undergone the sufferings of homelessness, devoted themselves to the fight against the enemy to defend the people's democratic system and our revolutionary power the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set up in the northern half of the republic. [applause]

Deeply conscious of being masters of the country, the masters of the revolution, the combat personnel of our People's Army fought daringly under the slogan: The fatherland's hills are mine. They defended every inch of the fatherland with their blood and unhesitatingly dedicated their lives only to the fatherland. [applause]

Combat personnel of our People's Army -- such as the shore battery gunmen on Wolmi Island who heroically fought against several hundred enemy vessels, our heroic marines who created the miraculous exploit of destroying an enemy destroyer with only four torpedoes, the heroic warriors on Hill 1211 who repelled repeated enemy attacks coupled with bombardments and firmly defended the fatherland's hill -- were genuine sons and daughters of our fatherland who devoted themselves to the party and the leader and to the fatherland and the people. The immortal achievement they created will long be remembered in history. [applause]

During the fatherland liberation war the people in the rear, together with the People's Army, heroically fought for victory. Upholding the militant call of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and under the slogan "The rear is the front," our people ensured wartime production and frontline transportation despite the enemy's barbaric and continuous bombardments, carried weapons and ammunition up the hills where fighting was going on, and with rifles in their hands heroically fought shoulder to shoulder with the People's Army. By organizing the regiments of workers, our heroic working class advanced to the front while vigorously waging the movement to increase wartime production. Meanwhile, the rural workers guaranteed wartime food production despite the bestial bombardment of enemy planes.

Under the outstanding and tested leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the army and people were united with a single mind and intention and the front and the rear were linked as one for the heroic struggle.

As a result, our People's Army and people at last defeated the U.S. imperialists who were said to have never lost any battle in the history of the aggression of 100 years and won the great victory. [applause]

During the 3-year fatherland liberation war, our people and army killed and captured 1,567,000 people, including about 405,000 U.S. imperialists aggressive troops, and captured and destroyed a great number of the combat technology and equipment of the enemy, including 12,200 aircraft and 560 warships of various kinds, while presenting the enemy an irrecoverable military, political and moral defeat. [applause.]

In the grim days of the fatherland liberation war, the peoples of the socialist countries and many other countries of the world actively supported and encouraged our people. In particular, the Chinese people sent volunteers to help our people with blood. Our people always remember this and are grateful for it. [applause]

The great victory in the fatherland liberation war was a shining victory of the chuche idea of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and his outstanding military art and was a striking demonstration of the invincible might of our people and People's Army rallied close around him. [applause]

By defeating the U.S. imperialist aggressors in the great fatherland liberation war, our people and People's Army firmly defended the freedom and independence of the country and national sovereignty, safeguarded peace in Asia and the rest of the word, shattered the myth about the might of the U.S. imperialist aggressors and ushered in an era of a new upsurge in the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle. [applause]

In the glorious path covered by our People's Army, the postwar period was a proud period during which it creditably discharged its mission and role as the army of the party, the army of the working class by frustrating at every step the enemy's intensified maneuvers of aggression and new war provocation, firmly defending our party's cause of comprehensive social transformation and gigantic construction and reliably guaranteeing its triumphant advance with arms. [applause]

In accordance with the postwar situation and the demand of the development of the revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song worked out an outstanding policy to strengthen our revolutionary armed forces and wisely led the struggle for its implementation.

Establishing a chuche idea system in the army and guaranteeing the party's leadership over the army are a fundamental principle of the construction of our revolutionary armed forces.

By seeing to it that first priority be given to the intensification of the party's political work to arm the soldiers with our party's chuche idea and to enhance the political and ideological superiority of the army, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song ensured that our People's Army, which had inherited the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition, maintain its revolutionary trait as the army of the party and the working class and be boundlessly loyal to the party and the revolution.

At a time when the antiparty and antirevolutionary factionists who had infiltrated the party and army were scheming to alienate the People's Army from the leadership of the party, the officers and men of our People's Army, inheriting the noble revolutionary spirit of the KPRA members who defended the headquarters of the revolution at the expense of their lives, firmly protected the party Central Committee headed by the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

Self-reliance in defense is a military guarantee of the country's political independence and economic self-support and the course of constant growth of our revolutionary armed forces, and the country's defense power is reflected in the struggle to implement the principle of self-reliance in defense which our party firmly maintains for the defense buildup.

In accordance with the demands of the times in which imperialism exists and its aggressive maneuvers continue and based on the scientific analysis of the historic experience in the revolutionary war, the characteristics of modern warfare and the superiority of the socialist system, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forward the military line of self-reliance in defense, the basic contents of which are to train the army into a cadre army, modernize it, arm the people and turn the whole land into a fortress, and has wisely led the work for establishing the all-people, whole-state defense system. [applause]

The military line of self-reliance in defense put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is one that has embodied the immortal chuche idea and the revolutionary mass line of our party in the field of the defense buildup. Thus, it is a revolutionary line which has enabled us to strengthen our People's Army as an invincible armed force and to establish a most powerful all-people and whole-state defense system by fully mobilizing the military potential of the country. [applause]

With the brilliant implementation of the party's military line of self-reliance in defense, our People's Army has grown into one-a-match-for-a-hundred revolutionary armed forces trained into a cadre and modernized army, the all-people, whole-country defense system with the People's Army as the core has been established and the whole country converted into an impregnable fortress which no aggressor dare attack. [applause]

In the tense situation in which the U.S. imperialists' new war maneuvers ceaselessly continue, we have defended the sovereignty of the country and nation by our own efforts and vigorously accelerated the revolution and construction. This path of our proud struggle clearly shows the invincible vitality of our party's military line of self-reliance in defense. [applause]

Because of the KPA, which has grown into invincible ranks under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and because of the great public and state defense system, which has been firmly consolidated, we have been able to adopt the resolute stand of responding to the U.S. imperialists' military threats and nuclear blackmail with counterattack, of retaliating against the enemy and of meeting the enemy's full-scale war with full-scale war. Also, we have been able to reliably crush the enemy's reckless maneuvers to provoke a war, including the incident of the armed spy boat Pueblo, the incident of the large-size spy plane EC-121 and the Panmunjom incident, at every step, and defended the security of the fatherland and the revolutionary gains. [applause]

While honorably fulfilling the duty of defending the fatherland, the KPA has displayed, without reservation, its noble mettle and creative might as a people's army and a revolutionary army by actively participating in the rewarding struggle of the people for economic construction, upholding the economic tasks put forth by the party at every stage. [applause]

Evident in every victory and success won by the people in the revolution and construction are the heroic struggle and devoted efforts of the KPA; in the socialist system, in the self-reliant national economy of our country and in every monumental creation in the era of the Workers' Party erected in every corner of the KPA, which has sacrificed everything in its struggle for national prosperity and the people's happiness. [applause]

By generally implementing the party's policy of imbuing the entire army with the chuche idea, today our revolutionary armed forces have clearly shown their might as a chuche-type army and as the army of the party, and in which the entire army moves as one under the party's leadership. They have developed as an invincible combat rank which carries out army building and conducts military activities in accordance with military ideology and theory and chuche-type strategy. [applause]

The old revolutionary warriors who have struggled since the period of anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, countless commanding officers who struggled in the flames of the fatherland liberation war for the party and leader, and all members of the new generation which has grown in the bosom of the party, inheriting the resolute, firm and persistent revolutionary spirit maintained by the young communists at the dawn of the Korean revolution, are now upholding the respected and beloved leader and our party. This is the noblest mettle of the KPA whosing revolutionary faith and will which never wavers in any storm or trial. [applause]

Indeed, the KPA is an army of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who developed and strengthened it through long and serious revolutionary storms by leading its first rank at the dawn of the Korean revolution; it is an ever-victorious revolutionary armed force which has made immortal accomplishments in the struggle to achieve the invincible revolutionary cause, assuming the chuche idea as its guiding policy under the leadership of the leader; and it is an army of the glorious KWP, struggling for the final consummation of the chuche cause following the party. [applause]

All the victories and exploits won by our revolutionary armed forces in the past 50 years are the noble fruition of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who put forth chuche-oriented lines for the Korean revolution at the earliest stage of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, explored a new path for the struggle to liberate the nation from colonial rule, and established the military ideology of self-defense in the arduous and protracted revolutionary war, thus making an outstanding contribution to developing the military ideology of the working clss and to implementing the cause of anti-imperialism and for the independence of the people. [applause]

The military ideology of self-defense established by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a revolutionary military ideology which has embodied the chuche idea in the military field and an outstanding military ideology which firmly guarantees by military force the victorious advance of the revolutionary struggle of the working masses of the people for independence. [applause]

Basing himself on the military ideology of self-defense, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has put forth the revolutionary military lines and policy for army building and, by establishing an ever-victorious military theory and chuche-oriented strategy, provided a firm guarantee for the victory of revolutionary war, countering antirevolutionary violence with revolutionary violence, and led the revolutionary armed forces on the single road of continued victories by outstanding and seasoned leadership and extraordinary skills of command. [applause]

It is entirely due to the brilliant success of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's skills of command that the Korean Revolutionary Army won a brilliant victory, defeating the Japanese imperialist army of aggression by repeatedly dealing it blows with sagacious guerrilla tactics and ever-changing guerrilla strategies during the anti-Japanese armed struggle and that during the arguous fatherland liberation war our People's Army and people, taking the initiative in the war, achieved a historic victory and dealt an ignominious defeat to the U.S. imperialist aggressors and their lackeys. [applause]

While leading our people and revolutionary army on the single road of victory, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with unlimited noble virtues and ample love has reared the men and officers of our People's Army to become strong revolutionary warriors of the chuche idea and has taken utmost care of them in every aspect of their life in the army. Thanks to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's wise leadership and meticulour care, soldiers of our People's Army have been able to score a victorious breakthrough on the trial-ridden revolutionary path by fimrly rallying around the great leader with one ideology and will and with the firm conviction to safeguard the revolution and the future of the fatherland. [applause]

Today, the spiritual and moral mettle of our People's Army is in good shape. The army is filled with the party's unitary ideological system and every soldier is solidly determined to defend and safeguard the party and leader with his life. [applause]

The high loyalty to the idea of strongly defending and safeguarding their party and leader and to firmly defending their fatherland and revolutionary gains, the persistent spirit of struggle, the concerted action between the upper and lower echelons based on revolutionary comradeship-in-arms and the traditional, beautiful custom of concerted action by the officers and soldiers -- all of these are the essential traits of our revolutionary army not to be found in any imperialist army of aggression. They are a source of gigantic superiority. [applause]

With the chuche-oriented military lines put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song brilliantly embodied, the military and technological equipment of the People's Army further improved, the commanding ability of the commanders further enhanced and the combat capability of the units extraordinarily heightened, our People's Army has grown into a powerful and mighty revolutionary army capable of struggling and defeating any kind of imperialist army of aggression under any circumstances. [applause]

Ever-victorious is the KPA, which is being led by the great leader and our party, is inheriting the brilliant revolutionary tradition of the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle, has the rich experience of the fatherland liberation war, and is firmly armed with the party's unitary ideological system and equipped with modern military technology. It is a great pride and honor for our party and our people to have such powerful revolutionary armed forces. [applause]

All the victories and achievements attained in the glorious and militant course of our revolutionary armed forces have been achieved only under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause] Apart from the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we can neither think of all renovations and miracles attained in our fatherland and all the brilliant victories won by our people and People's Army, nor can we talk about the lofty honor cherished by our people and People's Army. [applause]

It is a source of endless honor and the greatest happiness for our people and our People's Army to carry out the revolution under the outstanding and tested leadership of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great military strategist and ever-victorious iron-willed commander. [applause]

On the significant occasion of splendidly marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the KPA, I extend the greatest honor and warmest thanks, together with the boundless reverence and burning loyalty of the entire people and all the officers and men of the KPA, to Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and our people who founded the revolutionary army of our country at an early date, achieved the liberation of the fatherland by leading the anti-Japanese armed struggle and the fatherland liberation war to victory, safeguarded the nation's sovereignty and turned our country into an ever-victorious country with self-defense. [applause]

Today, our revolutionary armed forces and people, who have travelled only along the road of victory and glory for the last half century, are confronted with the grave tasks to expedite the complete victory of socialism in the northern half of the republic and the independent reunification of the fatherland. Because of the criminal two-Koreas plot and new war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, who have been illegally occupying our country for 37 years and forcing our people to suffer the tragedy of national division, the situation in our country is being strained and more serious obstacles have been placed in the way of the fatherland's reunification.

The heavy but glorious revolutionary duty before us and the prevailing situation require us to maintain a state of alertness and mobilization, to further accelerate socialist construction and to strengthen further our revolutionary armed forces. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: We should thoroughly establish the party's unitary ideological system within the People's Army and firmly ensure the party's leadership.

Thus, we should tenaciously defend and protect the People's Army and the party. We should also guarantee the party's revolutionary armed forces [tangui hyongmyong muryogul] with armed force [muryolguro]. Upholding the policy for chuche-orientation of the entire nation and entire army put forward by the party, we should arm all soldiers with the chuche-type revolutionary outlook, should encourage them to firmly defend and protect the party and the leader, the fatherland and the revolution, overcoming adversity and trials, and should ceaselessly strengthen the combat capability of the units. The officers and men of the People's Army, deeply cherishing a sense of honor and the lofty awareness that they are the fighters of the party and the revolutionary army of the working class, should staunchly defend and protect the party and leader politically and ideologically at the risk of their lives under any adversity. We should thoroughly establish within the entire army the revolutionary outlook of unconditionally implementing the party's policies, orders and directives and of resolving all problems concerning army building and military activities in accord with the party's intentions and demand. [applause]

We should encourage all the officers and men of the People's Army to vigorously struggle forever on the road of revolution, following only the party and the leader under any arduous situation, adversity and storm, by more vigorously waging the movement of following and learning from Comrades Kim Hyok and (O Chun-kuk), models of the chuche-type communist revolutionary fighters who were endlessly loyal to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song during the period of the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle. We should continuously and thoroughly implement the party's self-defensive military line and policy for increasing combat capability, should live and act in accordance with the demands of the 10-point rules -- the backbone of military life -- and should fully realize the method of the anti-Japanese guerrillas in the management of units. Thus, we should constantly strengthen and develop the People's Army into a one-a-match-for-100 revolutionary force more firmly prepared politically and ideologically, militarily and technologically. [applause]

We should intensify the unity between the upper and lower echelons within the People's Army based on revolutionary comradeship and should encourage all soldiers to actively help the people and encourage the people to sincerely support the soldiers. Thus, we should highly display the traditional trait of integration between the army and people. Upholding the magnificent programs put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress and in the historic policy speech at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly, all the people and the officers and men of the People's Army should vigorously accelerate the cause of the chuche-orientation of the entire society, upholding the banner of the three revolutions of ideology, technology and culture. [applause]

All workers should effect a new upsurge in all domains of the revolution and construction and more firmly consolidate our revolutionary base politically, economically and militarily. The Korean people, as in the past, will develop friendly and cooperative relations with the people of all nations who safeguard their sovereignty, upholding the banner of independence, solidarity and peace. We will vigorously and continuously struggle for the victory of democracy and the anti-imperialist cause. [applause]

Our people's revolutionary cause is just and victory will certainly be ours. [applause]

Let us all struggle more vigorously for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and for the completion of the revolutionary cause of chuche in firm unity around the KWP Central Committee headed by the respected Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

Long live Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and our people! [shouts of hurrah]

Long live the glorious KWP, organizer and source of inspiration of all victories of the people! [shouts of hurrah]

Long live the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA! [shouts of hurrah]

[NODONG SINMUN 24 April special article: "Noble Achievements in Building Revolutionary Armed Forces Which the Great Leader Comrade Kim Il-song Had Made in Anti-Japanese Flames" -- KCNA identifies this as an article by Col Gen Chu To-il]

[Text] A long period of half a century has passed since the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song raised the red flag of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army [KPRA] on a windy hill.

The path of the Korean revolution was long and rigorous, but our revolution was always able to traverse a proud path that was illumined with victory and glory. This is because the great revolutionary ideology and the outstanding leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song have been embodied in building the armed forces. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song led the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to brilliant victory under the revolutionary banner of the chuche ideology. He attained precious achievements and abundant experiences of struggle in building the revolutionary armed forces.

Brilliantly inheriting and developing the leader's precious achievements in building the revolutionary armed forces, upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as supreme commander of the revolutionary armed forces, serves as the source of boundless strength and a firm guarantee of all future victories of our People's Army.

The most important of the achievements and experiences the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song attained in building the revolutionary armed forces in the days of the anti-Japanese struggle is his creation of the original self-reliant military ideology, providing a reliable guarantee for us to maintain a chuche-oriented stance in military affairs, especially in building the revolutionary armed forces.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: It is self-evident that we cannot entrust the fatherland's liberation to others or beg for liberation. By organizing and waging a positive armed struggle, we should achieve the fatherland's liberation and national independence through the Korean people's own strength.

Building a true revolutionary armed forces is a basic requirement for safeguarding the country's independence against the imperialists' aggression and consummating the working class' revolutionary cause. Because our people did not have any national army to vanquish the foreign aggressors in the past, they had their country wrested from them by the Japanese imperialists. They were thus forced to lead life as a homeless race. Our people's ardent wish, when the sovereign national rights were violated by foreign aggressors and they could not escape the miserable fate of sufferers, was to have their own national army -- a true revolutionary armed forces.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's creation of the original self-reliant military ideology has paved a broad way for brilliant realizing this ardent wish of our people. The self-reliant military ideology is an invincible military ideology which has embodied the immortal chuche idea in the military sector; it is a great banner of struggle enabling us to resolve, in an independent and creative manner, all problems arising in building national defense, including revolutionary war and the building of armed forces.

Like other sectors in the revolution and construction, the masters in the revolutionary war against the imperialist aggressors are the citizens of the country. The decisive factor in the victory of the revolution are the masses themselves. Therefore, communists should not depend on others in solving the military problems, including the building of the armed forces, but should raise their awareness and sense of responsibility as the masters of carrying out the revolution. They should solve all problems from an independent and creative standpoint.

Because the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song created a self-reliant military ideology, the truth of the revolution is that the fundamental purpose of the revolutionary war lies in safeguarding national independence from the counterrevolutionary violence of the imperialists and colonialists. The ideological and practical weapons for carrying out the revolutionary war with one's own strength and for achieving decisive victory were provided.

Another important achievement which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song attained in the sector of building the revolutionary armed forces in the days of the anti-Japanese struggle is that he indicated the most correct path enabling the chuche-oriented military force to be firmly consolidated by correctly defining the organizational form of the revolutionary armed forces to accord with the actual circumstances at that time when the anti-Japanese armed struggle was being waged.

During the period of the colonial national liberation struggle to achieve sovereignty, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said an important question in the work of activating the army was to organize a regular, guerrilla-type revolutionary force. A revolutionary war against imperialists and colonialists is a very arduous, protracted struggle which cannot be ended through one or two military operations. Only when communists and the revolutionaries possess a powerful regular revolutionary armed force -- a nucleus of the revolutionary force -- can they wage a revolutionary war for a long time and achieve final victory by smashing the enemy's reactionary offensive.

After setting forth a unique policy for activating a regular, guerrilla-type revolutionary armed force, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song activated the KPRA -- our people's glorious anti-Japanese armed rank in April 1932, energetically struggling to achieve this end and overcoming all difficulties and trials. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's activation of the KPRA was a historic event bringing about a new change in the revolutionary struggle of our people and was a magnificant, historic declaration on the emergence of the first true chuche-type revolutionary armed force in our country.

With the activation of the KPRA and the organization and development of an armed struggle against the Japanese imperialists, the national liberation struggle of our people developed onto a new, higher stage.

Closely combining regular armed and irregular armed forces in building a revolutionary armed force is a policy the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has consistently pursued in building the army. A colonial national liberation war is basically a people's war which makes necessary the people's active participation. Therefore, rallying the broad strata of the people around the people's armed organization and vigorously calling them to the struggle are a basic factor for winning victory in a revolutionary war. By brilliantly implementing a revolutionary mass line in the sector of building armed forces, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song organized paramilitary organizations, such as Red Guards, anti-Japanese self-defending units and production guerrillas, everywhere he went.

The precious revolutionary achievements and rich fighting experiences attained by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in firmly developing chuche-type military forces by combining regular and irregular armed forces were truly valuable assets in strengthening the country's self-defense capabilities during the period of struggle to build a new fatherland.

What is important in the achievements and experience of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song during the anti-Japanese struggle period in building a revolutionary armed force is that he firmly prepared the KPRA as the prototype of a chuche-type revolutionary armed force by setting forth a unique principle for building a revolutionary armed force based on the self-defending military idea and by wisely leading the struggle to materialize this principle. By setting forth a principle for correctly guaranteeing communist guidance of the revolutionary armed forces, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song developed and strengthened the KPRA into a revolutionary armed force which overflowed with the chuche idea and in which a unitary ideological system was established.

By achieving communists' guidance of the revolutionary army, we mean to guarantee its leadership by the leader of the working class. The revolutionary armed force is activated by the leader of the working class. The basic duty of this force is to struggle to materialize the leader's revolutionary idea.

The KPRA was activated and led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Without the great leader's unitary leadership, the people could not imagine either its expansion, strengthening and victory on battlefields or even its existence. Upholding the revolutionary slogan, "Let us follow and learn from Comrade Kim Il-song," anti-Japanese guerrilla members energetically struggled to master the wise nature of the great leader's revolutionary idea and leadership and his noble communist morality and displayed loyalty to the leader with revolutionary conviction and fidelity. The history of our revolutionary armed forces shines as the history in which this proud tradition has been brilliantly bequeathed. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song comprehensively resolved fundamental questions in building the revolutionary armed forces, such as developing the revolutionary armed forces militarily and technically on the basis of strengthening it politically and ideologically, promoting the revolutionary spirit of unity between officers and men and between the army and the people and establishing military discipline in the army on a voluntary basis. He wisely organized and led the struggle to achieve this end, thus developing and strengthening the KPRA into an invincible revolutionary armed force possessing the military capability of being ever victorious. Therefore, our people could vanquish the Japanese imperialist aggressors with their own military force and the chuche-oriented strength, thereby achieving the cause of the fatherland's liberation.

The precious achievements and abundant experiences which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song attained in the sphere of building the revolutionary armed forces in the days of the anti-Japanese struggle are valuable assets which have enabled our People's Army to consolidate and develop as modern regular armed forces of invincible might.

Thanks to such revolutionary assets, our revolutionary armed forces could be consolidated and developed in time as regular armed forces in conformity with the demands of the revolutionary situation prevailing in the country after the liberation; and our revolutionary armed forces could defeat the U.S. imperialists, who boasted of being the strongest in the world, in the Great Fatherland Liberation War, thus honorably defending the fatherland's independence and the revolutionary gains.

Without the immortal achievements and precious experiences attained in the flames of rigorous anti-Japanese struggle, we could not imagine the KPA's smashing the enemies' aggressive maneuvers at every stage -- including the incident of the U.S. imperialists' armed spyship Pueblo, the incident of the large-sized spy plane EC-121, and the Panmunjom incident -- thus firmly safeguarding the socialist fatherland; nor could we talk about the fact that the KPA is reliably defending, with military power, the revolutionary cause of our party and people for the socialist revolution and socialist construction.

The KPA is today in the most glorious age in its development. Today, the ideological and spiritual state of the officers and men of our People's Army is very good. The officers and men of our People's Army are fully resolved to uphold the respected and beloved leader forever and to render their loyalty to the end from generation to generation, holding aloft the slogan of loyalty, "Let us dedicate our lives to the struggle for the great leader," emulating the pure loyalty and indomitable revolutionary spirit of the young communists who unhesitatingly devoted their youth and lives to defending and safeguarding Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of nation, in the early days of the Korean revolution.

The heroic KPA is Comrade Kim Il-song's army and the KWP's army which was founded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and is led by our party. Upholding our party's leadership is the fundamental principle in building the army and is the supreme requirement for the existence of the KPA and for its consolidation and development.

All soldiers should loyally uphold the party center's lofty intentions to make our People's Army a revolutionary army forever loyal to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's cause, thereby positively contributing to vigorously accelerating the advance of our revolution.

The prevailing situation at home and abroad today requires the People's Army to consolidate itself in every way and to more firmly strengthen the country's defense capability. All officers and men of the People's Army should uphold the policy of converting the entire army into a cadre army and of modernizing the entire army, making firm political-ideological and military-technological preparations and strengthening the combat capability of the units in every way. Together with this, they should unconditionally accomplish the five-point policy for realizing the program of converting the entire army into a cadre army and of modernizing the entire army and the policy for strengthening companies, strictly abide by the 10-point standard of conduct and thoroughly embody the anti-Japanese-style method of managing the army units, thereby more excellently possessing the characteristics of the great Comrade Kim Il-song's army and the party's army.

By more firmly strengthening the combat capability of the People's Army, we will resplendently fulfill our honorable missions of defending and safeguarding the party and leader with our lives and of reliably guarnateeing militarily our party's cause for the ultimate victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche.

Eternally invincible is the KPA, which, firmly rallying around the party Central Committee led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is struggling for advancing the fatherland's independent reunification and for consummating the chuche cause.

NODONG SINMUN HAILS VISIT BY ROMANIA'S CEAUSESCU

[Text] Pyongyang, April 23 (KCNA) -- Our people are satisfied with the big success of the recent visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea by Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu and warmly hail its result. So says NODONG SINMUN today in an editorial article headlined "Powerful Demonstration of Korea-Romania Friendship and Unity" published in connection with the recent fruitful visit to Korea by Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian Communist Party and president of the Romanian Socialist Republic.

Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu awarded the highest Order of Romania "Star of the Romanian Socialist Republic" First Class and the band to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on his 70th birthday, it says, and continues: This is a manifestation of the Romanian people's high respect for and deep trust in the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Referring to official talks held between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and respected Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, the publication of the joint statement and the conclusion of some agreements, the article says: The Korea-Romania relations based on complete equality and independence serve as an example in the relations among socialist countries. The meeting between the heads of state of the two countries was of weighty significance in the successful development of the friendly and cooperative relations between them.

Several meetings and talks between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and respected Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu in Pyongyang and Bucharest were historic events which brought the traditional friendly and cooperative relations between the two parties, two countries and two peoples into full development and efflorescence.

They again had a significant meeting this time and reached a unanimity of views on important problems, placing the friendly and cooperative relations between the two parties, two countries and two peoples on a new solid basis and making a great contribution to the unity and solidarity of socialist countries and the international communist movement and to the cause of world peace.

Korea and Romania are making big strides forward in the revolution and construction by firmly maintaining independence.

The Romanian people under the correct guidance of the Romanian Communist party headed by their outstanding leader Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu have registered many successes in the struggle for the building of a multilaterally developed socialist society, while firmly maintaining independence. The Romanian party and government headed by Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu are actively striving for European peace and security, international detente, and peaceful solution of disputes, disarmament and abolition of nuclear weapons.

Our people warmly congratulate the fraternal Romanian people on their brilliant successes in socialist construction and firmly support their just struggle. We express deep thanks to the Romanian party, government and people for their sincere support to our people's just cause.

Noting that the views of the Korean and Romanian parties on the international situation and important international problems were manifested in the joint statement, the article goes on: If all countries and all nations oppose every form of domination and subjugation and firmly maintain independence, a new world war can be averted and a durable peace be preserved in the world.

At present it is an important factor for smashing the anti-communist, anti-socialist manoeuvres of the imperialists, easing the international tension and consolidating world peace that the socialist countries make revolution and construction more successfully to give full play to the superiority of the socialist system and strengthen their cooperation and unity.

The article stresses: The Korean people will staunchly fight to realise the independence of all countries and all nations and make the whole world independent and exert every effort to develop and strengthen the friendship and unity between Korea and Romania.

In the policy speech the great president gave a new classic formulation of politics and people's government and propounded the original new proposition that communism is peoples government plus three revolutions. Kazi Zafar Ahmed, chairman of the United Poeple's Party of Bangladesh, noted: It is because President Kim Il-song is leading the present era that many leaders of the world, not to speak of the Korean people and the world revolutionary pecple, so highly respect and revere him.

T.B. Mukherjee said: Respected President Kim Il-song has set a great example to us with his noble virtues. This is why the people always boundlessly respect and revere him and he trusts them and solves all problems by relying on them.

Noting that the question of succeeding the revolutionary cause has been brilliantly solved in Korea, he stressed: Dear Mr Kim Chong-il is the leader of the people who most perfectly and wholly personified the idea, virtues and leadership of the great President Kim Il-song.

Jose Francisco Aguilar Bulgarelli, chairman of the executive committee of the Latin American Institute of the Chuche Idea, said: We are deeply pleased to see that the Tower of the Chuche Idea and the Arch of Triumph and such modern edifices as the ice rink were inaugurated on the occasion of the 70th birthday of respected President Kim Il-song.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il initiated the construction of these monumental edifices which will convey the undying revolutionary exploits of the great leader through generations and gave working guidance several times. The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il enjoys unbounded respect and reverence from the entire Korean people. Bright is the future of the Korean revolution and the world revolution as there are the great leader President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il and their outstanding leadership.

Tsugasa Matsuo, director of the National Liaison Council of Societies for the Study of Works of President Kim Il-song, Japan, said: In Korea, socialist construction has made a big progress to bring the flower of chuche into fuller bloom. The Korean people, led by the great President Kim Il-song, will surely attain successfully the 10 long-range objectives of socialist economic construction in a short time and convert the homeland of chuche into a country more bountiful and better to live in, I think.

At the round-table talk, the attendantes said that to reunify Korea peacefully and independently is a unanimous desire not only of the Korean people but also of the world revolutionary people and expressed firm solidarity for our people's just struggle.

Karlen E. Gellen, foreign editor of the U.S. paper GUARDIAN, had this to say: I strongly demand the withdrawal of all U.S. troops and nuclear weapons from South Korea. It poses as a more important problem today to wage a mass movement for putting an end to the U.S. "aid" to the puppet "regime" of dictator Chon Tu-hwan.

Abdul Malik, secretary general of the Karachi branch of the Pakistan-Korea Friendship Association, said:

The proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo is a realistic and reasonable patriotic program of reunification which indicates the most correct way for preventing the division of the country and building a sovereign and unified and independent state, it is a fair proposal acceptable to all. MATERIALS ON VICE PRESIDENT BUSH'S VISIT

26 Apr Meeting With Chon

[Text] Seoul, Apr 26 (YONHAP) -- U.S. Vice President George Bush Monday reiterated Washington's commitment to South Korea's defense, and assured President Chon Tu-hwan that there will be no change in the U.S. policy towards North Korea, a presidential spokesman said.

During an hour-long meeting at the country's presidential mansion Chongwadae, Chon said his government's top priorities were to bolster defense capabilities and further strengthen the economy, according to Chon's senior press secretary, Yi Wong-hui.

The president underlined the need for continue U.S. support for Korea's defense as well as bilateral cooperation, in economic and technical fields. The spokesman said the two leaders voiced concern about the communist expansionist policy and stressed the need for solidarity among Free World nations to deal with the tendency.

Responding to a reporter's question, Yi said the recent arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, South Korea's second largest city, and an anti-American statement recently issued by a Christian organization here were not discussed during the meeting.

Bush conveyed a personal letter to the Korean president from U.S. President Ronald Reagan, in which the U.S. leader emphasized "American determination to help Korea deter aggression." Prior to the Chongwadae meeting and luncheon, Bush met with Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun for similar discussions. The vice president arrived here Sunday for a two-day official visit.

Chon, Bush Luncheon Remarks

[Text] Seoul, Apr 27 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan Monday described North Korea as "warlike and unreasonable," and said, "we shall continue to make our best possible efforts to strengthen peace in this area and strive for a peaceful reunification."

In remarks at a luncheon for U.S. Vice President George Bush at the presidential mansion Chongwadae, the South Korean leader said that U.S. support and cooperation in South Korea's effort for peace was a "source of great encouragement." Direct U.S. contributions to regional security, as well as cooperation in many fields of economic undertaking contribute to South Korea's defense strength, he said. "This relationship of mutual cooperation answers not only the immediate needs, it is something that deserves to be developed further to insure the growth of the kind of partnership that would show the world how two nations can work together," he added.

In response, Bush described Korea as "one of America's vital allies," and said the efforts (of Korean and U.S. troops) to keep the peace on this peninsula provide the foundation for our continue pursuit of democracy and justice."

Bush praised Korea's economic strides, saying "America and the world have watched the post-war South Korean economic miracle. We're proud that we've been, in many respects, your partner in this exciting time. It's admirable that in 1981, when most of the world was registering negative economic growth, you had more than a seven percent growth in your national economic performance," he said.

On Chon's latest bid for inter-Korean dialogue, Bush said, "we're aware of your imaginative initiative toward the North," and added, "We hope that the (North Korean) communists will come to the negotiation table."

Bush arrived here from Tokyo Sunday morning on a two-day official visit, the second leg of a tour of five Asian and Pacific nations.

Meeting With Church Leaders

[Text] Seoul, Apr 26 (YONHAP) -- Visiting U.S. Vice President George Bush had an informal breakfast meeting Monday with some 30 people representing various walks of life in Korean society. During the one and a half hour meeting, Bush reportedly exchanged views on the Reagan administration's human rights policy and overall U.S.-Korea relations.

Among the guests were Rev. Pak Hyong-kyu, president of the Council of Presbyterian Churches in Korea, and Rev. Cho Yong-sul, president of the National Council of Churches. Contents of the talks were not officially released.

However, Bush was quoted by the Seul newspaper TONG-A ILBO as saying that there has been no change in the Reagan administration's human rights policy from the previous administration. Regan's policies differ only in the approach used to influence concerned countries, Bush was quoted as saying. He explained that Reagan prefers to quietly persuade rather than lecture rhetorically, according to the vernacular daily.

The paper, quoting a source, reported that Bush said he believed majority of Koreans are by no means anti-American, which was obvious from the friendly gestures of Korean students welcoming him on the road. Bush told the guests that the current relationship between the two countries is firmly consolidated and able to accommodate any criticism even though there could be some people having anti-American and anti-Korean feelings in parts of each country, the paper said.

Dinner for Prime Minister

Prior to his departure, Bush called on Chon at the Korean presidential mansion Chongwadae for a farewell courtesy visit. Bush had met the Korean leader on Monday for talks and lunch, and had conveyed a personal letter to Chon from Ronald Reagan, in which the American president reiterated Washington's commitment to help South Korea repel any aggression (from the North).

Speaking at a dinner he hosted for Prime Minister Yu at the U.S. Embassy Club Monday evening, Bush said, "I came to Korea in part to join with you as we celebrate not so much the first hundred years of our friendship, but the next hundred years."

Bush said, "When Commodore Shufeldt -- the first American emissary to Korea -- signed our treaty a hundred years ago, both our countries were agrarian economies. Now we are modern, industrial states; international traders. Our ties of trade and investment will grow, becoming even more vital to us both.

Bush praised the South Korean economy, saying "signs of prosperity and achievement are everywhere -- in your literacy rate, your growth rate. They are certainly visible from the air, where yesterday I saw the sprawling site where the Asian Games will be held in 1986, and where the Olympics will take place in 1988."

Responding to Bush's toast, the Korean prime minister noted that Korea and the United States have consolidated their bond of friendship in security, economic and cultural fields over the last 100 years, and said the two countries are now "inseparable partners of a Pacific age."

"The difference in cultural backgrounds and the distance that separate us have narrowed over the last century for travelers from both sides, and for Korean students and immigrants in America," Yu said. "As the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics will be followed by the 1988 Seoul Olympics, so the friendship and understanding which bind our two peoples will continue to grow ever closer."

The U.S. vice president arrived here Sunday from Tokyo on the second leg of a tour of five Asian and Pacific nations. After Korea, he will visit Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

KOREA HERALD Editorial

[Editorial: "Welcome, Mr. Bush"]

[Text] U.S. Vice President George Bush's arrival in Seoul today for a three-day visit is a cogent reaffirmation of the strong bonds of friendship and cooperation existing between the two countries which commemorate the centennial of their official relations this year. At the same time, his visit is expected to mark a moment for the two allies to further solidify their partnership for peace and stability in this part of Asia.

As the vice president told the press before his departure for Seoul, the Korean-American relationship is in good shape, especially after President Chon and President Reagan met in Washington early last year. The past year indeed has seen the Seoul-Washington alliance renew its cohesive force through stepped-up cooperation in the political, economic and military areas. The recent successful completion of "Team Spirit 1982," the largest-ever ROK-U.S. joint defense military exercise, reflects the progress being made in their cooperative relations.

Today, the Korean-American ties are taking on increasing importance as a nucleus of joint endeavors to keep East Asia secure and stable. The communist regime to the north of the Demilitarized Zone not only remains unresponsive to Seoul's repeated overtures for peace and peaceful unification but also continues with a military buildup for offensive use. As things stand, North Korea is not likely to give up its aggressive design on this republic in the foreseeable future. Nor is the prospect certain that Moscow's or Beijing's constraining influence on Pyongyang will keep it from daring an armed adventure against the South.

The Korean-American alliance is required to maintain a power balance not only to deter any North Korean misadventure but also to keep an equilibrium in relations among the four powers, the Soviet Union and China on the one hand and the United States and Japan on the other, whose interests intersect on this peninsula. This republic will be able to undertake an increasing share in the maintenance of this balance by further invigorating the pace of development in economy as well as its defense capability.

Such strategic considerations further accentuate the need for closer economic cooperation between Korea and the United States. Of course, the continuing industrial development of Korea has been remarkably expanding its economic ties with the United States; Korea is now the twelfth major trading partner of the United States and will continue to widen the area of cooperation in economic relations between the two countries.

Vice President Bush's visit here against this backdrop provides a momentous occasion for the two countries to upgrade their alliance so as to better meet the challenges facing them together. Furthermore, his presence in Seoul commemorating the 100th year of the Korean-American diplomatic relations will mark the beginning of another significant era in the traditional bonds of amity between them.

As President Reagan noted in a recent centennial message to the Korean people, we firmly believe that the friendly Korean-American ties, which were forged further in two wars, will continue for the next 100 years. Mr. Bush's visit to this country will also confirm this prospect which is earnestly wished for by the Korean people. The recent controversy over a statement by some clergymen with an anti-American overtone is too marginal to affect the Korean-American partnership, as Mr. Bush observed on the eve of leaving on this tour. The people of both countries are aware that their alliance is too important to be influenced by the whim of an irresponsible few.

HERALD REVIEWS HANDLING OF KCAO INVESTIGATION

[Text] The prosecution yesterday closed its three-day-long investigation of 11 leading Christian clergymen who had signed a statement declaring its opposition to the government's handling of recent state affairs and the allegedly insulting remarks by two top U.S. officials stationed in Seoul.

After a series of mind-boggling consultations among top prosecutors, the Seoul District Prosecutor's Office said in nationwide TV and radio broadcasts yesterday that it decided to withhold prosecuting those involved in the so-called anti-american statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization (KCAO) a week ago.

The prosecution, however, made it clear that it decided to take the lenient action against those involved in the controversial statement by taking account the fact that they had acted "in a naive manner" in making public the statement.

The result of investigations by prosecutors found that the alleged drafter [as received] of the statement, identified as Rev. Kwon Ho-kyong, had no knowledge of any possible reverse effect the statement might bring when he announced the statement demanding the recall of Amb. Richard Walker and Gen. John Wickham Jr. for allegedly making a mockery of Korean people.

Analysts in and outside the government voiced that Kwon and certain KCAO officials have been embroiled in the controversy by working out the tough worded statement against the United States and the government as a result of failing to grasp the reality in the ROK-U.S. relationship.

Take the allegedly humilitating remarks by the two U.S. officials on Korean people as an example, they said that the North Korean regime deliberately spreaded the groundless rumors in an attempt to harm the friendly ties between Korea and her closest ally which are to celebrate the centennial of their fiplomatic relations this year. One of the analysts said that certain KCAO officials mistakenly took up the untrue remarks by the two U.S. officials as a major issue in the statement.

Prosecutors, meanwhile, said that those clergymen involved in the statement apparently confused religion with politics by openly challenging the government. They pointed out that the statement assailed the government for being submitted to subjugation under economic pressure from the United States.

Altogether, sources close to the just finished investigation revealed that the alleged signatories in Saturday's statement consequently took an anti-American line for lack of understanding on overall matters, both domestic and foreign.

In a related development, prosecutors worried that the Urban Industrial Mission, an affiliate of KCAO, came to light as an obstacle in the development of national economy. They noted that the nationwide labor movement organization has been the target of criticism in many labor-management disputes since its first inception in 1957.

The UIM, they said, used to call for general strikes as the most effective way of solving labor problems. They said that a large but unidentified number of companies throughout the country fell to the victims of the UIM activities.

Prosecutors said that the government should work out effective measures to prevent the 1,000-member UIM from becoming unruly in handling labor disputes.

[Text] Seoul, April 27 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean National Police Headquarters announced Tuesday evening that 55 people have died as a result of a bizarre shooting spree by a drunk and apparently deranged policeman. Earlier in the day, police said 59 people were killed in the shooting incident which took place in Uiryong, about 265 km southeast of Seoul, from late Monday night through early Tuesday morning. The incident left 36 others seriously wounded, according to the official police announcement.

YONHAP Reports Details

[Excerpt] Uiryong, Korea, April 27 (YONHAP) -- Police said that patrolman U Pom-kon, 27, must have suffered mental derangement after a severe quarrel with his mistress. U was the only officer on duty in the police station Monday night because other policemen had gone to a monthly villagers' meeting. U removed two carbine rifles with 180 rounds of ammunition and seven hand grenades from police and reservist armories and began his shooting spree.

He first shot and killed three people in a downtown market and then three employees at a post office, which caused a delay in communications. He next fired random shots in a nearby village, killing six, and then returned to the downtown market where he gunned down another 12.

Early Tuesday morning, the ex-marine broke into a private home to shoot three people dead in their beds. He proceeded to another village where he exploded two hand grenades amidst a five-member family, killing four of them and himself, ending the bizarre eight-hour rampage.

The initial death count early Tuesday was 33, but the death toll mounted as the victims were reported by their families. Uiryong County has a population of 4,679. In addition, the latest report said U's mistress, Chon Mal-sun, 25 was seriously injured by one of U's shots.

U served in a Pusan police station for about a year before being transfered to Uiryong on December 29 of last year. U was described by his colleagues as "a drunkard and mentally sick."

Chon Offers Condolences

SK270340 Seoul YONHAP in English 0322 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Excerpt] Seoul, April 27 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan, reacting to Monday's massacre of villagers by a policeman in the southern town of Uiryong, dispatched two of his senior aides to the town Tuesday morning to convey his personal condolences to the victims and their families, a presidential spokesman said.

Chief Presidential Secretary Yi Pom-sok and Senior Presidential Secretary for Political Affairs Kim Tae-ho flew to the site at 10 a.m. local time (1 a.m. GMT), presidential spokesman Yi Ung-hui said. Yi said the president was alarmed by the incident and directed pertinent government agencies to do their utmost in handling the aftermath of the episode.

The nation's major political parties also dispatched survey teams to the town and decided to convene the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee Friday to question government officials about the incident.

Police Investigation Begins

SK271146 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0900 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Excerpt] Police investigating the incident reportedly believe the criminal, Policeman U, was driven by alcohol abuse, depression, an extreme inferiority complex, frustration caused by serving in remote areas, and quarrels with his common-law wife.

Police say that the criminal, Policeman U, had been found to be inadequate in serving as a policeman in Seoul and was transferred to the Uiryong police station. At the same time, police are conducting an investigation on how he could so easily obtain weapons, on the disconnecting of communications services and on those officials concerned who had permitted the shooting to continue for over 8 hours.

The committee formed to investigate the incident has decided to pay 5 million won plus expenses for funerals for the families and to pay all expenses needed to repair houses and other facilities damaged in the incident.

Installing the incident control committee headed by Choe Chong-ho, governor of South Kyongsang Province, in the Uiryong County administration office, Home Ministry officials are attending to such postaccident measures as medical treatment for those wounded and funeral arrangements for the dead.

So Chong-hwa, ROK home minister, who is in Kungyu to investigate the incident of random shooting by policeman U Pom-Kon, Kungyu-li police box, Uiryong police station, South Kyongsang Province, relieved Superintendent Gen Yu Ku-ham, director of South Kyongsang Provincial Police Department, calling him to account for this accident. He also instructed officials concerned to hold senior Superintendent Kim Kwan-su, chief of the police administration section, and Police Lt Kim Yong-sok, chief of the Police Security Section of the Uiryong police station, to account for improper supervision.

Home Minister So Chong-hwa also instructed officials concerned to arrest four policemen for negligence. They are Superintendent Choe Chae-yun, captain of the Uiryong police station; police Sergeant Ho Chang-sun, captain of the Kungyu police station; senior patrolman Kim Chin-u, deputy captain of Kungyu police station; and policeman An Sung-sop.

Police senior patrolman Yi Chong-tae, chief of the communications section at the South Kyongsang Provincial Police Department, was appointed to replace the captain of the Uiryong police station.

Meanwhile, Home Minister So Chong-hwa, assuming responsibility for this accident, today announced his resignation. Prior to departing for the site of the shooting spree, Minister So expressed his deep regret to the people and hinted he would leave his post as soon as the situation is restored to normal.

An Ung-mo, director of the National Police Headquarters, saying he had nothing to say about this incident, said he will take responsibility for the incident as a responsible police authority as soon as the situation is restored to normal. He left for the accident site at 1500.

'ANTITERRORISM' POLICE SQUAD TO BE ORGANIZED

[Text] An elite "anti-terrorism" police squad, to be nicknamed "Blue Berets," is to be organized during this year, most likely in July.

The National Police Headquarters (NPH) is now conducting a final test for the selection of 66 squad members from the 180 policemen who passed the four previous tests. A total of 901 policemen have applied to become Blue Berets, making a competition rate of nearly 14 to one.

NPH officials assured that the projected special police squad would be developed into a first-class force like the SWAT in the United States, GSG-9 in West Germany and a similar unit in Israel.

The plan to set up the squad, the officials revealed, began to be studied last month to smash any possible violent terrorists or criminal gangs as various big international gatherings are to take place in Korea, including the 1986 Asian Games and the 1988 Olympics. The 66 persons to be finally selected are to undergo Spartan training for at least two months beginning around May 10 -- one month at the police training and education camp and the other at a military unit. Some of them are also to visit similar organizations in foreign countries to learn highly-advanced fighting skills. Every member should be an ace marksman not only in daytime but at night, the officials said. They should also be capable of handling all kinds of individual weapons and proficient in using and removing explosives.

In consideration of the difficult tasks they will have to carry out, attractive treatment is guaranteed. An average of 150,000 to 200,000 won will be added to their monthly pay as special allowances.

The headquarters of the squad, headed by Superintendent Kim Tong-su, 43, will be located in Seoul. Kim was appointed chief of the planned squad Tuesday. The squad will have 16 administration staffers, bringing the total members to 83.

Souphanouvong Speech

BK270734 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0059 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Opening speech by President Souphanouvong at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- live]

[Text] Today, amid a pleasant and bright atmosphere full of the spirit of revolutionary enthusiasm, we are jointly holding the Third LPRP Congress. Attending this congress are 228 delegates from all sectors throughout our country. These 228 delegates represent 35,000 comrade members of the party. Attending our congress as guests of honor are personages, heroes, emulation combatants and other senior comrades.

Comrades, since the second party congress our people have passed a glorious historic path. Over the past 10 years, under the correct leadership of the LPRP Central Committee headed by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, the Lao people of all ethnic tribes have carried out a heroic, indomitable struggle, have overcome all difficulties and trials and have scored great victories, liberating the country from the domination of the yoke of the U.S. imperialists' neocolonialism, doing away with the monarchy and establishing the LPDR. Following these victories, national unity has been achieved and the country has been led to a new era -- an era of independence, freedom and socialist construction. [applause]

After the success of the national-democratic revolution, the party has guided the country in directly advancing to socialism. Our country has become a member of the strong socialist community, with the Soviet Union as the core. Our country is situated on the forefront of socialism in Southeast Asia. Our people have been accepted into the ranks of the various leading nations in the world. Our party deserves to be called a resolute, persistent unit of the international communist-worker movement. [applause] This is regarded as a great honor and carries great prestige, and it is a just encouragement for all our Lao people and our party members. [applause]

On this grand, heartfelt occasion, our congress recalls great Chairman Ho Chi Minh -- precious combatant of the international communist workers movement, organizer and teacher of the Indochinese Communist Party, which is the originator of our LPRP. It was great Chairman Ho Chi Minh who nourished the forever-bright special relations and solidarity between Laos and Vietnam. [applause] Our congress recalls Sithon Kommadam, vice chairman of the Lao Patriotic Front, and Comrade Khamphieu Kovisai and Somseun Khamphithoun, members of the party Central Committee,who passed away in the period between the second congress and this congress. Our congress also recalls various outstanding comrade members of the party as well as all those combatants and compatriots who have sacrificed their lives for the sacred cause of our people. Our congress remembers the various comrade members of the Vietnamese Communist Party and international combatants who have sacrificed their lives while fulfilling their international obligations in our beloved land. I would like to propose that you, comrades, stand up for a minute to express your condolences to all those deceased persons who have sacrificed their lives for our revolutionary cause. [1 minute of silence]

Sit down, please. Comrades, our country has entered a new stage of revolution while it is still suffering from an underdeveloped economy. Yet, it has been seriously affected for dozens of years by colonialism and the aggressive war of the imperialists. We have marched toward socialism, bypassing the period of capitalist development, and on the path of advancement we have faced and will continue to face some difficulties and complexities. We have also confronted the sabotage and destruction of the enemies in many areas. But, with the perseverance of the entire party, army and people, we have successfully scored great achievements and made some significant progress in all sectors. However, along with these successes, we have also had some weaknesses and shortcomings which have delayed our advancement. In the immediate future, the requirements on the defense of the country, the maintenance of political tranquillity, together with the problems of the stepping up of all three revolutions, the building of the material and technical foundations of socialism, the consolidation of the management apparatuses and the consolidation and rehabilitation of the organizational systems of the party and state, as well as the requirements on the production development and an improvement of the people's living conditions, are considered to be serious and urgent tasks for our party.

During this congress, we will review our people's path of struggle over the past 10 years, particularly during the period since the formation of the LPDR. The congress will also correctly, profoundly and multilaterally observe and assess the victories, lessons and development of superior aspects, the weak points and shortcomings which must be remedied and sum up essential and useful lessons in order to continue to lead the revolution forward. The congress will make decisions on the line, direction, and common tasks of our revolution in the period of bypassing to socialism.

Regarding the direction, transformation tasks and major measures for the 8th decade and for the coming years, the congress will make decisions on the direction, tasks and main objectives of the economic and social fields during the first 5-year plan ending in 1985. The congress will study and make decisions on various proposals regarding the amendment of the party's rules and regulations which are the basis for the building and strengthening of the party in the political, ideological and organizational fields in response to the requirements in the new stage of revolution. The congress will elect the new Central Executive Committee which will continue the glorious revolutionary cause of our party and which will make arrangements for the implementation of the resolutions of this congress.

Over the past few months, our entire party, army and people have wisely led their lives under the new political situation in all aspects. They have enthusiastically launched emulation campaigns to score achievements to salute and hail this congress. Our whole country is positively turning to the congress. Various fraternal parties and friends throughout the world have followed our path of revolution and have given us precious sympathy and support. All of us will promote and expand our intelligence in order to make our congress achieve glorious success in accordance with the aspirations of our people and to be worthy of their trust and that of friends all over the world.

This congress marks the growth and development of our party. It is a vigorous encouragement for our entire party, army and people to endeavor to march forward on the path of the revolutionary offensive so as to score new successes in defending the country and building socialism to worthily contribute to the cause of peace and the revolutions of various nations in this region and the world.

We have the great honor to welcome the delegations of fraternal parties and of revolutionary movements, which are participating in our party's congress. The participation in our party's congress of these delegations serves as the symbol of vital internationalism and the spirit of solidarity and love for us. [applause]

On this occasion, we warmly hail the VCP delegation led by Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau; [applause] the CPSU delegation led by Comrade Grigoriy Vasilyevich Romanov, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and first secretary of the Leningrad Party Committee; [applause] the KPRP delegation led by Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee; [applause] the Cuban Communist Party delegation led by Comrade Lionel Prieto Soto, general secretary [title as heard] of the Cuban Communist Party Central Committee; [applause] the Polish United Workers Party delegation led by Comrade Jan Labecki, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau; [applause] the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party delegation led by Comrade R. Kaysone Report Excerpt

[Report by Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee, at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- live]

[Excerpt] Beloved members of the presidium, distinguished guests and comrades: I will now report to you on the world situation and the foreign policy of our party and state.

Comrades, over the past 10 years, the revolutionary struggle of our people has been carried out amidst a confusing international situation in which profound changes have taken place, thus marking a new development in the three revolutionary currents, while the imperialists -- led by the U.S. imperialists -- are weakening and deteriorating in all fields, which has tipped the balance of forces in favor of peace, national independence, democracy, and socialism throughout the world.

Since the establishment of the LPDR, implementing the correct foreign policy of our party, we have scored great achievements in the international front, thus incessantly raising the status and role of our country in the international arena. In the new period, our party and state have adhered to the foreign policy of peace, independence and socialism. We have continuously strengthened our special solidarity, militant alliance and all-round cooperation with the fraternal Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples; strengthened our close solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries; acquired support and sympathy from the revolutionary movements and peace- and justice-loving peoples throughout the world; striven to safeguard peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia; built favorable international conditions for the tasks of national defense and construction; and smashed the hostile policy of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists and collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces to sabotage our revolutionary struggle in all fields, thus securely defending the independence and sovereignty of our country, and contributing to the common struggle of the world for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. [applause]

In the past as well as at present, we have exerted every effort with a view to strengthening the militant solidarity, special relationship and all-round cooperation between Laos and Vietnam, and between Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, equality, mutual respect and assistance, and in the spirit of friendship and comradeship in order to enhance the overall strength of the three countries in defending the national independence, the socialist construction in each country and to defend securely the outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia for the sake of peace in this region and the world.

On the stage of this historic congress, we once again would like to extend our warm affection and sincere gratitude to the VCP Central Committee -- led by respected and beloved Comrade General Secretary Le Duan -- and the fraternal Vietnamese people for rendering wholehearted assistance to the Lao people's revolutionary struggle over the past (?5) years. We totally support the just cause of socialist construction and national defense of the Vietnamese people. We are fully convinced that under the beacon of the correct resolutions adopted at the Fifth VCP Congress, the Vietnamese people will score even greater victories. [applause]

We will do our utmost to support the revolutionary struggle of the Kampuchean people. We hope that the fraternal Kampuchean people, under the glorious banner of the KPRP, will rapidly surmount the serious vestiges of the most ferocious, genocidal, Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- lackey of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists -- and win new, greater achievements in restoring, developing, building and safeguarding the gains of their revolution and lead Kampuchea on the path of socialism. [applause]

We will strive to strengthen our relations of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist family. This is the everlasting and unchangeable policy reflecting the principles of our party and state. It is a law in deciding the victory of the national defense and national construction of our country. [applause]

We would like to express profound gratitude to the CPSU and the Soviet Government led by beloved and respected Comrade General Secretary and Chairman of the Surpem Soviet Presidium Leonid Brezhnev. We would like to thank the Soviet people for their consistent care and strong support and assistance -- filled with the great spirit of proletarian internationalism -- given to the Lao people's revolutionary struggle. [applause]

We highly value and completely support the peace proposal advanced by the Soviet Union, which is a significant and concrete peace initiative proposed by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev at the 26th CPSU Congress and on several other occasions. We regard this proposal as a great contribution of the Soviet Union to the peace and security of all nations. We hope that the Soviet people who have great capabilities and a sense of creativity will victoriously implement the resolutions adopted at the honorable and majestic 26th CPSU Congress. [applause]

We strive to strengthen our friendship relations and cooperation with other fraternal socialist countries and to solicit effective assistance from all fraternal countries for use in defending and building our country. We sincerely thank the parties, governments and peoples in the socialist countries for rendering great support, wholehearted assistance and effective cooperation to our people.

Our special solidarity with Vietnam and Kampuchea and our all-round solidarity and cooperation with the great Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries is a permament cornerstone of the foreign policy of our party and state and the source of our invincible strength which cannot be destroyed by any enemies. [applause]

We completely support the Polish United Workers' Party and the Polish state in applying drastic and necessary measures to smash the rebellious and chaotic activities of the internal reactionaries in collusion with the imperialists to sabotage the socialist system in Poland and to separate Poland from the socialist family and the Warsaw Pact. [applause]

We always stand side by side with the heroic Cuban people in their struggle against the destructive policy and threats of aggression of the North American imperialists in order to securely defend Cuba -- an outpost of socialism in the Western Hemisphere. [applause]

We wholeheartedly hail the peace initiative of the MPR and other countries in the socialist family. [applause]

We strongly support the struggle for peaceful reunification of Korea, and demand that the United States withdraw its troops from South Korea. [applause]

We strive to strengthen the solidarity and unity of the international communist and workers movements in the interests of our common struggle against the imperialists and reactionaries so as to score victories for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism and to defend the purity of Marxism-Leninism. [applause]

We totally support the struggles for national liberation and independence of the countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America, and the struggles of workers and laboring people in all developed capitalist countries. We resolutely condemn the Israeli Zionists -- supported by the United States -- for continuing their occupation of Arab soil and their covert annexation of the Golan Heights of Syria and for attacking and plundering the territories of Iraq and Lebanon.

We completely support the just struggle of the Arab Palestinian people for their national fundamental right to establish a separate and independent Palestinian state on their former home land. [applause]

We completely support the Afghan people in resisting the international reactionaries and the acts of interference and aggression of the imperialists and the international reactionaries in order to safeguard the gains of the April revolution and to advance their country along the path of socialism they have chosen.

We completely support the peoples of Angola and Ethiopia, the PDRY, Nicaragua, Grenada, Mozambique, Libya, and the Saharan Democratic Republic, who are struggling to defend the gains of their revolutions and to resist the interference and aggression of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys.

We stand on the side of the peoples of Namibia and South Africa in their struggle against the South African apartheid regime.

We oppose and condemn the North American imperialists for openly and arrogantly threatening and invading Nicaragua and for depravedly interfering in and violently suppressing the patriotic movements of the peoples in El Salvador, Chile, Guatemala and other countries. [applause].

We continue to cooperate with Cuba, Vietnam and other active members of the Nonaligned Movement in trying to convince this movement to adhere strictly to the objectives of its struggle against the imperialists and to consolidate political independence, to wrest back economic independence, and to set up a new international economic order.

We highly value the role and contributions of India to the Nonaligned Movement to maintain world peace, particularly in South Asia and Southeast Asia.

We cherish the relations of friendship with India and Burma, and will never cease in our endeavors to further strengthen these relations. [applause]

Our consistent policy toward the ASEAN countries is that the two groups of countries in Indochina and ASEAN must peacefully coexist with each other, maintain good neighborly relations, and hold consultations with each other to resolve the problems in the relations between the two groups of countries on the basis of equality, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and noninterference in each other's internal affairs and they must refrain from coercing each other, so as to build Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation.

As neighboring countries sharing a common border of 1,600 km with the Kingdom of Thailand, and because the peoples in the two countries have maintained neighborly relations for a long time, the LPDR desires to maintain and develop the relations of friendship and good neighborliness as well as to expand economic, trade, cultural and sports relations with Thailand. On this basis, our government signed joint communiques with the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand in January and April 1979, reaffirming the principles of relations between the two countries and other measures aimed at strengthening these relations of friendship. We always try to do our utmost to carry out our pledge in the interests of the peoples of Laos and Thailand and for peace and stability in Southeast Asia. We demand that the Thai side should correctly implement the various agreements between the two countries, and cease allowing other reactionary countries to use Thai soil to sabotage our country.

We continue to develop relations with all countries regardless of the difference in our political and social systems on the basis of peaceful coexistence. We sincerely thank all countries and international and regional organizations for rendering economic, cultural and technical assistance to the Lao people. [Applause]

We resolutely resist the U.S.-Chinese collusion which constitutes a primary danger to the national independence, peace and stability of this region. If the United States sincerely desires to improve its relations with the LPDR, as it has repeatedly stated, it must express such good intentions by actual deeds, that is to cease waging slanderous propaganda and other acts in oposition to the LPDR. The peace-loving Lao people always desire to develop relations of friendship with the American people.

Regarding China, we have done everything within our power to maintain and improve the friendly relations with the Chinese people. But we resolutely oppose the hostile policy of the reactionary clique in the Beijing ruling circles. For the sake of the interests of the peoples of Laos and China, for the sake of peace in Southeast Asia and the world, we are willing to develop normal relations with the PRC on the basis of respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, noninterference in each other's internal affairs, equality, mutual benefits, and we must cooperate to resolve all problems in the relations between the two countries through peaceful negotiations.

[Letter from the LPLA party committee conference to the Third LPRP Congress -- dated 17 March 1982]

[Text] The conference of representatives of LPLA party committee organizations -- comprising 142 comrades representing party committees at all levels of the army, cadres, combatants, party members, members of the Lao People's Revolutionary Youth Union, workers, national defense personnel, various units, offices, organizations, schools, hospitals, factories and plants, agricultural cooperatives and national defense construction sites attached to the army -- looks to the Third LPRP Congress with pride and confidence.

We would like wholeheartedly to express our salutations and best wishes to the congress. Through 4 1/2 days of enthusiastic and lively meetings under the guidance of the LPRP Central Committee and the LPRP Central Military Commission, during which Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan delivered a speech giving us instructions, we reached complete unanimity on the evaluation of the situation and national duties as well as the tasks of consolidating and building the national defense forces, peace-keeping forces and various people's armed forces. We are profoundly confident that under the correct and clear-sighted leadership of the party, in particular under the beacon of the resolutions of the third party congress, the LPLA, together with the people throughout the country, will maintain sufficient capabilities and strength to smash all cruel, crafty and wicked schemes of the Beijing big-nation expansionist and hegemonist reactionaries, the imperialists and their reactionary henchmen so as to defend their socialist country securely, maintain political tranquillity and social order, and contribute positively to the cause of national economic and cultural building and development in order to advance firmly to socialism.

The conference has also fully acknowledged that to fulfill successfully the two strategic tasks of defending and building their socialist country, the LPLA must speed up the consolidation and building of its forces to become rapidly a well-organized and modern revolutionary army. It is necessary for the entire party committee organization of the army to be consolidated and built to become a politically, ideologically and organizationally strong party committee organization. All cadres, combatants, party members, youth union members, workers and national defense personnel of all branches must be mobilized to promote and expand the spirit of revolutionary heroism and make use of all their abilities, knowledge and intelligence to overcome all trials, difficulties and complexities so as to fulfill all tasks effectively so as to deserve to be called the key, shock forces of the party and the proletarian dictatorship state.

At present, we are scoring many great, all-round, firm and strategicaly significant victories in the cause of revolution in the country. However, our country still faces difficulties, complexities and big trials in the beginning step of the transition period advancing to socialism. The class struggle and the struggle against enemies of the nation are entering a complex and furious stage. The LPLA and the entire army party committee organization have fully acknowledged their status, roles and responsibilities and would like to make the following pledges to the LPRP Central Committee:

1. To step up the task of consolidating and building the party; strengthen the army party committee organization in the political, ideological and organizational fields; positively consolidate and rehabilitate the party's fundamental organizations in various units; step up the party's work and political work; turn the army into a genuine revolutionary army with a lofty socialist sentiment, firm confidence in the party's leadership, a spirit to implement strictly all lines, policies and plans of the party, a resolute determination to maintain the party's line, plans and policies, a pure revolutionary nature, a bright and vigorous standard of living, and with a firm internal solidarity and solidarity among the various Lao tribes as well as international solidarity.

2. To strive to consolidate and build the LPLA to become a well-organized and modern revolutionary army gradually; turn the forces to the grassroots level; pacify the situation basically, heighten vigilance and maintain combat readiness and fight victoriously; implement positively various systems, rules and regulations; maintain a high sense of complying with discipline; step up regional armed forces' affairs positively; consolidate and raise to a higher level the qualifications of the guerrilla militia and the self-defense forces; and contribute positively to the task of maintaining public security at the grassroots level.

3. Raise the soldiers' standards of living positively in the material and spiritual fields; implement various financial and logistical systems; promote production; practice thrift; protect public property effectively; build political life and study culture regularly; and step up enthusiastically the cultural, art and literary movements in various units.

To implement the aforesaid sentiments and with the spirit of revolutionary elation to turn to the third party congress, the entire army is now encouraging short-term emulation compaigns to score concrete achievements to welcome the congress. The conference of the entire army party committee organization, through the various comrades selected as its representatives, hereby heartily brings the spirit and essence of the various problems discussed and concluded with unanimous agreement to contribute to the glorious success of the third national party congress. SIANG PASASON EDITORIAL PRAISES PARTY CONGRESS

BK271132 Vientiane KPL in English 0858 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Text] Vientiane, 27 Apr (KPL) -- SIANG PASASON newspaper today publishes an editorial hailing the historic Third Congress of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party which is officially opened here today.

The daily recapitulates significant achievements scored since the 2nd congress held in Houa Phanh Province in 1972 during which, under the able leadership of the party, the national revolutionary force has not only overcome various instances of hardship, but has continually grown in strength which culminated in the dismantle of the last post of the enemy in 1975 simultaneously as the fraternal Vietnamese and Khmer peoples freed themselves from the yoke of neocolonialism of U.S. imperialists. Thereupon, the new revolutionary power was formed on the national level, following the nationwide congress of people's representatives held on December 2, 1975, also the date marking the end of outdated monarchy in Laos.

"Since the founding of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, the paper continues, our nation has been ushered into a new era of independence and freedom in which the multinational Lao people have become genuine masters of their destiny in their nation. The Lao people at present are together leading the nation onto the path of progress — that of socialism and communism — the highest aspiration of mankind."

"In the last 6 years, the paper stresses, the revolution in the country has scored all-round victories in particular in the fields of national defence and security as well as at the economic and cultural front, despite various actual drawbacks due to the aftermaths of long aggressive war and maneuvers of domestic and external reactionaries, namely, the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists."

"Agricultural output has markedly increased in the last 6 years — annual rice production raised from 700,000 tons to 1,150,000 tons and cattle head increased from 900,000 to 1.2 million," the paper points out.

The editorial goes on to emphasize on the growth in agricultural and trade collectivity as well as success in general and adult education campaign and other social activities in presenting positive trend of the new regime.

"So far 80 percent of the overall population of illiterate people can now read and write. One-third of all hamlets in the country has medical centers. Along with this, proletarian dictatorship, from the central level down to the grassroots, have been enlarged in quality."

Touching on Laos' relation with other countries, the paper points out that the relation of special friendship and combative solidarity among the three Indochinese countries, as well as all-round cooperation between Laos and the Soviet Union and other socialist countries has been continually strengthened."

The third congress of the party is to highlight great achievements of the party in the last 10 years. The congress is also to draw lessons from the past strong and weak points. The congress is also to lay down political lines for the transitory period and new tasks and targets in the first 5-year plan. New and more suitable party regulations will be worked out and the new executive committee of the party CC is also to be elected at this congress.

Hence, the entire party, army and people are paying great attention to the congress activities and wish it all brilliant successes, concludes the editorial.

LAO TROOPS FIRE ON PATROL BOAT, KILL OFFICER

BK270740 Bangkok WORLD in English 27 Apr 82 p 1

[Text] Nakhon Phanom -- A navy petty officer was killed, another wounded and a third missing when their patrol boat came under fire from the Lao side on the Mekong River last night, navy sources said.

The incident happened at about 7 p.m. near Don Sawan, a river island about one kilometer from the naval station in Mukdahan District.

The RTN patrol boat No 332 had intercepted a Lao row boat and arrested its two occupants on spying charges when it was fired on from the Lao side. The two arrested men escaped in the confusion.

Navy Commander Wison Chantharangsuk of Nakhon Phanom idenitifed the dead petty officer as Sonthichai Lekhawat, the wounded officer as Suchat Wansakun and the missing officer who fell into the river after being wounded as Nakhon Chomkhokkruat. Three Thai patrol boats rushed to the scene were confronted by a Laotian gunboat but there was no further incident.

5-PERCENT CUT IN BUDGET ALLOCATIONS ORDERED

[Text] The Cabinet has ordered a 5 percent cut in the budget allocation for each ministry, department, bureau, official organisation and state enterprise for the whole of the current fiscal year, Budget Bureau sources reported yesterday.

The orders are considered necessary to prevent further deterioration of the economy, decline in businesses and closing of the gap between estimated and real income, according to officials. The orders were issued by the Budget Bureau on behalf of the Prem Tinsulanon government.

The slash which is part of the 4,000 million baht budgetary cut approved by the Cabinet last month will mean a total saving for the government for fiscal 1982 of over 1,000 million baht. The total of the present budget is 161,000 million baht. The cuts are to be made from the remaining funds to be issued in the last quarter of the year which ends on September 30. Sources said that the savings have to be made in compensation payments, overhead expenses, overtime, stores and subsidies.

The Ministry of Defence has to follow the orders like other ministries but expenditures on civic action projects are exempted from cuts.

The head of each ministry is to halt low priority development projects which will not have any serious effect on the success of the fifth five-year plan, sources said. A joint committee of the ministry of finance and the national economic and social development board will consider the projects which can be postponed.

Another source said that the proposed savings "will not cover the budgetary expenditure needs." He reported that "income tax and other revenue collected are still below estimates." He declined to disclose exact figures. The income from customs "is much lower than the target," he said. "The devaluation of the baht reduced our import tariffs without increasing our export income." A declining economy "has caused a drop in income from business, personal income and other taxes," the official said. "If this trend continues, the government has to consider what to do because actual earnings are much lower than the targets set," he added. He proposed that the government "inject more money into the market or make further drastic slashes in expenditures." He warned, "in three months, there could be serious problems. Construction would stop, unemployment would increase and the economy would deteriorate further.

The brilliant victories of the Lao revolution have been the pride of the community of socialist countries, the international communist and workers movement and all progressive mankind. We sincerely wish you, comrades, many more and greater victories in advancing to build a peaceful, independent, unified and socialist Laos.

Dear comrades, the VCP and Vietnamese people are very proud to have the LPRP and the fraternal Lao people as staunch comrades and close comrades in arms. In every stage of difficult and arduous struggle, the two nations of Vietnam and Laos have always stood side by side through thick and thin. At the price of their sweat and blood, the parties and peoples of the two countries have ceaselessly and wholeheartedly cultivated their pure, loyal and exemplary special relations, turning them into an invincible strength which no sinister force can break.

Proceeding from noble proletarian internationalism and close fraternal relations, the Lao party and people of various nationalities have accorded Vietnam wholehearted assistance. The VCP and Vietnamese people will forever engrave on their heart this great favor.

In the spirit of the emulation efforts to fulfill the glorious and great tasks laid down by the fifth congress of our party, our entire party and people pledge to do their utmost to consolidate and strengthen the special militant solidarity and fraternal friendship between Vietnam and Laos as well as the militant alliance and all-round cooperation among Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea.

This is for us to advance together to successfully build socialism and firmly defend our fatherlands and to actively contribute to efforts to build Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation. In this way we will also contribute to the common struggle of the world people for peace, independence, democracy and socialism.

We wish the Third LPRP Congress brilliant success. Long live the glorious LPRP! May the special solidarity, great friendship and all-round cooperation between the two parties and peoples of Vietnam and Laos last forever! Long live ever-victorious Marxism-Leninism! We extend to you, comrades, our communist salutations.

NHAN DAN Editorial

[NHAN DAN 27 April editorial: "The Congress of the Lao Revolution's Militant Vanguard Unit"]

[Text] The Third LPRP Congress opens today in Vientiane. This congress is a major milestone on the glorious path of the Lao revolution.

In the nearly half century of its valiant struggle against cruel colonialist and imperialist aggressive forces for the nation's independence and freedom and the people's happiness, the LPRP, whose forerunner was a component of the common militant unit of the three nations -- the Indochinese Communist Party -- has led the Lao people of various nationalities from one glorious victory to another.

Especially, the 10-year period between the second and the current party congresses was the period in which the Lao revolution recorded its most important historic victories, opening up a new era for the Lao nation. This was the period when the Marxist-Leninist vanguard unit of the Lao revolution headed by esteemed Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan achieved extraordinary growth and, upholding its creative spirit, successfully resolved problems concerning strategies and tactics and methods of revolution and many other important problems of the process of transition from one stage of the revolution to another.

In carrying out the basic task defined by the political program of the Second LPRP Congress, namely to complete the national people's democratic revolution throughout the country and to prepare the necessary conditions for advancing directly to socialism, bypassing the road of capitalist development, the LPRP has creatively applied Marxism-Leninism to the concrete conditions of Laos, and has laid down correct lines, stragegies and tactics.

Depending on the specific situation and balance of forces in each period, the party of the Lao Communists has flexibly used various forms of struggle and combined its national strength with the strength generated by the solidarity among the Indochinese countries and with that of our time. Seizing the opportunity, it led the people in achieving the glorious victory of 2 December 1975, completely liberating the country, totally doing away with the feudal regime, and founding the LPDR. This historic victory ushered in a new era -- an era of independence, freedom, unification and advance to socialism.

Having achieved the national people's democratic revolution, the LPRP quickly determined the direction of its advance to socialism. Over the past 6 years and more, the Lao people of various nationalities have continued to march forward under the glorious banner of the LPRP leadership, valiantly adding new chapters to their history of national defense and of building a happy new life.

The victories of the Lao revolution were the common victories of the oppressed nations struggling against imperialist aggression. They were also victories of Marxism-Leninism in a Southeast Asian country. The Lao people's struggle and the Lao revolution's successful experiences have been highly appreciated and warmly supported by freedom-loving nations and progressive mankind.

As the close and special comrades-in-arms of the Lao Communists and people, we Vietnamese communists and people are greatly elated over the brilliant victories of the Lao revolution. The delegation of our party and people headed by Comrade Truong Chinh will express the warm sentiments of our communists and people to the fraternal Lao party and people at this important congress.

We firmly believe that the Third LPRP Congress will certainly be able to successfully resolve the new problems raised by the development of the Lao revolution and will advance the cause of socialist constructiin in Laos to great victories.

CHINA URGED TO RESPOND TO SRV PROPOSAL ON TALKS

OW241433 Hanoi International Service in Mandarin 1230 GMT 23 Apr 82

[Station commentary: "The Chinese Side Should Make a Serious Response to Vietnam's Constructive Proposal"]

[Text] In his political report to the Fifth VCP Congress, Le Duan, general secretary of the VCP Central Committee, definitely stated: To preserve intact their friendly sentiments for the Chinese people and pursue a good-neighbor policy toward the, the Vietnamese people advocate restoring normal relations between the people of the two countries on the basis of the principles of peaceful coexistence, mutual respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and settlement of contentious matters through peaceful negotiations.

This is not the first time Vietnam has reiterated its just stand and sincere attitude toward China. In official documents and public statements, Vietnam has repeatedly expressed its determination to turn its just stand and sincere attitude into reality. Vietnam has proposed to the Chinese side more than once that a bilateral treaty of peaceful coexistence be concluded by the two countries. Vietnam is also willing to provide favorable conditions for the resumption -- at the earliest possible date -- of the third round of Vietnamese-Chinese talks, which were unilaterally suspended by China.

On 10 January 1982, the Vietnamese side put forward a proposal for cease-fire during the spring festival and unilateraly put this proposal into practice in order to enable the Vietnamese and Chinese residents in the border areas to pass the festival safely. Following this, in a note to the Chinese side, Veitnam proposed that both sides cease hostilities along the Vietnamese-Chinese border and that the third round of Vietnamese-chinese talks be resumed in the first half of this year.

Vietnam's good faith is conducive to stability along the Vietnamese-Chinese border and has created favorable conditions for settling issues in the relations between the two countries through peaceful negotiations. Furthermore, it will contribute to turning Southeast Asia into a peaceful, friendly, stable and cooperative region and to relaxing international tensions. Vietnam's sincere proposals statisfy the legitimate wishes of the Vietnamese and Chinese pepple and accord with the common wishes of the progressive people in the world. It is for this reason that UN Secretary Genral Javier Perez De Cuellar proposed in a message to Chairman Pham Van Dong of the Vietnamese Council of Ministers that Vietnam and China maintain the state of peace prevailing along the Vienamese-Chinese border during the spring festival.

Disregarding truth and facts, however, the Beijing authorities have stubbornly rejected all peace proposals made by Vietnam. Their reply to Vietnam's proposals is their continued occupation of Vietnam's Hoang Sa Islands and more than 30 localities on Vietnamese territory. At the same time, they have stepped up such activities as (?making war preparations), carrying out armed provocations against us and nibbling at our territory. They have been carrying out sabotage activities against Vietnam militarily, politically, diplomatically, economically, culturally, socially and in other aspects.

In the past 3 months, the Beijing authorities have created more than 70 incidents of armed provocation and territory nibbling against us and have perpetrated a number of other criminal acts against us. All these are conclusive evidence of their crimes against Vietnam. The Beijing authorities with that Vietnam would become weaker and weaker with each passing day. They attempt to instigate reb llions and carry out subversive activities in Vietnam and are awaiting an opportunity to invade our country in force in order to annex our country and other Indochinese countries and to pave the way for their expansion into Southeast Asia.

Obviously, the Beijing authorities are undermining the peace and stability of Indochina and Southeast Asia. U.S. imperialism, which committed crimes of aggression against Vietnam and other Indochinese countries in the past, and other reactionary forces are colluding with the Beijing authorities in this regard. Thus, the evidence of the Beijing authorities' crimes against Vietnam is conclusive. However, the Beijing authorities have repeatedly prated about peace with Vietnam and their friendship for it. In fact, this is designed only to deceive public opinion in China and the world.

The Beijing authorities should respond with serious, actual deeds to Vietnam's fair, reasonable, and sincere proposal.

MITI ADVISORY BODY RELEASES ECONOMIC REPORT

OW280829 Tokyo KYODO in English 0805 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 28, KYODO -- Japan should open its market wider and abolish import tariffs altogether, if necessary, an advisory body to the Minister of International Trade and Industry [MITI] said in a report released Wednesday.

Such trade liberalization steps are needed to defuse the foreign criticism of Japan's trade policy and practices, a special subcommittee on economic security of the Industrial Structure Council said. The subcommittee said there is no cure-all for the trade dispute available to the Japanese Government at present. But it said in its report Japan should cooperate with other industrial nations in streamlining rules of the general agreement on tariffs and trade and arranging negotiations on ways to expand their application. In addition, the report, a culmination of 15 productive meetings over the past 18 months, called on the government to open the Japanese market wider by lifting or relaxing import restrictions.

The subcommittee, composed of 15 prominent businessmen, university professors and business consultants, was created in November, 1980 to advise ways to make Japan economically secure even in times of global economic uncertainty. The subcommittee's report noted that Japan's economic security is attainable through "political, diplomatic and economic" means because of a limited military role. Specifically, the report advised the government to explore ways to secure a stable supply of vital materials such as rare metals, maintain and expand the world economic system designed for promotion of world commerce and contribute to the global society through technological development.

The advisers cautioned that not a single country can avoid adverse effects of protectionism and that developing countries would seriously be hurt by such trend. If a trade surcharge of 30 percent were imposed world wide between this year and 1984, Japan, the United States and the European Economic Community would suffer declines of 4 percent, 3.7 percent and 3.7 percent in gross domestic product in 1984. The report also forecast that member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations would see their projected GDP drop from 6.5 percent to about 4.9 percent if Japan's GDP were trimmed by 30 percent due to the region's close economic ties with Japan.

The subcommittee, referring to the importance of Middle East oil despite the current lull in the oil markets, called safeguarding sea lanes through which Japan imports oil a "prerequisite to Japan's economic growth." The report called for closer relations with other coastal countries to ensure a smooth flow of oil and rare metals such as nickel and chrome whose supplies and demand could tip the delicate East-West balance because of their strategic value.

MITI's advisory body also proposed the creation of a "Tokyo offshore market" designed to facilitate flow of foreign capital, making the Japanese yen an international currency in every sense and extending proper financial assistance to developing countries for their industrial development. As for Japan's economic security in terms of foodstuffs, the report proposed a transfer of the country's agricultural technology and international cooperation in enhancing food self-sufficiency and resolving the trade issue in a drive to secure a stable supply of foodstuff.

DIET APPROVAL SOUGHT FOR CHEMICAL WEAPONS BAN

[Text] Tokyo, April 27, KYODO -- The government decided Tuesday to seek Diet approval for ratification of the 1972 convention prohibiting the development, production and stockpiling of bacteriological (biological) and toxic weapons. It also decided to submit a bill to the Diet on implementation of the convention.

The bill seeking approval for ratification and the bill on implementation of the convention were submitted to the Diet after they were approved by the government at the day's regular Cabinet meeting.

The convention, which calls for disposal of any existing stocks of bacteriological and toxic weapons within nine months after its coming into force, was signed in April 1972 by some 80 countries, including Japan, the United States and the Soviet Union. Ninety-five countries, including the U.S. and the Soviet Union, already have ratified it. But Japan, as well as West Germany, has not yet ratified the convention because of problems involved in respect to domestic laws for its implementation in the country.

In drafting the bill for implementation of the convention, the biggest problem faced by the government was deciding the ministry or agency to take charge of implementation and objects of the ban. The government was unable to decide on a single ministry or agency to take charge because there is virtually no possibility of bacteriological and toxic weapons being produced in Japan and because of other reasons. It was decided eventually that the Justice Ministry, Defense Agency, Ministry of International Trade and Industry, Health and Welfare Ministry, Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries, and the Science and Technology Agency should be in charge of implementation of the convention.

The convention specifies that those matters as biological and toxic agents which cannot be legitimized for use for peaceful purposes should be banned. The government took time in making adjustments on this point because of the difficulty in setting the guideline for making exemptions for those necessary for biological researches, medicine and industrial use. Agreement was reached finally to designate biological and toxic agents which clearly take the form of "weapons" as objects for prohibition.

The government submitted to the current Diet bills for ratification of two other conventions concerned with disarmament, one on banning and restricting use of specific conventional weapons, such as napalm, and the other on banning weapons which may result in destruction of the environment. These two conventions as well as the convention on banning bacteriological and toxic weapons are expected to be approved for ratification at the current regular session of the Diet which ends in May, prior to the holding of the second U.N. special session on disarmament in June. Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki is due to attend the U.N. session.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said on Tuesday Japan does not possess bacteriological or toxic weapons and does not have any plans of possessing such weapons in the future. He told newsmen, however, the government's decision to seek Diet approval for ratification of the treaty was extremely opportune as it came prior to the holding in June of the second U.N. special disarmament session. Sakurauchi said it is a manifestation of Japan's positive policy in respect to disarmament.

PYONGYANG PROTESTS SR-71 FLIGHT, HITS BUSH VISIT

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated an SR-71 spy plane three times into our country's airspace, in the east and the west, to carry out espionage.

At 1217 on 27 April, the U.S. imperialist aggressors, who are leading the situation in our country to the brink of war, committing a series of military provocations against the northern half of the republic on the ground and in the skies, infiltrated an SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaisance plane into the airspace within the military boundary east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country and flew it west in the skies over and along the military demarcation line. At 1236 they infiltrated it deep into the skies over the Kangnyong Peninsula, southwest of South Hwanghae Province of our country, to commit espionage against the northern half of the republic. At 1408 the same day they again infiltrated the SR-71 spy plane deep into the airspace of our country east of Kosong, Kangwon Province.

Such an act of espionage by the U.S. imperialist aggressors coincides with war fanatic Bush's war talks with the South Korean puppets and his slanderous remarks about the northern half of the republic.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors should look straight at the reality and behave themselves. If they continue adhering to adventuristic military provocations despite our people's repeated warnings, they will have to assume full responsibility for the consequences arising therefrom. They should immediately stop all hostile acts running counter to peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification.

VRPR SCORES VICE PRESIDENT BUSH'S VISIT TO SOUTH

[Text] U.S. Vice President Bush, who arrived in South Korea on 25 April, left South Korea on 27 April, winding up his 3-day visit. During the visit he inspected the headquarters of the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command. He met with Chon Tu-hwan for war consultations and made a speech at the National Assembly.

The visit by U.S. Vice President Bush was, in a nutshell, a trip to inspect the preparations by the U.S. forces stationed in South Korea and the Chon Tu-hwan ring for a war of northward invasion. It was a criminal trip to inspire the Chon Tu-hwan ring's policy of fascism, treachery and division. It was also an aggressive trip to fabricate the military alliance of South Korea, the United States and Japan.

That Bush's visit to South Korea was a trip for war was vividly proved by his speeches and acts. As soon as he arrived in South Korea, he inspected a frontline unit and visited the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command where he made powder-reeking, bellicose remarks. At the meeting with Chon Tu-hwan and in his speech at the National Assembly, he clamored about the reaffirmation of the defense commitment to South Korea, the arms reinforcement and the buildup of combat capability, talking about a threat of southward invasion. This clearly showed that his visit was not one for peace but one for war that it was a trip designed to complete preparations for a war of northward invasion under the pretext of a so-called threat of southward invasion.

The absurd remarks Bush made while in South Korea and the contents of Reagan's personal letter he delivered to Chon Tu-hwan exposed how hard the U.S. imperialists are trying to inspire the Chon Tu-hwan ring to fascism, treachery and division. This was vividly exposed in Reagan's personal letter carried by Bush, in which he highly praised Chon Tu-hwan, talking about national harmony and recovery of stability.

As is known to everyone, the so-called national harmony Chon Tu-hwan talks about means a harmony to fascistize society. Everyone knows well that this is a carbon copy of Pak Chong-hui's criminal theory of national integration.

The stability and security Chon Tu-hwan is talking about do not mean the stability for the people's livelihood and security for the nation but stability for military rule and security for political power. This notwithstanding, praising Chon Tu-hwan in his personal letter, Reagan said that the measures taken by Chon Tu-hwan for national harmony since his assumption of office are very encouraging. He expressed hope that the recovery of stability in South Korea would continue. This is tantamount to a directive for the Chon Tu-hwan ring to obliterate democracy and human rights, pursue a flunkeyist and treacherous policy and accelerate schemes for division and war.

This is an open challenge to our people who want democracy, human rights and the independent reunification of the fatherland and an open provocation to the world's people who want peace in the Korean Peninsula and its peaceful reunification.

That Bush's current visit was an aggressive one to fabricate the military alliance of South Korea, the United States and Japan was clearly proved by his discussion of the cooperation between South Korea and Japan, cooperation between the United States and Japan and friendship between South Korea and the United States.

Prior to his arrival in South Korea, U.S. Vice President Bush visited Japan and persuaded the Japanese reactionary government to provide aid to South Korea, talking about South Korean-Japanese cooperation. This is by no means accidental.

For the U.S. bellicose elements, including Bush, to visit Japan prior to visiting South Korea shows that the United States is trying to fabricate a military alliance with Washington, Tokyo and Seoul as an axis and to start a war on the Korean Peninsula. All facts clearly show that Bush's visit to South Korea was a dangerous and criminal visit to hinder peace in the Korean Peninsula and its peaceful reunification and to accelerate war and division.

Our people will never tolerate the criminal acts of the U.S. aggressors. The U.S. aggressors should act discreetly, looking straight at the aspiration of people at home and abroad for independence and the trend of the times. They should also end their foolish acts of hindering peace on the Korean Peninsula and its peaceful reunification and of accelerating aggression and war.

The people of all walks of life should more vigorously wage the sacred anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation to drive the U.S. aggressors out of this land and to achieve independent and peaceful reunification.

VRPR DENOUNCES 'REPRESSIVE RULE' IN S. KOREA

[23 April statement by spokesman of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification]

[Text] The confrontation between independence and outside forces, democracy and fascism is growing intense in colonial South Korea. Under a grave situation in which independence and democracy are being strangled by the aggressors and fascists, the patriotic masses from all walks of life, resolutely choosing the road of resistance, continuously raised a beacon fire of the sacred anti-U.S. and antifascism national salvation struggle on this dark land.

The U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, a hotbed of intelligence and conspiracy and the headquarters of the policy of making the people ignorant [minjok umaehwa chongchaek], was burned by courageous patriotic fighters in March, and a number of anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan leaflets were scattered in and around Pusan. At a time when all masses and the nation actively supported and encouraged the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan resistance in Pusan, the students on 16 April again raised a beacon fire of the mass anti-U.S. united struggle in Seoul. Following this, on 22 April the students of Kangwon College burned the cursed Stars and Stripes and staged demonstrations by disseminating anti-U.S. and antigovernment handbills.

The patriotic and conscientious relgionists are actively joining the national salvation struggle. The fierce flames raised in Pusan, Seoul and other places are an eruption of the pent-up indignation and resentment of our masses against the Yankee aggressors, the sworn enemy of the nation. This was natural punishment for the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for reducing this land to a colony and living hell of the century and causing national misfortunes and suffering.

Because of these flames, the White House is screaming, and Chongwadae is crying in distress. The U.S. imperialists, extremely embarrassed by the flames of the continuous anti-U.S. and antifascism national salvation struggle raised by breaking through the stronghold of oppression, have issued an emergency directive to their stooge, Chon Tu-hwan, to control our masses who rose without yielding, raving that they are a mob of bastards.

This is an absurd remark and directive for massacre which could be perpetrated only by the U.S. imperialists, the most atrocious and cruel aggressors and colonial rulers who despise other people and forcibly occupy another's country.

The Chon Tu-hwan puppet, who unhesitatingly commits horrible criminal acts of indiscriminately massacuring the fellow countrymen and immersing the land in a sea of blood if his masters so desire, is desperately adhering to the repressive military fascist rule to deal with everything at gunpoint. The atrocious Chon Tu-hwan clique is running amok with a wholesale roundup of the revolutionaries and patriots by mobilizing the police and soldiers, reserve forces and all intelligence agents throughout the nation.

Several thousand innocent residents are being arrested every day by murderous inspections and examinations, joint inspections and intense examinations. This wholesale roundup is going on in Seoul and other places of the nation. The campuses, which are being surrounded by the military mobs, are being reduced to a more miserable situation.

In the midst of the savage operation aimed at turning campuses into a wilderness of cinders and ashes, hundreds of progressive students are being expelled from schools, tried, executed and clandestinely imprisoned and massacred. This is today's reality on the campuses.

The churches, deprived of their freedom of religion and freedom of religious rites, are enduring great suffering. Owing to the crime, if it is a crime, committed by the members of "The Morning Star" who burned the American Cultural Center in Pusan, the hands of the conscientious churchmen were handcuffed, and religious personages are being dragged out in the middle of sermons to prison cells. The inhuman suppression and fascist offensive against the members of the Korean Christian Action Organization [KCAO], who have risen to defend national dignity and sovereignty with an anti-U.S. statement, are becoming more vicious.

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, composed of shameless imposters, by mobilizing the government-sponsored organizations including the Korea Anticommunist League and anyone else, has launched a campaign slandering the just acts of the KCAO members, branding them procommunist acts. They are using every method to harshly oppress the conscientious churchmen. The hooligan gang of Chon Tu-hwan even offered a prize of hundreds of millions of won to ferret out the revolutionaries and patriots. However, in the face of the apathy and the derision of the people, the clique staged a moral renovation campaign to turn all of the rebellious people into a feckless, unconditionally obedient lot, and is now urging national unity under the slogan of anticommunism.

Because of this, South Korea is fettered once again under an emergency decree without its proclamation, and the tyrannical fascist military rule imposed on the masses of people and maneuvers to obliterate the spirit of resistance have entered an extreme stage.

In the past, the clique has slaughtered with Yankee swords thousands of fellow countrymen crying out for democracy and reunification. It is sacrificing them for the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule by suppressing by bayonets the people who have risen to join the anti-U.S. imperialists' colonial rule by suppressing by bayonets the people who have risen to join the anti-U.S. resistance struggle. Is there any other pro-U.S. flunkeyest traitor or such colonial puppets at the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique?

The hooligan gang of Chon Tu-hwan, aided and supported by the United States and serving the United States, is a wicked fascist military group which has become more tyrannical through violence and killings, a group of cunning imposters becoming more shameless through deceptions and a dirty traitorous clique committing more and more crimes through pro-U.S. flunkeyism and treason and nation selling.

Without exception, all the rulers in successive generations who gained power in South Korea were detestable national traitors notorious for their fascist oppression and pro-U.S. flunkeyism. However, never before has there been such a vicious slave upholding the United States as if it were a savior and wildly running on the road of treason and nation selling as today's traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique. Indeed, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is the dirtiest of all pro-U.S. puppets. It cannot prolong its life even a moment without the United States. It is the most wicked traitor among all national traitors who turned their backs on their nation and people.

The RPR brands and denounces the suppression by bayonets and the maneuvers for slander of the U.S. imperialists and the hooligan gang of Chon Tu-hwan to obliterate the righteous resistance struggle for anti-U.S. and antifascist national salvation as a great and intolerable crime.

If the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, who, while talking about patriotism, has turned this land into a colony and military base of the Yankee aggressors and plunged it into the bottomless pit of death, is allowed to live, we cannot revive the trampled national sovereignty or democratic and civil rights or the right to exist; nor can we reunify the divided land.

If we are to achieve the aspiration for independence, democracy and reunification, we should first of all topple the hooligan gang of Chon Tu-hwan. Therefore, we should drive out the U.S. imperialists -- its masters -- at an early date.

Eliminating the military dictatorship of Chon Tu-hwan, building a new democratic society, driving out the U.S. imperialists and founding a new, unified independent state is the revolutionary will of our party and our masses and an urgent demand of the historical development of the nation. The South Korean people of all walks of life and democratic personages of all strata who ardently aspire independence, democracy and reunification, should rise indignantly in defiance of fascist bayonets, topple and clean up the harsh colonial fascist military dictatorship by their united strength and win democratic and civil rights.

The attitude we should adopt toward the U.S. imperialist aggressors is a touchstone determining the stand of national sovereignty. If we do not demand the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea who, while paying lipservice to national sovereignty, have occupied our land and made sport of our nation's fate for 37 years, we are not patriots. Everyone who is truly concerned about the nation's future and aspires for national reunification should adopt a correct view of the United States and struggle, looking squarely at reality. They should actively join the nationwide anti-U.S. resistance struggle to expel all the monstrous U.S. ruling organs on the spot.

They should wage a vigorous struggle to resolutely crush the wicked plot of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, who, while portraying the history of aggression and plunder as a history of friendship, are about to stage a comedy marking the centennial of diplomatic relations between South Korea and the United States. They also should wage a tenacious struggle to drive out all U.S. troops of aggression in South Korea.

The RPR earnestly appeals to the patriotic masses of all walks of life, democratic personages of all strata, and all the conscientious religious personages to firmly unite as one under the banner of anti-U.S., antifascist national salvation to tenaciously wage a sacred patriotic struggle to drive out the U.S. imperialists and the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique.

STUDENTS' DEMONSTRATIONS IN SEOUL REPORTED

[Text] According to a foreign press report, several hundreds of youths and students staged another antigovernment demonstration in Seoul on the evening of 27 April, following one staged on the evening of 26 April. That evening the demonstrators, who were mostly college students, turned out to streets after a prayer meeting at a church in Seoul. They marched to Kwanghwamun Street, in the center of the city of Seoul, singing antigovernment songs. When the demonstrators arrived at Kwanghwamun Square, several hundreds of riot police and plainclothes policemen frantically leaped at the demonstrators to block their demonstration. They arrested some 10 demonstrators and took them to a nearby police station, the foreign press report said.

That evening a group of families of political prisoners disseminated copies of a statement calling for the unconditional and immediate release of political prisoners, the report said. The statement resolutely condemned the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique for its arrests and brutal torture of patriotic figures demanding democracy. The statement bitterly protested the puppet clique's allegation that there are no political prisoners in South Korea. The statement also demanded that the mass media cover events fairly.

Meanwhile, the South Korean religionists who are staging a movement for human rights in South Korea have demanded the release of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners, the foreign press report said.

As has been already reported, on the evening of 26 April, too, over 2,000 youths and students held a gathering to protest the fascist clique's suppressive atrocities, and several hundreds among them turned out to streets and staged a demonstration, shouting the slogan "Down with the fascist rule!"

Soldiers Pledge Loyalty

[Text] On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA -- our party's revolutionary armed forces -- people's delegations have been visiting the units of the KPA and the Korean People's Constabulary [KPC] since 25 April.

The soldiers of the KPA and the KPC, who greeted the 50th anniversary of the founding of the KPA with great joy and deep emotion, upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the supreme commander who founded and is leading our revolutionary armed forces -- warmly welcomed the people's delegations visiting their units.

The people's delegations conveyed to the units of the KPA and the KPC gifts sent by the KWP Central Committee on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA. Blessed again with the great care of the glorious party center, the soldiers overflowed with endless, deep gratitude and joy. They confirmed their firm determination to render loyalty forever to the great leader and the glorious party center by excellently fulfilling their noble mission and duty as the army of the party and of the revolution and firmly defending and safeguarding, with armed force, the revolutionary cause of chuche.

The people's delegations visited KPA units to which comrades (Pak Kuk-tong), (Cho Kwang-hyon) and (Song Ha-min) belong, and the KPC unit to which Comrade (O Ki-su) belongs. They went round the monument to the memory of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song's on-the-spot guidance and watched the military exercise conducted by the soldiers of the units there under slogans reading: "Let us defend the party Central Committee headed by Comrade Kim Il-song with our lives!"

During their stay, the people's delegations had meetings with the soldier-guards and held discussion meetings with them.

The people's delegations told the soldiers that the people of the rear areas, upholding the grand program put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the sixth party congress and in his historic policy speech at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and DPRK Supreme People's Assembly, have vigorously accelerated the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea and are achieving brilliant successes on all fronts of socialist construction under the wise leadership [yongdo] of the glorious party center, holding aloft the banner of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological and cultural.

The soldiers told the members of the people's delegations news about of the defense-line, along which they are reliably defending our revolution while firmly preparing themselves politically and ideologically, militarily and technologically through the struggle for accomplishing our party's self-reliant military line.

During their stay, the people's delegations watched art performances by the soldier-guards. The visit at the units by the people's delegations vigorously evinces again the firm spirit of our people and soldier-guards to struggle to the end to realize the chuche revolutionary cause while more loftily displaying the traditional good morals and manners of the unity between the army and the people.

Beijing Embassy Reception

[Text] Beijing, April 25 (KCNA) -- Kim Pong-ho, military attache of the DPRK Embassy in Beijing, arranged a banquet at the embassy on April 24 in honour of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic Korean People's Army.

Invited to the banquet were Geng Biao, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, vice-premier of the State Council and minister of national defence; Zhang Zhen, deputy chief of General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army; and other personages concerned. Diplomatic envoys and military attaches of various countries in China were also invited there.

Military Attache Kim Pyong-ho and Deputy Chief of General Staff Zhang Zhen spoke at the banquet. In his speech the deputy chief of General Staff said: The fraternal Korean People's Army is a heroic army which was born in the flames of the anti-imperialist struggle and has glorious traditions.

The Korean People's Revolutionary Army achieved the liberation of the country by waging an indomitable, persistent struggle under the wise guidance of the great leader of the Korean people President Kim Il-song from the first days of its founding. The Korean People's Army performed imperishable feats by winning a great victory in the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialist aggression. After the war the fraternal Korean People's Army registered new successes one after another by actively carrying on the work of modernizing itself along the revolutionary line of training the army into a cadre army, modernizing it, placing the entire people under arms and fortifying the whole country advanced by President Kim Il-song.

Our two peoples and armies have mutually supported, sharing weal and woe, life and death with each other in the bygone days. We will support and unite with each other and fight together in the future, too, as in the past.

The reunification of Korea should be achieved by the Korean people themselves. The United States must withdraw its troops and military equipment from South Korea. No plot to create "two Koreas" can be tolerated. The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Korea and the ten-point policy put forward by President Kim Il-song enjoy the support of the entire Korean people and broad support and sympathy of the Chinese people and peoples of different countries of the world, as they indicate a reasonable way for realising the reunification of Korea.

The Chinese people and army will resolutely support the just struggle of the Korean people against the outside interference and for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea till final victory.

I propose to drink a toast to the blood-cemented great friendship and militant solidarity between the two peoples and armies of China and Korea, to the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Korean People's Army, to the good health and longevity of President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and a close friend of the Chinese people, and to the good health of Comrade Kim Chong-il.

The banquet proceeded in a friendly atmosphere.

RENMIN RIBAO Marks Anniversary

[Text] Beijing, April 25 (KCNA) -- The Chinese PEOPLE'S DAILY on April 25 published an article by its commentator under the headline "Brilliant 50-Years of KPA" on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic Korean People's Army.

Noting that on April 25, 1932, the Korean people under the leadership of President Kim Il-song founded the Korean People's Revolutionary Army, [KPRA] raised high the flames of anti-Japanese armed struggle and waged a heroic struggle, the paper said that the KPRA won the country's liberation through the arduous struggle in 1945. Referring to the strengthening and development of the KPRA into the Korean People's Army, regular armed forces, on February 8, 1948, it continued: During the U.S. imperialists' war of aggression in Korea the KPA defeated the aggressors' invasion and won a brilliant victory through a bloody struggle in the fatherland liberation war.

To reunify the country independently and peacefully is the unanimous desire of the 50 million Korean people. To realize this desire, the Workers Party and Government of Korea have made sustained efforts for a long period. But, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is continually intensifying the situation. The U.S. troops and the puppet army are not only holding the large-scale "Team Spirit 1982" military exercises along the military demarcation line but also reinforcing military equipment sharply. The South Korean puppet clique is now pursuing the policy of "two Koreas" and engaging in war preparations.

The Korean people and army are now on high alert. If the aggressors dare to play with fire, they will be destroyed in it.

The two peoples and armies of China and Korea are close comrades-in-arms and brothers who fought shoulder to shoulder against outside aggressors in the days of war. At this moment when we are greeting the 50th anniversary of the KPA founding, we sincerely wish the Korean people and People's Army new successes in the construction and defence of their fatherland.

NODONG SINMUN Marks Founding

[NODONG SINMUN 25 April editorial: "50 Years of Glorious Struggle and Victory Which our Revolutionary Armed Forces Traveled"]

[Text] It has been 50 years since the Korean People's Army, the revolutionary armed forces of our party and our people, declared its birth to the world. Our revolutionary armed forces, which traveled only along the road of brilliant victory for the last half century, are in the most glorious era in their history today. The People's Army, in a rewarding struggle of modeling the army on the chuche idea, has retained clearer features as the leader's army and the party's army. Its might has been incomparably strengthened. We mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic KPA and the people's armed forces at a time when a new turning point is effected in building the army under the party's leadership and a bright future is shining before the revolution.

On this significant day, all our party members and workers extend warm congratulations to all the heroic officers and men of the People's Army and the people's security forces, who are firmly safeguarding the land of the socialist fatherland. Possessing powerful revolutionary armed forces is a key to success in the struggle of the working class and masses for sovereignty. Without powerful revolutionary armed forces which guarantee by force of arms the revolutionary cause of the working class, we can neither win victory in the arduous class struggle nor firmly safeguard the nation's independence and sovereignty.

The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song has brilliantly achieved the cause of founding the first genuinely revolutionary army in our country and of strengthening and developing it into invincible revolutionary armed forces. This is shining as one of the greatest achievements by him for the fatherland and people, the time and revolution.

The founding of the anti-Japanese guerrilla force on 25 April 1932, a half century ago, is a product of the revolutionary policy and energetic struggle of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who directed great attention to building the revolutionary armed forces from the first day of his embarking on the road of revolution at an early date and made every effort to realize it. In a difficult situation in which the entire nation was suffering the suppressive colonial rule of the brigandish Japanese imperialists and there was no foundation of the national army, the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song realized the cause of founding a generation of communists as its core by overcoming all difficulties and trials. The birth of the core unit which was to carry out the rewarding struggle when the revolutionary cause was pioneered for the first time was the great pride and honor of our revolutionary armed forces.

The founding of the anti-Japanese guerrilla force by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was the emergence of the first chuche-type revolutionary army in history and a historic event which brought about an epochal turn in our people's revolutionary struggle. With the founding of anti-Japanese guerrilla force, our people brilliantly realized their ardent desire to have genuinely revolutionary armed forces and successfully accelerated their struggle for the liberation of the nation, the liberation of classes and for socialist and communist construction.

With the activation of the anti-Japanese guerrillas and with the commencement of the anti-Japanese armed struggle, the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle developed on a new, higher stage with armed struggle -- the supreme form of the colonial national liberation struggle -- as the central element. As a result, a worthwhile, new history was created in developing the chuche revolutionary cause. Without the activation of the anti-Japanese guerrillas, we could not imagine the liberation of the fatherland and the protection of the people's sovereignty and dignity. Nor could we imagine a military guarantee for completing the party's cause.

Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our revolutionary armed forces have traversed a militant course overflowing with brilliant victories and exploits. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Through a heroic and devoted struggle, the People's Army has gloriously accomplished its revolutionary duty for the fatherland and the people and attained brilliant achievements in the history of our party which will shine forever, generation after generation.

Our revolutionary armed forces are a glorious revolutionary army which has the historic duty of militarily safeguarding and advancing the chuche revolutionary cause. The 50-year course which the People's Army has followed is one in which it has resolutely protected and defended the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song with indomitable revolutionary spirit, has brilliantly implemented the leader's revolutionary idea and has followed his leadership, thus successfully performing its noble duty.

The long history of the revolutionary struggle does not know a glorious army like our revolutionary armed forces which have followed the militant, ever-victorious course and which greatly contributed to the movement to advance the contemporary era and the revolution.

Since their activation, our revolutionary armed forces, emerging from the flames of a grim revolutionary struggle, have been forced to wage a bloody struggle and undergo grim trials. However, our revolutionary armed forces have vigorously traversed a glorious, victorious road by struggling under the leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the outstanding military strategist and legendary hero.

The two revolutionary wars against the Japanese and U.S. imperialists were the most difficult and grim revolutionary wars, unprecedented in history. The enemies which invaded our country were atrociously powerful imperialists of possessed great military capabilities and military and economic potential. Such being the case, our people and the revolutionary armed forces had to fight enemies who had numerical and technical supremacy over us.

Taking responsibility in the two grim wars, adopting a chuche-type military line and using profound military strategy and flexible tactics, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song led our people and army along a victorious road. By following the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's leadership and by heroically struggling with confidence in sure victory and with a indomitable fighting spirit, our revolutionary army and people defeated the Japanese aggressors and achieved the liberation of the fatherland, thus firmly protecting national independence and sovereignty. This was a legendary, great military miracle and was an epochal exploit ushering in a new era in the colonial national liberation struggle and in the anti-imperialist and anti-U.S. struggles. Because of this brilliant victory, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song gained a reputation the world over as a victorious, iron-willed commander. The leader's name has shone as the symbol of victory in the anti-imperialist struggle.

While repelling the enemy's continuous aggressive maneuvers to provoke a new war during the postwar period, the heroic KPA reliably protected with arms the security of the fatherland and world peace and firmly defended with arms our people's cause for socialist construction. Today's endlessly prosperous socialist fatherland and the revolutionary gains are soaked with the valuable blood and sweat shed by officers and men of the KPA and are strewn with the noble patriotism and indomitable revolutionary spirit displayed by them. All the people deeply trust and love our KPA because of the heroic and devoted struggle and brilliant exploits it has performed for the fatherland the the people. This is the great pride of our People's Army.

The course followed by our revolutionary armed forces has been a proud one in which they have been fostered and strengthened into loyal militant ranks which resolutely protect and defend the party and the leader. It has been the brilliant tradition of our revolutionary army that it has displayed endless loyalty to the leader -- the leader of the revolution -- and has firmly defended the revolutionary cause.

The anti-Japanese guerrillas were ranks of the revolutionary vanguard, who, holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the leader of the Korean revolution and as the sun of the nation and rallying around the leader, brilliantly developed the chuche cause. They set, for the first time in the Korean communist movement, a great example in protecting and holding the leader in high esteem.

The noble revolutionary spirit and tradition of the anti-Japanese revolutionary patriots have been brilliantly protected and inherited by the officers and men of our People's Army. Every timeweighty tasks and trials have loomed before the revolution, our People's Army has always been the core unit protecting, safeguarding, and upholding the party and leader. Just like the anti-Japanese revolutionaries of old who unscrupulously sacrificed their youth and even their lives to protect the headquarters of the revolution, our People's Army has energetically struggled holding high the slogan "Let us defend with our lives the party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song." This is a clear expression of the noble mettle of our People's Army.

Brimming over in the men and officers of our People's Army is the steel-like faith and will to defend the party under any trials and ordeals, willingly trusting their fate to the party. That the entire men and officers of the People's Army, rallying rock-firm around the party center in one mind and will, have struggled energetically with the noble revolutionary spirit displayed by the patriots of old, is the most precious, unequaled accomplishment won in the building of our revolutionary armed forces.

Our People's Army has been incomparably strengthened militarily and technically over what it was in the past. Today, all our People's Army's military and service branches have been equipped with modern weapons and combat technology and means. Under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our People's Army has been trained steel-like in the flames of guerrilla war and modern war and in the course of defending and safeguarding the socialist fatherland against the imperialist aggressors, growing into invincible combat ranks possessing strong backbone and ample experience.

Today, we can proudly say that we have provided a powerful and mighty revolutionary armed force capable of reliably defending and safeguarding the nation's security and revolutionary gains and of expelling any kind of enemy attack and aggression. Thanks to this invincible and ever-victorious revolutionary army, nobody can arbitrarily challenge the dignity and honor of our fatherland, and the final victory of the revolutionary cause and the brilliant future of the nation are firmly guaranteed. It is a source of great exhilaration and happiness for our people to have a revolutionary army, fully prepared both politically and ideologically and militarily and technologically, each man capable of defeating 100 of the enemy.

All the victories and successes embroidered in the annals of our revolutionary armed forces are the noble fruition of the wise leadership and energetic struggle of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Taking the lead of our revolutionary armed forces and putting forth the chuche-oriented ideology and policy for army building at every stage and period of revolutionary development, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has brilliantly embodied this ideology and policy with his devoted efforts and his whole energy and has warmly taken care of the men and officers of the People's Army just like blood-relations.

Even today, long after he crossed the steep ravines of Mt Paektu leading the anti-Japanese armed ranks, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is endlessly strengthening and developing our revolutionary armed forces by organizing and leading overall military work, along with party and state work, with his unexhaustible energy and extraordinary practical ability. Without the wise leadership and warm love of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we could not conceive of our People's Army having traversed the glorified victorious path or having grown into today's powerful and unrivaled army.

Based on the demand of revolutionary developments and its insight into the inevitability of army building, our glorious party has put forth the policy of imbuing the entire army with the chuche idea and is energetically leading the struggle to implement this policy. Thanks to the correct policy and leadership of the party center, our People's Army ranks are being strengthened as loyal ranks energetically advancing under the slogan of "Let us struggle with our lives for the great leader" and as further modernized and highly regularized combat units. No force can stop our people's advance, which is marching under the leadership of the great KWP.

Indeed, the history of 50 years that the KPA has traversed was a period of heroic struggle and exploits during which the KPA explored the future of independence and accumulated immortal exploits in the most arduous struggle, a glorious 50 years during which the KPA established a great tradition of loyalty to the party and leader and brilliantly inherited it, and 50 years of rewarding victories in which the KPA provided inexhaustible potential enabling the KPA to advance more vigorously toward a brilliant future.

Now, our people are extremely proud of having such revolutionary armed forces which have a bright future in front of it, as well as such a great history.

A long period of more than half a century has elapsed since the beginning of the revolution and birth of the revolutionary army in our country. Our people and our revolutionary armed forces have followed a glorious path of victory and our revolution has advanced far. Our revolutionary cause, however, has not yet been accomplished. We should reunify the divided fatherland, achieve the final victory of socialism and carry out to the end the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

The situation at home and abroad is more complicated and tense than ever before. Clinging persistently to the policy of two-Koreas, the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys have staged frantic maneuvers for aggression and for provoking a new war against us. The heavy revolutionary duty and the tense situation facing us require us to further consolidate the revolutionary armed forces and to thoroughly and continuously carry out the principle of self-defense. Men and officers of the People's Army and all the people in the nation should wage a more vigorous struggle to firmly defend and safeguard the socialist fatherland and to defend world peace and security, holding higher the banner of revolution.

Establishing the party's unitary ideological system and firmly guaranteeing the party's leadership in the army is the fundamental principle for building the revolutionary armed forces and a prerequisite for consolidating the might of our People's Army. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: We should make the People's Army fervently defend and safeguard the party and firmly guarantee by force the party's revolutionary cause by thoroughly establishing the party's unitary ideological system in the army and guaranteeing the party's leadership in it.

Only when the party's unitary ideological system is firmly established in the army can the People's Army firmly maintain its character as a chuche-type revolutionary army and struggle to the end for the victory of the chuche cause.

The party organizations in the People's Army should endlessly deepen political and ideological work in conformity with the demand of revolutionary developments so that every man and officer can arm himself with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary ideology -- the chuche idea -- and think and act as directed by the leader's idea and will at any time and any place. At the same time they should continuously indoctrinate soldiers in the accomplishments and traditions which the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song achieved with devoted efforts over a long period in the military field and in army building. By so doing, they should make soldiers cherish and add lustre to the accomplishments and traditions.

The KWP is the great guide of the People's Army. The key to having our revolutionary armed forces strengthened and developed in conformity with the demand of the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea and to having them carry out their honorable mission lies in upholding the leadership of our party. The People's Army units and all the men and officers should firmly establish an orderly work system and revolutionary discipline capable of ensuring the party's leadership in the entire army, always carry out the party's policies, order and directives unconditionally and thoroughly and solve all problems arising in military work according to the intentions of the party, thus making the People's Army consolidate the organizational and ideological foundation of the party and demonstrate its honor as the loyal guards and a shock brigade in implementing the cause of the party.

To loyally uphold the leader of the revolution is the most important thing for the People's Army. All the party organizations in the army, holding high the slogan "Let the entire army become Kim Hyok's in the 1980's," should make all soldiers defend, safeguard and uphold the party and leader, arming themselves with the persistent spirit and verve of the young communists who firmly defended the leader of the revolution under the difficult conditions of the past.

All the soldiers of the People's Army and the People's Constabulary, with rock-firm determination to share weal and woe with the party, should trust and follow our party under any circumstances and loyally struggle on the road of upholding the party center forever.

To brilliantly inherit and develop the revolutionary tradition provided in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle is honorable work for the consummation of the revolutionary cause and a noble duty of our People's Army. Our revolutionary armed forces were founded in the period during which the glorious roots of our party were struck and they have always cherished the pride of firmly defending and safeguarding the party's revolutionary tradition throughout the long historical course.

As ever, men and officers of the People's Army should defend the unblemished purity of the revolutionary tradition as if it were the apple of their eye, so as to preserve our revolution. In particular, they should continuously display the traditional beautiful customs of the unity of upper and lower echelons and of the army and people, highly displayed in the flames of the arduous anti-Japanese revolution, and burnish the tradition of the anti-Japanese guerrilla-style unit management. To thoroughly implement our party's military line of self-defense and further enhance the combat capability of the units is an indispensable demand for the consolidation and development of the People's Army. Only when the revolutionary army's political and ideological superiority is combined with military and technological preparedness can the revolutionary army display its unequaled militant might and win victory in combat waged against the enemy, no matter how strong he may be.

By waging a more vigorous struggle to make the entire army into a cadre army and to modernize the army, we should strengthen the might of the people's army in every respect, upholding the military line of self-defense put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Commanding officers of the People's Army and People's Constabulary, by further positively waging the struggle to execute the 5-point policy for strengthening combat capability and the 10-point policy for strengthening combat capability and the 10-point regulations to be observed when serving in the army, should prepare soldiers with the strength of one-defeats-a-hundred and bring about a new change enhancing the combat capability of the units. Thoroughly awakening to the honorable duty assigned to them before the fatherland and people, all the men and officers should enthusiastically take part in combat and political training, and defend rock-firm and safeguard the socialist fatherland and revolutionary gains from possible enemy attack and aggression by further heightening revolutionary vigilance.

To strengthen defense strength and safeguard the revolution is a sacred duty of all the people. All party members and working people should further highly display the beautiful custom of loving the People's Army just like blood-relatives and of helping it with sincerity, defend the fatherland's security by uniting with the People's Army, and accelerate socialist construction.

Our People's Army is the army of the glorious KWP and a revolutionary armed force which safeguards the chuche cause. Today, our party and the People's Army form a perfect, inseparable whole.

It is the firm and unwavering will of our People's Army to share weal and woe, to live and die together, with the party under any storm and trials and to uphold the party center.

There is no other army in the world so endlessly loyal to the party and leader as our People's Army. Only further greater victory and glory awaits our people and our People's Army energetically struggling for the consummation of the chuche revolutionary cause, rallying around the party Central Committee headed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

[Text] Pyongyang, April 27 (KCNA) -- The great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song visited the Aeguk vegetable plant and the vegetable greenhouse of the Changchon cooperative farm in Sadong District on April 25.

He was accompanied by Comrade Kim Il, Pak Song-chol, Kim Chung-nin, Kim Hwan, Kang Song-san, Choe Kwang, Chong Chun-ki, So Yun-sok, So Kwan-hui, Hong Song-yong and Kim Chang-chu, and Chairman Han Tok-su and Vice-Chairman Yi Kyo-paek of the Central Standing Committee of the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went round the newly-built Aeguk vegetable plant. Inspecting the plant he expressed deep satisfaction with the successful construction of the modern vegetable plant which can store and keep fresh vegetables and fruits. He said it is important for supplying fresh vegetables in sufficiency at all times to the Pyongyang citizens to build more vegetable plants of this kind and, at the same time, manage and operate them well, and put forward concrete tasks for this.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song sent to the vegetable greenhouse built by the vegetable work team No. 1 of the Changchon cooperative farm in Sadong District. While seeing vegetables doing quite well in the greenhouse, he was greatly satisfied over the fact that the farmers there have built the greenhouse by themselves by using local materials to produce vegetables in large quantities, and highly praised their success. He taught that the vegetable greenhouse built at the Changchon cooperative farm is a very economic one which needs less materials and operation expense and is easy to be built. If the method of this farm is applied, he said, a greenhouse can be built easily in any place and more fresh vegetables be cultivated all the year round. He put forward the tasks to widely disseminate and generalise this fine experience.

That day the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave programmatic teachings which would serve as a guideline in effecting a new turn in the vegetable production in greenhouses and producing and supplying fresh vegetables more abundantly to our people all the year round.

NODONG SINMUN COMMEMORATES LENIN'S BIRTHDAY

[NODONG SINMUN 22 April article: "The 112th Anniversary of Great Lenin's Birth"]

[Text] We greet the 112th anniversary of the birth of V.I. Lenin, the outstanding leader of the working class. Along with his immortal achievements, Lenin's name has remained in the memory of communists and the revolutionary people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Lenin devoted his whole life to the sacred revolutionary cause for the freedom and liberation of the international working class and the world's oppressed people and left immortal achievements for the victory of socialism and communism.

Lenin devoted his whole life to the sacred cause of performing the historic duty of the working class and achieving the freedom and liberation of the exploited and oppressed people. Lenin was an outstanding thinker and theoretician who provided the working class with a powerful weapon in its struggle to overthrow the old society and build a new world. Lenin, who carried out activities in the period of imperialism when the contradictions of the capitalist society reached their zenith, put forward Leninism, reflecting the nature demand for social development and the will and desire of the people. Leninism was a mighty weapon of struggle and a banner of victory grasped by the working people, including the Russian working class and peasants. Leninism is creative Marxism of the period of imperialism and comprises the theory, strategy and tactics in the proletarian revolution.

What holds important place in Lenin's doctrine is his theory on imperialism. Based on the rule of emergence, development and the downfall of imperialism, invented by Marx, Lenin defined imperialism as the highest and final stage of capitalism, as a parasitic or corroding imperialism and as an overture for the socialist revolution.

Lenin's scientific exposition of the essence and historic position of imperialism and the inevitability of its fall dealt decisive blows at the advocates of imperialism. Lenin's discovery of the rule of the unbalanced development of capitalism in the period of imperialism and his putting forth for the first time a theory on the victory of socialism in a country victoriously encouraged the working class, struggling to smash the citadel of capitalism and to achieve the victory of socialism and communism.

Defending and developing the Marxist theory on the protetarian dictatorship, Lenin expounded its historic necessity and duty. He then put forth an idea on the league of workers and peasants as the supreme principle of proletarian dictatorship. Based on the situation in Russia, he discovered the form of the Soviet regime -- a dictatorial state of proletariat.

Lenin was an outstanding organizer and leader of the revolutionary struggle of the Russian working class. He led the Russian revolution to victory by firmly arming the Russian working class and the working people and by organizing and mobilizing them. Founding and strengthenii ng the revolutionary party of the working class was Lenin's lifetime cause. He energetically worked to found a new type of party. While staunchly fighting againt opportunists and reformists of all types, Lenin laid the organizational and ideological foundation of a revolutionary party of the working class, propounded its strategic and tactical principle, founded the Bolshevik Party, a party of the working class, in Russia and developed and strengthened it. In particular, he rejected factions within the party and established an ironclad centralized discipline, enabling the Bolshevik Party to fully assume its leadership role.

With the founding of the Bolshevik Party, the Russian working class and the working people victoriously pioneered the revolution, possessing their powerful revolutionary staff headquarters. What is conspicuous in the achievements of Lenin as a great practician is that he organized and led the October Socialist Revolution to victory. By rallying the Russian working class and the broad strata of the people around the Bolshevik Party and by calling them to an armed struggle, Lenin accomplished for the first time the historic cause of overthrowing the government of landowners and capitalists and the dictatorial state of the proletariat.

The victory of the October Socialist Revolution in making the first breach in the stronghold of imperialism was a great event which ushered in an era of revolutionary turn from capitalism to socialism and was the victory of Lenin's idea.

After achieving victory in the revolution, Lenin organized and led the Bolshevik Party, the army and the people in crushing the armed imperialist interventionists and domestic reactionaries who tried to obliterate the infant Soviet state at the initial stage, thus defending the revolutionary gains. Overcoming mounting difficulties and trials, he wisely led the Soviet people's struggle to build socialism.

Lenin was an outstanding leader who brought about the historic start of the revolutionary cause of the Russian working class and led it to victory and was a communist revolutionary fighter who devoted his lifetime to the cause of the liberation of mankind. After the death of Lenin, the Soviet people built a socialist system free from exploitation and oppression in the vast Soviet land by achieving socialist industrialization and agricultural collectivization by inheriting his cause. In the fatherland liberation war, under the leadership of Lenin's party, the Soviet people and army played a decisive role in defeating fascist Germany and ending World War II by displaying a spirit of matchless devotion and mass heroism. Thus, the Soviet people not only gloriously defended the Soviet fatherland but also greatly contributed to saving the peoples of many countries from the danger of fascist slavery. During the postwar period, through their creative labor struggle, the Soviet people rehabilitated the devastated people's economy in a short span of time and changed their country into a developed, powerful socialist country.

Upholding the decision of the Central Committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union to significantly greet the 60th anniversary of the formation of the Soviet Union the Soviet people are now energetically striving to fulfill the 11th 5-Year Plan set forth by the 26th party congress and are making strenous efforts to defend peace and security against the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war in the international arena. Our people sincerely rejoice over the successes attained by the fraternal Soviet people.

Much history has taken place since V.I. Lenin carried out activities. During this period, many revolutionary events have occurred in the history of the modern age, and a basic change has taken place in the world. Socialism has been expanded and developed on a global scale. The peoples of many countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America, who have served as blood and fodder for capitalist civilization, have achieved national independence and entered the road of independent development. The struggle of the people to achieve independence and socialism has spread like a prairie fire.

Imperialism has declined. Approaching is the day when colonial rule, which has disgracefully stained the history of mankind, will end. No force can stop the lawful process of the downfall of imperialism and the victory of socialism and communism. In the surging trend for the great era of independence, the revolutionary force of independence against imperialism is victorious.

The historic experience of the international communist movement shows that only under the leadership of an outstanding leader can the revolutionary cause of the working class victoriously advance without turns and twists. The leader plays a decisive role in the revolutionary struggle of the working class.

By holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a great leader, our people have traversed the single glorious road of victory and have greeted the era of great national prosperity. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has invented the immortal chuche idea, dispelled the dark cloud of colonial rule, which hung low over this land, with the resplendent ray of this idea, achieved the liberation of the fatherland and changed our country into a dignified, independent and self-reliant country with a self-defense capability. The revolutionary cause developed by the great leader has been brilliantly inherited and developed by our party. Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the glorious party center, our people are accelerating the historic cause for building socialism and communism with confidence in a bright future.

The Korean and Soviet peoples are class brothers who are fighting shoulder to shoulder against imperialism and for the victory of the cause of peace, socialism and communism. Our people treasure friendship and solidarity with the fraternal Soviet people. The traditional Korean-Soviet friendship, cultivated in the flames of arduous revolutionary struggle and which has withstood historic trials, is excellently developing in the interests of the two peoples. The fraternal Soviet people are actively supporting and encouraging the struggle of our people to achieve the fatherland's reunification.

Our people will as always vigorously struggle to oppose imperialism and achieve peace, democracy, national independence and the victory of the cause of socialism in unity with the peoples of socialist countries, including the Soviet Union, and nonaligned countries and with the world's progressive people.

The immortal achievements of V.I. Lenin will shine in the history of the revolutionary struggle of the working class.

KOREA HERALD HAILS VISIT BY VICE PRESIDENT BUSH

[Editorial: "Fruit of Bush's Visit"]

[Text] Ties between any two nations cannot but be strong when bound by a common stake and when their people understand and trust each other not only to defend it but also to promote it. This simple truth was given ample proof by U.S. Vice President George Bush's three-day visit to this country which ended yesterday.

The vice president made his first visit here to celebrate the 100th year of the Korean-American official relationship. But as his short but loaded itinerary demonstrated, his trip proved to be far more than a commemorative one. First of all, it resulted in a firmer-than-ever reaffirmation of the necessity for a strong Korean-American partnership. Their alliance has already undergone a test of times during the past 30 years and looks forward to further solidarity in ensuring peace and stability in this part of Asia.

As Mr Bush made clear while addressing the National Assembly, Korea and the United States have worked together in the close spirit of cooperation to maintain peace on this peninsula. This partnership will continue so as to make North Korea's Kim Il-song give up his aggressive policy for the logic of negotiations. The American vice president put forth the U.S. message to Pyongyang in most unequivocal terms when he said that the United States "has no intention of stepping aside in Korea so Kim Il-song can launch another invasion and set the clock back thirty-two years." This expression of the U.S. determination gives us new encouragement in pursuing the avowed peaceful goals of this republic on the peninsula.

The security interest is not the sole binder of the Korean-American ties which is entering its second century. While the United States is a major market for Korean goods, Korea today is the ninth largest trading partner of America. No doubt, Korea's place in U.S. trade will become more important in the future as its economy continues to expand.

As the visiting vice president noted, this republic under the leadership of President Chon Tu-hwan is striving to renew the spirit of national harmony and build a solid basis for pluralism. The increasing economic achievement under the powerful security shield will provide further impetus to our endeavor for a free and prosperous society. The progress being made in this undertaking will augment the Korean-American partnership with a new measure of pride and strength.

The closeness of Korean-American ties is reflected in many ways, indeed. The two nations have fought together twice in the last three decades and, on this peninsula, they have been standing side by side to safeguard the peace they won together. Besides, the bulging Korean community in the United States, as well as the increasing number of Korean youths advancing their academic studies there, has contributed a great deal to narrowing the cultural distance between the two countries.

These encouraging developments will help the Korean-American alliance mature to its fullest extent as it continues into a second hundred years. As Mr Bush said during the visit, Korean-American ties have been consolidated enough to endure any criticism. His visit, to all appearances, marked a new moment in the Korea-U.S. joint efforts to become more trustworthy and dependable friends in the years ahead.

HOME MINISTER RESIGNS FOLLOWING UIRYONG MASSACRE

[Text] Seoul, April 28 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan Wednesday accepted the resignation tendered by Home Affairs Minister So Chong-hwa in connection with a policeman's massacre of villagers in the southern town of Uiryong Monday night, and appointed Sports Minister No Tae-u to replace So, a presidential spokesman announced.

The president named Yi Won-kyung, secretary general of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee, as sports minister.

In another action, the chief executive appointed Kim Song-pae, governor of North Kyongsang Province, as mayor of Seoul, spokesman Yi Wong-hui said. Pak Yong-su, the former mayor, resigned because of the April 8 accident at a subway construction site in Seoul, which claimed the lives of 10 persons and injured 42 others.

Fifty-five people were killed and 36 others were injured in a shooting spree in Uiryong, South Kyongsang Province, Monday night and early Tuesday morning, when an apparently insane policeman detonated hand grenades and indiscriminately fired rifles at villagers.

New Home Affairs Minister No Tae-u, 50, is a retired army general who began his government service as state minister for political affairs and diplomacy last year. He became sports minister in March, when the portfolio was created. New Sports Minister Yi Won-kyung, 60, is a former diplomat who has served as vice foreign minister, culture and information minister, and president of the HAPTONG NEWS AGENCY, one of the two forerunners of the YONHAP NEWS AGENCY. Seoul's new mayor, Kim Song-pae, 55, is a career civil servant who was a former vice mayor of Seoul and former governor of Kangwon Province.

Interministerial Body Formed

[Text] The government has formed an inter-ministry committee to deal with relief measures after the massacre of residents by a policeman, which occurred in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo, Monday night. The body, headed by Premier Yu Chang-sun, is made up of Deputy Premier Kim Chun-song, Home Minister So Chong-hwa, Justice Minister Yi Chong-won, Defense Minister Chu Yong-pok, Health-Social Affairs Minister Chon Myong-ki and Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo. Deputy Premier Kim and Health-Social Minister Chon went to the scene of the incident to work out due steps to deal with it. A working-level team to probe the incident has also been formed with senior prosecutors.

In a special statement, Premier Yu, terming the slaughter an "act of unpardonable atrocity," said that the government would closely examine the incident and work out schemes to prevent similar incidents. The Home Ministry named Kyongsang-namdo Governor Choe Chong-ho head of its own relief committee to manage funerals of the dead and medical treatment of the injured. The committee initially released 3 million won to each family of the fatal victims yesterday.

Death Toll Rises to 56

[Text] Uiryong, Korea, April 28 (YONHAP) -- The death toll in the shooting spree here Monday night rose to 56 Tuesday evening, as Mrs. Pak Sun-tok died in a hospital bed. Thirty-six persons are currently being treated for wounds they suffered in the bizarre incident, in which a policeman detonated hand grenades and indiscriminately fired rifles at villagers. The fanatic killer, identified as U Pom-kon, 27, committed suicide with a hand grenade following his rampage. Authorities said the policeman was insane.

KOREA TIMES Views Incident

[Excerpts] The mass killing of innocent villagers committed by a policeman on duty Monday night raised many problems, including inadequate security at arsenals and lack of police preparedness for contingencies. The unprecedented incident which left 55 dead and 37 injured, might have been avoided or at least the death toll could have been minimized if the two guards at the arsenal had lived up to the regulations of their duty.

The two soldiers on defense call-up were learned to have deserted their post in the face of violent acts by the drunken policeman, allowing him to take the carbines, ammunition and hand grenades.

Even more deplorable was that the killer was able to continue his rampage unchecked for about eight hours. Considering the fact that the nation is under the constant threat of infiltration by armed North Korean agents, the inadequate police defense posture exposed by the incident was enough to make the general public shiver all over. Thus it took more than four hours for the report of incident to be relayed to the National Police Headquarters from the start of the rampage. There must be a big loophole in the command structure of the National Police. The emergency communication network for the Homeland Reserve Force also proved ineffective in the face of such a contingency.

It is hardly understandable that the police could not get the policeman who was moving on foot. As U was armed, the pursuing police force retained the right to gun him down in self-defense even without orders from Seoul to kill him. The deep-rooted easy-going and passive attitude of the police can be pointed out as a major cause of the miserable and shameful incident.

It is generally believed that the incident was motivated by the policeman's personal discontent with his assignment and trouble with his commonlaw wife, coupled with his innately vicious character. Patrolman U is said to have complained often about having been transferred to the remote village from Seoul. It can also be pointed out that there must be something wrong with the method of recruiting policemen, which should have taken personal character more thoroughly into account.

He said that he carried two hand grenades and wanted to use them in threatening car drivers to give him free rides. Police turned Pvt. Yu over to military investigation authorities.

In the meantime, Kyongsang police station yesterday recommended three policemen who played leading roles in arresting the runaway soldier, to higher police authorities for their promotion by one rank each.

GOVERNMENT STUDIES MEASURES TO BOOST EXPORTS

[Text] Seoul, April 26 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government is studying multilateral export support measures to boost sagging exports. A ranking government official said Monday the ceiling for export finance loans will increase from the current 80 percent to 85 or 90 percent per dollar and the payment period will be extended from the present 90 days to 120 or 160 days.

The official said such a move is considered necessary because commodity shipments abroad in the first 24 days of this month dropped 2.1 percent compared to the same period last year while arrivals of export letters of credit in the same 24 day period fell by 22.6 percent.

The government also plans to increase funds for credit exports of machinery and industrial plants in particular and omit the quality check when agreements with buyers are made. Other highlights of the export support measures now being considered include improving the customs rebate system, gradually increasing the won currency against the U.S. dollar and shifting from the current export licensing system to an export reporting system, according to the official.

OFFICIALS COMMENT ON PATROL BOAT ATTACK BY LAOS

BK280739 Hong Kong AFP in English 0649 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Text] Bangkok, April 28 (AFP) -- The Thai Supreme Command today said a Laotian attack on a Thai patrol boat on Tuesday night had "shown ill-intention towards Thailand." One Thai naval official was killed, one seriously wounded and one was reported missing, believed drowned, after the attack.

Laos has made no mention of the incident, the first major case on the Mekong River border since June 1980 when a Thai Navy officer was killed by Laotian fire.

Thai Supreme Command spokesman, Lieutenant General Som Khattaphan, stressing he was giving his "personal opinion," called for an "appropriate" Thai response to the latest incident.

Following the earlier incident, Thailand sealed its border with the landlocked Indochinese state, imposing a virtual economic blockade.

According to the Thai Navy, two captured "infiltrators" were being escorted back to a Thai base when Pathet Lao troops based on a mid-river island -- Don Sawan -- opened fire with sub-machine guns. "We were definitely within Thai waters," officials said. The infiltrators, travelling in a row-boat behind the patroller emerged unscathed from the attack.

Meanwhile, Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman Chet Sucharitkun said the Thai Government was waiting for further details of the incident before making any decision on the matter.

REPORTAGE ON PRIME MINISTER'S EUROPEAN TOUR

Brussels Talks

BK250140 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 25 Apr 82 p 2

[Text] Brussels -- Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon yesterday told President Gaston Thorn of the European Commission the EC should "play the role of a catalyst" in urging and channelling interest in Thailand's new economic opportunities in the fifth plan to all member countries. Gen Prem told Thorn that Thailand anticipated a revival of interest of EC member states in participating in the Thai economy.

After a 30-minute private talk with Thorn, Prem led a Thai delegation in talks with the EC counterparts. The talks covered political and economic relations between Thailand and EC. Both shared common views concerning the general world situation.

"In particular, they opposed aggression in Afghanistan and Kampuchea, and all forms of outside interference in internal affairs of countries," according to a member of the Thai delegation. Gen Prem stressed during the meeting that without resolving the Kampuchean conflict, there could be no peace and stability in Southeast Asia. He told Thorn that aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea could not be accepted as a "fait accompli."

The Thai prime minister called upon the EC to continue its policy of withholding all forms of aid to Vietnam until Hanoi abided by the UN resolutions. He also expressed Thailand's appreciation for EC's assistance given to refugees from the Indochinese countries in Thailand.

On the economic front, Prem told the EC delegation that the fifth five year plan would stress greater productivity in industry and agriculture. He cited investment opportunities in trade, investment, technology and finance for EC member countries in Thailand.

On trade, Thailand told the EC delegates that she viewed restrictions on the access to EC markets for its light industrial and agricultural products with concern as such restrictions caused great disruption to Thailand's economic and social structure. The premier urged EC commission to help Thailand to increase exports to EC markets. By doing so Thailand would be able to buy more from EC, he said.

Thorn and his colleagues noted that trade between Thailand and EC had multiplied four times since 1978 and was still increasing. The balance favoured Thailand. The commission supported Thailand joining GATT and this would open further avenues for trade expansion, he said, adding that the commission was ready to give technical help to smooth the way for Thailand's participation in GATT. Thailand's economic development had made remarkable progress and the infrastructure was now established to accelerate Thailand's development. The fifth five year plan would be crucial, he said. The commission was ready to help, and also ready to extend further assistance in such areas as scientific research, remote sensing and tele-detection, he added.

[Text] Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon and his delegation will end their visit to Austria today and proceed for Great Britain for a 3-day official visit. They are scheduled to arrive there at 1645 local time.

According to a report by government deputy spokeswoman Wanida Chitman, citing a report received at 0500 today from chief of the Technical Division of the Public Relations Department Arun Ngamdi, on 26 April at 1000 Austrian time the prime minister called on Chancellor Bruno Kreisky at the chancellor's office. They held consultations on economic, political and technical cooperation. Austria expressed willingness to assist Thailand in a reforestation program. Thailand and Austria also signed an agreement on the abolition of visa requirements for holders of diplomat and official service passports between the two countries. The agreement was signed by the foreign minster of both countries.

At about 1230 the prime minister paid a courtesy call on the Austrian president at Hofburg Palace. The Austrian president hosted a luncheon in honor of the Thai prime minister and his delegation. The party was also attended by the Austrian Council of Ministers, parliament president, leaders of the political parties and representatives of the Austrian private business sector.

At 1650 local time, the prime minister and his party visited the new headquarters of the UN international organizations at the Vienna international center. The prime minister thanked the United Nations, particularly the narcotics division and the UN Fund for Control of Drug Abuse, for the financial assistance given to Thailand to fight its drug problems. This, he said, has greatly contributed to Thailand's efforts to eliminate narcotics and narcotics problems.

U.S., USSR STANDS ON DISARMAMENT CONTRASTED

OW251251 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 24 Apr 82

[Vuong Thinh commentary]

[Text] Due to the wicked schemes of U.S.-led imperialism, mankind is now facing an increasingly great danger of war. For this reason, the Soviet Union's peace initiatives have been winning even more widespread support and sympathy from the world's people, including the Western and American peoples.

Like the well-known peace platform approved by the 26th CPSU Congress, Chairman Brezhnev's new initiative put forth at the 17th AUCCTU Congress on 16 March 1982 is aimed at restricting the arms race and averting the danger of a world war. His initiative also stresses the fact that the Soviet Union will unilaterally suspend the deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles on the European part of its territory and will reduce a certain number of these missiles this year if world tension is alleviated and if the United States suspends the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe.

According to the Soviet proposal, both sides should stop deploying more medium-range nuclear missiles and should gradually reduce and then destroy them. What does this mean? It is a logical zero limitation proposal that is quite different from the so-called zero option plan advanced by Reagan on 18 November 1981 which urged an agreement on destroying all medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

At first glance it looks as if the Reagan administration is eager and ready to go further than the Soviet Union. In reality, however, his zero option plan is nothing but an extreme, unrealistic proposal for actual conditions. Time and space will not allow it to be carried out at once, not to mention the absurd U.S. demand that all the Soviet medium-range missiles already deployed be removed in exchange for an uncertain promise to cancel the U.S. plan to deploy new nuclear missiles. Meanwhile, the United States has not mentioned the missiles deployed by the NATO-member countries. Thus, the U.S. zero option plan is unrealistic and merely designed for display and propaganda purposes.

Reagan's 5 April proposal for an unofficial summit meeting with Chairman Brezhnev also serves the same purpose and is not a serious one, for how could anyone rashly agree to a meeting between the heads of two superpowers [words indistinct]. However, the Soviet Union has shown its good will and after examining Reagan's proposal attentively, carefully and seriously, Chairman Brezhnev agreed to meet with the U.S. President, not in June but this fall so that preparations can be made carefully. Public opinion in the world, including in the United States, highly values the Soviet Union's attitude as well as its recent peace initiatives because they do not serve any useless propaganda purposes but reflect good will and a practical, constructive attitude.

Actual words and deeds reveal two quite different attitudes and stands. One can see more clearly than ever before that to cope with public opinion, the Reagan administration has sought to advance unrealistic proposals as a pretext to continue escalating the arms race. In fact, it has planned to earmark as much as $1,600 billion for armament in the coming 5 years. Meanwhile, it is making frenzied efforts in chemical and biological armament and planning even to militarize space. That is the reason why large numbers of the world's people of all strata have actively joined the antinuclear movement and supported the Soviet Union's peace initiatives.

Recently large numbers of people in the United States and Western Europe have continued to take to the streets in the interest of peace, demanding the cancellation of the U.S. plan to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe. This movement has spread to some 750 cities and towns and 450 universities and advanced schools in the United States, with the participation of tens of millions of people, including U.S. congressmen.

From the facts one can see clearly who sincerely contributes to building and consolidating peace and who is an arms racer and prepares for war and sabotages peace.

Of course, at present, although stubbornly continuing the arms race, the United States, with its limited strength, can in no way do as it pleases. It is stupid to try to threaten aggression and start a war. As Chairman Brezhnev pointed out, this can in no way help the imperialists achieve anything or bring about the results they expect. Obviously, not everybody is capable of learning from history.

PRC PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE AGAINST SRV ALLEGED

[Feature by station editor Vu Dinh Vinh: "Heighten Vigilance in National Defense"]

[Excerpt] Dear comrades and friends: Beijing has mounted a campaign of psychological warfare against Vietnam. This campaign has focused on distoring the situation in Kampuchea, giving encouragement to its lackeys and inciting the reactionary forces in the ASEAN countries to oppose Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries.

It is not fortuitous that XINHUA has concocted a tale about Vietnamese troops' ransacking the Angkor Wat in Kampuchea and that the Beijing news service has lately expressed hope that the three reactionary Khmer factions will form a so-called coalition government as soon as possible. In order to deceive public opinion, the Beijing mouthpiece has brazenly said that China will support and give assistance to all factions without hoping for the establishment of a pro-Chinese government. Is that true? No! Who used the genocidal lackey clique in Kampuchea to attack Vietnam from the southwest and to sabotage peace and stability in the region? Who is continuing to nurture the remnant Khmer Rouge bandits so as to disturb the Kampuchean people's national reconstruction? Who is attempting to turn into Khmer Rouge those reactionary Khmer groups to be rallied in the so-called tripartite coalition movement by trying to help his Pol Pot henchmen to seize control of this loose alliance?

Beijing has been forced to say that it goes along with the setting up of such a coalition government because it knows that the present situation is unfavorable to it and because it wants to win over the reactionary forces in the ASEAN countries with Thailand being regarded by China as an important element.

A meeting of the reactionary Khmer factions was held in Beijing a few months ago but it was unsuccessful because some participants feared that the Chinese-backed Pol Pot clique would swallow up other factions when the opportunity arose. While the Thai foreign minister is enthusiastically lobbying for the holding of another meeting for the three reactionary Khmer factions before an ASEAN summit conference is convened, and while he is planning to visit Beijing at the invitation of China, the Beijing propaganda mouthpiece has been pouring out this deceitful propaganda so as to ward off criticism by public opinion over Beijing's continuing employment of the Khmer Rouge, a gang all progressive mankind disgusts.

Regrettably, a number of persons in the ASEAN countries continue to blindly follow the rut of the Chinese reactionaries' cart. It should be pointed out there that among these countries, Thailand has gone too far in this inappropriate policy. Everyone knows that Thailand is providing shelter to various reactionary Khmer groups against the Kampuchean revolution. In coordinating with Beijing's propaganda, the Bangkok ruling circles have, in recent days, again circulated slanderous news reports about the Vietnamese armed forces' bombings, encroachments and shellings of Thai territory. Even worse, they have joined with the United States in the latter's propaganda drive to slander Vietnam over the alleged use of toxic chemicals in Kampuchea and the claim that Vietnam might have used chemical weapons even in Thailand. But facts show that Thai troops have been perpetrating crimes against the Kampuchean people.

[Text] Hanoi VNA April 27 -- Marking the fourth anniversary of the Afghan revolution today, NHAN DAN says the Afghan people will certainly overcome all trials in defending their revolutionary achievements.

The paper says that under the leadership of the People's Democratic Party, the Afghan people have made great achievements in economic, cultural, and social development, while waging a resolute struggle against the enemy from within and outside. "Washington, Beijing and other international reactionary forces have made one attempt after another to discredit the progressive system in Afghanistan, ignoring all goodwill gestures from the government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan, but the revolution continues," NHAN DAN says.

The paper recalls that the recent national congress of the People's Democratic Party adopted an action programme and called on the entire people to unite to fight the reactionaries to obtain peace and stability. "The Afghan people's struggle is still very difficult," NHAN DAN says, "but facts over the past four years have proved that under the leadership of the People's Democratic Party, the fraternal Afghan people will be victorious in building and defending their independent, happy and prosperous country."

SOUTHERN PROVINCES' GRAIN PRODUCTION BELOW NORMAL

[Text] According to the Ministry of Food, as of 20 April the southern provinces and cities had delivered to state granaries more than 760,000 tons of grain, including 250,000 tons collected in the form of agricultural tax. However, compared to the same period last year, the delivery of grain to the state in these provinces and cities is still slow and agricultural tax collection has reached only 60 percent of the planned norm.

To overcome this situation,these provinces and cities are continuing to encourage the peasants to quickly reap winter-spring rice while selecting good paddy to deliver to state granaries.

To date, Cuu Long, which still takes the lead in grain delivery among other Nam Bo provinces, has delivered more than 90,000 tons to state granaries, thus fulfilling 90 percent of the planned norm for the 10th-month and winter-spring crop seasons.

MORE DEATHS REPORTED IN ELECTION CAMPAIGN

[Text] Jakarta, 28 Apr (AFP) -- An estimated 27 people were killed on Java Island yesterday in two last-minute campaign rallies for the general election on May 4, the semi-official newspaper SUARA KARYA (VOICE OF THE WORKERS) reported today.

With the general election campaign officially ending today, the newspaper said 17 people were killed in one incident, and 10 in the other, as a result of "traffic accidents". It added that a number of supporters of the opposition Muslim United Development Party (PPP) had been arrested in connection with two of the alleged accidents.

Observers noted that the death toll in the first incident at Bumi Java were the highest recorded in a rally during the campaign for the May 4 general election.

In another report the paper said PPP supporters attacked a group of Civil Defence Corps (HANSIP) members killing one and wounding 10 others at Soreang, west Java.

The paper quoted local military chief, Lieutenant Colonel Slamet Sudjono, as saying that over 200 people had been arrested in connection with the attack.

Armed troops guarded strategic points in Jakarta today as the Indonesian Democratic Party (PDI) was preparing to stage the final round of rally and processions. Admiral Sudomo announced yesterday that troops would shoot on sight at trouble-makers. The order, which came into effect as from yesterday, was to ensure that the polling would proceed smoothly without trouble he said. Last night he held a meeting with leaders of the PPP, PDI and Gokar to discuss the current political and security situation, his spokesman said. During the meeting Admiral Sudomo warned the PPP not to repeat incidents tht could lead to clashes with the state apparatus, the spokesman said. The spokesman quoted Admiral Sudomo as saying that PPP should be able to control its supporters without causing trouble.

Meanwhile, PPP General Chairman John Naro challenged National Security Chief Admiral Sudomo to prove his allegations that PPP members had started trouble during a mass procession by the ruling Golkar (functional groups) Party in which seven people were killed on Sunday. Such charges should be completed with evidence, he said. Mr Naro said the PPP, like other parties, adhered to the national red and white flag and the state ideology. He dismissed suggestions that the PPP had been unable to control its members and supporters.

A 5 day "cooling off" period will start tomorrow until polling starts on May 4.

BUSH ARRIVES; WIDE-RANGING TALKS PLANNED

[Text] The U.S. vice president, Mr George Bush, is now in Singapore for a 3-day official visit.

In an arrival statement, Mr Bush said he had come to discuss a full range of matters of international importance. He also hoped to learn and profit from the extraordinary policies that have made Singapore a landmark in prosperity.

The United States, he said, valued highly its close and cooperative relationship with Singapore just as it values its ties with all the ASEAN countries. Their close and cooperative spirit have made possible progress toward resolution of a number of regional problems. This spirit in a world that lives with the everyday pressure of communist aggession cannot be taken for granted or overemphasized.

Mr Bush said he was looking forward enormously to meeting with Mr Lee Kuan Yew again. He said he speaks for President Reagan in saying that the United States attaches great importance to Mr Lee's views. Mr Bush said he expected to have a free, frank and open exchange of views with the prime minister and other members of the Singapore leadership.

The U.S. vice president and Mrs Bush were accompanied by a party of 10 officials. They were met at the airport by the Deputy Prime Minister for Foreign Affairs and Mrs Rajaratnam and the minister of state for defense and Mrs Yeo Ning Hong.

Lee Kuan Yew Dinner Speech

[Text] Mr Lee Kuan Yew has said that despite pressing problems America must not overlook her strategic interests in Southeast Asia.

Speaking at a dinner in honor of the visiting U.S. vice president, Mr George Bush and Mrs Bush, at the Istana [palace] tonight, the prime minister said it would not be forgotten that there is a low intensity but long-lived struggle in Southeast Asia between the Soviet Union, through Vietnam, and the People's Republic of China. He warned that an adverse outcome of this struggle would have grave consequences for ASEAN and for Japan. And Japan's security -- as the U.S. defense secretary, Mr Weinberger, has recently reiterated in Tokyo -- is of key importance to the United States.

Referring to the good relations between ASEAN and the United States, Mr Lee said as is the nature of such relationships there must be [word indistinct]. For example, the sale of the U.S. tin stockpile recently caused anxiety and dismay amongst ASEAN, especially the tin producers. He said a more sympathetic American policy would not have been misplaced. ASEAN's economic progress would have a positive effect on other countries of the Third World. He pointed out that it is a demonsration of the benefits of free trade and free enterprise in bringing about development. And America's will to maintain free trade despite all the pressures to quality or modify it is important to all countries in the noncommunist world.

Mr Lee said that the noncommunist system cannot go through another bout of protectionist retaliation without irreparable damage. Fortunately he noted there are indications that the American recession may be bottoming out. If the recovery is sustained, the friction between America and her allies and friends will be greatly reduced.

Earlier, the prime minister noted that the Reagan administration's resolve to restore American strength and influence has given heart to America's friends. Public support in America to this revival has been crucial. The president's great commitment to a strong defense and to a halt in further concessions and retreat has come up against new problems.

Mr Lee said [words indistinct] America, the antinuclear movement seemed to be one-sidedly in favor of the Soviets. Next, no end to martial law in Poland is in sight. Then Western Europe's different interpretations over the source of guerrilla violence in Central America, have not helped in calming America's own domestic critics. And now, he added, with the Sinai withdrawal completed, the balance in the Middle East, always so precarious, may become more difficult to maintain.

Mr Lee also noted that the vice president's second visit to an ASEAN country within 16 months of the Reagan administration was a welcome demonstration of U.S. support for and interest in ASEAN.

In his speech, Mr Bush referred to the good friendship between Singapore and the United States and that they both believe in free enterprise as a stabilizing influence. He said that they are not allies in the formal sense but they both believe in the need for the United States to maintain a strong and steady influence in the Pacific region.

Mr Bush pointed out that Soviet aggression is (?on the loose) in many parts of the world. In this region, its proxy, Vietnam, continues its war against Kampuchea. He said its occupation that country is a profound and destabilizing influence in Southeast Asia.

ENRILE ON HUMAN RIGHTS, AUSTRALIAN RELATIONS

[From the "Australian Insight" program]

[Excerpt] This is "Australian Insight" and I am (Judith Hinckey). Philippines Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has denied that Australia provides any significant military assistance to his country and has also rejected charges of widespread torture and abuse of human rights among government opponents there. Mr Enrile who, some political observers predict, is likely to be the successor of the Philippines president, Mr Marcos, is briefly visiting Australia at the invitation of Prime Minister Fraser. At a news conference in Sydney, (Richard Andrews) asked Mr Enrile to comment on reports that one of the main purposes of his visit was to seek expanded military assistance to the Philippines:

[Begin recording] There is no military support being given by Australia to my government or to my country. We do not have any military understanding between our two countries.

[Question] What about the training of Philippine soldiers and supply of Nomad aircraft and various other military provisions?

[Answer] The Australian Government is not involved in training our air force people or soldiers in military matters. It is true that we have some Nomad aircraft from you and we buy spare parts for these airplanes. But, I think the company that sold these aircraft send their technicians to Manila once in a while to assist in the maintenance of these aircraft, and that's about all.

[Question] There has been a fair amount of criticism by a number of church and community and aid groups on your visit to Australia, and they say that the Austrialian Government should not supply any military technology to your country whatsoever. One of the reasons given is that the existing support is being abused and they cite the alleged massacre last year of 45 people in the village of (Zargot) in Samar which...

[Answer] May I suggest that you cut down your questions to parts so that we can answer them because if you're going to narrate a long story, I will narrate a long answer; but I think it will take us rather a lengthy time to debate the issue. [laughter]

[Question] All right, I'll cut it down then. Would you deny the accusation that troops from your timber company were involved in a massacre of villagers near a project in which Australian aid is involved on the island of Samar?

[Answer] I deny that because while it is true that there is an interest in a timber company operating in the Samar area, I am not involved in the management of this timber company. In fact, it might surprise you to know that I do not even know there they come from, these timber companies. I have never been there. And the timber company is being managed by a professional group. Now, this timber company had its own employed security people who were already there when the group of which I am a part took over the controlling interest in this company. And I can say that the investigation conducted by the committee created by government to look into this particularly unfortunate incident made a finding that none of the security people of the timber company were involved in this particular problem. In fact, they are there in Las Navas, which is the encampment of the timber company to be identified by anybody. They can't say that anyone of them committed any of this [word indistinct] thing.

Now coming back to the premise of your question whether your government is training any of our soldiers or your government is giving us any military technology, the answer is no. We do not get any military technology from Australia. We do not get any training assistance from your government. Except perhaps, to the extent that some of our officers are sent be us here to study in your military schools on a 6-month or 1-year basis. But this is common among countries -- friendly countries -- like yours and mine. And this is true with respect to the Philippines and Thailand; with respect to the Philippines and Indonesia; with respect to the Philippines and Malaysia; with respect to the Philippines and Singapore; with respect to the Philippines and Spain; and with respect to the Philippines and the United States. This is done by friendly countries among themselves.

This does not mean that Australia, by doing this -- by allowing some of our officers to study here -- is involved with us militarily. No, we have no military involvement with Australia and neither does Australia have any military involvement with us.

[Question] Here, the National Council of Churches has said 24 of its staff in the Philippines are being held or have been held for 2 months without trial. Could you comment on it?

[Answer] Well, I do not know whether there are persons belonging to the churches here who have been arrested and detained by us. But surely, in the course of our efforts to contain the problem of insurgency in the Philippines, we sometimes arrest and detain persons and I am sure that it is quite possible that some of the people that we have arrested and detained are such persons that they mention. But I would like to tell you that all of these persons have been charged in court. Yes, they have been charged. And since after charging them the matter is out of my jurisdiction because it belongs to the judicial department, the courts will now have to try them and I cannot tell a judge or a court, how soon or how fast, or how he will try the case. Because then we will be accused of interfering with judicial process. And like in your country, we adhere to the independence of the judiciary in matters like this.

[Question] They say that they haven't been charged and they also say that 17 of these people have been tortured while they are being held.

[Answer] That is not quite correct. If there is such information transmitted to them, then I must say with all candor and frankness that this must have been information that was meant to mislead.

[Question] Are you telling them that people are not detained without being charged and they are not tortured while in custody?

[Answer] That's not true. We have not tortured them; it's against the Philippine Government to torture anybody. And in fact, I'll tell you that we have [words indistinct], committing crimes and they are in detention. But they have not been interrogated because they do not want to talk; they do not want to say anything. So we leave them. That's their right, and we produce the evidence based on our investigation of the respective cases to sustain a charge against them and we do not need their statements to establish the probability that they have committed a crime. Because when we arrest a person, there is a basis for the arrest. We have at least evidence to sustain the action of government in arresting these people. We do not arrest people [words indistinct] impressions created by others in the outside world, with impunity or arbitrarily. We believe like you, like the Australian people, that we must adhere to democratic processes. We must follow the rule of law.

[Question] You therefore deny the claims by Amnesty International that at least 2,000 political prisoners are being held, that they are being systemantically tortured and that other widespread abuses are occurring?

[Answer] I deny that. In fact, you see, I sat down with the gentlemen who entered the Philippines from Amnesty International and we explained to them each and every one of the cases that they have mentioned to us. But we were surprised when they went back to their home stations; the whole report was against the Philippines for what reasons I cannot explain. [end recording]

OFFICIALS SAY $4 BILLION TO BE OFFERED TO ROK

[Text] Tokyo, April 28, KYODO -- Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya will fly to Seoul Thursday morning in an attempt to break the current deadlocked negotiations over the South Korean request for dollar 6 billion in economic aid from Japan for Seoul's 1982-1986 Economic and Social Development Program, Foreign Ministry officials said Wednesday.

Yanagiya will meet with Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong probably Friday to explain that Japan is ready to extend dollar 4 billion to help the Seoul government in its five-year program. The Japanese offer, which officials said has been finally worked out, consists of dollar 1.5 billion in low-interest yen loans and dollar 2.5 billion in Export-Import Bank loans. Yanagiya also will convey a personal message from Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi to his Korean counterpart, No, the officials said.

Prior to his departure for Seoul, Yanagiya met with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Wednesday and Suzuki reportedly asked him to convey Japan's sincerity and utmost efforts to positively respond to the Korean aid request. The Japanese Government hopes to settle the aid issue by sending Foreign Minister Sakurauchi to Seoul during the holiday-studded "golden" week in early May or by the end of May at the latest, though there is still a wide gap between Tokyo and Seoul over the issue.

Appearing before a Diet committee Wednesday afternoon, the foreign minister admitted that he was not so sure about success in Yanagiya's talks in Seoul. But Yanagiya's dispatch, the minister stressed, comes from his intention to make utmost, sincere efforts to meet the Korean request.

Foreign Ministry official also said they were not so optimistic about Seoul's immediate acceptance of the dollar 4 billion offer with Yanagiya's visit and a settlement of the aid problem within May. The officials said Yanagiya will explain in detail the Japanese proposal to try to find a way of solving the issue. Yanagiya will frankly tell the Korean officials that Japan can neither make further concessions beyond the dollar 4 billion figure, nor can accept the Korean request for aid in commodity loans, the officials said. Even if such a clue to an early solution cannot be found with Yanagiya's visit, the Foreign Ministry will continue talks with the Korean side in a bid to avoid a deterioration in Tokyo-Seoul relations.

BALANCE OF PAYMENTS REPORT FOR 1981 RELEASED

[Text] Tokyo, April 28, KYODO -- Japan chalked up a dollar 926 million current account surplus in March, bringing the total surplus for the whole of fiscal 1981 ended on March 31 to dollar 5,947 million, the Finance Ministry announced Wednesday in a preliminary report. This was the first black-ink figure in three years but smaller than a dollar 10 billion surplus estimated for the fiscal year in a revised government economic outlook last December. In fiscal 1980, Japan suffered a dollar 7,012 million deficit.

Ministry officials said the fiscal 1981 surplus was smaller than expected as growth of exports slowed down in the latter half of the year. Exports rose 10.9 percent to dollar 149,590 million, while imports gained 0.7 percent to dollar 129,115 million. The resultant dollar 20,475 million trade surplus was three-fold over a year ago.

Deficit on the invisible trade account increased dollar 782 million to dollar 12,981 million last fiscal year, while that on the transfer account narrowed to dollar 1,547 million.

The long-term capital account ended with a deficit of dollar 14.8 billion, compared with a dollar 2.7 billion surplus the previous year, as net outflow of Japanese capital hit a record dollar 25.5 billion.

Reflecting the yen's depreciation and sluggish Tokyo stock market prices since last autumn, foreigners' net investment in Japan fell to dollar 10.7 billion from dollar 15.8 billion. As a result, the shortfall on the overall balance of payments (current account plus long- and short-term capital accounts) jumped to dollar 7.9 billion from dollar 0.4 billion in fiscal 1980.

The dollar 926 million current account surplus in March consisted of a dollar 2,059 million merchandize trade surplus, a dollar 887 million invisible trade deficit and a dollar 246 million transfer account shortfall.

The deficit on long-term capital account nearly doubled to dollar 2,660 million from February's dollar 1,456 million. The overall balance of payments showed a dollar 579 million surplus in March against a dollar 1,202 million deficit the previous month.

The fiscal 1981 balance of payments (in millions of dollars before seasonal adjustments):

	FISCAL 1981	FISCAL 1980
Current Account	5,947	7,012
Trade	20,475	2,766
Exports	149,590	134,942
Imports	129,115	128,176
Invisible Trade	12,981	12,199
Transfers	1,547	1,579
Long-Term Capital	14,778	4,377

Short-Term Capital	967	3,084
Errors and Omissions	1,939	829
Overall Balance	7,859	380

BRIEFS

OIL IMPORTS DECLINE -- Tokyo, 23 Apr, KYODO -- Reflecting the stagnant domestic economy and oil-saving efforts, Japan's oil imports declined for the second straight year in fiscal 1981 ended on March 31, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said Friday. Japan imported 230.2 million kiloliters (some 1,448 million barrels) -- as low as the 1971 level -- in the fiscal year, or 4 million barrels a day. The total showed a 7.6 percent fall after a 10.1 percent decline in fiscal 1980. Saudi Arabia was the top supplier, accounting for 35.3 percent of total oil imports, followed by Indonesia with 15.8 percent and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) with 12.7 percent. March oil imports came to 20.6 million kiloliters. [Text] [Tokyo KYODO in English 0630 GMT 23 Apr 82 OW]

VRPR URGES CONTINUED ANTI-U.S. STRUGGLE IN SOUTH

[Our party's assertion: "The United States Is Not a Friend of South Koreans"]

[Text] As you know, these days, the Chow Tu-hwan clique, on the so-called centennial of the establishment of the ROK-U.S. ties, is distorting the history of aggression and nation-selling and babbling about ROK-U.S. friendship and so on. It clamors as if the United States were an ally of South Korea and a friend of South Koreans. However, the rackets by the Chon clique are nothing more than a word game to conceal the master-stooge relationship between the United States and South Korea. The United States is by no means a friend of South Koreans but their mortal enemy.

Already long ago, the RPR put forward the slogan "The United States is not a friend of South Koreans" and, with the patriotic people of all strata, waged a unyielding struggle against the United States and for national salvation. This slogan is a just appeal which reflects the unanimous opinion of our people opposing foreign forces and demanding the sovereignty of the nation.

As everyone knows, the United States is not the friend of our masses and is their mortal enemy. The United States is the aggressor and dominator who is continuing its illegal occupation of South Korea. During past 37 years since it landed in South Korea under the masquerade or liberator and protector, the United States has continued to impose a neocolonial rule here.

The former and present South Korean rulers were and are nothing but cat's-paws for implementing the U.S. policy in South Korea. The actual ruler of South Korea has always been the United States. And, the first-line executors of the U.S. policy in South Korea are the U.S. ambassador in Seoul and the commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea. It is they who exercise control over South Korean politics and exercise the prerogative of supreme command over the army. Even the South Korean president is decided by the opinion of the U.S. masters. The whole world knows this. In these circumstances, what kind of national sovereignty can the South Korean people enjoy?

The U.S. imperialists are also the splittists who have divided our country into two and are desperately hampering the reunification of the Korean Peninsula in order to maintain South Korea as their permanent colony and military base. The United States, which has drawn the line of the artificial border on the 38th Parallel and obstructed the reunification of our country, is now employing every means to create two Koreas, regarding it as the basis strategy of the policy on the Korean Peninsula. It is instigating the pro-U.S. traitors to advocate simultaneous entry into the United Nations and cross-recognition ane even babble about reunification in the 2000's.

The United States is also a war maniac which is disturbing peace on this soil and instigating a war of northward invasion. The U.S. aggressors, who once drove our people to the devastation of the Korean war, are drastically introducing nuclear weapons and other lethal military equipment in order to make this land a battlefield of nuclear war. They are bringing the situation to the brink of war, while constantly staging all kinds of war exercises postulating an attack against the North.

The United States is also the ringleader strangling democracy and human rights on this soil. By masterminding the South Korean dictatorial regimes, the U.S. aggressors have relentlessly repressed our people's struggle for freedom, democracy and peaceful reunification. During the heroic Kwangju popular uprising, the U.S. authorities, saying that the Kwangju resistors must be repressed with an iron fist, allowed the Chon Tu-hwan ring to mobilize tens of thousands of troops under the control of the commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea. The troops employed in the Kwangju massacre, which submerged Kwangju city in a sea of blood.

Thus, all facts show that the United States is not an ally of South Korea nor a friend of the South Korean people but an aggressor who has illegally occupied this land, a splittist seeking the permanent division of our nation, a war maniac running amok in preparations for a war of northward invasion and a ringleader in strangling democracy.

The U.S. occupation of South Korea and its colonial rule are the cause of all the misfortunes and agonies of our masses. As long as the U.S. aggressors continue to stay on this soil, the sovereignty of the nation, the peaceful reunification of the country and democracy are impossible and it is hopeless to think of rights of existence.

Realizing this from their experience, our masses set the fire to the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center -- one of the organizations of ideological and cultural aggression -- and are continuing the just anti-U.S. struggle everywhere in the nation. On 22 April, the students of Kangwon University burned the cursed flag of the United States, scattering anti-U.S., antigovernment leaflets saying "Yankee, go home" and staging an anti-U.S. demonstration. And, earlier, on 16 April, in Seoul, about 1400 patriotic students also staged an antigovernment demonstration supporting the Catholic priest who rendered shelter to those patriotic students who set fire to the U.S. Cultural Center and protesting the oppressive atrocity of the Chon Tu-hwan ring. In addition, the Korean Christian Action Organization on 15 April issued an anti-U.S. statement demanding the U.S. ambassador and the commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea be summoned home.

All these events clearly show the intensity of the anti-U.S. sentiment of our masses. The struggle of all those patriotic people is an eruption of our people's grievances and indignation accumulated under the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and a just patriotic struggle reflecting the unanimous desire and opinion of the people demanding the withdrawal of the Yankee aggressive forces.

History shows that no aggressor has ever voluntarily withdrawn from an occupied land. Therefore, the patriotic people of all strata must firmly unite under the anti-U.S., national salvation banner and rise up in a pan-national anti-U.S. national salvation struggle to repel the U.S. aggressors from this land.

As it did in the past, along with the patriotic people of all strata, our RPR will more boldly continue the mass anti-U.S. struggle to repel the U.S. aggressors from this land and achieve the national sovereignty and the reunification of the country.

VRPR REPORTS FLIERS SCATTERED AT U.S. EMBASSY

[Text] According to a news report, amid the ever-rising anti-U.S. sentiment among our masses, anti-U.S. fliers have been scattered again around the U.S. Embassy in South Korea, evoking citizens' sympathy. The fliers entitled "The United States Should Not Instigate the Chon Regime, But Should Immediately Withdraw," say as follows:

Citizens, let us not be deceived by the cunning tactics of the United States, but come to our senses. The United States is not the friend of the South Korean people, but the implacable enemy of the nation, an aggressor and marauder. The Yankees are uninvited guests who have jumped into another's house. The U.S. imperialists are strengthening all kinds of support to the Chon regime only in pursuit of their national interests and colonialist profits.

The recent visit to South Korea by the U.S. Vice President Bush was aimed at squashing the anti-U.S. struggle ever-intensifying in South Korea, and breathing new life into the Chon Tu-hwan ring, thus scheming to preserve the declining colonialist rule. The United States should stop all kinds of support to the Chon regime and should not instigate it to a northward war. It should not egg on the Chon regime on to suppress the patriotic masses.

The United States should immediately withdraw from this land. It should disband the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command and recall U.S. Ambassador to South Korea Walker.

Citizens, let us rise up far and wide and expel the Yankees. Let us have the noise of G.I. boots, the clanking of guns and the whistles of Yankees not heard any more in the fatherland. Death to the Yankees!

So has been said in the fliers.

SHOOTING SPREE BY POLICEMAN IN SOUTH REPORTED

SK290523 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0425 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 29, (KCNA) -- A puppet policeman killed 72 inhabitants and heavily or lightly wounded 35 others with handgrenades and rifles in Uiryong, South Kyongsang Province, at around 9:30 on the evening of April 26, according to a report. The policeman at the Kingnyi substation of the Uiryong police station went out to the streets with 7 handgrenades, 2 carbines and 180 live bullets that evening and threw and fired them at passers-by, causing a bloodbath. Casualties numbered 108.

Such horrible incident is proper to a society where fin de siecle fashion and fascist frenzy are prevalent as in South Korea ruled by the U.S. imperialists and their stooge, the Chon Tu-hwan military blackguards.

MEMORANDUM PUBLISHED ON OVERSEAS KOREANS

[Text] Pyongyang, April 27 (KCNA) -- The Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland and the Korean Committee for Aiding Overseas Compatriots on April 26 published a memorandum denouncing the criminal acts of the Chon Tu-hwan clique bent on stamping out the patriotic movement and trend of visit to the homeland daily growing among the overseas compatriots.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique are persecuting and suppressing overseas compatriots more viciously and outrageously than ever before, putting down their righteous activities, the memorandum says:

After seizing power, the puppets have expanded the intelligence and special agents networks to an unprecedented scale among the overseas compatriots. They have massively infiltrated agents of the "Security Planning Board" and gangsters of the "Security Command" among overseas compatriots under the disguise of "diplomats," "employees of the International Trading Corporation," "resident staffers of manufacturing industrial associations" of different trades, "bank clerks" and newspaper and news agency "correspondents." 10- or 20-man "special operative teams" have been planted in major foreign cities where many compatriots live.

Agents of the "Security Planning Board" hold more than 30 per cent of the total staff of the puppet embassy in Washington and most of the staffers of the puppet consulate in Toronto, Canada, which more than doubled in 1981, are intelligence agents.

The fascist clique set up a new organ called "Agency of Overseas Compatriots" in the puppet Foreign Ministry to investigate and analyse the ideological tendency of the overseas compatriots and hatch plots to bar their movement and they are scheming to chain overseas compatriots to them by framing or subsidized organisations in different areas aboard. Thus, today overseas compatriots have their human rights savagely violated even in alien lands and their patriotic activities for democracy and the peaceful reunification of the country harshly restricted, which has gone to an extent no more tolerable. Exposing the Chon Tu-hwan cliques suppression of the democratic movement overseas, the memorandum says:

The Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique are desperately trying to put down the overseas compatriots' movement for democracy. They left no stone unturned, hurriedly rushing abroad intelligence agents more than treble the previous number and distributing bundles of false documents of all brands.

When the "National Congress for the Restoration of Democracy in South Korea and the Promotion of Unification," a Korean organisation in Japan, started a hunger struggle after publishing the statement "Let Us Save the Life of Kim Tae-chung" in May, 1980, the South Korean puppets let loose terrorists to bar their struggle, slandering the organisation as "a disguised organisation" of "Chongnyon" and its members as "camouflaged operatives from the North." In November when the organisation launched a signature campaign for the release of Kim Tae-chung, calling upon the compatriots to respond to it by a propaganda car, they mobilized Japanese gangsters on their payroll to throw glass bottles and tin cans to the propaganda car, destoy the slogan board reading "Don't kill Kim Tae-chung!" carried by the car and smash the car windows with bamboo spears.

Earlier, on May 27, when the "Democratic Koreans United in the Americas," a Korean organisation in the United States, started a demonstration exposing and condemning the Chon Tu-hwan clique's brutal persecution of Kim Tae-chung under detention, the puppets drove out agents and gangsters to suppress it.

As if it was not enough to mobilize agents and gangsters, the Chon Tu-hwan clique begged reactionary authorities and anti-communist organisations of other countries to impede the just struggle of overseas compatriots. In an attempt to break up "the world popular meeting for support to democracy in South Korea" held in Tokyo in May, 1981, the puppets asked the Foreign Ministry of Japan in writing not to issue visas to the compatriots intending to attend it from France, West Germany, the United States and Canada. The puppets, in conspiracy with the Japanese authorities, checked the issue of reentry visas to personages of "the Union of Overseas South Koreans for Democracy, Nation and Unification" in Japan in order to bar them from attending the 15th conference of the Socialist International held in Madrid, Spain, in November, 1980.

The Chon Tu-hwan group, a truculent murderer, rigged up numerous false "cases" of all descriptions to threaten and blackmail the compatriots abroad and whisked them off to South Korea to subject them to brutal tortures and penalties. The so-called "case of a spy who infiltrated through a roundabout way," "spy-ring case in industrial world and campus," "Kim Tae-hong case," "Japan-born students spy case," "spy case of Koreans residing in the United States and Japan," "Chongnyon-lining spy case" and so on faked up by them are but a few examples.

In June 1981, the fascist hangmen illegally arrested Son Yu-hyong, a compatriot in Japan, and whisked him off to the underground torture room of the "Security Planning Board," where they put him to a water torture of pouring water into the mouth of the victim, vomiting torture, hot-iron torture and other brutal tortures. They sentenced him to death by fabricating the so-called "case of a spy who infiltrated through a roundabout way," alleging that he had contacted with an "operative from the North" during his business trip abroad before entering South Korea, where he spied out the "secret" of "the development of Tongil rice" in South Korea and "agitated" a student demonstration.

In September that year there broke out a demonstration of university students against traitor Chon Tu-hwan in South Korea under the slogan "Beat Chon Tu-hwan to death!" [and] "Destroy the fascist group!" Traitor Chon Tu-hwan faked up five "spy cases of overseas Koreans" in a month-long period from October 13 to November 11 for the purpose of suppressing the students' struggle by linking it with us and Chongnyon.

On October 13 the puppets made public the fabricated "Kim Tae-hong case" alleging that a Japan-born student attempted to "overthrow the state" by "agitating a students demonstration" and on November 6 they made public the so-called "Hong Son-kil spy case" alleging that he, residing in the United States, infiltrated into South Korea to spy out such "state secrets" as military setups and public opinion about the Kwangju incident on "instructions of the North" for the mere reason that he called on his relatives in South Korea after visiting the northern half of the republic.

Bringing to light the moves of the South Korean puppets to stifle the reunification movement, the memorandum says: Upset by the national reunification movement growing active among the overseas compatriots, the South Korean puppet clique are desperately trying to put it down. They left no means untried in their attempt to frustrate the "Third Symposium of All Korean Scholars Overseas for National Reunification" which was held on March 14 last year under the co-sponsorship of the "Paedal National Council" and the "Neutral Unification Proposal Institute", organisations of Koreans active in the Americas.

Two days before this symposium they called together in Washington twenty or more terrorists and heads of "Tongilgyo" ("Unification Church"), an anti-communist plot-breeding organisation, and other subsidized organisations and press organs and instructed them to stage "a joint demonstration of the organizations against the symposium for unification opening on March 14 which would support the Democratic Confederation of Koryo." On its opening day they let loose a number of terrorists in rowdyism to hamper the symposium and attempted to find out its content through their paid reporters brought from Seoul and the United States.

It should be recalled that, during the symposium of all Korean scholars overseas for national reunification held in Tokyo in June, 1980, the South Korean fascist clique let Mindan-lining gangsters stage a "demonstration" around the meeting hall and even destroy its windows with deadly tools.

Not contented with the mobilization of anti-communist elements abroad, the South Korean puppets themselves went abroad to interfere with the debate of overseas compatriots on reunification. Seeking to break up the 33rd Asian scientific symposium which opened in Canada on March 13, 1981, the South Korean puppets sent scores of intelligence agents to the scene. When the symposium opened despite the desperate obstructions of the puppets, a man styling himself spokesman of the Seoul side to the North-South coordinating committee, lost to shame, jumped into the meeting hall and interfered with the debate of the scientists.

As if this was not enough, the Chon Tu-hwan clique even maliciously obstructed overseas compatriots' dialogue with compatriots of the homeland for reunification, taking issue with it. Getting wind of the convocation of the "dialogue between North and overseas [Korean] Christians for national reunification" in Vienna, Austria, in early November last year, the South Korean puppets dispatched agents to Switzerland, which had been designated as the venue of the dialogue, to obstruct the dialogue. When the venue of the dialogue was changed to Austria, they followed it there and resorted to obstructive manoeuvres.

In order to allure and kidnap Pastor Yi Yong-pin of the "overseas Christians" society for national reunification" in West Germany they telephoned him to come quick and take over a representative of overseas compatriots, telling the lie that he had been beaten upon arrival at the Vienna airport and was under protection of the Austrian police. But, as luck would have it, the representative in question appeared in the meeting hall to bring their intrigue to light.

Exposing the schemes of the South Korean puppet clique to bar overseas compatriots from visiting the northern half of the DPRK, the memorandum says: Today the trend of visiting the DPRK, in defiance of the vicious obstructive manoeuvres of the South Korean puppet clique, is rapidly growing among the overseas compatriots. This is an entirely righteous act either from the humanitarian point of view or in the light of the national stand; it is their lawful freedom and right.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, however, is viciously trying to block the visit of overseas compatriots to the DPRK. The "secretary general" of the "Democratic Justice Party," the private party of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, appeared before compatriots in New York on September 6 last year and complained that "the trend of visiting North Korea" was growing and cried that such trend was not "proper and must be stopped" and that anyone who had been issued a "visa" or an "emigrant card" by South Korea "was not allowed to visit North Korea."

Earlier, in November 1980, the puppet "chairman of the Territorial Unification Board" at a "press conference" at a hotel in Chicago, the United States, maliciously slung mud at the DPRK and threatened that "travel of compatriots overseas to the North would be regarded as an anti-state act and an act profiting the enemy," even if it was for meeting their families; he cried that they "are not permitted to visit the North in any form and for any purpose" and if they "visited the North," they would not be permitted into South Korea.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is zealously instigating the field agents to thwart the visit of overseas compatriots to the DPRK, blaring that "the diplomatic and consular officials would be sternly called to task in case they failed to check their visit to the North." The South Korean fascist clique slandered those compatriots who returned from a visit to the homeland through the general mobilization of their subsidized organisations and publications abroad. The puppets manipulated field agents to persecute Pastor No Ui-son residing in Los Angeles, the United States, who visited the DPRK in 1979, when he told compatriots the true impressions he had got in the homeland. They even mobilized gangsters to raid his house and kick up a row around it.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique more harshly persecutes personages and conscientious compatriots overseas who came back from their visit to the DPRK. The puppets made their field agents persecut Mr. Kim Song-nak, chairman of the "Society for Promotion of Unification" and advisor to the "South Korean Federation of Churchmen" in the United States, branding him as "a seditious man," when he introduced the development of the homeland and the noble spiritual and moral virtues of our people after returning from a visit to the homeland in July last year.

When the rumour of home-visit of Mr. Choe Tok-sin, chairman of the "Paedal National Council" in the United States, got afloat in July last year, the puppets slandered him and, when he returned from his visit of the DPRK, they brought out a warrant of arrest against his second son in South Korea on the charge of "overseas employment swindle" and persecuted his two daughters on unreasonable charges.

The South Korean military hooligans went so far as to hatch plots to assassinate overseas compatriots who had visited the DPRK. When the Third International Taekwondo Championships were arranged in Argentina, South America, in August 1981, they infiltrated their bribed gangsters into the hall of the championships on August 8, two days before they began, to assassinate Mr. Choe Hong-hui who had visited the homeland. But this attempt failed, uncovered beforehand. On August 9 they sent two special agents disguised as "traders" into the hall for a sinister purpose. But they were arrested by the police of the host country.

When the retaliation and assassination attempts against Messrs. Choe Tok-sin and Choe Hong-Hui failed, the South Korean fascist clique mobilized the "anti-Communist Fellowship Society" and other gangster groups in the United States in November last year in a campaign to expel them from the countries they reside now.

The manoeuvres of the Chon Tu-hwan clique to suppress the overseas compatriots who visited the homeland and block the overseas democratic movement and unification action found typical manifestation especially in the intrigues surrounding what they call "international assassination plot case" of late.

The puppets connected the "case" faked up within their ruling circles with us in a far-fetched manner and, furthermore, persecuted Messrs. Choe Hong-hui and Choe Tok-sin who had nothing to do with it, by charging them with involvement in it, and openly suppressed overseas compatriots, taking advantage of it.

With the "case" as an occasion, in conspiracy with the Canadian authorities, the South Korean puppets suddenly searched the houses of Mr. Choe Hong-hui and other compatriots who had visited the homeland and compatriots hailing from the northern half of the republic, controlled their outing, tapped wire and watched them in a frantic repressive campaign.

The memorandum says in conclusion: The South Korean people and overseas compatriots will never tolerate the criminal manoeuvres of the South Korean puppets in which they are stretching out their crooked hands of suppression even abroad.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique must look straight into the situation and act with discretion, immediately stop their reckless suppression and persecution of overseas compatriots, unconditionally release the illegally arrested democratic figures and overseas compatriots and step down from "power" without delay as demanded by all the people at home and abroad.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we express the hope that all the peace-loving countries and progressive peoples the world over will sternly denounce the repressive manoeuvres of the South Korean puppets against overseas compatriots and continue to express firm solidarity with those compatriots just struggle for the democratization of South Korean society and the peaceful reunification of the country.

INTERNATIONAL CAMPAIGN FOR FOUNDING DCRK REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, Apr 24 (KCNA) -- The international signature campaign supporting the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] and the ten-point policy of the unified state put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, which began in mid-March last year, had been participated in by more than 1,600 million people in 101 countries and at 24 international organisations by late in March, according to reports.

This international signature campaign has covered all continents and all regions, drawing in personages of political, public, scientific, juridical, press, religious and other circles and people of broad strata.

Participating in it were 10 heads of state and government, and former presidents and prime ministers in 8 countries, 13 general secretaries of political parties in 10 countries, incumbent and former speakers of parliaments in 7 countries, over 830 parliamentarians and ministers of government and above 240 mayors and provincial governors in 13 countries.

The signature campaign has been held in an organized way amid deep concern of the political parties, the government and public organisations of each country and individual personages have taken an active part in the campaign.

The international signature campaign showed that the proposal for founding the DCRK advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a most fair and realistic proposal indicating the shortest cut to the solution of the question of Korean reunification and it is displaying its invincible vitality for its justness and it greatly encourages our people's struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The signature campaign proved that, though the South Korean military fascist clique are desperately trying to mislead public opinion and stem the mighty trend of international support to the proposal for founding the DCRK behind the signboard of "unification," this is a mere dream and they can never get rid of the lot of international isolation.

NODONG SINMUN Notes Support

[Text] Pyongyang, April 28 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today carries an editorial article in connection with the successful holding of the international signature campaign supporting the proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and its ten-point policy put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song amid the keen interest of the world people. The article titled "Support to Korean Reunification Is Irresistible Trend of Times" says:

The signature campaign held on an unprecedented scale on all continents and in all parts of the world was participated in by more than 1,600 million people in 101 countries and at 24 international organisations. Among them were heads of state, party and government leaders, prominent figures of political, public, academic, law, press and religious circles, people of all walks of life, committees for supporting Korea's reunification, public organisations and friendship associations in various countries.

The signature campaign went on briskly, assuming an organized nature as a party and state work in many countries. This world-wide signature campaign bears a clear testimony to the validity and vitality of the proposal to found the DCRK advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and a manifestation of the unanimous determination and stand of the world's peaceloving people to categorically reject the "two Koreas" scheme of the splittists within and without and support to the end the cause of Korean reunification, always firmly standing on the side of our people. This positive support and encouragement of the world peaceloving people gives a great inspiration to our people fighting for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and deals a heavy blow at the splittists, domestic and foreign.

The Korean people express deep thanks to the parties, governments, prominent figures of all circles and people of broad strata, committees for supporting Korea's reunification, public organisations and friendship associations of various countries, and international organisations for their active participation in the international signature campaign. The participation of over 1,600 million people on all continents and in all parts of the world in the campaign eloquently proves that the question of Korean reunification is a matter of great concern for the world people and support to the Korean people's cause of national reunification has become an irresistible trend of the times.

It is but the South Korean military fascists and their backstage manipulator, U.S. imperialism, and its followers who turn their face away from the fair and aboveboard proposal for DCRK founding today when the broad segments of people of the world are unanimously supporting it. Dismayed at the ever growing influence of this proposal at home and abroad, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are desperately trying to stem the torrential flow of broad international support to it. But, this is a foolish act. They should look squarely at this powerful trend of history and act with discretion.

The United States must no longer pursue the "two Koreas" policy going against the desire of the entire Korean people and the trend of the times, but withdraw its troops from South Korea, refrain from patronizing the South Korean military fascist clique stifling democracy and brutally suppressing the people and withdraw its hands of interference from Korea.

The Korean people highly value the support and solidarity of the world people for our cause of national reunification. They believe that the government, peoples, political parties and public organisations of all countries and international organisations will as ever actively support their just cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The Korean people, supported and encouraged by the world people, will surely establish the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo with concerted efforts of the whole nation and achieve the historic cause of national reunification.

He stressed: All the proud exploits and great victories achieved by our People's Army for the fatherland and people are attributable entirely to the outstanding and tested guidance of the respected leader Marshal Kim Il-song and the glorious party centre.

Noting that the U.S. imperialists are keeping tens of thousands of aggressive troops in South Korea, turning its whole land into a powder-magazine and a dangerous nuclear base and heightening tension in Korea, Lieutenant General Kim Kwang-chin said: The U.S. imperialists must stop at once the aggressive war racket and withdraw without delay from South Korea, taking along all their armed forces of aggression. The South Korean military fascist clique must give up the "two Koreas" plot and anti-communist confrontation policy and apologize to the nation for its slaughter of fellow countrymen in Kwangju.

JIEFANGJUN BAO on KPA Founding

[Text] Beijing, April 25 (KCNA) -- The Chinese LIBERATION ARMY DAILY on April 24 printed a travelogue on Korea headlined "Heartfelt Wishes" under the title "We Warmly Greet the 50th Anniversary of KPA Founding" on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the heroic Korean People's Army. The travelogue says:

The shining militant path of the Korean People's Army and its undying feats in defending the socialist construction in the northern half of Korea left an ineffaceable imprint upon me. This army of a new type was born on April 25, 1932, in the flames of the anti-Janapese struggle. For half a century the Korean People's Army under the guidance of the great leader of the Korean people President Kim Il-song and the Workers Party of Korea waged a bloody struggle firmly relying upon the people and uniting with them and thus drove out Japanese imperialism and crushed the U.S. imperialist aggressors who boasted of being the "strongest" in the world.

In the postwar period the KPA has further grown in strength in the course of struggle for defending the fatherland. During my visit to Korea I saw with my own eyes that the KPA is not only a heroic defender of the fatherland but an active participant in the socialist construction.

It is the ardent desire of the entire Korean people to reunify the country as early as possible and reunite kinsmen in the North and South. The Workers Party and Government of Korea have been making sustained efforts to realize this long-cherished desire. The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and its ten-point policy advanced by President Kim Il-song enjoy the resolute support of the 50 million Korean people and the broad support of the world's peaceloving people.

Our Chinese people and army will support invariably and resolutely in the future, too, the just struggle of the Korean people and army for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country against U.S. aggression till they win final victory. We hope the Korean people and comrades-in-arms believe this.

KIM CHONG-IL ELECTION AT PARTY CONGRESS RECALLED

[Text] Pyongyang, April 28 (KCNA) -- A letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was adopted at a joint seminar of African regional organizations of friendship and solidarity with the Korean people on his brilliant revolutionary activities and imperishable revolutionary exploits which was held in Cotonou on the occasion of his 70th birthday, according to a report. Noting that the seminar was held with the attendance of more than 300 delegates from various countries of Africa, the letter says:

The founding of the chuche idea by Your Excellency was the birth of a genuine guiding idea of the revolution and construction in our era and a historical milestone which opened up a new era of history advancing and triumphing under the banner of independence. You, Respected President, who stood in the van of the revolution, shouldering the destiny of the Korean people and the peoples the world over in the days of ordeal when they were at the crossroads of rise or fall threw the radiant rays of the chuche idea on the road ahead of the Korean revolution and the world revolution and organized and led the heroic anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle for 20 years to shining victory, thereby paving the path of national resurrection for the Korean people and indicating a road of genuine dignity and emancipation before the oppressed people of the world.

You, the great president, founded the glorious Workers Party of Korea and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, led to victory the great fatherland liberation war of the Korean people and successfully carried out the social revolutions of two stages and socialist construction to turn Korea, a once backward country, into a powerful socialist state, independent, self-supporting and self-defensive, standing imposingly in the East in a very short span of time.

Indeed, the great contributions you, president, made with your wisest leadership to the development of the Korean revolution, the world revolution and the Non-Aligned Movement will be an immortal pyramid in the development of human history and shine more resplendently along with the flow of the times. We will more briskly wage an international solidarity movement for the realization of Your Excellency's proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

NEWSPAPERS VIEW RELATIONS WITH U.S., BUSH VISIT

SINMUN 24 Apr

SK281131 Seoul SINMUN in Korean 24 Apr 82 p 5

[Article by foreign news editor Yi Chong-yon titled: "Who Is the United States?"]

[Excerpts] Who is the United States to us? The United States, as far as our right to existence is concerned, is a military supporter which deters the expanding forces of the bellicose North Korean puppets and their supporters, Communist China and the Soviet Union; in relation to the quality of our life, it is an economic partner. The importance of the United States, as far as we are concerned, has been an absolutely positive one.

From the standpoint of international reciprocity, it is of course true that U.S. support for and its contribution to Korea has not been a one-sided role but a part of U.S. world strategy. Nevertheless, we remember how frequently an imbalanced recognition of each other's importance plagued us in the past.

While preparing to remove the United States from Vietnam, President Nixon hinted a reduction on intervention abroad by U.S. ground troops by proclaiming the Nixon doctrine in 1969, and President Carter once kept us in suspense by announcing the plan to withdraw U.S. troops from Korea in 1977. In view of the announcement on the troop withdrawal plan, the Pak Tong-son incident and scandals involved in rice imports, it is undeniable that the United States is, in a way, egocentric and somewhat conceited. What matters is that each can avoid causing misunderstanding and mistakes only when each mutually reaches a correct understanding of the other party, thus, mutually preventing greater calamities from occuring.

This year we mark the centennial of diplomatic relations between Korea and the United States. Before establishing diplomatic relations with the United States, although influenced and pressured by China of the Ching dynasty, the government of King Kojong of the Yi dynasty intended to neutralize the fierce scramble over the Korean peninsula among the continental countries of China and Russia and Japan by inducing the United States -- a country geographically located far off and with no military ambition -- to intervene, as it were, antidoting poison by poison. The value of the United States as equalizer on the Korean Peninsula was already appreciated 100 years ago. Now, after 100 years, the situation surrounding the Korean Peninsula is similar to that of a century before.

In 1978, more than 60 percent of socially influential and university-educated Americans believed that Korea was part of the Chinese mainland and another 15 percent believed Korea to be linked to the Japanese islands. Between 9 and 12 percent of Americans believed that Korea was an island country and another 4 percent believed Korea bordered India. Such is the conception maintained by Americans toward Korea, and it eventually drove President Carter to shape and announce an ill-conceived policy of troop withdrawal.

As long as the United States remains an absolutely indispensable entity for the balance of power on the Korean Peninsula, we cannot afford to keep the United States ignorant of Korea insofar as we must maintain mature relations between the two countries as equal partners. It is a matter of grave concern that some of our fellow countrymen, with the distorted view of the situation, have tried to protect those who burnt U.S. property and killed a man as a result, then demanded the recall of the U.S. ambassador and the commander of U.S. forces stationed in Korea -- acts so much desired by the North -- and now assert that they were right in doing so. It is all the more regrettable that they are persons who have some influence in a segment of our society.

We do not, however, think that Korea-U.S. relations will be shaken by the acts of some people who have the wrong understanding of the situation, nor should they be.

The reason why we are celebrating the centennial of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and Korea on a grand scale is because we recognize the great importance of those relations. It is the unanimous will and hope of all the Korean people that we should not hurt the long relations between the two countries and that acts that damage national security and eventually create social chaos should not be repeated.

[Article by reporter Yu Kyun: "Vice President Bush's Visit to Korea Has Consolidated Friendship for 100 Years To Come"]

[Excerpts] U.S. Vice President George Bush's visit to Korea can be summed up as a reaffirmation of Korea-U.S. relations and as setting future goals in the relations between the two countries. Stressing that the United States will not try to establish relations with other countries as those established with the People's Republic of China at the expense of friendly relations already established, Bush strongly hinted that the United States would not have any unilateral dialogue with the North Korean puppets without Korea's participation. He also used harsh words against the North Korean puppets, apparently intended to deter provocations by them.

Nevertheless, there are some substantial issues in his visit to Korea which we have to pay attention to. First of all, what attracts our attention is that he had a breakfast meeting with religionists, scholars and journalists during his short stay in Korea. In this meeting the U.S. administration's stand concerning the anti-U.S. controversy which erupted in the wake of the incident of burning the American Cultural Center in Pusan and the issue of human rights in Korea as well were expressed. Bush appears to have tried to convey the U.S. administration's opinion on these matters calmly.

He explained about quiet diplomacy -- a new U.S. policy on human rights -- and he reportedly said that the United States did not view the recent series events as anti-U.S. expressions. This means that, contrary to some Koreans' expectations, the United States has shown a consistent attitude of not regarding recent events as serious. In the meeting, White House assistant Greg said he viewed human rights in Korea as having improved as compared to the 1970's. This is enough to make some Korean people, who expected the United States to do something for Korea's human rights, feel that there are limits to the U.S. involvement with human rights issues in Korea.

Either through Bush's speech at National Assembly or Reagan's letter to the Korean leader, the United States appears to have stressed pluralism, the fact that the legislative branch is likely to make noise, and harmony and dialogue. It is worth examining this closely. In his letter, Reagan stressed that the United States supports the measures of reconciliation taken by our government. Also Bush stressed that the United States sees political diversity as a source of strength, not of weakness. These remarks can be interpreted that the United States hopes that Korea will develop democracy and expand the scope of reconciliation.

In view of all this, Vice President Bush's visit to Korea, while in principle giving priority to maintenance and development of Korea-U.S. ties and a cooperative system, can be interpreted as an expression of U.S. hope for an improvement in the politics our country.

[Editorial: "Bush's Visit to South Korea and its Outcome"]

[Excerpts] The significance of U.S. Vice President George Bush's visit to South Korea for three days can be found in the fact that he reaffirmed the close and friendly relations between the two countries.

Vice President Bush, who left Seoul on 27 April after winding up his visit, reaffirmed the firm U.S. defense commitment to South Korea at the meeting with President Chon and in a speech at the National Assembly.

The Reagan administration's pledge of a defense commitment to South Korea is not a new story. President Reagan clarified the U.S. pledge to observe its defense commitment to South Korea when he met with President Chon in Washington in January 1981. However, it is very fortunate that despite the recent anti-U.S. moves in one corner of the society, President Reagan, through Vice President Bush, the second man of the U.S. administration, once again emphasized the need for continuous security cooperation between the two countries.

Reasserting the firm U.S. defense commitment to South Korea, Vice President Bush hinted in his speech at the National Assembly on 26 April that U.S. forces will stay in South Korea as long as they are welcomed. This presumably pointed to some religionists' recent attitude toward the U.S. forces stationed in South Korea. However, it is our national consensus that the U.S. forces should be stationed in this land until peace and stability are guaranteed in Northeast Asia and, in particular, until peace is firmly maintained on the Korean Peninsula and the prospects for the democratic reunification of the country emerge.

In his personal letter to President Chon delivered through Vice President Bush, President Reagan said that the measures taken by President Chon for national harmony were very encouraging ones. At the same time he expressed a hope that stability through national harmony would be maintained in the future, too. The fifth republic has taken a series of active and bold measures for national harmony. It has eliminated various political restrictions imposed under the old political system. We believe such measures will continue in the future, too.

We highly evaluate the significance of U.S. Vice President Bush's visit to South Korea made at a time when we are a month away from the day marking the centennial anniversary of relations of our two countries. We believe that his visit to South Korea will contribute to deepening the friendship between the two countries and will be recorded in the history of relations between Korea and the United States as a significant event.

PARTIES TO QUESTION GOVERNMENT ON SHOOTING SPREE

[Text] The minority parties have decided to press the government hard about the holocaust incident which occurred in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo "from a standpoint of national security" in the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee session Friday.

The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) are also considering requesting en masse resignation of the Cabinet members, arguing that the incident is not a simple one, but a grave security-related case. The DKP officials attached a great importance to the situation that has allowed drunken policeman to continue his shooting spree unchecked for six hours. The KNP also insisted that there were grave loopholes in the system of mobilizing the police forces, Homeland Reserve Forces and Civil Defense Corps members to cope with contengencies.

The majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP), in the meantime, plans to urge the government to work out proper countermeasures to prevent such an incident from recurring. In a meeting of leading officials, the party also decided to look into the blind spots in managing weapons, mobilization system, policeman's quality and the personal management of police in the scheduled house panel session.

The three parties will confirm their respective strategies for the house committee on the basis of reports by their own investigation teams of the case.

CHUNGANG ILBO SCORES JAPAN ON LOAN ISSUE

SK290750 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 29 Apr 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Japan's Floating Trial Balloons"]

[Excerpts] Japan is clamorously floating trial balloons in connection with the issue of Japan's $6 billion in economic coopeation for Korea's security, which was expected to be settled by May this year, but no noticeable progress has been made to date.

In early April, Japanese papers reported that an agreement was made between the Japanese Ministry of Finance and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on $3.5 billion in loans to Korea. On 20 April, Japan's YOMIURI SHIMBUN wrote in large letters that the Japanese Government has decided on $4 billion in economic cooperation with Korea. Japanese newspapers claim that if the question of economic cooperation is solved through a "political settlement," seeds of future trouble will be sown in Korea-Japan relations.

We would like to point out that the Japanese papers and some politicians should not confound political decision with political collusion. Japan is a great economic power. Japan has failed to play a military role suiting its national strength because of its constitution, which whenever they find it necessary, the Japanese people usually point to as if it were their heirloom, and because of its "military allergy." Therefore, Japan's security is dependent on the Korea-U.S. security cooperation system.

In view of this, our demand is that Japan lend money to Korea under more advantageous conditions than commercial loans, for the sake of economic development which would indirectly help strengthen Korea's defense capabilities. Japan should stop floating trial balloons. It should now make a sincere political decision. We would like to make it clear that the remarks on a total amount of $4 billion, $1.8 billion for public loans and so forth, will not serve even as a first step for a dialogue.

GOVERNMENT TO ESTABLISH NUCLEAR FUEL COMPANY

[Text] A nuclear fuel company will be established next month under a government program to fabricate nuclear fuel in the late 1980's, the Energy Resources Ministry said yesterday. According to the ministry, the planned nuclear fuel fabrication plant with a rated capacity of 200 tons of uranium will be established by the end of 1988. A total of 53.1 billion won at 1981 constant prices will be invested in the fabrication project, which will be set up in a joint venture between local and foreign companies.

The Korea Electric Power Corporation (KEPCO) and the Korea Advanced Energy Research Institute (KAERI) will form the nuclear fuel company next month. The ministry said a foreign partner in the local fuel fabrication project would be selected by the end of next month. The tie-up company will be owned 51 percent by KEPCO and KAERI and the remaining 49 percent by the foreign company.

If locally produced, the ministry said, the projected 200 tons of uranium would fuel 10 pressurized water reactors a year. The ministry pointed out that the fabrication project would enable the nation to provide nuclear fuel enough to meet the nation's needs from 1989. At present, the nation's first nuclear power plant, with a capacity of 587 megawatts, is in operation and eight other plants are under construction. The fabrication project is part of the government plan to reduce the heavy dependence on oil and to fabricate nuclear fuel locally to meet the ever-increasing demand. From a long-term viewpoint, the ministry said, the project will have considerable effect of saving foreign reserves. According to the timeschedule for the project, design of the fabrication plant will be completed by the end of 1985 and the plant building will be erected in June, 1987.

Meets Chan Si, Departs

BK280957 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1457 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 27 Apr (SPK) -- This afternoon, Chan Si, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers, received in Phnom Penh the high-ranking military delegation of Czechoslovakia led by Gen Martin Dzur, member of the CZCP Central Committee and defense minister.

Attending the meeting were Bou Thang, Political Bureau member, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and defense minister, and Soy Keo, vice minister of defense. Also on hand was Czechoslovak Ambassador to Kampuchea Zikmund Tobias.

Chairman Chan Si said that the Czechoslovak delegation's current visit contributes to tightening the relations of friendship between the two countries and strikes a hard blow to the Kampuchean people's enemies. He thanked the Czechoslovak party and government for their support to the Kampuchean revolution.

Chinese expansionism allied with U.S. imperialism and other reactionaries is seeking by all means to sabotage the revolution in the three Indochinese countries, especially Kampuchea. Thanks to the assistance of Czechoslovakia and other countries of the socialist community -- of which the Soviet Union is the backbone -- and of world progressives, the situation in Kampuchea is irreversible.

General Dzur stressed: The Czechoslovak people and army have been supporting unreservedly the Kampuchean people's just struggle in the past as well as at present. During this visit, we can inform ourselves of the Kampuchean people's living conditions and note their monolithic unity around their revolutionary party to rebuild their country. Our two peoples have common enemies and together we struggle for peace and socialism. Our army is always by the side of the Kampuchean people, asserted Gen Martin Dzur.

The Kampuchean people wish the Third LPRP Congress great successes, thus contributing to the struggle for peace, independence and socialism in the world, the paper concluded.

EDITORIAL ON RAINY-SEASON PRODUCTION PLAN

BK271320 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1100 GMT 22 Apr 82

[KAMPUCHEA Editorial: "Strive Vigorously in Order To Achieve Success in the 1982 Rainy-Season Production Plan" -- undated]

[Text] During the last rainy season, despite prolonged drought and floods and shortages of production means and labor forces, we were able to sow and transplant 1.33 million hectares of rice throughout the country.

This was equal to the area devoted to the production of rainy-season rice in 1980. We obtained 1.3 million tons of rice yield. Battambang, Pursat and Svay Rieng Provinces and Kompong Som municipality were among those areas which overfulfilled the production plans. Twelve other provinces sowed and transplanted a larger quantity of rice than in the previous year.

In the 1981-82 dry season, we were able to obtain a better yield in the production of rice, subsidiary crops and industrial crops than in last year's dry season.

Thanks to these satisfactory achievements, a large number of localities have successfully solved the problems of foodstuffs and seed and a number of peasants even have a surplus of rice for selling to and bartering with the state in contribution to the restoration of the national economy. At the same time, we reclaimed more fallow lands and sowed and transplanted over 840,000 hectares of rice.

The splendid outcome of the production in the past reflects the incessant advance of our revolution under the correct and wise leadership of our party, government and front. This proves our people's firm confidence in the revolution and their spirit of resolute struggle, industriousness and love for labor, and reflects their lofty sense of responsibility for the national destiny and broad spirit of solidarity in the defense and construction of the country.

We have now entered the main production period, that is, our customary rainy-season production season. After celebrating the traditional new year of our nation, we are preparing all kinds of farm tools, seed, foodstuffs and draft power in order to begin our cultivation right at the beginning of the season.

Our most urgent and major task in rehabilitating our national economy is to accelerate agriculture. While taking the production of foodstuffs as the main task, we must generally expand agriculture step by step in order to increase the sources of exports and sources of raw materials for serving the industry. The most important thing in this respect is to reclaim more fallow lands and increase the number of production seasons and the quantity of the rainy-season and dry-season crops. During each season, we must gradually implement technical measures and experimental cultivation beginning at the lowest level up to the highest, from traditional to modern forms and from small to large quantities in order to increase crop production and yield.

Consequently, it is imperative for everyone in the country to heighten our spirit of creativity and, based on good experiences drawn from the past production drive, to strive more vigorously in order to fulfill successfully the production plans to produce 1.8 million hectares of rainy season production plan in 1982, in which 1.6 million hectares of land are devoted to rice for a yield of 1.75 million tons. In this way we can contribute to improving our people's living conditions and rapidly rehabilitating our national economy.

In order to fulfill this goal successfully, it is imperative to carry out the following tasks:

1. In this immediate period, it is imperative to thoroughly examine the existing means of production and draft power and expand them in accordance with our abilities. We must also strive to build technical and material bases for serving production. Sectors related to agriculture -- such as the planning, finance, banking, trade, industry, communications and transportation sectors -- must increase their cooperation in order to overcome all difficulties quickly and serve the requirements in agricultural production. They must proceed with the supply of agricultural tools, material for production, capital and so forth. Each locality and each solidarity team must select rice strains that give high yields and grow within a short period of time -- particularly the floating rice and early-maturing rice strains -- and prepare sufficient seeds to cope with any possible shortages in the transplanting periods and in case of natural disasters. This must be done by preparing seeds appropriately with the amount of land to be tilled and reclaimed.

2. Peasants throughout the country must continue the traditional production offensive of our forefathers by implementing the slogan: Strike while the iron is hot. They must mobilize the draft power to till as much land as possible at the start of the season and distribute draft power to any needy solidarity team. The Agriculture Ministry must closely cooperate with the local authorities and appropriately set aside tractors for use in tilling land. The Agriculture Ministry must provide facilities to any locality seriously in need of draft power. Our peasants must expand the spirit of creativity in using hoes for digging the earth as they did in the previous production seasons.

3. It is imperative that we stimulate the people to build large and small dams, repair ditches and canals and strengthen the dikes. Rainwater and water in the streams, ponds and streamlets should be used for irrigating the crops. In the coming rainy season, it is imperative that we improve the field embankments in order to store as much water as possible. Rainwater should not be allowed to fall wastefully into streams or ponds. We should not waste water through such practices as digging holes in the field embankments for fishing. Existing irrigation networks, dams and waterpumps should be used properly. The people must be stimulated to use their available means fully and build more primitive tools for channeling water, such as scoops and waterwheels. We should not depend only on waterpumps and other machines which might hamper the production drive in case of a fuel shortage.

4. All communes, villages and solidarity teams must immediately check the planting acreage in this rainy season and the fallow land. They must take measures to reclaim ricefields near their localities or houses. Any locality in need of land must reclaim the fallow land in distant areas which does not belong to anyone or borrow it from the nearby localities which have some extra untilled land. This is in order to expand the planting acreage.

In addition to reclaiming fallow land, we must increase the planting seasons both in the rainy season and dry season for growing rice and other crops. We must grow the early-maturing rice twice in the rainy season in any area which has favorable conditions, or increase another planting season in the period after collecting the yield planted at the beginning of the rainy season.

5. We must strive to promote experimental cultivation in order to increase yields by advising the people to carry out a number of technical measures that have already been tested by the Agriculture Ministry. Low-yield strains should be replaced with high-yield strains that take only a short period of time to grow. Appropriate measures and timing must be implemented in the sowing of seeds, the removal of seedlings and the transplanting of seedlings by removing the seedlings when they are ready to be pulled out of the nursery beds or transplanting them in thick or loose patterns according to the conditions of the crops and soil. Advice must be given to the people on how to take care of the crops, weed out grass and spray fertilizer. Spraying of insecticides must also be provided. The Agriculture Ministry must provide guidance on this matter to the provinces and districts. First of all, the ministry must conduct experiments in order to draw experiences and persuade the people to follow.

6. We must strive to strengthen and expand the organizational apparatus and production networks, and stimulate the spirit of mutual assistance and cooperation by educating and guiding the solidarity production teams so as to increase their knowledge and awareness in the duties and principles of the teams.

If everyone in the country adheres firmly to the sense of making thorough preparations before the start of the season and the spirit of struggling valiantly on the production front, we will certainly be able to fulfill the 1982 rainy-season production plans successfully, thus effectively contributing to the implementation of the economic and cultural plans adopted by our National Assembly at the advice of the third session of the KPRP Central Committee.

[Speech by Troung Chinh, Political Bureau member of the VCP Central Committee, chairman of the Council of State and head of the VCP delegation to the Third LPRP Congress, delivered at the congress in Vientiane on 28 April -- recorded; Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao at 1200 GMT on 28 April also carried a recording, fading into translation, of this speech.]

[Text] Esteemed members of the presidium, dear comrade delegates:

The delegation of the Communist Party of Vietnam is very happy and honored to attend the Third Congress of the glorious Lao People's Revolutionary Party, a friend fighting in the same trench, a close comrade in arms and a brother coming into being from the Indochinese Communist Party, founded by the great President Ho Chi Minh.

From this forum, our delegation would like to extend to the congress, and through it, to the communists and multiethnic people of Laos our warmest greetings and closest fraternal feelings of the Communist Party and people of Vietnam.

Attentively following the reports presented to the congress, we greatly rejoice at the glorious victories as well as the fine prospects of the Lao revolution. Under the correct and clear-sighted leadership of the LPRP, headed by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, an outstanding son of the multiethnic people of Laos, the respected leader of the Lao revolution and a great friend of the Vietnamese people, the Lao people have staunchly struggled, surmounted numerous difficulties and won one victory after another. In December 1975, bringing into play the spirit of revolutionary offensive and with great sensitivity, you promptly seized favorable conditions arising from the revolutionary position of the three Indochinese countries and quickly took power for the people.

This great victory completely liberated Laos from the colonialist and imperialist yoke, eliminated for good the feudalist regime which ruled over Laos for dozens of centuries, achieved national concord and unity, founded the Lao People's Democratic Republic and ushered in a new era in the fraternal Lao nation's history -- the era of independence, freedom and socialism.

Over the past 6 years, in their staunch struggle and creative labor, the Lao multiethnic people have continued to win big victories in the cause of national defense and construction, taking the Lao revolution steadily along the path of socialism without passing through the stage of capitalist development. Together with the peoples of Vietnam and Kampuchea, the Lao people have firmly struggled to defend the outpost of the socialist system in Southeast Asia, thwarting all sinister plots and maneuvers of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces and obtaining great victories in all fields, to consolidate the revolutionary administration, strengthen the broad unity of the people, restore production, transform and build the economy, develop culture, stabilize and step by step improve the people's living conditions.

As an integral part of the socialist community and the world's revolutionary forces, the Lao people have spared no efforts to enhance the militant solidarity and all-sided cooperation among the three Indochinese countries, strengthen their solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries, make active contributions to the struggle of the peoples in Southeast Asia and the world as a whole for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress. The international position and prestige of Laos have been constantly heightened.

The victory of the Lao revolution is the glorious victory of Marxism-leninism creatively applied to the concrete conditions of Laos, the victory of the ardent patriotism, the spirit of solidarity and undaunted struggle of the Lao multiethnic people determined to surge forward to control their own destiny. This is the victory of the militant alliance between the three fraternal countries on the Indochinese Peninsula, of the socialist community with the Soviet Union as the main pillar and of the world's revolutionary movement.

This is also the victory of the correct and consistent foreign policy of the Lao party and state which have clearly identified in a principled manner who are friends and who are foes and, at the same time, flexibly applied appropriate guidelines and policies, thus actively contributing to the common struggle of other nations for the common objectives of our time.

The victory of the Lao revolution has once more affirmed the radiating truth of our time, namely, with the three revolutionary currents having surged ahead in an offensive position, a country which is small in land area and in population and has an underdeveloped economy, but whose people are closely united to carry out a resolute struggle under the leadership of a Marxist-Leninist party having correct revolutionary line and methods, upholding the two banners of national independence and socialism and enjoying the sympathy and support of the socialist countries and other revolutionary forces and progressive people throughout the world, and is fully capable of defeating all imperialist and reactionary forces, even the most warlike chieftains, to win independence and freedom and to take the path of socialism.

With that great significance, the victory of the Lao revolution strongly stimulates and sets a brilliant example for the peoples of countries now struggling for national independence and to build a new, happy and free life.

The Communist Party and the people of Vietnam are very proud of having such a close brother and staunch comrade as the Lao People's Revolutionary Party and the multiethnic people of Laos.

Comrades, since the days when we wrested back complete independence, achieved national reunification and took the whole country along the socialist path, we have made many big achievements in various domains in spite of numerous difficulties. In the light of the resolutions of the fifth party congress and under the leadership of the party Central Committee, headed by Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, an outstanding disciple of the great President Ho Chi Minh, we have been conducting a widespread socialist emulation movement to build socialism and defend the country, standing ready to fight and to win in whatever circumstances, and resolutely fulfilling national and internationalist duties. The broad masses of our people are making joint efforts to put into effect all the resolutions of the party congress under the slogan: "All for socialism and for the people's happiness."

Traveling along the revolutionary path full of difficulties and hardships, the Communist Party and people of Vietnam have always enjoyed the consistent precious support and assistance of the People's Revolutionary Party and multiethnic people of Laos. Each victory of the Vietnamese revolution is inseparable from the sympathy, support and assistance of the cadres, fighters and fraternal people of Laos. The Communist Party and people of Vietnam will engrave in their minds the great services of the Lao multiethnic people.

Dear comrades, bringing into full play the glorious tradition of the Indochinese Communist Party, the parties and peoples of Vietnam and Laos have continuously fostered the special militant solidarity, the foundation of which was laid and laboriously built up by President Ho Chi Minh. Our two nations have sided with each other to fight againt the common enemy and shared weal and woe in the fight as well as in victory. Being tried and tempered in the revolutionary struggle, the special Vietnam-Laos relationship has become a pure, faithful and exemplary international tie and invincible strength against all sinister divisive plots of the enemy.

The lofty militant friendship, the Vietnam-Laos fraternity will last forever together with mountains and rivers of the two countries. This is a valuable asset of the revolution in each country.

"When in love, one can climb mountains,
Cross rivers and traverse passes.
Between our two countries, Vietnam and Laos,
Love is as deep as the Hong Ha and Mekong Rivers"

Those verses of the late President Ho Chi Minh profoundly describe the close ties between our two peoples.

The party and people of Vietnam are extremely moved by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan's words at the recent fifth congress of our party: "...the Lao People's Revolutionary Party has constantly educated party cadres and members and ordinary people of different ethnic groups to do their best to preserve the special Laos-Vietnam solidarity, resolutely struggling against the enemy's schemes of division, and bequesting to their children the task of continuing to foster that special relationship, making it blossom, bear fruits and last forever ... in face of every hard trial, in the past as well as at present, we have always stood side by side with Vietnam and done our utmost to contribute to the victory of our close brother and comrade."

At this congress, once again we are extremely moved at the beautiful, noble and pure sentiments and the special Vietnam-Laos relationship, which has bright prospects for the interests of the two peoples, for peace and revolution in the world.

We are very happy to note that the special solidarity and the militant alliance among the three countries of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea have undergone a very fine new development, bringing about unprecedentedly favorable changes to the revolution in the three countries. The application of the treaty of friendship and cooperation between Vietnam and Laos and that between Vietnam and Kampuchea has achieved initial big successes, incessantly strengthening and bringing into play the force of the three countries in the struggle against the common enemy and the cause of building a new life of the three nations.

The resolution of our party's fifth congress reaffirmed: "The special Vietnam-Laos-Kampuchea relationship is a law of development of the revolution in the three countries, a matter of vital significance to the three nations. From one generation to another, we must preserve the pure friendship and the tradition of unity of the three nations, incessantly consolidate and strengthen the special relationship and the militant alliance of the three countries and resolutely foil all schemes and acts of sabotage, division and aggression by the common enemy, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other forces of reaction. In the principle of respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, equality and mutual confidence, we always devote all our hearts and energy to fulfilling our internationalist duty toward the two brotherly countries of Laos and Kampuchea. At the same time, together with them, we continue the close cooperation and mutual assistance in all fields in order to serve ever more effectively the work of consolidating national defense, security and building the economy and culture of each country."

Dear comrades, though having sustained a bitter defeat, the reactionary clique in the Beijing ruling circles have not given up their dark scheme of weakening and conquering the three Indochinese countries, thus opening their way of expansion toward Southeast Asia. They have tightened their collusion with the imperialists and other reactionary forces, frantically carrying out a type of many-sided war of sabotage against Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea. At the same time they have made frenzied preparations to launch a large-scale war of aggression against the three Indochinese countries, seriously threatening peace and national independence of other nations in the region.

The Vietnamese people are determined to struggle to defend their independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity. Prompted by its desire to live in a lasting peace and friendship with the Chinese people, the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam has persisted in solving the questions concerning Vietnam-China relations through peaceful negotiations. But so far, Beijing has groundlessly rejected the good will proposals of the Vietnamese side.

Together with the Lao and Kampuchean peoples, the Vietnamese people have striven for a policy of peace and friendship, respecting the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of all countries in the region with a view to making an active contribution to the cause of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation in Southeast Asia. The fair and reasonable initiatives put forth by the three Indochinese countries aimed at solving the problems in the Southeast Asian region through dialogue between the two groups of Indochinese countries and ASEAN national without interference from outside fully conform with the interests of the countries on the Indochinese Peninsula and Southeast Asia and the interest of world peace. We warmly welcome the Soviet Union's peace program and the peace initiatives of the Soviet Union and the Mongolian People's Republic, which conform to the earnest aspirations of the world's people.

Dear comrades, today, in this atmosphere permeated with solidarity, friendship and the spirit of proletarian internationalism, on behalf of the whole party and people of Vietnam, we warmly wish the Third LPRP Congress brilliant success. As is elaborated in reports presented to the congress, you have summed up in a thorough manner the great experiences of the Lao foreign policies, as well as the main objectives of the Lao revolution in the new stage. The Communist Party and people of Vietnam are firmly confident that with the correct, creative line set forth by this congress, the fraternal Lao people of various ethnic groups will score new and ever bigger victories in the cause of building and defending their beloved fatherland, bringing about a peaceful, independent, united and socialist Laos.

Long live the glorious Lao People's Revolutionary Party!

May the militant solidarity, great friendship and all-sided cooperation between the two parties and peoples of Vietnam and Laos last forever!

Long live the world people's victorious struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism!

Long live invincible Marxism-Leninism!

SIANG PASASON MARKS OPENING OF PARTY CONGRESS

[SIANG PASASON 27 April editorial: "Welcome the Third LPRP Congress"]

[Text] Today, another important historical event of our party -- the official opening of the Third LPRP Congress -- is taking place in the capital of Vientiane, the heart of our country.

Some 10 years ago, the second congress of our party was held at a base area in Houa Phan Province. During the period between the second congress and the third congress, the situation in our country has undergone important changes. Throughout this historic period -- under the correct and clear-signted leadership of the LPRP -- the revolutionary forces in our country have gone through so many difficulties and hardships and have developed constantly.

From the end of 1974 to early in 1975, a revolutionary impetus emerged everywhere, particularly in the enemy's last dens. During that same period, the fraternal peoples of Vietnam and Kampuchea also scored great victories and freed themselves from the neocolonialist rule imposed by the U.S. imperialists. As the revolutionary situation had become ripe, our party, firmly seizing this opportunity, called for simultaneous uprisings, attacked the enemy vigorously, gained administrative power nationwide within a short time by a three-pronged offensive, and set up a revolutionary administration for the entire country.

Proceeding from this decisive victory, on 2 December 1975 a congress of people's delegates was grandly opened in the capital of Vientiane. This historic congress declared the total elimination of the neocolonialist system and the outmoded monarchy, and the establishment of the Lao People's Democratic Republic. Thus, the national and democratic revolution trimphed in glory.

Our fatherland has entered a new era -- an era of everlasting independence and freedon and an era for the Lao people of various nationalities to advance forward to become true masters of their country and for our fatherland to embark on the path toward civilization and progress. This is the path for advancing toward socialism and communism -- the height of mankind's aspirations.

Under the party's clearsighted leadership, over the past 6 years the revolution in our country has recorded fairly comprehensive successes. Security and national defense have been increasingly consolidated and we are now capable of smashing all the perfidious designs of reactionary elements at home and abroad. In particular, we have step by step foiled all the schemes of subversion and sabotage against our country by the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in firm defense of our independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

On the economic and cultural front, although our country is still faced with shortages in many fields and seriously affected by the consequences of the recent war of aggression, our people have also recorded relatively good successes. In the past 6 years, agricultural output has increased from 700,000 tons to 1.15 million tons; and the total number of cattle has grown from 900,000 heads to 1.3 million heads. New progress has been made in the movement of agricultural cooperativization; the old production relations have been repelled; and fairly good progress has been achieved in reorganizing production and developing production relations. The state has assumed control over almost 200 factories and enterprises. The socialist trade network has made progress and is developing. The entire country now has 25 state-run stores, 350 marketing cooperatives and 150 social service installations.

Good development has been recorded on the front of education and public health. To date we have successfully served more than 80 percent of the illiterate people in our drive against illiteracy. In the field of public health, to date the majority of provinces and districts have hospitals; villages have dispensaries; and one-third of the hamlets have permanent medical kits.

The proletarian dictatorship has been consolidated from the central to the grassroots level; and the position and influence of the LDPR has been increasingly enhanced on the international arena. In particular, the special relatinship between the three peoples of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea has been made firmer than ever before; and our comprehensive relations with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries have developed constantly.

This situation has provided a good and appropriate opportunity for the convocation of the Third LPRP Congress. This congress will confirm the great successes recorded by our party in the past 10 years; review and draw upon experiences regarding strong points and weaknesses; set forth the political line for the transition period to socialism and the specific tasks and targets of the first 5-year plan; and revise theparty statutes to suit the growth and development of the Lao revolution in the new stage.

Meanwhile, the congress will elect a new Executive Committee of the party Central Committee, which will be comprised of outstanding comrades serving as members of the party's General Staff unit to lead our country to socialism.

Our entire party, army and people are turning their faces toward the capital and wish the congress glorious success.

REACTION TO MEKONG PATROL BOAT INCIDENT

LPDR Summons Ambassador

BK290413 Bangkok MATUPHUM in Thai 29 Apr 82 p 1, 9

[Excerpt] Sunthon Khongsak, the Thai ambassador to the LPDR, disclosed to MATUPHUM that on 27 April at 1600 he was summoned by Soulivong Phasitthidet, a Lao Foreign Ministry staff director, with regard to the incident on the Mekong River. Soulivong told the Thai ambassador that the Thai side started the incident by attempting to arrest Lao citizens and the Mekong River operation unit boat provoked an exchange of gunfire. The Lao citizens escaped arrest but were injured. The Lao side did not want to lodge a protest to the Thai Government about the incident for the sake of lasting friendship between the two countries.

According to Sunthon, Soulivong told him that Laos' principle on the incident is to inform him of the incident, not to protest the incident and to consider the incident as over and done with. Soulivong wanted the provincial level officials of both countries to discuss the incident, for he did not want a dispute to arise.

Sunthon disclosed that he has already reported to the Foreign Ministry about the incident; so far he has not received any instruction on how to proceed with the matter.

Lao Charge Summoned

BK281400 Hong Kong AFP in English 1222 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Excerpts] Bangkok, 28 Apr (AFP) -- The Thai Foreign Ministry today summoned the Laotian charge d'affaires here for tal. after a shooting incident on their Mekong River border in which at least one Thai offi.r was reported killed.

A Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman said after the meeting with the Lao charge that both sides "realized that the incident could affect relations between Thailand and Laos, which have started improving."

Diplomats said it was significant that Thailand did not lodge a formal protest and did not make any move to close the long river frontier, as it has often done following similar incidents in the past. "Thailand is apparently anxious to maintain the momentum toward better relations," one diplomat said.

Relations Said 'Good'

BK290706 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Excerpt] Deputy Prime Minister Gen Soem Na Nakhon, speaking to newsmen at government house this morning, said Thai-Lao relations at the government-to-government level have remained good after the recent Lao firing on Thailand's boat from the Mekong River operation unit. He noted that Interior Minister Gen Sitthi Chirarot visited Laos not long ago to strengthen Thai-Lao relations. Soem said occasional conflicts have occurred along the border as the result of smuggling activities by the local people. He believed that local-level officials of both countries will meet to jointly resolve the problems which may arise.

Soem noted that because of the length of the Thai-Lao border, it is difficult to completely prevent smuggling activities. Asked if local officials were involved in such activities, General Soem said such officials will be severely punished if they were really involved.

COLUMNIST OPPOSED TO U.S. MILITARY BASES

[Narunat Phrapanya's column: "The Military Bases Are Available"]

[Text] While reviewing MATUPHUM's daily file, I came across my own column published in the 8 April issue in which I cited Admiral Robert Long, commander of the U.S. Seventh Fleet now controlling [as published] the sky and sea of the Pacific Ocean, as saying that the United States should have its military bases in the territory of its allies which are near the Soviet Union.

Surely, I have voiced opposition in my column to any effort to reactivate the former U.S. bases in Thailand because we do not want to place ourselves between the two fighting elephants.

The news on the reopening of the U.S. military bases in Thailand became more credible when U.S. Ambassador to Thailand John Gunther Dean mentioned it at the meeting of the U.S. ambassadors in the Pacific region which was held in Hawaii a few days ago. I must hereby warn that wherever U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean goes, he always brings disaster with him.

Asked about Dean's statement, Army Commander Gen Prayut Charumani soothingly replied that he did not know about it, noting that Dean's statement would only reflect his own opinion.

However, the army commander stressed: "The presence of foreign military bases will cause suspicion among other countries, particularly those that are unfriendly because they might think the bases would be used against them."

The presence of U.S. military bases in Thailand during the war in Indochina was a big mistake for us. We got involved in the affairs of the others until the situation became extremely dangerous which is a cause of some of our current problems.

Anybody visiting Takhli, Nakhon Phanom, Ubon Ratchathani, Udon Thani or Utaphao today will see large restricted compunds consisting of deserted buildings, airports and other military installations. These are the former U.S. military bases which were handed over to the Thai Government. The government, however, does not have the budget even to clear these bases of tall weeds, much less maintain them. The Thai Government cannot find any use for these bases.

We have no B-52 or F-5E aircraft to use the Utaphao airport. We have no mission that requires the use of the air bases in Udon Thani and Ubon Ratchathani.

It seems that those deserted extra large military bases are waiting for their true owners to return to use them. Otherwise, Dean would not have said: "There is no change in the agreements between Thailand and the United States. Thailand has allowed the United States to use the military bases in case of emergency such as for refuelling and joint military exercise. Regard the joint security operation, the two countries still abide by the obligations under the Thanat-Rusk treaty." It sounds like we are keeping the military bases for the U.S. troops. Let us hope that this will not happen.

PRC ACCUSED OF DISTORTING THACH EUROPE VISIT

OW280925 Hanoi VNA in English 0859 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 28 -- Beijing was jaundiced by Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's recent tour of France and other European countries, remarks NHAN DAN today. Beijing's mouthpieces distorted the aim of the visits and pressure was brought to bear on the host government, the paper recalls.

The paper continues: "XINHUA said that the Vietnamese foreign minister gained little out of the tour. Had this been true Beijing's propaganda apparatus would not have kicked up such a row. Radio Beijing alone devoted as many as 17 items on this event.

"Thus is nothing equivocal [as received] about the foreign policy of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, which advocates solidarity and all-sided cooperation with the Soviet Union in the interests of Vietnam's independence, freedom and socialism, and of peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the rest of the world. Vietnam is for friendly, normal relations with all countries, China included. The political report made to the fifth congress of the Communist Party points out: We stand for establishing and broadening normal relations in the state, economic, cultural and scientific and technological fields with all countries, irrespective of political or social system, on the basis of mutual respect for independence and sovereignty, equality and mutual benefit.

"The same report makes clear that Vietnam's diplomatic effort is to strive to secure favorable international conditions and great and many-sided international aid for the building and defense of the country thereby helping ensure the successful performance of the historic tasks laid down by this congress.

"Beijing has claimed that Vietnam's solidarity and cooperation with the Soviet Union was a [word indistinct] for big-nation hegemony. Now efforts to broaden normal relations with the same way Vietnam's it brands in Western and Northern Europe. [sentence as received] At the same time it keeps ignoring all Vietnam's well-meaning proposals for normal relations with China."

The paper goes on: "What Beijing really wants is to continue to isolate Vietnam so that it may weaken and annex it. For this purpose it leaves no stone unturned to discourage countries which wish to entertain normal relations with Vietnam. At the same time Beijing is colluding more and more with the imperialist chieftain to sabotage revolution in Indochina."

"Beijing will fail in its effort to isolate Vietnam," the paper stresses.

Radio Comment

[Unattributed commentary: "The Truth Cannot Be Distorted"]

[Text] Beijing's huge propaganda machine has once again launched a vociferous campaign to slander Vietnam and distort facts concerning it. The visit to various Western countries and India by the SRV foreign minister has become a target for Beijing's slanderous campaign. Every day the Beijing mass media organs have carried slanderous allegations with spiteful expressions -- sometimes even rude language -- against these friendly visits of the Vietnamese foreign minister.

Upon the arrival of Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach in Paris -- the first stop of his friendly visit to Europe -- and at the conclusion of his successful visit to France, Beijing not only showed its annoyance but also urged the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary political corpse to condemn France.

When the Vietnamese foreign minister visited Belgium, the GDR, Sweden and India, Beijing also cooked up reason to smear, slander and play down the results and resounding effect of his friendly visits to these countries.

Beijing's reaction to this was hateful. It is bitter for Beijing to see the correct Vietnamese foreign policy -- which truly advocates friendly relations with all countries, including China, on the basis of respect for each other's independence and sovereignty, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and cooperation on an equal basis and of mutual interests -- reflected in the friendly visit of Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, which has been highly welcomed and valued by many countries.

Despite efforts by Beijing to slander this visit, the truth has been in favor of talks between the Vietnamese foreign minister and leaders of the host countries he visited. Western opinion has described this visit as useful, frank and very necessary.

Although West European countries and Vietnam are far apart geographically and differ politically and although these countries have been misled by Beijing's and Washington's slanderous campaign for many years, Vietnam's foreign policy has helped them gradually to understand the correct aspiration of the Vietnamese people in the maintenance of peace and building of their country after the two wars of aggression waged by the U.S. imperialists and China.

Achievements scored in the political domain and prospects for economic cooperation on the basis of mutual interests have once again proven that the policy of negotiation instead of confrontation and of mutual respect and understanding being pursued by the SRV is the developing trend that no one can obstruct.

Such a peaceful and friendly foreign policy is totally contrary to Beijing's aspiration. The fact that Beijing has made great efforts to slander, smear and try to limit the resounding effect of the recent friendly visit of Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach comes as no surprise.

Being bitterly defeated in its aggression against Vietnam and foiled in its scheme to turn the Indochinese countries into a springboard to wage aggression against the Southeast Asian region, Beijing has relentlessly accelerated its scheme of comprehensive sabotage against Vietnam. The distortion and slanderous campaign against the Vietnamese foreign minister's visits to Western Europe and India being launched by Beijing is only one aspect of its scheme to isolate Vietnam diplomatically and economically. With this slanderous act, Beijing hopes to separate Vietnam from other countries in order to advance toward eventually isolating Vietnam.

Annoyed by the success of the Vietnamese foreign minister's friendly visit and stemming from its hostile policy against Vietnam, Beijing has once again -- through its vociferous distortion and slanderous campaign -- interfered in the international relation of other countries, or more precisely, the international relations between the SRV and other countries. This is prohibited and is regarded as bad practice in international diplomacy.

Although Beijing has relentlessly resorted to all tactics to distort and slander Vietnam, the final loser and the one whose true color has been exposed -- including the dark schemes against the SRV -- has always been Beijing itself. The truth cannot be distorted.

Angrily distoring and slandering the Vietnamese foreign ministry's friendly visits to Western Europe and India only shows that Beijing's policy of blockading and isolating Vietnam in the diplomatic and economic domains is being bankrupted and is doomed to failure similar to other hostile policies it has formerly imposed on Vietnam.

LE SOIR REPORTS THACH BRUSSELS NEWS CONFERENCE

PM261405 Brussels LE SOIR in French 22 Apr 82 p 7

["C.B." report: "Mr Nguyen Co Thach Has Come To Plead Vietnam's Cause"]

[Text] In Vietnam the Fifth Communist Party Congress, held at the end of March, produced new lines and especially a desire for an open approach to the West at both the economic and the political level. Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach is at present the interpreter of these new lines and has explained them to his Western colleagues during a journey which has already taken him to Paris and Sweden.

Mr Nguyen Co Thach has spent 2 days in Brussels, where he had a meeting on a bilateral basis with Mr Pisani, European commissioner for cooperation and development, and had talks with Belgian Foreign Minister Tindemans. The talks with Mr Pisani dealt mainly with the food aid that the EEC previously granted to Veitnam and that was suspended when the Vietnam intervened in Kampuchea. Last year, however, the EEC restored some emergency aid to Vietnam, distributed through certain humanitarian organizations.

During a press conference the Vietnamese minister said how much his country wants to cooperate with the Western countries and with the EEC, but on the basis of reciprocal interests and without any preconditions. "We have not come to beg," Mr Nguyen Co Thach asserted, explaining that his talks in Paris with Mr Cheysson and in Brussels with Mr Pisani were excellent. Nonetheless, he gave no details on their practical results or on the economic cooperation agreements which might have been reached, stressing "I am not an economist."

Questioned about the refugees who are still fleeing, Vietnam, Mr Nguyen Co Thach reiterated the official argument that this exodus is one of the consequences of 35 years of war: "It is natural," he said, "that some of our compatriots who were used to living in American comfort cannot tolerate sacrifices and remain nostalgic about the colonial period." But Mr Nguyen Co Thach also thinks that these departures are encouraged by foreign countries and particularly by the Voice of America, which goes so far as to give weather reports on the China Sea and the position of the American 7th Fleet, which is ready to pick up the refugees. While not mentioning the tragedy of the "boat people" drowning at sea, the minister even maintained that prospective refugees are given sea sick tablets, and he stressed that the countries which accept the refugees draw a distinction between those who leave Vietnam legally (and are regarded as ordinary immigrants), and those who flee illegally and automatically receive political refugee status. Mr Nguyen Co Thach denied the possibility of Vietnamese workers being sent to labor camps in the Soviet Union: "It is true that we sent 5,000 cadres to the USSR to complete their training, but they are not in Siberia and are treated in the same way as Soviet citizens. Moreover 20,000 Vietnamese are in Czechoslovakia in the same circumstances, there are 200 Vietnamese in Algeria and others in Madagascar, the Congo, Angola and so forth."

During the press conference, as in the talks with his various interlocutors, the Vietnamese foreign minister primarily stressed China's role, accusing it of maintaining tension in the region and waging "a veritable war" there. According to him, it is China alone that is trying to prevent dialogue and peaceful coexistence between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries. Vietnam, for its part, ardently wants reconciliation with its neighbors and, the minister said, might even envisage joining ASEAN one day.

Questioned on the Falkland Islands, Mr Nguyen Co Thach, invoking the right of peoples to self-determination, explained why his country supports Argentina's position in that affair. And he recalled that, depsite the conflict between Vietnam and China, he thinks that Taiwan by right belongs to China.

PARTY SECRETARIAT ISSUES COMMUNIQUE ON HOLIDAYS

BK241335 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 24 Apr 82

[Text] The VCP Central Committee Secretariat on 22 April issued a communique on celebration of the three major holidays: 30 April, 1 May and 19 May. The communique says: This year our people commemorate the Victory Day 30 April, International Labor Day 1 May and President Ho Chi Minh's birthday 19 May after the splendid success of the Fifth VCP Congress. Our entire party, people and armed forces are striving to implement the congress resolutions.

STATE SCIENCE-TECHNOLOGY COMMISSION MEETS

[Text] The State Science and Technology Commission recently held a conference in Quang Nam-Danang to review the scientific and technical activities of various localities in 1981, especially since the issuing of Political Bureau Resolution 37 on the policy regarding science and technology; and to exchange experiences in boosting these activities; and to popularize a number of new party and state regulations and instructions on the management of scientific and technical activities with a view to manifesting the scientific and technical cadres' determination to statisfactorily implement the resolutions of the fifth party congress.

Vice Chairman Vo Nguyen Giap of the Council of Ministers attended and addressed the conference. The participants listened to the reports and speeches by delegates from various provinces, cities and special zones which asserted that new progress in the scientific and technical work had been achieved since the fourth party congress, especially since the issuing of Political Bureau Resolution 37. However, scientific and technical activities in the localities have not yet demonstrated their organic role in the economic and social plan. Owing to the prevalence of the system of subsidy management and to tardy information, there still exists a loose coordination between the set programs for applying scientific accomplishments and the programs of various localities and areas.

In order to overcome these shortcomings, to develop the past results and to fulfill their tasks in the future, the localities must thoroughly understand the strategic tasks set forth by the fifth party congress.

COMMUNICATIONS, TRANSPORTATION WORK REVIEWED

[Text] The Ministry of Communications and Transportation recently held a conference to review communications and transportation activities in 1981 and discuss the orientations and tasks for the 5 years 1981-85 and for 1982.

Assessing the status of communications and transportation in 1981, the conference unanimously reached the following conclusion: The communications and transportation sector carried out its tasks as specified under the 1981 State Plan under extremely difficult conditions, including a severe shortage of fuel and spare parts. Apart from encountering these objective difficulties, the sector still displayed many weaknesses and shortcomings, especially in organization, guidance and management. Therefore, in 1981 the communications and transportation sector did not meet the demands of the national economy and still remained, as observed by the party and state, a weak link.

On the orientations and tasks for 1982, the conference stressed the need to concentrate efforts on carrying out the following measures satisfactorily:

All branches, localities and transportation enterprises must rearrange transportation means to satisfactorily meet demands along the line of concentrating on moving imported goods and goods for export and ensuring north-south transportation. Priority must be given to the transportation of coal and grain, to meeting the demands for transportation in agriculture and so on.

Efforts must be concentrated on guiding the loading and unloading of goods at both ends of transportation channels and attention given to satisfactorily meeting the economic-technical norms for transportation.

It is necessary to bring into full play the operational capacity of the existing facilities and the potentials of existing materials and spare parts in carrying out repair work in order to increase transportation capacity constantly.

NODONG SINMUN BLASTS BUSH VISIT TO S. KOREA

[NODONG SINMUN 30 April commentary: "What Does Bush's South Korean Visit Mean?"]

[Text] U.S. Vice President Bush recently visited South Korea. According to reports, he inspected the headquarters of the South Korea-U.S. Combined Field Army and outposts on the frontline as soon as he sneaked into South Korea. He held secret talks with traitor Chon Tu-hwan and other puppet leaders and made a speech at the puppet National Assembly. He left after creating a public commotion.

Bush tried to describe his visit as a symbol of friendship between South Korea and the United States, raving about friends, friendship and so forth everywhere he visited. He was intent on pretending that his goal is to maintain peace in Northeast Asia. However, Bush's words and deeds in South Korea show that his South Korean trip is not for friends or for peace but a dangerous trip by the aggressor.

Appearing at the puppet National Assembly, Bush openly raved that the U.S. troops in South Korea will not be withdrawn. To justify his remarks, he raved about someone's aggression. It is ridiculous for a burglar who sneaked into another's country, crossing the ocean, to discuss aggression by someone. The aggressor is none other than the United States. Because of the occupation of South Korea by U.S. troops, the Korean people's sovereignty has been infringed on for 37 years, and they are suffering the pain of division.

The fact that peace is being threatened on the Korean Peninsula today and an acute situation in which a war can break out any moment is being created is because the U.S. troops are occupying South Korea and continuously waging aggressive war maneuvers. The fact that the South Korean people are deprived of basic human rights by the Chon Tu-hwan clique's repression at gunpoint is because the U.S. imperialists are supporting the puppets by the use of force.

The South Korean people are raising the banner of anti-U.S. struggle, denying the need for U.S. troops to be stationed in South Korea. This is a natural consequence of the South Korean people's past experiences. Nevertheless, Bush said that U.S. troops will stay in South Korea and will even be reinforced, while raving about the fictitious military superiority of someone, and that military support for the puppets will be intensified. This is a challenge to the unanimous demand of the South Korean people. Whose friends are those who are enforcing slavery on the people while continuously implementing a policy of occupation, running counter to the will of the absolute majority of the South Korean people?

Bush's true color was disclosed when he made an absurd remark urging us to respond to the traitor Chon Tu-hwans' so-called proposal to the North, describing it as innovative. It has already been exposed to the world that the 22 January proposal put forward by traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a deceitful way to conceal splittist maneuvers and is not worth considering in seeking the reunification of Korea.

What is significant is that Bush used a trick to enhance the prestige of his filthy stooge. As the world acknowledges, division is prolonged in Korea not because of a lack of proposals, such as the one made by Chon Tu-hwan, but because of the occupation of South Korea by U.S. troops and the U.S. policy of aggression.

It is a shameless and deceitful political drama for Bush to rave about dialogue with the very same tongue used to reveal an attempt at the permanent occupation of South Korea by U.S. troops. He refused to respond to our proposal to replace the armistice agreement with a peace agreement through negotiations between persons concerned who had concluded the Korean armistice agreement in order to maintain peace on the Korean Peninsula and create conditions conducive to reunification. Thus, it is revealed that the peace talked about by him is a falsehood and a mere signboard to conceal aggression.

Bush dedicated much time to inspiring traitor Chon Tu-hwan, a stooge in his colonial land, In particular, he highly praised the so-called policy for stability adopted by the puppet traitor and said he hopes this policy will continue. He even raved that the puppet traitor should make the people welcome the United States, despite the fact that he had to face the people's anti-U.S. demonstrations once he sneaked into South Korea.

The policy of stability adopted by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, which Bush praised, is a policy for oppressing the people. Bush's encouragement of traitor Chon Tu-hwan to make the people welcome the United States is none other than a scheme directing the suppression of the South Korean people who rose in an anti-U.S. struggle at gunpoint. What we should not overlook from Bush's South Korean tour is that Bush raved that Korea-U.S. relations in the past 100 years are close relations of friendship. He also discussed the centennial of the establishment of diplomatic relations between Korea and the United States and said that South Korea-U.S. relations today are relations of friends and partners.

This is a shameless fabrication of history and a denial of the realities. The history of the last 100 years since the U.S. imperialist aggressors started to sneak into Korea is a history of aggression and plunder, stained with blood, and relations between South Korea and the United States today are master-servant relations between the colonial rulers and the puppets. The remarks on friendship, partners and so forth raved about by Bush are a trick to conceal their nature as aggressors and to enhance the prestige of the puppets.

Bush's recent junket to South Korea is an aggressive junket to instigate the Chon Tu-hwan military facist clique, facing a crisis due to the intensifying anti-U.S., anti-puppet struggle, and maintain the colonial rule in South Korea. It was a criminal junket aimed at threatening and deceiving the South Korean people and smashing the anti-U.S., antidictatorship sentiment, which is rising among them.

Bush's visit to South Korea exposed the sordid nature of the U.S. imperialists as aggressors and the nation-selling, traitorous nature of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique -- their dirty stooge. The Chon Tu-hwan clique, which has been advocating S. Korean-U.S. friendship, boisterously held a nauseating welcome for its master. The South Korean people received Bush's junket to South Korea coldly. The Chon Tu-hwan clique behaved in a shameful manner by mobilizing the rabble and having them issue a statement supporting the master's junket of aggression.

In talks with Bush, the Chon Tu-hwan clique begged him, during the entire period of his stay, for perpetual occupation by the U.S. imperialist aggression forces, increases in military aid and improvement of loan terms. Such acts by the Chon Tu-hwan clique are unpardonable and treacherous. Only sordid traitors, who live dirty lives under the aegis of the masters, could commit such acts.

The U.S. imperialists are scheming to realize their policy of occupying South Korea forever while instigating the Chon Tu-hwan clique and soothing the people's anti-U.S. sentiment of struggle. This is an anachronistic illusion. Owing to crimes they have committed since they sneaked into South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are being justly rejected by the South Korean people.

The South Korean people, youths and students have waged a series of bold anti-U.S. struggles in recent days. They vigorously launched anti-U.S. demonstrations during Bush's stay in South Korea. This is a vivid and concrete expression of the people's sentiments. Seized with a fear of the people's anti-U.S. sentiments, Bush could not stay at the so-called guest house which the puppets had reserved for his lodging, but had to pass his nights at the U.S. Embassy, which was tightly guarded by the U.S. forces.

The aggressors are in a difficult situation, and they will be in an even more difficult situation in the future. The U.S. imperialists should abandon their anachronistic policy of occupying South Korea and return to their hangout without delay, taking along their aggressive armed forces.

If the U.S. imperialists continuously instigate the fascist elements to military terrorist rule and a splittist policy while adhering to an occupation policy in South Korea and egging on the fascist elements, they -- as aggressors and splittists -- will not escape stern denunciation by our people and the world's people.

VRPR HAILS ANTI-U.S., ANTIGOVERNMENT STRUGGLE

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] As has been already reported, on the evening of 26 April, 2,000 youths and students held a gathering at the Myongdong Cathedral in Seoul to condemn the authorities' suppression and persecution of Priest Choe Ki-sik, who protected those people involved in the arson incident at the American Cultural Center in Pusan. After this gathering, several hundred of the youths and students there staged a street demonstration, shouting the slogan "Down with fascism" and anti-U.S. slogans. This anti-U.S. demonstrtion was staged when U.S. Vice President Bush visited the cathedral. Following this demonstration, on the evening of 27 April, too, over 300 youths and students staged a strong antigovernment demonstration, demanding the release of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners. The demonstrators marched toward Kwanghwamun Street, shouting antigovernment slogans. They confronted several hundreds of riot police and stubbornly fought them.

Meanwhile, the same day the Korean Christians Consultative Council issued a statement denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan ring for arresting Priest Choe Ki-sik and other churchmen connecting them with the arson incident at the American Cultural Center in Pusan. The statement denounced the domestic mass media for their distorted coverage of events. It also supported the Korean Christian Action Organization's [KCAO] statement calling for the recall of the U.S. ambassador and the commander of U.S. forces in South Korea who had made absurd remarks insulting the South Korean people. That day the families of prisoners of conscience disseminated a statement calling for the unconditional and immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners.

Such an anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle waged by the patriotic youths and students, the conscientious religionists and the families of detainees is a sacred and patriotic struggle reflecting the unanimous aspiration and will of our people calling for national sovereignty, democracy and national reunification. This can be found in their slogans and assertions alone. They supported the act of Priest Choe Ki-sik of the Wonju Catholic Parish who protected those people involve the arson incident at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, condemned the fascist a oc es of the authorities to suppress religion and supported the KCAO statement demanding the recall of the U.S. ambassador and the commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea who had insulted the South Korean people.

As is known to everyone, the act of arson by the patriotic youths and students at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was an expression of our people's anti-U.S. sentiment and was a sacred patriotic act reflecting public opinion. Therefore, protecting these patriots is a natural duty of the citizens and religionists. Their acts should deserve praise and cannot be the target of suppression. This notwithstanding, the Chon Tu-hwan ring illegally arrested Priest Choe Ki-sik and other religionists and is persecuting them. For the patriotic youths and students to turn out in a struggle against these fascist atrocities of the authorities, and for the conscientious religionists to condemn the Chon Ru-hwan ring through a rally and statement is only just.

Their demand for the recall of the U.S. ambassador and the commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea who insulted the South Korean people reflects the aspirations of our people to regain our national sovereignty and to achieve democratization of the socieyt. This, too, is only just.

The recent struggle of the youths and students, religionists and families of detainees for the unconditional and immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners is also only just. Kim Tae-chung is a conscientious, democratic personage who struggled for the democratization of society and the reunification of the country. Though it commuted Kim Tae-chung's sentence from life imprisonment to 20 years imprisonment, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is plotting to kill him in a bid to bury the Kim Tae-chung incident -- a focus of public opinion at home and abroad -- in history forever. The struggle for the release of Kim Tae-chung is part of the sacred struggle for democracy and reunification. This is why the patriotic youths, students and religionists recently waged a sacred antigovernment struggle and demonstrations, demanding the unconditional and immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners.

They also strongly appealed to the domestic mass media not to cover events unfairly and condemned the fascist authorities for their trying to utilize the mass media as government organs. This is also just. In fact, the South Korean press has today been reduced to one which is government-patronized and reports events only to meet the tastes of the fascist authorities. Far from representing the just voices and patriotic aspiration of the people, the South Korean press has today been reduced to one which reports events unfairly and distortedly and which embellishs the criminal dictatorial system; it is a hand maiden for the authorities. The condemnation by the patriotic youths, students, religionists and families of detainees of the press this time was only just and cannot be regarded as a criminal act.

This notwithstanding, the Chon Tu-hwan ring brutally suppressed the patriotic youths, students, religionists and families of detainees by mobilizing armed police and arrested many people. Thus, it perpetrated fascist atrocities against them. This is an intolerable criminal act running counter to the aspirations of the people and the trend of the times.

Today the Chon Tu-hwan ring is trying to obliterate the increasing anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle. But this is only a foolish act. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should look straight at the trend of the times, immediately stop its indiscreet fascist suppression, unconditionally and immediately release illegally arrested youths, students, all political prisoners, including Kim Tae-chung, and prisoners of conscience and step down from power without delay.

CHON REGIME BLAMED FOR UIRYONG SHOOTING INCIDENT

[Unattributed talk: "Act of Butchery Revealing the True Nature of the Beast"]

[Text] According to a news report, frantically running amok late in the night to hunt men and randomly firing carbines and throwing handgrenades, police hooligan U Pom-kon of the Kungyu substation, the Uiryong police station, South Kyongsang Province on 26 April committed a brutal act of killing and wounding 108 innocent people. Shortly before this, a puppet police rascal committed a barbarous act of killing a young man, Yim Nam-su, with a pistol at a store on Wonhyo Street in Yongsan District, Seoul.

All fellow countrymen are now grinding their teeth with indignation against the puppet police rascals' barbarous holocaust in South Korea. From the beginning, the South Korean puppet police has been a group of devilish murderers who have engaged in man-hunting. Shortly after usurping power, patronized by the U.S. imperialists, traitor Chon Tu-hwan converted the puppet police into a group of atrocious, bestial, frantic and fascist killers in order to maintain the military fascist rule and fulfill his dirty, wild desire for long-term power. Not satisfied, the rascal greatly increased the manpower and equipment of the puppet police. Still not satisfied, he formed a special police assault force with rascals specialized in fascist tyranny and in barbarous massacre. The rascal then made a mockery of the people, defining the puppet police as a cane for the people in protecting social security and order.

This is a brazen act. This is a petty trick to conceal his felonious nature as the most brutal human butcher and the ringleader of devilish murderers.

How many South Korean patriotic people and students has traitor Chon Tu-hwan cruelly slaughtered in 2 hears since he usurped power with bayonets, patronized by the U.S. imperialists? In only 10 days in Kwangju alone, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, a human butcher and the boss of devilish murderers, brutally killed several thousand patriotic students and people and wounded more than 14,000 people, committing intolerable, barbarous acts.

The barbarous act of killing and wounding 108 people at one time by the police hooligan called U Pom-kon of the Kungyu substation of the Uiryong police station in South Kyongsang Province is the execution of the method of slaughter he learned from traitor Chon Tu-hwan. Unanimously calling traitor Chon Tu-hwan the ringleader of the barbarous slaughter committed by the police hooligan of the Kungyu substation of the Uiryong police station, the South Korean people are firmly determined to deal a hard blow at the rascal a thousand times without fail.

Perplexed by this, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, pretending to remedy the situation, has had small fry make a fuss in forming a committee to remedy the situation in the wake of the shooting incident and a team for an on-the-spot investigation of the incident. He has played out a foolish game of arresting and dismissing a few small fry. On the other hand, the puppet traitor has had the hooligans of the Democratic Justice Party -- the rascal's private party of hooligans -- repeatedly issue statements trumpeting condolences and regrets. This is a petty trick to placate the South Korean people's surging rage and resistance and conceal his bestial nature as a human butcher and the ringleader of killers.

The crimes are too big for rascal Chon Tu-hwan to cover up with tricks. The South Korean people will never forget the act of human butchery committed by traitor Chon Tu-hwan and will surely take revenge for their deep-rooted rancor by dealing severe blows at the rascals a thousand times.

POLISH PAPERS, TV MARK KIM IL-SONG BIRTHDAY

[Text] Pyongyang, April 29 (KCNA) -- The Polish papers DZIENNIK LUDOWY, CHLOPSKA DROGA, ZOLNIERZ WOLNOSCI, RZECZPOSPOLIKA and KURIER POLSKI recently published articles celebrating the 70th birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, according to reports. Papers printed portraits or photographs of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The paper CHLOPSKA DROGA printed a photograph of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song discussing work with the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il. The paper said in an article: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has achieved great successes in all fields -- industry, agriculture and education and culture, etc. All the successes are closely linked with the leading role of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

The policy of the DPRK is based on the chuche idea founded by Comrade Kim Il-song. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said as follows: "To establish chuche means holding fast to the principle of solving for oneself all problems of the revolution and construction in conformity with the actual conditions of one's country, and mainly by one's own efforts." Together with the article, the paper printed a photograph of the old home of the great leader President Kim Il-song in historic Mangyongdae.

The paper DZIENNIK LUDOWY said in an article headlined "Brief History of the Fighter" that Comrade Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, is the leader of people and a symbol of national resurrection. It went on:

Today Korea has become one of the most developed industrial states in Asia. She has reached a very high level in percapita annual natinal income and the average life span of the people.

All the successes registered in socialist construction are thanks to the wise leadership of Comrade Kim Il-song and to the embodiment of the chuche idea founded by him. Along the revolutionary line of chuche put forward by Comrade Kim Il-song the DPRK has become self-reliant in all spheres and turned into a country independent in politics and self-reliant in economy and national defense.

An article of the paper ZOLNIERZ WOLNOSCI said that Comrade Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, is a great man among the leaders of the world, communist, military strategist and political activist. The paper sincerely wished the great leader good health and a long life for the complete victory of the cause of socialism and for peace and progress.

Other Polish papers ZYCIE WARXZAWY, SZTANDAR MLODYOH and GROMADA ROLNIK POLSKI also published articles recently.

Polish TV broadcasting on April 15 screened a portrait of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song several times and his native home in Mangyongdae and the Pyongyang metro and magnificent features of Pyongyang under the title "Korea -- A Land of Morning Calm." It also screened a picture of the great leader talking with Polish children during his visit to Poland in July, 1956, and gave accounts of functions held in Poland on the occasion of his 70th birthday. It introduced the brief history of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

KIM CHONG-IL GUARDS, SIMPLIFIES PAPERS FOR FATHER

[Feature program: "Ray of Guidance" -- dialogue between station commentator Madame Yun and announcer Miss Yun]

[Excerpts] [Miss Yun]: Hello, how are you? [Madame Yun] Hello, how are you? [Miss Yun]: The sagacious dear comrade leader, who is endlessly loyal to the great leader, can be said to be intent on caring for the health and long life of the great leader, giving priority, in his activities, to the respected and beloved leader's well-being.

[Madame Yun]: That is correct.

[Miss Yun]: As you know, the entire nation hopes for the good health and long life of the great leader, does it not? I think, without the great leader, we can hardly conceive of unlimited national prosperity or the glowing future of our fatherland, nor can we think of freedom or happiness. I think for this very reason, the entire people always wish good health and long life for the respected and beloved leader.

[Madame Yun]: Right.

[Miss Yun]: This unanimous aspiration of the nation is being brightly realized by the dear comrade leader -- the nation's star of guidance. He is said to be sacrificing everything to preserve the good health, long life and well-being of his father, the leader. The dear comrade leader's warm loyalty to the great leader, in regard to his caring for the good health, long life and well-being of the great leader, is said to have been extraordinary from boyhood.

[Madame Yun]: Right

[Miss Yun]: The dear comrade leader is said to have been loyal to the great leader from his boyhood. I recently obtained a copy of a book which contains stories about him.

This is one of the stories. Young dear comrade leader, when the great leader was sleeping, used to drive birds and insects away from the garden lest their singing and buzzing waken the great leader. He wrote a letter to the respected and beloved leader at the commander in chief's headquarters at the height of the 25 June war. Shall I quote part of it?

[Madame Yun]: Yes, please.

[Miss Yun]: "Father, you are not simply an individual, but a leader of the entire Korean people. Therefore, your health, (?well-being) and your caring for yourself is for the happiness of the entire Korean people as well as for us." This letter written by the dear comrade leader, in which he wrote that his father is not simply an individual but a great leader burdened with the fate of our revolution and that his health makes the entire Korean people happy, shows what a noble degree the dear comrade leader's loyalty in caring for the great leader's health reached. Not for a moment in his busy day-to-day work for the party and state has he ever forgotten to care for the well-being of the respected and beloved leader.

[Madame Yun]: Right.

[Miss Yun]: This being the nature of the dear comrade leader, it is said that whenever he organizes meetings of functions he gives priority to the well-being of the fatherly leader and makes everything serve this end.

[Madame Yun]: Right.

[Miss Yun] According to a comrade who has been to the North, the dear comrade leader, who always thinks of the great leader's well-being, ordered that all documents to be delivered to the great leader be simplified as much as possible so as not to tire the leader, that the size of type on those documents be enlarged and that voluminous documents be recorded on tapes and submitted along with the documents to the leader so as to prevent him from tiring easily.

[Madame Yun]: Right. This shows that he does not spare anything to ensure the well-being of the great leader.

[Miss Yun]: Correct.

[Madame Yun]: In particular, it is said that he willingly makes himself a member of the honor guard unit [kunwidae] for the physical security of the great leader. A friend of mine who travelled abroad told me that dear comrade leader voluntarily made himself a member of entourage of the great leader to assist the great leader when he was visiting a foreign country a long time ago. Arriving there, the dear comrade leader saw to such matters as hotel rooms, the positioning of guards and others, correcting some errors. In addition, he volunteered to stand nightwatch without relief almost every night, walking around the garden, from time to time looking through the curtains into the room where the great leader slept. Indeed, these are stories which we cannot hear without emotion.

[Miss Yun]: These are not the only examples of the dear comrade leader's warm loyalty in regard to caring for the well-being of the great leader. It was in 1975 when the great leader was on his way home after concluding his visits to African and European countries. The plane the great leader was aboard happened to fly into the skies over NATO members. It was only after the dear comrade leader was assured that the plane with the great leader on board had safely passed through the skies of those nations that he was relieved from his night-long sleeplessness.

I have another story. This is related by a fisherman who landed in the North as a result of a storm. This happened when preparations for celebrations to mark the 30th anniversary of the founding of the republic were concluded. At dawn, around 0300 hours, of the day to celebrate the anniversary upholding the fatherly leader, the dear comrade came out to the reviewing stand on the square.

He wanted to conduct himself a preliminary check of the route which the great leader would later take in coming to the square.

Indeed, the dear leader's loyalty to the great leader, his care for the well-being of the great leader, has no bounds. Dear Comrade leader Kim Chong-il cares for the well-being, good health and long life of the great leader day in and day out, deriving pleasure and happiness in ensuring the well-being of the great leader. He is a great example for all the revolutionaries of our era, I think.

[Madame Yun]: Is he not? The more we hear about the dear comrade leader's warm loyalty to the great leader in his devotion to ensure the well-being of the great leader, the stronger grows our resolution to heighten our loyalty to the great leader by emulating the dear comrade leader's noble example and to hasten national reunification and revolution so as to make the leadership of our leader fully blossom in this land.

[Miss Yun]: True. Thank you for today's talk.

The authorities said Mun orchestrated the arson and conducted indoctrination courses for college students in Pusan from March 1981 to February 1982. The courses were intended to encourage conditions for a revolution and a socialist system in Korea, they said.

They said Kim, who was also implicated in the civil disturbances in the southwestern city of Kwangju in May 1982, conducted a series of 20 indoctrination classes for college students from January to August 1981 in Wonju. KOREA HERALD PRAISES 'TIMELY' CABINET SHAKEUP

[Editorial: "Responsibility of Officials"]

[Text] The partial Cabinet shakeup which closely followed Tuesday's shooting orgy committed by a drunken patrolman in a southern province is both timely and essential. It is essential because the incident in which casualties reached nearly 100, including 56 deaths, underlined the lucid need for drastic measures to keep civil servants in general and the police force in particular duly accountable for what they do or what they fail to do.

As President Chon Tu-hwan aptly observed when informed of the tragedy of rare enormity, the unbridled ransacking by the murderous policeman for as long as eight hours reflects the continual negligence of duties on the part of government employees. It is incredible, indeed, that the killer went unchecked for so many hours before he killed himself at the end of the shooting, which has no comparable precedent not only in this country, but most likely, all over the world.

The chief executive's holding the administration accountable for the bloodbath must be heeded to the hilt, if the nation is going to prevent any more incidents like the recent cave-in at a subway construction site in Seoul and the stealing of a suspect's passbook by a police investigator, as well as the mass killing in question. The cause of these incidents is not of an isolated, momentary origin; it has thrived on laxity and lack of integrity among a good number of public servants.

The foremost challenge facing the new ministers, especially Home Minister No Tae-u taking charge of the National Police, and for that matter the government as a whole, is to eliminate the root causes of these horrendous activities. In order to meet this challenge, prompt and stern punishment should not be spared when and where they are needed.

In this regard, the ongoing investigation into dereliction of duty in the relevant agencies of law enforcement and related administrations in the victimized village must be carried out thoroughly.

This investigation and consequent action should set a model not only for police and a few other relevant agencies but also for all public institutions to emulate in improving their discipline and sense of responsibility. Three police officers are reportedly under arrest in connection with the massacre and more seem to be in for discipline. Such action will be indispensable to change the general atmosphere so that no "administration on paper" will find any room to roost.

Apart from this basic need for change, the case of the frenzied patrolman teaches us a dire lesson. The present system for selecting National Police should be reviewed to insure that the mental aptitude or fitness of an applicant is sufficiently tested. This point merits deep thought in light of a number of past incidents. In effect, stricter examination of such fitness is equally vital for many other jobs, and in particular, driving.

The list of requirements for good police must be long, indeed. But the need for better in-service training and education is apparent to keep police and, for that matter, other comparable officials, soundly motivated and loyal to their duties. The change of the Cabinet ministers shall be the beginning of a new endeavor to put the administrative house, especially its security branch, in proper shape so that it can measure up to public expectations.

CHON URGES COMPANIES TO INCREASE EXPORTS

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan stressed the need yesterday for increased exports even in small quantities of various products at reasonable prices, thereby winning in the competition with industrially advanced states in overseas markets. He pointed out that some enterprises intended to ignore exports of such items which he said should be corrected to expand the base of the export industries.

"They must make efforts with sincerity to export even small amounts of locally manufactured goods as well as small-sized items," he said.

Presiding over this year's first trade promotion conference at the Capitol building, the chief executive referred to the cooperation between big business companies and small and medium enterprises. He said that there were still irregularities in their relations, pointing out that some big enterprises delayed payment of money for goods delivered by small and medium firms. "If this kind of abnormality continues in coming days, there will be no option but to consider taking due steps against the big companies," he said.

Emphasizing the necessity of producing as many lucrative parts as possible for increased exports, the president said that big business firms should support positively the development of small and medium industries by providing them with funds, technical know-how and information.

Calling for the solution of basic issues in achieving export targets successfully, he said, "we must avoid taking easy methods when the country's exports activities are in dull condition." "Instead, we should settle basic problems through the improvement of quality, technical renovation, and curtailment of costs thus strengthening international competitiveness," he went on.

President Chon also demanded energy saving, improvement of dietary life and increased savings. After the meeting, he looked at various sporting goods on display. He also had luncheon with Cabinet members concerned and the representatives of business companies.

NAMSRAY SPEAKS AT MEETING MARKING LENIN BIRTHDAY

OW300242 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1707 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 21 Apr (MONTSAME) -- A gala-meeting of representatives of party, state, public organizations and working people of the capital dedicated to the 112th birthday of V.I. Lenin was held here today. The leaders of the party and government of the country were present at the meeting. T. Namsray, head of the MPRP CC department made a report at the meeting.

In the antagonism of the two social systems, in the struggle of ideas waged in the contemporary world, the advantage of the socialist countries and the triumph of Lenin's teaching are manifested to an ever greater extent, the speaker said. Lenin founding a proletarian party of a new type, guided the greatest social revolution, created the world's first state of workers and peasants. He discovered the regularities of transmission from capitalism to socialism and of building up of a new society. The teaching of Lenin, the speaker pointed out, showed the working class and all oppressed peoples the only correct road to the national and social liberation.

Grandiose successes of communist construction in the Soviet Union, the development of the world socialist system, the upsurge of the international communist and workers' movement, victories of the national liberation movements prove correctness and great vitality of the Lenin's teaching, he said. The world without wars, Lenin pointed out, is the ideal of socialism. Consistently guided by this Leninist principle the Soviet Union, other fraternal socialist countries together with peaceloving forces of the planet decisively struggle for peace and the relaxation of international tension, removal of war threats and disarmament.

In the conditions of the aggravation of the international situation due to reactionary forces of imperialism of paramount importance for the destinies of mankind is the active implementation of the Leninist peaceful policy, upheld by socialist community countries. The Soviet Union, a stanard-bearer of peace going in the vanguard of social progress, by its economic defence might and political prestige exerts great influence on the stabilisation of the international situation. The Soviet peace program for the 80's, advanced by the 26th Congress of the CPSU, is the common platform of struggle for peace and universal security, for averting the nuclear war threat. It is a confirmation of the consistency and continuity of the peaceful external policy of the CPSU and the Soviet state which take origin from the Lenin's decree on peace, the first foreign policy document of the young Soviet republic.

The 18th Congress of the MPRP paying special attention to the problem of maintaining peace and security in Asia by concerted efforts of Asian states put forward a proposal to work out and conclude a convention on mutual non-aggression and non-use of force in relations between states of Asia and the Pacific. This proposal evokes wide response on the part of state figures and peoples of our continent. The MPR persistently follows the course of turning Asia into a continent of peace and security.

The MPR together with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries will further unflinchingly conduct the Leninist policy of peace, detente and international cooperation, the speaker said in conclusion.

SON SANN COMMENTS ON KHMER COALITION 26 APR

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, 26 Apr (AFP) -- Cambodian nationalist leader Son Sann said here today that the proposed "coalition government" of the three anti-Vietnamese resistance groups should be formed "as soon as possible".

The former prime minister and leader of the anti-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) said his faction was "determined to have the coalition government as soon as possible" in order to drive out the Vietnamese occupation forces and bring about a political solution to the Cambodian problem.

He favoured the idea of a tripartite meeting with the Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan and former Cambodian head of state Prince Sihanouk being held in an ASEAN capital to finalise the mechanics of the coalition.

Mr Son Sann was addressing a press conference at the Foreign Ministry here after a one-hour discussion with the Malaysian foreign minister, Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie.

Tan Sri Ghazali, who was also present at the press conference, said Malaysia was willing to host the tripartite meeting if the parties concerned asked for it.

Mr Son Sann arrived here yesterday after talks with the Singapore foreign minister, Suppiah Dhanabalan, on the deadlocked coalition talks, the last round of which was held in Beijing in February.

Mr Son Sann had stayed away from the Beijing meeting which was attended only by Mr Khieu Samphan, the Khmer Rouge leader, and Prince Sihanouk heading the Moulinaka.

Replying to a question Mr Son Sann said he had been unable to go to Beijing to attend the meeting because he received the invitation only five days in advance.

He had been in Paris at the time and one of his close aides, whom he had wanted to include in his delegation, was in the hospital.

The tripartite coalition talks held earlier in Bangkok in October last year ended fruitlessly when Mr Son Sann failed to agree to the four principles proposed by the Khmer Rouge, including equal power sharing and the acceptance of the existing Democratic Kampuchean (Khmer Rouge) institutions.

Replying to a question, Mr Son Sann said he was prepared to adopt "a give and take" attitude when the negotiations were resumed.

Asked about reports that Khieu Samphan had dropped his insistence on the acceptance of the existing Democratic Kampuchean institutions at the Beijing meeting with Prince Sihanouk, Mr Son San said, "I have no official news. I have only read the reports in the press."

The former premier parried questions on when the next round of tripartite talks would be held and whether he would take the initiative in the matter.

ASEAN diplomatic sources here expect the next round of the coalition talks tc be held before the end of May.

The Malaysian foreign minister, asked whether the talks would be held before the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting in Singapore in mid-June replied, "there is no target date. It cannot be related to any particular meeting."

He added that he was an optimist and would be "extremely happy" if the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting turned out to be an occasion to welcome the formation of the coalition government.

On Malaysia's offer to host the conference, Tan Sri Ghazali said "I shall make the offer known to the other parties. It is for them to ask us to provide the venue".

Mr Son Sann, who is accompanied by two of his aides, will attend a dinner hosted for him tonight by Tan Sri Ghazali. He will leave for Bangkok tomorrow.

Heng Samrin Speech

BK300739 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1433 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 29 Apr (SPK) -- Heng Samrin, KPRP Central Committee secretary general, chairman of the Council of State and head of the KPRP delegation, delivered a speech at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane on Wednesday, 28 April.

Secretary General Heng Samrin congratulated the delegates and wished the Third KPRP Congress brilliant successes. He said:

Like the KPRP, the LPRP was born of the Indochinese Communist Party, which was founded and led by respected Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc, the first communist in Indochina.

Over the past decades, the LPRP has applied Marxism-Leninism creatively in conformity with the realities of the country. It has led the Lao people in the strenuous struggle against the French colonialist aggressors, U.S. imperialist neocolonialism and outmoded feudalism. They have annihilated them all and won brilliant victories in liberating themselves and the nation.

The 2 December 1975 victory constitutes a glory in the Lao history, opening a new, brilliant era in the secular history of building and defending the Lao nation -- the era in which the Lao nation lives and is united in independence and freedom and is advancing steadily toward socialism.

Since liberation, under the leadership of the glorious LPRP with Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan as head, the Lao people have accomplished many enormous achievements in all domains of national reconstruction. In particular, they have foiled all maneuvers and acts of destruction and division perpetrated by the Beijing expansionist hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and their reactionary lackeys. They have defended firmly the Lao nation and constantly pushed the Lao revolution forward. All the great successes and profound changes in all domains in Lao society serve as a firm basis for socialist construction in Laos and ensure a brilliant future for the Lao people in their advance to a prosperous and happy life.

Thanks to its correct foreign policy, the LPRP has significantly contributed to the consolidation of the lasting friendship with Vietnam and Kampuchea, to the common victories of the three Indochinese countries, to the maintenance of peace, stability and cooperation in this region, and to the easing of tension in the world in the interst of peace and social progress. The LPRP's prestige has been further enhanced with every passing day in the international arena. It is worthy as a vanguard and persevering force of the socialist system.

The KPRP and the Kampuchean people highly appreciate the great revolutionary gains that the Lao party and people have won over the past decades. We are convinced that in the light of the resolutions of the Third LPRP Congress, the Lao people will achieve new, great successes in their revolutionary cause. Your successes have been a precious source of encouragement for our party and people in the struggle for national liberation as well as in the present struggle to defend and build our country.

The past 3 years have been very short for our people who are making every effort to restore the economy and rebuild the society. But the work that has been done is of historic significance for the nation. After having suffered under a new type of enslaving regime in which "the right to life as a human being was nothing more than a simple right to breathe, and in which there were terror and killings by axes, machetes, common graves and bayonets, we are now living in a society that recognizes progress in all domains. Schools have reopened their doors everywhere. So have the hospitals and child care centers, and markets have resumed their activities. Everywhere in the countryside and even in the remote mountainous regions, people hear laughter and singing -- the signs of the joy of life, the attachment to the new regime, the hatred for the enemy and the gratitude to the comrades in arms and other friends in the world.

We have in the past scored important exploits in the political, economic, cultural and social domains. The elections of the grassroots level authorities and the representatives of the people to the National Assembly, the adoption and promulgation of the democratic constitution and the successes of the Fourth KPRP Congress and the Third Front Congress are evidence of the steady advance of our party and people along the path of peace toward socialism. Our people have faith and confidence in our party, in the strategic alliance of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos and in the socialist community.

Our party and people understand clearly that these successes are inseparable from the firm international support and assistance for our benefit.

Over the past decades, the Lao people and the LPRP have struggled together with the Kampuchean and Vietnamese people in the same trench against common enemies. They have given spiritual and material support to the Kampuchan revolution. In particular, the LPDR is the first country which recognized the PRK after the latter chased away the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, lackeys of the Beijing expansionist hegemonists. We express to the Lao party and people the most sincere and profound gratitude from our entire party, people and heroic army of Vietnam who have made enormous sacrifices for the revolutionary cause of Kampuchea as well as of the three Indochinese countries. We also express our most profound gratitude to the soviet union, other genuine socialist countries, friendly parties and friends all over the world for their support and assistance to the Kampuchean revolution.

The Lao revolution has achieved many successes and is making headway, the Vietnamese revolution has achieved many successes and is making headway, and the Kampuchean revolution has achieved many successes and is making headway, too.

Many factors have contributed to these great successes. One of the decisive factors is the militant solidarity against common enemies, and the alliance and cooperation in all fields between the three Indochinese countries. We wish to point out that at present as well as in the future, the preservation and consolidation of militant solidarity and cooperation in all domains between the three Indochinese countries is the sine que non of and the vital question for the cause of our revolution.

It is for this reason that the resolutions of the Fourth KPRP Congress stressed that the solidarity and cooperation in all domains with Vietnam and Laos constitute the party's strategic path, the objective requirements of history, the decisive factor, the destiny of the Kampuchean people, the pure revolutionary sentiments and the firm political position of each Kampuchean.

The party and people of Kampuchea are always determined to attend to these strategic lines as the apple of their eyes, to heighten vigilance constantly and to frustrate all maneuvers aimed at dividing the three Indochinese countries and sowing discord between Kampuchea, Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union and all other fraternal socialist countries. They are resolved to deploy all their efforts so that the bonds of special militant solidarity between the three Indochinese countries will be further developed with every passing day and will last forever.

THAIS GIVEN AIDE-MEMOIRE ON MEKONG SHOOTING

[Text] At 1700 on 28 April, the Foreign Affairs Ministry of the LPDR invited a representative of the Embassy of the Kingdom of Thailand to a meeting and handed him an aide-memoire on the incident which took place on the Mekong River between Savannakhet and Murdahan on 26 and 27 April 1982.

The text of the aide-memoire read as follows:

The LPDR Foreign Affairs Ministry would like to extend respect to the Embassy of the Kingdom of Thailand in Vientiane and would like to have the honor to inform it of the following developments: At 1930 on 26 April, four Lao policemen stationed in Savannakhet Province were sailing on a boat on the Mekong River in Lao waters in front of Savannakhet provincial capital. Two of them were in the water to test its depth while the other two remained on board the boat 100 meters away. Shortly afterward, an armed Thai Mekong River patrol boat sailed over to the boat and forced the two Lao policemen on board to accompany them. Midway [back to the Thai side], fighting broke out and the two Lao policemen managed to safely swim back to the Lao bank.

However, one AK-rifle was confiscated by the Thai troops on the patrol boat. Subsequently, Thai troops along the river bank in Muddahan fired over 30 rounds of 60-mm mortar shells on the Lao side. A C-123 plane was also sent by the Thai side to drop flares in the sky over Savannakhet provincial town for more than 1 hour while other Thai aircraft flew along the river close to the Lao river bank to harass the Lao side.

At 0915 on 27 April 1982, three Thai aircraft -- a jetplane, a T-28 and an L-19 -- and two Mekong River patrol boats committed provocative acts against Laos for 30 minutes. At 1200 on the same day, the Thai side began to completely cut off the power supply to the Lao side by making the excuse that a tree limb had broken and damaged the powerline. As a matter of act, the power cut-off was international. More serious still, the Thai authorities in Mukdahan unilaterally closed the Mukdahan-Savannakhet border crossing point without informing the local Lao authorities in Savannakhet township.

Earlier, at 1600 on 25 April, a Thai Mekong River patrol boat had arrested two Lao villagers of Ban Tha Sano while they were fishing in the Lao waters of the Mekong River, and took them to the Thai side. Up to now, no news about the whereabouts of the two villagers has been received.

In the face of such undesirable developments, the Lao side deplores the incident very much, and we hope that the Thai side also feels the same way. Therefore, to stop a minor incident from escalating into a major one and to avoid further undesirable incidents taking place between the Lao and Thai sides as desired by enemies, the Lao side sincerely proposes to the Thai side that efforts be made to allow the local-level border committees of Savannakhet and Mukdahan to hold peaceful negotiations in the spirit of brotherhood so as to solve the problem together, such as by sending men and materials taken from one side back to the other side, releasing the power supply to Savannakhet provincial capital as the Thai side is obliged to do in accordance with the spirit of the Lao-Thai joint communiques and several other vital memoranda jointly signed by the Lao and Thai high-level delegations.

The LPDR Foreign Affairs Ministry would like to express our thanks in advance to the Embassy of the Kingdom of Thailand in Vientiane for its good cooperation, and, once again, to extend its high respect to it. Vientiane, 28 April 1982.

After learning of the developments according to the spirit and contents of the aide-memoire, the representative of the Thai Embassy agreed with the proposal of the Lao side and promised to report to the Thai Government to find ways to prevent undesirable incidents that may have an adverse effect on the relations of brotherhood between Thailand and Laos. The meeting proceeded in a good atmosphere and in a frank manner.

FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON FALKLANDS DISPUTE

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 29 -- A spokesman of the Foreign Ministry today issued the following statement on the Malvinas issue:

"In many sessions the U.N. General Assembly has adopted resolutions on de-colonization of the Malvinas Archipelago. Many conferences of non-aligned countries, especially the 5th summit conference in Colombo and the 6th summit conference in Havana, have affirmed Argentina's sovereignty over this archipelago. However, Britain, a permanent member of the Security Council, in spite of Argentina's repeated protests and the demand of equitable and just opinion in the world, has stubbornly prolonged its illegal occupation of the Malvinas.

"After the Republic of Argentina exercised its sovereignty over these islands, Britain sent a big naval force bound for this archipelago, occupied South Georgia Island, arrogantly set up a total exclusion zone that extends a 200-mile radius of the Malvinas Islands while feverishly preparing for new military adventures against Argentina in an attempt to compel this country to give up its sovereignty over the islands. These colonialist acts of Britain which have the support of the United States have caused a dangerous situation threatening peace and security in the region and further aggravating world tension.

"The Foreign Ministry of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam once again declared Vietnam's stand of recognizing Argentina's sovereignty over the Malvinas Archipelago as stated in the resolutions of the non-aligned summit conferences in Colombo and Havana and demands that Britain implement the resolutions of the United Nations on de-colonization of the Malvinas and stop at once all its military schemes and acts against Argentina."

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, APril 29 -- NHAN DAN today warmly welcomes a high-level delegation of the Sandinista National Liberation Front of Nicaragua led by Revolutionary Commander Victor Manuel Tirado Lopez, member of the front's national leadership, which is to arrive here today for a visit to Vietnam.

The paper says: "The success of the Nicaraguan revolution is a success of the spirit of independence, democracy and anti-imperialist solidarity of the nations in America. It is alsoa common success of all progressive forces in the world...This success affirms the leading role and correct line of the Sandinista National Liberation Front. The U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, despite their failure, have not given up their scheme of sabotaging the Nicaraguan revolution, applying pressure and threatening to interfere in the internal affairs of that country...but the heroic Nicaraguan people have defeated and will completely defeat all schemes and actions of the imperialists to defend their independence and sovereignty and build a new life. Today the Republic of Nicaragua is a pride to the liberation movement of the nations in the Caribbean and Latin America".

The paper goes on: "Vietnam and Nicaragua have been bound together by common revolutionary ideals. The Vietnamese people thank their Nicaraguan friends for their noble and warm sentiments toward Vietnam, for their high appreciation of the Vietnamese revolution's contributions, and for their whole-hearted support for the Vietnamese people's national construction and defence against Chinese expansionism and hegemonism in collusion with U.S. imperialism. The Vietnamese people rejoice at the fine development of the Vietnam-Nicaragua solidarity, which found vivid expression in the visit of Chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong and a high-level Vietnamese delegation to Nicaragua in autumn 1979 after the success of the Nicaraguan revolution and in the visit to Vietnam in March 1981 of a high-level delegation of the Sandinista National Liberation, front led by Revolutionary Commander Humberto Ortega".

"We believe that the present visit of Revolutionary Commander Manuel Tirado Lopez and the F.S.L.N. delegation will mark a new development of the militant solidarity, friendship and cooperation between Vietnam and Nicaragua," the paper concludes.

DAO DUY TUNG DISCUSSES THREE ECONOMIC INTERESTS

BK281150 Hanoi TAP CHI CONG SAN in Vietnamese Mar 82, pp 13-22

[Article by Dao Duy Tung: "On the Subject of the Three Economic Interests" -- capitalized passages published in italics; underlined capitalized passages published in boldface]

[Text] In evaluating our past economic achievements and difficulties we have learned several lessons, namely, the lesson of CORRECTLY REALIZING THE STRUCTURE OF INTERESTS IN SOCIALISM, THE PRIORITY OF ECONOMIC INTERESTS AND THE USE OF THESE INTERESTS AS A MOTIVATING FORCE IN SOCIALIST CONSTRUCTION.

In performing economic activities, we usually think that by nature our regime can create many possibilities for developing the economy quickly and effectively and, in fact, these possibilities have become realities in several cases. Yet, why do our economic activities still lack dynamism in some respects, and why have many of our potentials not been satisfactorily exploited? To answer these questions, it is impossible not to mention our knowledge about the role of economic interests in socialist construction.

We all know that "the economic relations of a given society are manifested primarily under the form of INTERESTS." (Footnote: Karl Mark-F. Engels: Selected Works, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi 1970, Vol I, page 749) ALL REVOLUTIONS ARE STAGED AFTER ALL PRIMARILY OUT OF ECONOMIC INTERESTS. (Footnote: Karl Marx-F. Engels: Selected Works, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi 1971, Vol II, page 481) In his report on the draft constitution in 1959, President Ho spoke of the three interests: "IN OUR REGIME, THE INTERESTS OF THE STATE, COLLECTIVES AND INDIVIDUALS ARE BASICALLY UNANIMOUS." (Footnote: Ho Chi Minh: On Socialist Revolution and Socialist Construction, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1976, page 69) In many documents, our party and state have often emphasized the question of combining the use of material incentives with moral education to promote the development of production. Nevertheless, we should realize that it is a real PROCESS to understand profoundly and apply effectively the controversial points on economic interests.

Following liberation, the norhtern part of our country advanced toward socialism. We rapidly restored the economy, developed agriculture and established a network of consumer goods industries. We began to build some heavy industry installations and stepped up the educational and cultural tasks. The face of our country and people changed quickly. The people's material and spiritual lives were definitely improved during the 1955-65 period. When we tried to expand our socialist industrialization, however, many difficulties started to appear along our path of socialist construction. Sluggishness appeared in economic management. Although the campaigns to "improve the management of cooperatives" and "to build three and oppose three" contributed to improving the situation, there still were many outstanding problems. While our party and state were drawing upon experiences to overcome the above deficiencies, the anti-U.S. struggle took place throughout the country.

Entering the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation, our state had to adopt many new measures to mobilize "everyone to work twice as much." Millions of youths were inducted into the army. The regime of administrative subsidization and egalitarian distribution became all the more widespread. Many of the war-support efforts had to be made at all costs. In such a situation, it was not easy to realize and apply well the economic interests as important motivating forces to develop production.

Following the liberation of the south, our party has indicated that the bureaucratic system of subsidization in economic management must be eliminated. "Plans must be used as a main tool, independence in production and business must be further extended to primary installations and profit-and-loss accounting must be carried out adequately. Political and ideological education must go along with material incentives while the sense of discipline and responsibility must be enhanced." (Footnote: Le Duan: Political Report at the Fourth VCP Congress, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1977, page 139) These viewpoints, however, have not been thoroughly understood. Sluggishness in economic activities has not declined. It is in this very situation that such advanced models as the Con Dao fishing company, the Pho Yen ball bearing factory and so on have appeared. By analyzing the creative activities of these installations, we realize clearly, profoundly and specifically that the correct settlement of relations among the economic interests plays a very important role in overcoming sluggishness in the economy. It was under such circumstances that the party Central Committee's sixth plenum upheld the role of harmoniously combining the "three interests", considering it an important principle that should be thoroughly understood in managing the economy and amending economic policies.

Since the party Central Committee's sixth plenum, there have been improvements in economic management. In our economic activities, we have begun emphasizing the economic interests of all organizations and workers with the results of production and business. Sluggishness in economic activities has begun to be overcome. Economic activities tend to be mainly positive. Nevertheless, while implementing the new policies related to the problem of the "three interests", we cannot avoid mistakes and shortcomings which stem from our incorrect and inadequate knowledge of the source of economic interests and the principle of combining the three economic interests harmoniously, and from our failure to pay proper attention to the interests of society in the process of implementing the "three economic interests" by applying these "three economic interests" inconsistently, and so forth. It is therefore necessary and urgent to grasp Marxist-Leninist viewpoints firmly, learn from the experiences of fraternal countries and analyze the real situation in our country in order to understand thoroughly our party's viewpoints on the problem of "three interests."

THE THREE ECONOMIC INTERESTS AND COLLECTIVE MASTERY

Economic interests are an expression of economic relations and of the relations between man and man in production. The person who controls the means of production, who manages the production process and who decides the distribution of products is precisely the one who plays the decisive role in the system of various interests. Under the socialist regime, the ones who control the means of production, who play the role of production managers and who decide the distribution of products are the collective of laborers. They are collective masters in the economic field. They use the means of production to carry our production and to increase the volume of products so as to satisfy their own needs or, in other words, to cater to their interests.

As V.I. Lenin put it: "Once the proletariat has seized state power, its most basic and vital interests require that it increases the quantity of products and develops the productive forces of society on a large scale." (Footnote: V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Progress Publishing House, Moscow, 1978, Vol 44, p 422) Under the socialist system, economic interests are manifested in the forms of the interests of society, the interests are manifested in the forms of the interests of society, the interests of the collective and the interests of the individual laborer. Only by catering to these interests, so as to satisfy the needs of laborers gradually, can the latter's collective mastery become a reality. For this reason, under the socialist system, the "three interests" — which combine to form the interests of laborers — are an objective of collective mastery. The party Central Committee's draft political report to the fifth party congress submitted to the party congresses at various echelons for suggestions said: "...An important objective of collective mastery is to bring into play the strength of the community exercising mastery in conjunction with developing the strength of individual masters, and to use the unity among the three interests -- those of the state, the collective and the individual laborer -- to ensure the interests of the state and of the collective while paying due attention to those of the individual laborer." This concept of collective mastery put forth by the party is the result of an application of the principles of Marxism-Leninism and an analysis of the evolutionary process of the history of human society, the shaping of the world socialist system and the realities of our country's revolution. This concept is guiding our people's socialist construction and is, in turn, being improved and further solidified by the creative activities of the masses. The movement for product contracts with laborers in agriculture is concrete proof of this process. This new form of contract is a satisfactory combination of the "three interests"; as such, it helps raise the collective mastery of the collectivized peasants to a new level.

Under the socialist system, the interests of laborers are not an abstract notion; they are manifested in diversified forms as the common interests of society, those of the collective, and those of the individual laborer. Viewed from a different angle, these interests also include those of each installation, of the localities and of the country as a whole, to say nothing of the interests of various classes and strata of society, and so forth. The objective existence of these interests is decided by the level of development of the productive forces and production relations, by the different conditions of each locality, by the role and effect of each economic establishment, by the standards and capabilities of each laborer, and so forth....

ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF SOCIETY are the interests enjoyed by the laboring people nationwide and by all the collectives that are members of the socialist society. The economic interests of society are based on the laboring people's collective mastery of production materials, labor, land and natural resources. They require that material and technical factors be utilized effectively in accordance with a centralized plan to produce a great deal of material wealth for meeting the ever-increasing demands of the laboring people and the whole society, and to ensure the comprehensive development of each member of the society. The economic interests of society are ensured through the centralized and unified management and administration of the administrative apparatus from the central to local and grassroots levels. Thus, the administration is the sole genuine representative for the interests of all the laboring people. We should not mistake the economic interests of society (also known as the interests of the state) for the interests of the administrative apparatus; and must understand that they are the common interests of all the laboring people for whom the administration acts simply as a representative to look after the common interests of the entire country.

ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF THE COLLECTIVE are the interests enjoyed by people working together in a specific economic organization such as an enterprise, a cooperative and so forth. The economic interests of the collective are the right to collective mastery exercised by the production unit in using production materials, labor and natural resources at its disposal to produce as much material wealth as possible for the common benefit of the society and at the same time, for its own benefit. A state-run enterprise is an economic unit under the ownership of the entire people; and the products it turns out belong to the whole society. If this enterprise successfully develops its creativity and initiative in production and business on the principle of financial independence, it can recover production costs and on top of it, earn some profit. Proceeding from this, not only can it turn over more and more products to the state but it can also increase its own funds, enhance collective welfare and improve the living standard of its own workers. Meanwhile, the collective interests of the cooperatives fall under another category. Agricultural cooperatives are production units of the working class and the collectivized peasantry. The products turned out by the cooperatives are also aimed at satisfying the demands of the entire society but each cooperative has its own right to collective mastery. If a cooperative makes good use of its labor and land, expands its branches and trades and creates abundant material wealth, it can, after discharging its obligation to the state, use the remainder directly for expanding production, distributing it among its members and improving collective welfare. The interests of the collective must be respected and they should not be mistaken for the interests of mass societies or organizations.

ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF INDIVIDUAL LABORERS involve the right of a person to use his talent, intelligence and labor in creative labor for producing wealth to meet the needs of himself and his family and, at the same time, to fulfill his obligation to the entire society. The interests of individual laborers come first of all in the form of wages and bonuses paid in state-run enterprises, the income of cooperative members in collective economic units, and social welfare allowances such as benefits for education, health protection, vacations and so forth. It is necessary to distinguish between the interests of individual laborers under the system of socialist collective economy and private interests. While people engage in individual businesses, their interests are linked with the system of collective ownership. Therefore, we should not set the interests of society and the collective against the interests of individual laborers.

Each of these types of interests has its own characteristics but there exists among them a fundamental uniformity based on the system of public ownership over production materials. These interests are organically interrelated and deeply influence one another. The fundamental interests of the collective and individual laborers can only be guaranteed on the basis of ensuring the interests of society. On the other hand, the interests of society are realized through the effective activities of collectives of laborers and individual laborers. Of these three types of interests, THE INTERESTS OF SOCIETY PLAY A LEADING ROLE. Negating or neglecting the interests of society will naturally give rise to thoughts and actions that are corrosive to the economic foundation of socialism. Nevertheless, to say the interests of society play a leading role does not mean to consider lightly the interests of the collectives and individual laborers. Neglecting any one of the three interests will only result in damage to the other tow; and basically speaking, even the interest that we "respect" will also be subjected to harm. The problem is to combine harmoniously the three interests.

HARMONIOUSLY COMBINING THE THREE ECONOMIC INTERESTS IS A DRIVING FORCE FOR SOCIOECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The process of harmoniously combining the three economic interests is, in reality, a process of solving contradictions. The emergence of contradictions calls for a settlement and once they have been resolved, an agreement is reached. New contradictions will arise, however, calling again for a settlement. Thus, the emergence of contradictions is an objective matter whereas early detection and prompt settlement of contradictions to create a state of harmony among the three economic interests involve man's own efforts in economic leadership.

Far from being afraid of contradictions, we must study, discover and respect the objective character of the emergence of contradictions; and we must devise measures to deal with them promptly and curb the negative aspects. In harmoniously combining the three economic interests, it is a difficult art to discover contradictions promptly, to take the initiative in forging an agreement right in the planning stage and to devise correct measures for achieving economic targets in both the short and long terms.

On the dialectical relations characteristic of the harmonious combination of the three economic interests, Comrade Le Duan pointed out: "Socialism [as published] is a society of free laboring people, in which individual interests and social interests are in agreement and so are the interests of each worker and his family and the interests of the production collective and the state. Only with a rich society will each person enjoy a plentiful life. That which is beneficial to the society is also beneficial to oneself... As the society cares for the life of each person, every individual must work his best for the society. To work for the society is to work for oneself." (Footnote: Le Duan: SOCIALIST REVOLUTION IN VIETNAM, Su That publishing house, Hanoi, 1976, Vol 2, pp 529-530)

The three economic interests are the integral parts of a unity, but each is relatively independent from the others. Because of this, each of the interests also carries in itself a characteristic moving force. These characteristic forces, however, are always integrated in a harmonious combination of the three economic interests to form an aggregate moving force which stimulates production.

Speaking of the common interests of society is speaking of the people's collective mastery thoughout the country. This mastery can generate an enormous moving force. If, in war, patriotism was a moving force which prompted the people to make sacrifices and fight, then currently the desire to see the country becoming prosperous and strong is a moving force which stimulates everyone to engage enthusiastically in creative labor. During the wars of resistance, reports on the annihilation of an enemy post or the downing of an enemy plane always filled the people throughout the country with enthusiasm, pride and a new will to fight. This was patriotism. The people then realized that their interests and those of their families were closely linked with those of the fatherland. In the current building of socialism, the interests of society will become a very important moving force when each laborer and each collective clearly understand that both their imeediate and long-term interests depend on those of all society. As a matter of fact, in our economic building, the pieces of good news about the progress in the construction of the Da River hydroelectric power plant, about the high productivity of a coal mine in Quang Ninh, about the development of prospecting activities and the preparations for oil and gas exploitation in the south, about a bumper crop in the Mekong Delta, and so forth, have filled everyone with as much enthusiasm and pride as the military exploits did during the wars of resistance. The more conscious a community exercising collective mastery is of the interests of society, the stronger the moving force which stimulates its working spirit will become.

Correctly understanding the interests of the collective and considering this as an important moving force stimulating enterprises and cooperatives to produce as best they can is a matter of very important significance. In the agricultural field, for a long period of time, there have been few frontrank cooperatives, while average and weak cooperatives have comprised the majority. We have launched several campaigns to improve the management of cooperatives. Although these efforts have yielded some results, they have not yet changed the situation radically. One of the important reasons for this state of affairs is that, aside from failing to pay attention to the interests of the individual peasant who is a cooperative member, we have not yet attached importance to the interests of the collective. Moreover, the cooperative has not yet really become empowered to exercise its mastery in planning. For a long period of time, many outmoded pricing and collection-purchase policies have not been revised. Recently, along with applying product contracts with laborers, our state has implemented several new policies, and this has encouraged many cooperatives to work more satisfactorily. In the state enterprises, it is obvious that wherever the independence of enterprises has been respected, wherever the "three interests" have been correctly associated and wherever the interests of the enterprises themselves have been given due attention, the enterprises concerned have been encouraged to carry out their production and business activities more satisfactorily.

In studying the individual motivating force of laborers, we must pay attention first of all to the relationship between the interests of the individual and those of the collective. The creation of common interests for society by collectivized labor is the nature and superiority of socialism. The strength of collectivized labor, however, it derived from the personal efforts of each laborer in the collective. Looking back on the development of mankind's society, we see that under the system of slavery, man was considered merely as an animal and his talents were not developed at all. Then came the feudal system wherein private ownership was introduced and the laborers could bring into play some of their talents to work on lands owned by themselves; but in the main, they were still hampered by fuedal bondage. It was not until capitalism came into being that laborers were freed from feudal control and labor was liberated in the sense that the laborers could freely sell their own labor to the capitalists. Due to the inherent contradictions of capitalism, however, the talents of the laborers could only flourish to a limited extent. It is only when the socialist system was introduced that the laborers were truly liberated and the talents of every individual had the conditions for development. Nevertheless, to turn this possibility into reality we must devise suitable measures for developing to a high degree the strength of the collective as well as the strength of each individual laborer.

In reality, for some time in the past we failed to realize fully the role played by the interests of individual laborers. The contracting out of product quotas to laborers has produced good effects because it promotes the interests of the individual laborers, prompting them to pay attention to the results of labor and the end-products for their own benefit, and consequently, to identify themselves with the collective. To pay appropriate attention to the interests of the individual laborers is meant neither to encourage individualism nor to give rise to thinking of private ownership, but actually to link the interests of the individual laborers with those of the collective and to give the laborers material incentives to work with enthusiasm.

V.I. Lenin taught: "In a country with a small-scale agriculture, comrades, you must first of all lay small but firm bridges across state capitalism to reach socialism not by relying directly on fervor but with the zeal triggered by the great revolution by stimulating personal enthusiasm and the essential interests of each individual and by applying the principles of profit-and-loss accounting." (Footnote: V.I. Lenin: "In Commemoration of the Fourth Anniversary of the October Revolution," COMPLETE WORKS, Su That publishing house, Hanoi, 1970, Vol. 33, pp 73-74)

The application of the principle of harmoniously combining the "three interests" in the past has actually contributed to promoting production, thus enabling many economic establishments to operate more vigorously and effectively and helping break the state of economic stagnation. This is the dominant aspect. Beside this, there have been some deviations arising from the tendency to pay attention only to the interests of the collective and the individual laborers while neglecting the interests of society and the state. It is necessary to rectify and prevent such deviations promptly and to check their development which may erode the socialist economy. We must, however, analyze these deviations realistically, devise correct measures to solve the problems and carry them out within the prescribed limits. Since the measures for combining the "three interests," for enhancing the right of enterprises to independence, and for stressing the personal interests of laborers have only been carried out in some fields, unless we realistically analyze the situation from a correct viewpoint, we might overact in suppressing these deviations and negate the interests of the collective and the individual laborers; and this would mean a reversion to the outmoded methods for doing business.

To consider economic interests as a very important motivating force to encourage the laborers to work hard is not meant to treat economic interests as the one and only motivating force. Beside them, other factors such as psychology, customs, tradition, the sense of responsibility, the sense of organization and discipline, and so forth also have no small an impact on the work attitude. Therefore, in economic leadership, we must pay great attention to economic measures and combine them with administrative and ideological education measures.

HARMONIOUSLY COMBINE "THE THREE INTERESTS" IN THE FIRST STAGE OF THE TRANSITION PERIOD, AND ESTABLISH A SUITABLE SYSTEM

Economic interests possess not only a class character but also a historical character. While studying and resolving the question of "the three interests" under the socialist system, we must place it in a specific time frame of the transition period from capitalism to socialism. The settlement of the problem involving the relationship among "the three interests" in the transition period to socialism is definitely not similar to that in the period of developed socialism. And even in the transition period to socialism, there are different stages. This is not to mention the fact that the specific historical conditions of a country also influence in no small measure specific solutions to the question of "the three interests."

At present our country is in the first stage of the transition period. The economy still comprises many sectors. Alongside the state-rune and collectivized economic sectors, there also exist the state capitalist economic sector, the individual economic sector of individual peasants, handicraftsmen and small merchants, and the private capitalist economic sector. This is a general description but the situation varies in each region and it becomes even more complicated in each sector. In the rural areas of the north, peasants have embarked on the path of collective work while in the Mekong Delta, only a small percentage of the peasants' households there have joined production collectives and cooperatives.

There are different strata of individual peasants. In the cities, there exist alongside private industrialists, handicraftsmen and artisans a fairly large number of people engaged in trade and services. Many of them are earning an income that far surpasses that of workers and civil servants.

This economic situation adds more complexities to our efforts to resolve the problems involving interests. Here the problem is not only to resolve the relationship among "the three interests" within the socialist economic sector but also to deal with other matters as well -- such as the relationship between "the three interests" in the socialist economic sector and the interests of the nonsocialist sectors, the relationship between the interests of society and the interests of individual laborers, and the relationship among the interests of the state, the workers and the capitalists in joint public-private enterprises. In the present situation, to ensure the interests of society, the collective and the individual laborers, we must, along with resolving the internal relationship among these "three interests," also resolve the relationship between these "three interests" and the interests of the other economic sectors; and we must regulate the excessive income of those people engaging in trade operations, effectively curb speculative and smuggling activities, resolutely punish embezzlers of socialist property, and so forth.

At present our people are building socialism while having to stand ready for combat to defend the fatherland. Our party has set forth strategic targets for the 1980's: gradually stabilize and improve the people's life and advance toward mainly meeting the people's material and cultural demands; continue to build the material-technical bases of socialism; complete the socialist transformation of the south and perfect the production relations in the provinces of the north; and meet the demands for defending the country, consolidating national defense and maintaining security.

The harmonious combination of the "three interests" cannot be separated from these strategic objectives. These objectives are closely interelated and in both the short and long terms, it is not allowed to concentrate on a certain objective while slighting the others. At a time when our country still remains economically poor, the difficult problem is to achieve all of these objectives at the same time while ensuring harmony among the three economic interests.

Because of the need to achieve these strategic objectives, we are faced with many complicated problems in resolving the question of economic interests in our country: the relationship between the economy and national defense; the relationship between immediate and long-term interests; and so forth. To stress the complexity of the problem is not meant to back down but to find the most satisfactory solutions to the correct combination of the "three interests." The more satisfactory this combination, the easier it will be for us to achieve these objectives.

While resolving the question of harmoniously combining the "three interests," we must also pay attention to the fact that FOR A LONG PERIOD OF TIME IN THE PAST, WE ENFORCED A BUREAUCRATIC MANAGEMENT SYSTEM BASED ON SUBSIDIZATION. This system has become deeply rooted in the entire economic life and is greatly impeding our efforts to develop the national economy. Unless we eliminate the bureaucratic management system based on subsidization, we will in no way be able to ensure the "three interests" harmoniously. Therefore, the harmonious combination of the "three interests" cannot be separated from A RADICAL CHANGE OF THE BUREAUCRATIC SYSTEM OF SUBSIDIZATION THROUGH THE APPLICATION OF SOCIALIST MANAGEMENT AND BUSINESS METHODS WHICH USE PLANNING AS THE CENTRAL FOCUS AND LINK PLANNING WITH PROFIT-AND-LOSS ACCOUNTING.

Plans reflect in an all-round manner the various interests, targets and oreintations for the development of the national economy. Therefore, the three economic interests are manifested first of all in the contents of the plans and in the authority for formulating plans. The economic interests of the society as a whole, of the collectives, of the localities and of individual laborers are spelled out primarily in economic development plans for the entire country and for each locality, enterprise and cooperative, and in the plan of each family. In formulating the state plan and plans for localities, enterprises and cooperatives, whether the level of socialist collective mastery is high or low depends on the degree of harmony achieved in combining the three economic interests. Only when they see that their own benefits are reflected in the state plan as well as in the plans of localities, enterprises and cooperatives will the laborers strive to carry out these plans satisfactorily.

Our shortcomings in planning work consist of the failure to carry out planning activities at all levels, to formulate plans based on the conditions at the grassroots level, to link planning with profit-and-loss accounting, to encourage and force every establishment, locality and sector to do business in a profitable manner for the purpose of expanded reproduction, and to use material interests as an incentive to make the individual laborers engage in production enthusiastically. In other words, we have failed to combine the "three interests" harmoniously, thus being unable to create a strong motivating force to encourage the establishments, localities and individual laborers to develop their initiative and creativity in implementing plans and producing ample wealth for society. For this very reason, the 11th Plenum of the party Central Committee not only emphasized the need to renew planning work actively but also set a number of specific guidelines for the formulation of plans.

A very important factor related to the harmonious combination of the "three interests" consists of the policies designed for the circulation and distribution front such as the policies on prices, wages, collection and purchase, taxation and income, and the policies on distribution and compensation in cooperatives and so forth. Every individual and collective as well as the entire society is very sensitive toward these policies. A change in prices, wages or in the methods for compensation and distribution in cooperatives would quickly draw reactions from millions of people and immediately influence the productivity, life and labor attitude of everyone. In past years, many of our policies did not take into proper account the economic interests of the localities, establishments and individual laborers; and their negative impact on production could be clearly felt.

In 1981 we scored comprehensive successes on the agricultural front. These successes stemmed from many causes with the chief one being that our party and state had promulgated various new policies on stabilizing grain obligation, on giving out contracts based on end-products to laborers, and on regulating prices for the purchase of agricultural products. On the basis of combining the various interests, these correct policies had the effect of encouraging the localities and establishments to carry out their business with better planning and enhancing the work enthusiasm of peasants and workers. This is a very vivid and practical lesson in the combination of the "three interests."

The mechanism for ensuring the "three interests" encompasses many aspects but most important to us is the mechanism that regulates the economy and at the same time, supervises the harmonious combination of the "three interests." The problem is how this mechanism can effectively supervise the combination of the "three interests."

Under the capitalist system, when it is found that the price of a certain item of merchandise is no longer appropriate or a certain banking procedure is inconvenient, the capitalists will try by every means to change it immediately. Our system is a socialist system; its superiority creates all the conditions for bringing into play the strength of the whole community as well as that of each individual and for developing the dynamic character of the managerial apparatus. Why have we been slow, however, in detecting policies that are no longer appropriate? Also, why have we failed to revise them once they are known to be inappropriate, even for years on end in some cases? These very problems require that we devise measures to enable the managerial organs to operate dynamically. For a certain managerial organ, what will it earn as a reward when it develops new innovations in economic management or suggests measures for rectifying policies on prices and wages that are found to be inappropriate? Also, what form of penalty will it be subjected to if it fails to do so? Unless specific responsibilities are defined spiritually and materially, it will be very difficult to make the apparatus operate dynamically. In view of this, the problem is to improve the performance of the mechanism that supervises efforts to ensure the "three interests." This very problem requires that we carefully study the party's methods for leadership, the operation of state organs and the role of mass organizations to participate in economic management.

GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCES SANCTIONS AGAINST ARGENTINA

[Text] Tokyo, May 1, Kyodo -- Japan will start closely watching its imports of Argentine goods beginning Tuesday to avoid undercutting economic sanctions imposed against the Latin American country by the European Community (EC), the Foreign Ministry announced Saturday. The Foreign Ministry said Japan will also suspend the granting of official credits to Argentina. The actions are being taken in response to official requests from Britain, the ministry said.

It said the measures are aimed at persuading Argentina to withdraw its troops from the Falkland Islands. The Argentine Government has already been notified of the decision, they added. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was informed of Japan's readiness to take sanctions in a letter from Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki on April 26, the ministry said. The actual decision to impose sanctions was taken after the apparent failure of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig's efforts to mediate the crisis between Britain and Argentina, the ministry said.

The carefully-worded announcement said Japanese private businesses are being cautioned against taking advantage of the EC sanctions against Argentina. According to sources at the ministry, Japanese business firms are being asked specifically not to import beef and other Argentine goods covered by the EC measures. The ministry said "it is inconceivable" that Argentina will ask Japan for new official creditsunder the present circumstances. The sources termed the statement an indirect way of saying Japan would refuse any such request. They said the sanctions will remain in force for about two months while the ministry studies further developments in the crisis.

ROK AID TALKS FAIL; SAKURAUCHI TRIP 'IMPOSSIBLE'

[Text] Seoul, May 1, KYODO -- Japan and South Korea failed to narrow the gap in negotiations here Friday night over the South Korean request for dollar 6 billion aid for the Korean 1982-86 social and economic development program. The failure has made it impossible for Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi to visit Seoul early this month to settle the aid issue.

Visiting Japanese Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya had a second-round talk with South Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong on the problem for about one hour Friday night, but failed to find a compromise. The meeting, held at the request by the Japanese side, was joined by Japanese Ambassador Toshikazu Maeda. Though they could not find a compromise, both sides agreed to continue the negotiations on the aid issue.

After the meeting, Yanagiya told newsmen that the Korean side showed no compromise to accept the Japanese offer of some dollar 4 billion, including aid in Export-Import Bank loans and aid in private bank loans. The Korean side, however, showed understanding of the Japanese Government's efforts and sincerity in seeking accord on the aid issue, Yanagiya said.

The Korean side demanded that governmental yen loans in the aid be further expanded and that private bank loans be excluded from the Japanese aid, according to Yanagiya. The Japanese offer of dollar 4 billion, conveyed by Yanagiya to the Koreans, reportedly included about dollar 1.5 billion in governmental yen loans. The Korean side also demanded that interest rates for the Japanese loans be reduced to 4 percent per annum in governmental loans for cooperation in foreign countries' development.

Though the talks ended in failure, both sides agreed on continued negotiations through diplomatic channels. But when the talks will be resumed still remains to be seen. Yanagiya, though admitting his failure in the Seoul talks, said this would not deteriorate Tokyo-Seoul relations.

[Excerpts] Tokyo, May 1, KYODO -- Japan and South Korea need a considerably-long "cooling-off" period before they will be able to get down to new talks on the loan issue which bogged down in Seoul Friday, Japanese sources said Saturday. The sources said the negotiations, started last summer and expected to be successfully concluded early this month, might not be resumed until after this summer.

A Japanese negotiator this week went to Seoul but failed to close the gap between the two nations, making it impossible for Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi to visit there in May to put finishing touches on the issue. The negotiator, Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya, returned home later Saturday.

The Japanese sources said the government, after being briefed by him on the latest Seoul talks, will study how to deal with the new situation. The sources said even if the talks are resumed, Japan has no intention of making any compromise to Seoul. Japanese officials said the request is too big and hard to respond to at this time. Sources close to the Foreign Ministry here said: "Everything now depends upon South Korea for solution of the issue."

LDP PANEL TO PROPOSE DEFENSE SPENDING INCREASE

[Text] Tokyo, May 2, KYODO -- A ruling party panel will soon propose increasing Japan's annual defense spending above 1 percent of its gross national product (GNP), political sources said Sunday.

The Liberal-Democratic Party's Security Affairs Research Council will also propose revising the nation's basic defense plan into one suited to a maritime power, the sources said. The committee is now working on a proposal concerning Japan's overall defense policy, scheduled to be presented to the government in mid-May. The proposal will stress the inevitability of Japan's defense budget exceeding the 1 percent ceiling in coming years, the sources said. The committee is also expected to advise the government to review the national defense program outline, approved by the Cabinet in 1976, to meet defense strategies required for the ocean-surrounded nation, the sources said.

With inevitable increases in defense expenditures such as funds for pay hikes and procurement of front-line equipment, estimated to total some yen 210 billion (dollar 894 million), defense spending will come close to the 1 percent ceiling in fiscal 1983 beginning next April. The government earmarked yen 2,586.1 billion (dollar 11 billion) for defense during fiscal 1982 beginning in April, which accounted for 0.93 percent of Japan's projected GNP. This was a 7.754 percent increase from the previous fiscal year. But with the necessary funds automatically added, the fiscal 1983 budget is estimated to increase almost 8 percent from that of the current fiscal year, thus coming closer to the 1 percent ceiling.

Furthermore, the committee projects that the defense budget will inevitably exceed the ceiling between 1983 and 1987 when a mid-term arms procurement program estimate, updated in the current fiscal year, is realized. The program, in part, calls for procurement of front-line equipment totaling some yen 5 trillion (dollar 213 billion) during the five year period.

A committee official was quoted as saying that elementary arithmetic will show the defense budget will then exceed 1 percent of GNP. But since revision of the government's policy is a grave matter, the committee is expected to advise the government to maintain the present defense policy for fiscal 1983. For the years after fiscal 1983, however, the committee will stress the inevitability of changing the policy, the sources said.

Regarding the 1976 defense outline, the committee is expected to propose maintaining the principle of building up the basic defense capability. But proposals will be made in such areas as protection of sealanes, stockpiling oil and ammunition, building of shelters and defense on a private level, the sources added.

SUZUKI TO PROPOSE PACIFIC ECONOMIC COMMUNITY

[Text] Tokyo, May 1, KYODO -- Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will propose formation of what would eventually become a "Pacific Economic Community" as a means of revitalizing the world economy, government sources said Saturday.

The sources said Suzuki will put forth the proposal at a Versailles economic summit of seven non-communist industrializing nations in June. French President Francois Mitterrand showed keen interest in the proposal when Suzuki explained it to him during their talks in Tokyo in mid-April, they said.

The proposal is aimed at creating a new order among the Pacific basin countries, including the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the members of the five-nation Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). Under Suzuki's scheme, these nations are to cooperate in joint energy development projects as well as extending economic and technical assistance to developing nations, the sources said.

After adjusting views among the Versailles summit participants, Suzuki will announce the proposal in Honolulu where he will stop on his way home after visits to France, the United States and Latin America, they said. The sources said the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand have implicitly supported the Suzuki proposal. But Suzuki also wants support from the ASEAN nations as well as from China, South Korea, Latin American nations and Pacific islands nations. After France, Suzuki will visit New York to attend the second U.N. General Assembly meeting on disarmament, and then go on to Brazil and Chile.

The sources said Suzuki believes the Pacific basin area has potential for growth larger than in any other part of the world. The industrialized nations in the region, including Japan and the United States, could cooperate in the regional development by giving their high technologies and massive fund sources, they said. The sources said the creation of a "Pacific Economic Community" could also be instrumental in bridging the economic gap between the haves and the have-nots.

SOUTH'S 'ARMED PROVOCATIONS' IN DMZ DENOUNCED

[Text] The South Korean puppet army has fired a large-caliber machine-gun at our outposts in the Demilitarized Zone on the east frontline, thus committing a grave armed provocation. After daily committing military provocations against our side in the area along the military demarcation line, the South Korean puppet army committed an armed provocation of firing more than 10 rounds of a large-caliber machinegun from a place near a spot 38 degrees 17 minutes 47 seconds north latitude and 128 degrees 5 minutes 10 seconds east longitude on the east frontline at our outposts opposite this place on two occasions, at 1830 and 2004 on 30 April. Prior to this, at around 1055 the same day, the South Korean puppet army committed a criminal act of introducing an air defense gun onto Mt Paekhak, southeast of Panmunjom in the DMZ.

The senior member of our side of the Military Armistice Commission lodged a stern protest against such criminal acts committed by the South Korean puppet army and strongly urged the enemy side to take responsible action to prevent the recurrence of such incidents.

At a time when the U.S. imperialists have more thoroughly completed preparations for a new war through the war exercise called "Team Spirit 1982" and when the military bosses of the U.S. imperialists have crawled into South Korea one after another, have held war conferences with South Korean bellicose elements and visited frontline areas, the enemy has continuously committed such armed provocations in the area along the military demarcation line. This is very unusual. The enemy should correctly view reality and should not run amok.

NODONG SINMUN DENIES NORTH'S MILITARY SUPERIORITY

[NODONG SINMUN 1 May commentary: "Aggressor's Hackneyed Gibberish"]

[Text] The U.S. imperialists again recently raved that our military strength is superior to South Korea's and kicked up a row slandering us.

According to a report, U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Shoesmith said in a Senate subcommittee session that North Korea's military strength was constantly increased last year and that we have decisive superiority over South Korea in numbers of combat divisions, tanks, artillery and armored cars and that we have a two-to-one superiority in fighter aircraft.

The gibberish of the U.S. authorities that our military strength has been constantly increased and is superior to South Korea's is a cunning and shameless trick to conceal their criminal acts aggravating tension in Korea by reversing black and white. Even if the U.S. imperialists adhere to such a trick, the stern reality between the North and South on the Korean Peninsula cannot be concealed. As is known to the world, all our policies are of an independent and peace-loving nature. We are carrying out on a large-scale peaceful construction in the northern half of the republic for the nation's prosperity and development. We are also striving to achieve the nation's reunification peacefully. Proceeding from this position, we reduced defense expenditures. We are constantly calling for reduced tension on the Korean Peninsula and peace and mobilizing all forces in socialist construction.

The portion of our defense spending in this year's overall state budget expenditure is only 14.5 percent, a reduction from last year. We are directing enormous efforts, funds and material to peaceful construction, even though our population is less than South Korea's. It is clear that we cannot continuously increase military strength, exceeding the limit of defense, and that we cannot maintain a superior military strength over South Korea.

It is the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets who are constantly increasing military strength on the Korean Peninsula and are frantically accelerating war perparations. Today, there are more than 700,000 puppet troops equipped with U.S. weapons, together with some 40,000 U.S. imperialist aggressors who take pride in being elite troops; 3,700,000 Homeland Reserve Forces; 4,400,000 in the Civil Defense Corps; and 1,820,000 in the Student Defense Corps in South Korea.

In addition, some 130,000 U.S. troops including the U.S. 7th Fleet, stationed in Japan and Okinawa, are constantly being deployed to South Korea. A mobile strike force of over 100,000 troops is fully prepared for mobilization to Korea at any time.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors stationed in and around South Korea have modern military equipment and technology and numerous lethal weapons including nuclear weapons, aircraft, tanks, rockets, large-caliber guns and warships. F-16 fighter-bombers, called the most modern type by the bellicose generals of the U.S. imperialists, A-10 close support aircraft, AWACS and even Lance missiles are in the possession of the U.S. imperialist aggressors in South Korea. In addition, 155-mm automatic howitzers and portable missiles are being supplied to the U.S. troops in South Korea. The U.S. imperialists recently have been scheming to deploy neutron bombs and tactical nuclear missiles in South Korea. They are raving about providing the 7th Fleet cruise missiles.

As facts show, there is no place in the world where such enormous military forces and war equipment are concentrated than in and around South Korea. South Korea is a huge military camp where massive aggressive forces are being concentrated. It is a showcase for all modern lethal weapons and war equipment of the U.S. imperialists.

As for troop reinforcements and military superiority on the Korean Peninsula, we should point out to the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets that it is a ridiculous scheme for the U.S. imperialists to rave about our troop reinforcement, military superiority and so forth, like a thief crying "Stop thief!" Concealed in such talk is an impure political aim we should not overlook. They are trying to appease anti-U.S. senitment which has been growing in recent days in South Korea and other places of the world and to divert denunciation by public opinion at home and abroad by making absurd and groundless remarks. At the same time, they are trying to legalize the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggressor forces, their troop reinforcement and war preparation maneuvers by continuously putting forth the outdated theory of a southward invasion.

Shoesmith's remarks on increasing military support for the puppets to rectify the dangerous military imbalance which South Korea faces and on the continued presence of U.S. troops in South Korea are based on such vicious aims. He also said that peace and stability in northeast Asia are a necessity for the stability and prosperity of the United States. This shows the U.S. imperialists' dark intention to make South Korea a permanent colony and military base under the signboard of peace and stability.

The U.S. imperialists not only decided to offer more military assistance to the puppets in the current fiscal year than in the past but also instigated the puppets to drastically increase military spending. This year's military spending by the puppet government has increased 21.3 percent from last year, and the 34.4 percent outlay for defense is the biggest expenditure in the budget. The U.S. imperialists are constantly increasing the military hardward of the U.S. troops and the puppet army by dragging in modern weapons. They are intensifying aerial espionage activities against the northern half of the republic and frequently staging large-scale military exercises, such as "Team Spirit 1982."

Such military exercises, as shown by their nature and contents, are a trial war and preparatory war for a surprise attack by the U.S. imperialists and the puppets on the northern half of the republic at the desired time. Because of the criminal manuevers of the U.S. imperialists, a grave situation in which a war could break out at any moment is being created in our country.

All facts show that troop reinforcements on the Korean Peninsula are being carried out in the South and that the threat of aggression comes from the South. The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders aggravating tension on the Korean Peninsula by drastically increasing military strength on the pretext of a military imbalance. They are threatening peace and leading the situation to the brink of war. They are vicious aggressors who are invariably pursuing an ambition against Korea.

No matter how madly the U.S. imperialists may rave about someone's troop reinforcement and military superiority, they can neither conceal their nature as aggressors nor their criminal schemes to provoke a new murderous war in Korea. The U.S. imperialists should stop kicking up a row which no one believes and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along their lethal weapons including nuclear weapons and war equipment. They should take their dirty hands of interference off Korea.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES 'SUPPRESSION' IN SOUTH

[Text] Pyongyang, May 3 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today denounces the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique's suppression of students and religionists who have risen up in the patriotic struggle against U.S. imperialism as a heinous treachery to the nation which can be committed only by dirty pro-U.S. flunkeyist-traitors. A signed commentary of the paper headlined "Heinous Criminal Act of Pro-U.S. Flunkeyist-Traitors" says:

These days the anti-U.S. patriotic struggle of South Korean students and people is gaining momentum as can be seen in the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" and scattering of anti-U.S. leaflets. Frightened at this, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique is viciously intensifying its suppression of students and people. Students and patriotic people who love the country and are concerned about the destiny of the nation have turned out to a fierce struggle under the anti-U.S. slogan, not fearing sacrifice, and conscientious religionists supported them. This is an entirely just action they have taken, convinced through their life in the past 37 years that they cannot defend the dignity and honour of the nation as long as the U.S. imperialists are left to stay on in the country.

U.S. imperialism is the root cause of all the misfortunes and hardships of the South Korean people, the strangler of democracy and the basic obstacle to the reunification of the country. The U.S. imperialists' aggressive and interventionist manoeuvres against South Korea have become all the more unscrupulous since the Chon Tu-hwan military hooligans seized power.

The anti-U.S. patriotic struggle of people and students taking place in succession in Pusan, Chunchon, Seoul and other parts of South Korea is an eruption of their pent-up resentment against the barbarous colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and a deserving resistance against the colonial oppressors. Nevertheless, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, a band of faithful stooges of U.S. imperialism, is currying favour with its master, talking about "regret" and the like, while ruthlessly suppressing students and religionists who have risen in the just patriotic struggle.

With no machinations can the puppets put down the anti-U.S. patriotic struggle of the South Korean people. Their suppression will only result in adding fuel to the rising flames. If the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique throws itself deeper into the arms of the U.S. imperialists to maintain its power and seeks treachery and split, this will only precipitate its own destruction. If it does not want to follow in the footsteps of its predecessors who met a miserable end, it must discontinue even now its pro-U.S. flunkeyist treacherous acts, end the suppression of the people, set free at once the illegally arrested and detained students and people and step down from "power."

VRPR HITS INDICTMENT OF PRIEST, PUSAN SUSPECTS

[Text] In connection with the arson incident at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, on 29 April the Chon Tu-hwan ring perpetrated the atrocity of indicting 15 persons, including Mun Pu-sik, Kim Hyon-chang and Priest Choe Ki-sik for violation of the national security law and the law on assembly and demonstration. This is part of the schemes to suppress and obliterate the ever-increasing anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle among our people.

The act of arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan was an expression of our people's pent-up fury and indignation against the United States. The protection by religious figures of those patriots involved in the arson incident at the American Cultural Center in Pusan and the Kwangju popular uprising was a just act expressing support for their anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle and indignation against the rascals who perpetrated the massacre. Therefore, such a sacred act cannot be a target of suppression. Nevertheless, the Chon Tu-hwan ring arrested these patriots, after offering a monetary reward for information leading to their arrest, while clamoring that their acts may harm South Korea-U.S. relations. This shows that the Chon Tu-hwan ring is a bunch of flunkeyists, traitors and murders.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring should draw a lesson from the ever-growing anti-U.S. sentiment and struggle among our people and immediately release those persons involved in the arson incident at the American Cultural Center. If the Chon Tu-hwan ring punishes them, our people will not idly stand by.

NODONG SINMUN Marks May Day

NODONG SINMUN 1 May editorial: "Let Us Further Strengthen Militant Solidarity With World Working Class, Upholding the Banner of Independence"]

[Text] Today marks May Day -- a military festivity demonstrating the united might of the world's working class. Our people greet May Day amid a particularly significant atmosphere. Our country is seething with a rewarding struggle to effect new upsurges in revolution and construction, upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's report at the Sixth KWP Congress and his recent policy speech at the joint meeting of the party Central Committee and the Supreme People's Assembly.

In a surging political atmosphere, our people have never been more proud of implementing the revolution under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Various heads of states, innumerable distinguished personages engaging in political, social and mass media circles and art troupes from foreign countries visited our country to celebrate the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's 70th birthday -- revolutionary holiday of the working class. They extended to us their firm solidarity and friendship and vigorously demonstrated the united might of the international working class and revolutionary people adhering to the chuche idea. This clearly shows that people unswervinglyadmire and absolutely trust the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the great leader of the working class -- who enjoys great international authority and brings people freedom and liberation.

The grand political festivity, which was celebrated as an unprecedentedly big international holiday, makes our people satisfied with their efforts to strengthen militant solidarity with the international working class, upholding the banner of independence, and take pride in implementing the revolution in the chuche fatherland. This year's May Day is of greater significance because we greet it under the majestic situation in which international solidarity with our revolution has been strengthened and the revolutionary unity based upon the chuche idea has become the trend of times. On the significant holiday of May, we extend fervent greetings and militant solidarity with ardent desire for friendship and unity to the working class and revolutionary people of the world.

May Day celebrated every year by the working class and people of every country is an important occasion in strengthening international unity and solidarity in the struggle against capitalistic oppression and exploitation, different forms of domination and enslavement and for the independence of the working masses. The great leader comrade kim Il-song taught: The class interest of the working class has internationalism as its origin. The international solidarity of the working class becomes a guarantee for the victory of the communist cause.

The might of the international working class is that of unity based on a common desire and goal. Only when the international working class and people unite can they overcome any difficulty. The working class' struggle to secure independence is linked to international solidarity. Only when the peoples of all countries struggle together for the victory of the world's revolution can they smash imperialists' maneuvers to divide them, thus successfully accelerating revolution and construction. For this reason, the international working class has struggled, regarding unity as the most precious weapon, and pioneered the road of revolution and construction, upholding the slogan of friendship and unity. The road of struggle to realize the international unity of the working class was not even. However, the working class and people have vigorously advanced the revolutionary cause, valiantly overcoming trials and difficulties in a fierce struggle against imperialists and reactionary forces. This course was an arduous road of struggle to win independence by ending slavery, imposing oppression and subjugation on them, and to build a prosperous society.

Thanks to a long-term bloody struggle of working masses including the working class, a big change has taken place in the international arena and the world's situation has been changed. Socialism has developed on a worldwide basis. Through arduous and long struggle, people in Asia, Africa and Latin America have achieved the historic cause of national independence and registered successes in the struggle to consolidate national independence. The Nonaligned Movement has endlessly developed, and the cause of making the world independent has been accelerated. While the revolutionary force adhering to independence has been strengthened in the international arena, the imperialists and reactionary forces have weakened. Imperialist and colonial systems have been declining. The time when imperialists dominated the world, oppressing and exploiting the people, is gone forever.

As a result of working masses' vigorous struggle to realize independence, times have changed. People who were oppressed in the past have creatively pioneered their destiny as masters of the world. For the world's people to call for independence and various countries to follow the road of independence are the basic trend of our times. The opening of the era of independence is a precious revolutionary achievement of people through a long, arduous struggle.

Holding aloft the banner of the great chuche idea, the working class and people of our country have vigorously advanced along the road of independence from a half century ago under the wise guidance of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. In this course, our people have advanced our revolution and the world revolution, strengthening unity with the world revolutionary forces. The road of revolution our working class and people have traversed is an unprecedently arduous and stern road. But it is a glorious course in which they have attained great success in all sectors of revolution and construction during a short period of time. In the dark era when the nation suffered from the worst ordeal, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song opened a new era of independence by creating the immortal chuche idea and pioneered a new revolutionary road on which the working masses themselves were able to liberate the nation, class and human beings.

The chuche idea created by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a revolutionary doctrine for fully realizing the independence of the popular masses and an idea of international unity for strengthening the solidarity among the peoples in the struggle against all manner of domination and subjugation. By advancing along the road guided by the chuche idea, adopting the chuche idea as a firm leading guidance, the working class and people of our country have built an independent, self-reliant and self-defending socialist country where all people live happily together without exploitation and oppression. Our country, which was ignored by the world in the past, is now praised as the chuche fatherland and a model country of socialism. Brilliant successes attained in the Korean revolution and remarkable changes in Korea show that only when the people, who implement revolution under the leadership of the great leader of the working class, advance along the road of independence can they effect any miracle and exploit.

Our working class and the people of our country have regarded solidarity and unity with the international working class as very precious in the course of pioneering the road of revolution. When a complicated situation was created due to imperialist maneuvers to divide the international working class, our people waged a principled struggle, holding aloft the banner of international unity. Thanks to the correct foreign policy of our party and the government of the republic and their positive activities, a friendly solidarity between our country and various foreign countries of the world has been consolidated, and the ranks supporting the revolutionary cause of our people have increased. Wherever we go, we have innumerable friends for our people's revolutionary cause of national reunification, and socialist construction is positively supported by the world's people. Along with the historic trend of advancing along the road of independence, the international situation is being converted into one which is more advantageous to our revolution. Our working class and people are filled with a firm determination to faithfully discharge the national duty and international duty of the working class.

A long span of time has passed since May Day was first commemorated as an international event demonstrating the united might of the world's working class. During this period, the revolutionary cause of the international working class has advanced. However, the struggle to ultimately eliminate imperialism on earth and realize the independence of the popular masses has not yet been completed. A fierce struggle between revolutionary and anti-revolutionary forces are being waged in the international arena. Embarrassed by the people's revolutionary struggle for anti-imperialism and independence, imperialists are running amok to maintain and strengthen their domination by giving themselves up to aggression, plunder and maneuvers to wage a new war.

To defend world peace and security against the imperialists' policy of aggression and war, the world's people, including the international working class, should unite and make the world independent. This is the sacred and historic duty of all people.

The question of making the world independent is to be achieved in the course of vigorously advancing the independence cause of each individual country. The revolution of the individual country is the key to the international cause for making the world independent.

By responsibily carrying out the Korean revolution under the slogan of international unity, our country's working class and people will positively contribute to the cause for making the world independent.

Today our people confront a heavy task to enact the report given at the historic Sixth KWP Congress by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the tasks he set forth in his recent policy speech.

All party members and workers should more vigorously advance the revolution, with the lofty national pride and dignity of carrying out the revolution, upholding as the leader the great Comrade Kim Il-song, whom the world's peoples unanimously admire and respect, holding aloft the slogan for imbuing society with the chuche idea.

By having the flames of the three revolutions more fiercely set ablaze in all sectors and having endless upsurges created in socialist construction, we should strengthen the country's political and economic power in every way and achieve an epochal advance in the struggle to attain the 10-point major prospective targets for socialist economic construction. Deeply aware of their honorable mission as the main force unit of the revolution, the working class of all sectors of the people's economy should discharge their duties as the vanguard and perform heroic exploits in production and construction.

Withdrawing the U.S. forces from South Korea and reunifying the divided fatherland are the sacred struggle for completely realizing national independence on a nationwide scale. We should thoroughly check and frustrate the two Koreas plot of splittists at home and abroad and independently achieve the country's reunification without any outside interference. When we found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo through the concerted efforts of the nation, a new Korea -- reunified and independent -- will spring up on the 3,000 li land.

It is the consistent policy of our party and the government of the republic to strengthen friendship and unity with all progressive countries of the world and struggle to build an independent, new world.

Today the imperialists are maneuvering to disunite and divide newly emerging nations. Under this condition, all anti-imperialist and independent forces, including the non-aligned countries, should stand up to the splittist and alienating maneuvers of the imperialists in unity.

Our people will firmly unite with and develop friendly and cooperative relations with people in socialist countries, nonaligned nations and all the world countries advocating independence and will positively support and encourage the struggle of the world's people to achieve national independence and construct a new society.

Our revolution, pioneered under the banner of the great chuche idea, has entered a new higher stage. An endlessly bright future awaits our people.

Always with lofty revolutionary pride and conviction in certain victory, we should display the honor and dignity of the chuche fatherland and continue to courageously struggle to advance the bright future of communism.

Our working class and people who are struggling for the just revolutionary cause, firmly rallying around the party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, will be victorious and advance forever.

PAPERS VIEW INDICTMENT OF PUSAN ARSON SUSPECTS

CHUNGANG ILBO Editorial

SK01141 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 30 Apr 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Indictment on the Arson Incident of U.S. Cultural Center"]

[Excerpts] With the indictment on 29 April of 15 suspects involved in the arson incident at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, this case has been turned over to the courts just 42 days after the attack in Pusan.

What we know so far in connection with the motives and character of the Pusan arson incident is that it was an act perpetrated by Mun Pu-sik and his followers to encourage antigovernment struggle and to alienate relations between Korea and the United States and committed at the instigation of Kim Hyon-chang who was upset over the Kwangju incident. However, the indictment made public by the Pusan Prosecutor's Office on 29 April indicates that the motive of the arson attack was to create a circumstance favorable for toppling the present political system and to establish a socialist system. As for Rev. Choe Ki-sik, he was charged with suspicion of having provided shelter to criminal offenders at the time of his arrest. But in this indictment, he is additionally charged with violation of the national security law.

As the nature of the arson incident is very serious, our frank feelings are that our people should recover from the shock caused by the incident as soon as possible and that such a misfortune should not recur. The terror acts by Kim Hyon-chang and Mun Pu-sik were received with strong indignation and deplored by the people, Violence should be rejected. Problems cannot be solved through violence. Anyone who is an intellectual and member of a free and democratic society should abhor violence.

The Korean Christian Action Organization's [KCAO] statement indicated that the Pusan arson incident was an anti-U.S. expression. The prosecutor's office indictment also indicates that one of the motives of the suspects was to alienate relations between Korea and the United States. Such a motive cannot but be regarded as foolish. We know the ties forged between our two countries in the security and economic fields in particular are firm and cannot be broken by such a foolish act of arson.

The suspicion of Priest Choe Ki-sik having provided shelter to the criminal offenders, if found to be true at his trial, cannot escape punishment under the common law. Some religious leaders have defended Choe's act of protecting the criminal offenders. But they do not mean, we believe, that Father Choe's act did not violate the common law.

We should avoid unnecessary excitement over the Pusan arson case and should reconfirm the harmonious relations between common law and canon law. In this respect, we praise the flexible measure taken by the government on the anti-U.S. statement by the KCAO. The government authorities decided not to deal with the KCAO statement as a criminal problem in consideration of national harmony even though its contents clearly violated state laws. We believe such harmony and flexibility will serve to smoothly resolve the Pusan arson incident.

KYONGHYANG SINMUN Editorial

SK030942 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 30 Apr 82 p 2

[Editorial: "We Expect a Just and Fair Trial"]

[Excerpts] The procuratorial authorities on 29 April formally brought an indictment against suspects involved in the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan. The offenders are now to face fair and stern judgment after having stirred up so much trouble.

According to the arraignment, Kim Hyon-chang, Mun Pu-sik and other criminals, lost in wild fantasies that the government should be overthrown by mobilizing the spiritually-oriented masses and our free democratic system should be abolished, thus transforming our country into a socialist system following North Korea's line, committed a grave crime.

Father Choe, cherishing a distorted view that religionists are assigned the duty to lead political and social reforms by actively participating in social issues, committed anti-national acts.

We must say all this is an absurd illusion ignoring the basic social principle and realities of our society and a preposterous religious view which does not take account of the fact that religion and politics and separate.

We expect the judiciary will deal a hard blow at such a fantasy, illusion and distorted view of the realities in a just and fair trial and will deal stern punishment to those antinational criminals.

The campuses, bearing part of the responsibility for the incident, should strive to eliminate impure students imbued with communism. The authorities, professors and students should closely cooperate with one another to create an atmosphere of study so that such an incident does not occur again.

What is urgently needed in our society are calm, reason and patience. We believe that the religionists and students are more aware of this fact than anyone else.

FOREIGN MINISTRY VIEWS LAW OF SEA TREATY

SK030842 Seoul YONHAP in English 0830 GMT 3 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 3 (YONHAP) -- A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said Monday that the U.N. conference-approved International Law of the Sea Treaty was compatible with South Korea's existing agreements with Japan, and reiterated Seoul's position that it is ready anytime to hold talks with Beijing on matters pertaining to continental shelves and economic zones.

The spokesman said however, that, for security reasons, South Korea will continue to require the prior notification of all vessels passing through its territorial waters, including those ships that fall into the "innocent passage" category.

The International Law of the Sea Treaty, providing for a 320-km (200 miles) economic zone in the waters surrounding each country, was approved by a U.N. conference Friday. Before it becomes effective, it must be ratified by at least 60 nations. The United States has voiced its opposition to the treaty.

GOVERNMENT RELEASES 1,019 PRISONERS 1 MAY

SK010440 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 1 May 82

[Text] On the occasion of Buddha's birthday, 891 exemplary prisoners and 128 juvenile convicts, 1,019 in all, were released from prisons across the nation this morning and returned to their homes. Among those freed were two persons who have been serving life sentences and 26 persons serving long sentences. Persons who have served long and mid-range terms were accorded more benefits by this parole than previous ones.

A government official said the reason so many persons serving long and mid-range terms were included in the parole is to show all convicts that even prisoners held on long and mid-range sentences are subject to special consideration if they repent. He noted that with such a policy, all the convicts will have a stronger desire to be self-supporting and law-abiding.

Justice Minister Yi Chong-won said it is government policy to give those convicts who do repent a chance to participate in building a democratic welfare state in the new era. However, tougher parole restrictions will be placed on those convicts not showing repentance, on those who fraudulently arrange overseas employment and on kidnappers, rapists and others who commit immoral deeds. Minister Yi asked the people to properly and leniently guide those released today so they can rehabilitate themselves, noting that they are now resolved to become good and honest people again.

CHON CONSOLES FAMILIES OF SHOOTING VICTIMS

SK020305 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 2 May 82 p 1

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan said yesterday that all officials, including police, should be determined with a new spirit to serve the people best, taking the tragic shooting spree in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo as a lesson.

"Doing so will be a way to requite the deceased," he said after he consoled bereaved families of victims of the shooting rampage perpetrated by a policeman. The chief executive called upon the public servants to steady their minds on the occasion of the incident to see to it that this kind of unfortunate case did not take place again in coming days.

He came to the place of the incident aboard a special helicopter and received a report from Choe Chong-ho, governor of Kyongsang-namdo at a "Myon" office (lowest-echelon administrative unit) about the progress of the work under way to solve all problems following the incident, including relief measures.

"I cannot find words to express my condolences to the victims, their bereaved families and inhabitants," he said. He said that it was a bright spot in the misfortune to see the solution of all issues at early dates because inhabitants, all citizens and the authorities concerned sincerely helped the ill-fated neighbors. "Support must be given to make the village a bright one full of hope by working out long and short-term projects to help the bereaved families and villagers," he told the pertinent officials.

He said that the people were urged to take care of children who lost their parents in the mass killing incident, as if they were their own. Calling for help in terms of their bringing-up and education, President Chon said, "Basic programs, not temporary measures, will have to be established to help them grow as excellent citizens." He also directed the pertinent officials to take preventive steps so as not to see the occurrence of any scandalous thing liable to take place as a result of mass donations and compensation in cash.

After hearing the report, he visited a Saemaul (New Community) center where an altar was set up and burned incense to pay tribute to the victims. He asked the people in the southern country not to despair and told them that the government was doing its best to prevent such an incident from recurring.

The president also visited Cheil Hospital in Chinju City and Koryo Hospital in Masan City, Kyongsang-namdo, separately and consoled 35 injured persons who were receiving medical treatment there. On his way back to Seoul, he made an unannounced inspection of Masan city hall and heard a report from Kang Tong-chol, vice mayor of the city, on preparations for the national sports meet and the city administration.

Home Minister at Assembly

[Text] New Home Minister No Tae-u said yesterday that the government would reform the training system for members of the Homeland Reserve Forces and Civil Defense Corps for their prompt mobilization against emergencies. Testifying before the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee, he also said that the government planned to provide college students with "police scholarships" in a bid to secure superior police manpower.

The house panel was called into session to handle the overnight mass killing of residents by a policeman in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo, Monday night. A total of 55 villagers were killed in the shooting spree by Patrolman U Pom-kon. During the session, which lasted until 11:45 p.m., the panel members were all-out to press the government hard about slackened police discipline and ill-management of police personnel, which they argued caused the incident.

Especially, legislators from the minority parties urged all Cabinet members to resign, pointing out that the policeman's rampage has underlined a weak point of national security posture.

Both the majority and minority lawmakers asked how the berserker could go around for more than six hours unopposed and why the police task force reached the bloodbath scene so late despite a telephone report by a resident. They also grilled the administration about the poor posture of the police and Homeland Reserve Force in an urgent situation and the careless control of arsenals.

Answering questions by lawmakers, Minister No said, "What is more terrible than the people's uneasiness in the wake of the incident is North Korea's miscalculation." "The army is defending the country and the majority of police forces are serving with self-sacrificing spirit. Therefore, the people do not need to have excessive uneasy feelings," he stressed.

In his reply, Minister No, who replaced So Chong-hwa two days after the holocaust, admitted that the incident was totally blamed on neglect of duty on the part of policemen and poor supervision by higher-ups. Aptitude tests will be given twice a year to each policeman, and the result of the tests will be reflected in personnel appraisal, according to him.

National Police Director-General An Ung-mo revealed in his testimony that he would advise the government to enact a law providing stern criminal punishment of those who acted cowardly in the times of emergency, riot operations and natural disasters. An also said that the period of basic education for police recruits would be increased to six months from the present eight weeks.

KNP Notes News Coverage Delay

SK302258 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 30 Apr 82 p 2

[Article from the column "Tidbits"]

[Text] An emergency meeting of the Korea National Party [KNP] held on the morning of 29 April continued for 2 hours because of a hot debate between hardliners and moderates over the Uiryong shooting incident. The meeting finally tilted toward the hardliners. According to a participant, KNP President Kim Chong-Chol and Vice Presidents Yi Man-sop and Yun Sok-min advocated a moderate position to await a decision by the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee. Members of an on-the-spot investigation team Cho Il-chae, Kim Chong-ha and Kang Ki-pil and Party Executive members Kim Yong-kwang and Yi Song-su assumed a tougher stand, saying the government cannot do too much even if it apologizes to the people.

The meeting noted that if there had been correspondents from central dailies stationed at the scene of the crime, news reports would have been more prompt, and this would have reduced casualties. The meeting demanded in case a joint meeting of the National Assembly committees is convened, the National Assembly Public Information Committee should be included to find the reason for delays in news coverage.

Prior to issuing a statement on the reshuffle of some Cabinet members on the afternoon of 28 April, party spokesman Yi Song-il contradicted himself twice because of a disagreement with party President Kim. Spokesman Yi at first said in a statement that the reshuffle of the minister of home affairs alone is not satisfactory. Thirty minutes later, he said the reshuffle of the minister of home affairs was a just action. Three hours later, he reversed himself and adopted the position established in his initial statement.

FOREIGN MINISTRY SPOKESMAN DISCUSSES FALKLANDS

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 30 Apr (MONTSAME) -- Spokesman of Mongolia's Ministry for Foreign Affairs gave the following answer to a MONTSAME correspondent's question on the Argentine-British conflict:

These days the world public is deeply alarmed by grave deterioration of the Argentine-British conflict over the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands. The Mongolian People's Republic proceeds from the point that the question of the archipelago's sovereignty represents a pernicious heritage of the colonial epoch. The world community had repeatedly come out for the abolition of the islands' colonial status, for a solution of the problem by means of negotiations.

However the United Kingdom, striving to perpetuate there a colonial regime, resorts to the outdated methods of the "diplomacy of gunboats," and thus flagrantly contradicts the spirit of the times. As it is known, England had concentrated around the archipelago massive marine forces, declared sea and air blockades, provoked armed clashes, by occupying the island South Georgia. Reports testify to the fact that London is taking the path of escalating military operations. These neocolonial strivings of the British Government derive support only from certain NATO circles, including the U.S. administration.

England's actions aimed at restoring colonial regime in the Falkland Islands through use of force are illegal. They contradict the declaration on presenting independence to colonial countries and peoples adopted by the 15th UN General Assembly session in 1960 and the well-known UN resolutions on decolonization of these islands and peaceful solutions of the question of their sovereignty.

Staking on a military solution of the conflict England openly violates the UN Charter, threatens peace and security in the region and in the entire world. England's fault is aggravated by the fact that it happens to be a member to the UN Security Council which shoulders special responsibility for maintaining universal peace.

Mongolian public as other peaceloving forces condemns imprudent actions of England's ruling circles and appeals to the parties to show utmost restraint and proceed without any delay to peacefully solve the problem.

[Speech by LPRP Central Committee General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan at May Day rally in Vientiane -- live]

[Text] Dear residents of the capital of Vientiane, respected and distinguished guests, comrades and friends: Today, we join together in saluting and hailing the glorious success of the Third LPRP Congress and celebrating May Day -- a festival of international solidarity among the working people.

On the occasion of this festival, on behalf of the LPRP Central Committee, I would like wholeheartedly to hail the working class, farmers, revolutionary intellectuals and laboring people of all ethnic tribes throughout the country. [applause]

At the same time, I would like to extend salutations, warm greetings and sincere thanks to the working class and laboring people in the fraternal socialist countries and other countries in the world for sympathizing with, supporting and assisting our revolutionary cause. [applause]

I would like to hail and sincerely thank the various delegations of the fraternal parties and revolutionary organizations for honoring us by attending our congress and for participating today in this rally to express joy over our successes and to bring profound revolutionary friendship and great encouragement to our people, thereby making our party congress reflect both the unity among our entire party and people and the solid international solidarity of the era. [applause]

On this occasion, on behalf of the party Central Committee, I would like to inform the compatriots throughout the country that after urgently working for 4 days the third congress of our party has concluded with glorious success. [applause]

The congress reached complete unanimity in laying down the line and tasks for our revolution in the new period, which are aimed at leading our country in its march along the path of socialism. The congress elected a new party Central Committee comprising senior revolutionary fighters, who have had rich fighting experience, and their successors, whose future has evidently emerged from the revolutionary movements of the masses, to guide and organize the successful implementation of the party line. [applause]

The resolution of the congress and its glorious success are the result of the collective intelligence of the entire party, reflecting the perseverance and profound aspirations of our people. They are the result of our painstaking preparations and serious work carried out with a high sense of responsibility.

Over the past several months, the party, armed forces and people throughout the country have launched political campaigns by carrying out the tasks of defending the country and maintaining public security. They have vigorously engaged in production to improve living conditions and emulated to score achievements to salute and hail our party congress. A few days ago the whole country turned to the congress and pinned its hope and firm confidence in the party -- the resolute, staunch and reliable combat vanguard of the Lao working class and laboring people and also the organizer and leader of all victories of the Lao revolution. It has always closely associated itself with the masses and served the people without any conditions attached. [applause] That is a precious and outstanding tradition of our party. It is the inexhaustible source of the strength of our party and our nation.

On behalf of the party Central Committee, I would like to hail the outstanding achievements recorded by the various national defense and public security forces, all mass organizations, all branches under the Central Committee, the residents of Vientiane and all compatriots throughout the country in attentively carrying out their respective tasks, thus splendidly contributing to the glorious success of our party congress. [applause]

Dear compatriots, comrades and friends, during the 10 years since the second congress of our party, under the correct leadership of the party the people of various tribes throughout the country have continued our nation's cause of heroic struggle, surmounted various difficulties and tests and won great victories, thereby writing the most gallant page of our country's history: We have completely liberated the country from the yoke of U.S. neocolonialist occupation, abolished the outdated feudalist system that ruled our country for more than a millennium, achieved national concord and unity and led the country to embark on a new era -- an era of independence, freedom and socialist construction. [applause]

In the past 6 years our people have achieved many successes in socialist transformation and construction and in national defense. We have firmly maintained political tranquillity and public order. Many sabotage maneuvers of the enemy were smashed. We have recorded fine achievements in agriculture, forestry and industrial production, communications and transportation, and in the distribution and circulation of goods. The people's educational, cultural, sports and acrobatic work have achieved relatively rapid progress. Socialist transformation and the building of new socialist production relations also proceeded in the industrial, trade, agricultural, communication and transportation domains.

The diplomatic work of our party and state has been broadened with each passing day. The prestige of the LPDR has been raised daily to an ever-higher level in the international arena. The militant alliance and special solidarity among Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea have been further heightened and the solidarity, friendship and all-round cooperation between the LPDR and the Soviet Union, as well as other fraternal socialist countries, have also been incessantly enhanced. [applause]

Our country has been accorded the great honor of becoming a member of the socialist community.

This congress has clearly stipulated the line and overall tasks for the transitional period and set forth the various basic objectives which must be fulfilled in order to build independent and socialist economic bases and turn Laos into a country with developed agricultural and industrial bases, with a view to meeting the ever-increasing requirements in the material and cultural life of the people of various tribes and creating a firm basis for the defense of the country and the new system.

The congress has also emphasized the building of culture, education and public health on basis of clear-sighted national identity and fine socialist contents. This is to nurture and build the people of all tribes in all respects in order to build a new people and new society in which the people of all tribes can live in unity, concord, equality, mutual respect and mutual assistance and to enable all people, families and villages to live a plentiful and happy life in peaceful, independent, unified, socialist, prosperous and glorious Laos. [applause]

In the diplomatic field, the congress emphasized that the rich and multifaceted international relations of our party and state, matters regarding our special solidarity with Vietnam and Kampuchea and our close solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries constitute the basis of an unswerving foreign policy for our party and state. They are the sources of our invincible strength.

Meanwhile, the congress pointed out that we resolutely support the struggles of various nations against imperialism, colonialism in whatever form, expansionism and hegemonism, Zionism, apartheid and racism, and for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress. We join various fraternal parties and socialist countries and progressive people in resolutely struggling against the arms race and for disarmament and against the bellicose policies and nuclear war threats by the U.S. imperialists and the international reactionaries and for the peace and security of nations throughout the world. [applause]

Dear compatriots, comrades and friends, our party's revolutionary line is absolutely correct and conforms with the requirements, desires and fundamental interests of our people and nation. We are capable enough to realize this line. Our Lao nation has a tradition of solidarity and valiant struggle. Our nation is industrious and crative. We have rich natural resources. We have maintained solidarity and cooperation with various fraternal socialist countries such as Vietnam and the great Soviet Union. We have friends throughout the world. It is certain that our historic cause in the new period will inevitably triumph. [applause]

To translate the resolution of the congress into practice, the party Central Committee calls on all compatriots to strengthen their close unity around the vanguard unit which has passed through many tests. It calls on you to work tirelessly, study attentively and continuously seek to catch up with the various progressive nations in the world and bring into full play your role as the masters of the country and society. Let the workers vigorously lead the way in production; enthusiastically step up emulation campaigns in production; enthusiastically step up emulation campaigns in factories, plants and construction sites; modify techniques; and increase work efficiency, practice thrift and produce as many goods as possible for the country.

Let the peasants bring into full play their great achievements; boost cultivation and animal husbandry; strive to build cooperatives; and be determined to make this year's farming season more fruitful than last year's and of previous years. Let the socialist intellectuals make use of their intelligence, knowledge and capability to honorably contribute to educational, cultural, public health, scientific and technical tasks.

Let the various national defense and public security forces heighten their vigilance, always stand ready for combat, maintain tranquillity and public order and firmly ensure that our people can peacefully engage in labor to build the country.

Let cadres and state employees of all levels and branches emulate to carry out more and more effectively the tasks entrusted to them by the party and state. Let them go to the grassroots level and vigorously mobolize the people to bring into full play their rights to mastery in all spheres.

Let Buddhist monks and novices, learned persons, tribal chiefs and people of other strata bring into full play the spirit of loving the nation and socialism and in a positive manner take part in the cause of defending and building the country. Let the youths uphold their blitzkrieg role in all work domains, strive to train and temper themselves in all respects and persistently advance to follow the party's ideals.

Let the children study and train and temper themselves to become a new generation of all-round developed socialists and to honorably and permanently inherit the revolutionary cause of our party and nation.

Dear compatriots, comrades and friends, each of our congresses has brought us new strength and new determination. Let the entire party and people hold aloft their spirit of loving the country and socialism, be determined to unite closely around the party, strive enthusiastically to emulate and advance in order to win new and greater victories. [applause]

Everything for the cause of national defense and socialist construction, for the plentiful and happy life of the people of all tribes! [applause] Long live the LPRP -- the organizer and leader of all victories of the Lao revolution! [applause] Long live invincible Marxism-Leninism! [applause] Long live the 1 May spirit! [applause] Long live world peace!

Thank you. [applause]

USSR's Romanov Speaks

BK021130 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 12230 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Speech by Grigoriy Vasilyevich Romanov, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo, secretary of the Leningrad party committee and head of the CPSU delegation, delivered at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane on 28 April -- initial words in Russian, fading into translation]

[Text] Respected delegates, beloved comrades: The CPSU delegation would like to convey to you warm, fraternal salutations from the birthplace of the Great October Revolution and of Lenin, and through you, to all Lao communists and laboring people. Your congress is attracting the keen attention of the Soviet people. With a spirit of pure, comradely sympathy, we have followed your struggle, been elated at your victories, and been concerned for your work and cares. This is why we regard it as a great honor to have the opportunity to participate in your congress, which marks a new milestone in the socialist construction of the beautiful land of Laos.

Comrade Leonid Ilich Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee and chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium, has assigned our delegation to express profound respect to your party and to reiterate once again that the Lao communists, who are carrying out the transformation task in a revolutionary manner, can rely on the support of our party and the entire Soviet people. Comrade Leonid Ilich Brezhnev has also asked us to carry to you his wishes for the complete success of this congress, and his best wishes for prosperity, happiness and all luck to the Lao people, which we do with pleasure.

We, the Soviet Communists, are well aware that the tasks you comrades are implementing today are not easy. There are still many difficulties that you have to face. Those difficulties are due to a variety of causes. Some result from the vestiges left behind by the colonialist system, while others have been caused by the activities of various enemies and by the new characteristics of the tasks. For this reason, we have been impressed with the Central Committee's political report, which was firmly presented to the congress by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the party Central Committee, outstanding activist of the international communist-worker movement, good patriot and internationalist. The report confirms that Laos has absolutely chosen the path of socialist development and has begun its march along this path.

The most difficulties always arise at the beginning of a task. In Russia in the past, after accomplishing of the October Socialist Revolution, we had had to overcome civil war, foreign aggression and serious bankruptcy. At that time, many predicted that the Soviet administration would certainly collapse. But we persisted in overcoming all these obstacles. This is because our party -- which was founded, trained and fostered by great Lenin -- has always shown concern for the people's interests and has guided the people toward the communist future. As you know, since its founding, the Soviet Union has always had to maintain combat readiness. We have always had to heighten our vigilance to counter imperialist threats. Along with this, the Leninist party has always regarded the construction task as the first priority. The success of the revolution must be consolidated in peaceful socialist labor. The revolution must prove its creative and vital strength. This is why, comrades, the Soviet people, under the party's leadership, have proved and are proving all those things.

Your republic is still young. The LPDR is less than 7 years old. But, in this short period of time the Lao revolution has scored considerable achievements in the cause of peaceful labor. We are very happy to see that in the past 2 years, your republic has reaped a bumper harvest. To promote agricultural production, your party has made positive use of all capabilities available in the countryside. This is what Lenin instructed communists to do. Lenin always placed emphasis on the superiority of the collective economic system. But, at the same time, he warned that it is not appropriate to hurry and arbitrarily set time limits for farmers to join in the collective way of earning a living. The future development of agriculture in Laos will be a good basis for industry, and it is apparent that the industrial foundations have already been developed. Food and wood processing, mining and other industries have also been expanded. It is clear that more natural resources have been used in developing the economy in Laos. It is certain that as a result of this, the people's living standards will improve.

The achievements of the Lao revolution can also be seen through the cultural development of the people and the establishment of the supplementary education system. At present, you comrades have achieved almost total success in eradicating illiteracy. As experienced by the Soviet people, this success will result in achievements multiplied by hundreds of times. More and more skillful cadres and specialists are now working in all economic spheres of your country. These cadres and specialists can apply their knowledge and experience in developing production.

Comrades, we are well aware that your tasks are not easy, but they will be implemented by hard work and protracted struggle. However, the adoption of these tasks reflects the new abilities of the Lao revolution. Your party has accumulated basic experiences in the transformation and building of socialism by applying the general principles of scientific socialism to the specific circumstances in your country. Your party has learned many things in this regard. The spiritual life of your party has been demonstrated in the profound and critical evaluation of your work while the clear-sightedness of your party has been demonstrated through the clear pursuit of the Marxist-Leninist line. Only this type of party can win the confidence of the people and encourage the people to follow.

It can be safely assured that in the years to come, Soviet-Lao cooperation will certainly march forward another step. For example, the trade turnover between our two countries will increase 3.5 times while the total amount of economic cooperation will be counted in the hundreds of millions of rubles in the 5 years from 1981 to 1985. Through our joint efforts we are building industrial and agricultural enterprises, hospitals and schools. Many large projects are also planned with a view to resolving communications and transport problems and expanding the export possibilities of the country. As in the past, the Soviet Union is ready to continue to effectively help you, comrades, in building and training cadres for various branches in the national economy. All Lao friends should know that you will always be welcomed in a brotherly manner at all times and in all places in the Soviet Union.

The guarantee for Soviet-Lao cooperation is the relationship which has been strengthened daily between our two parties. The meetings between Comrade Leonid Ilich Brezhnev and Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan on various occasions have played a great role in consolidating these relations. Each of these meetings has been of very great significance in enhancing our all-round and ever more profound relations and in the service of the cause of great friendship between our two parties, two countries and two peoples.

The Third Congress of the LPRP has opened wide and bright vistas for your country which is advancing continuously. This continuous advance demonstrates that where there is a communist party armed with Marxist-Leninist theory and where there is unity between the party and the people, there exists the possibility to plan great tasks and effectively fulfill them. Your congress firmly proves that socialist Laos will undoubtedly be established.

Dear comrades, the Soviet people are now approaching the great festival day. By the end of this year, we will celebrate the 60th founding anniversary of the USSR. According to our tradition, this significant festival must be celebrated with firm achievements. At present, tasks are being enthusiastically carried out throughout the country in order to realize the various resolutions of the 26th CPSU Congress, which was held over a year ago. We can inform you here that over the past year or so, the Soviet people have successfully implemented the various adopted tasks, the economic strength of the Soviet state has been enhanced daily, and broad social projects have been positively carried out. Our work is going ahead well.

Frankly speaking, we have scored more achievements than I have mentioned here. We would like to spend more money in the development of culture, education, and public health and in guaranteeing social safety. It is true that we have spent considerable amounts of money for these purposes, but we are obliged to continue our national defense efforts to firmly defend the peaceful labor in our country as well as in countries of our friends and allies. We consider this our international obligation. So long as the arms race continues and we have to confront imperialist and expansionist policies, we have no other alternative. In a world full of concerns, the CPSU and the Soviet state have persistently struggled to do away with the danger of war and to improve the political atmosphere of the world.

In his report, Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan correctly stresses that the United States and its followers, having internationally instigated the war strategy, must bear full responsibility for the serious and tense situation in the world.

In the 18 months since it came to power, the new U.S. administration has not put forward a single proposal aimed at improving international relations. On the contrary, the Washington authorities have frequently resorted to actions which only enhance the danger of war. It weems to all that the U.S. ruling circles have shut their eyes to present-day realities. But, realities are called realities because they exist. Whether Washington wants to or not, these realities have to be reckoned with.

At present, the Soviet Unions and other fraternal socialist countries consider limiting the arms race as the most important task. As you know, in all discussions on the present situation, we have proposed negotiations. Furthermore, we have not only put forward creative proposals, but also taken concrete steps. World public opinion has welcomed the bold and well-considered initiatives advanced by Comrade Leonid Ilich Brezhnev in his recent speeches at the 17th congress of the trade unions and in Tashkent as a manifestation of the spirit of great responsibility for the destiny of mankind and as a new reaffirmation of the Soviet Union's determination to realize the peace program for the 1980's decade adopted by the 26th Congress of the CPSU.

In his recent answer to questions raised by a PRAVDA correspondent on Soviet-U.S. relations, Comrade Leonid Brezhnev stressed that we support the holding of a summit meeting between our two countries which would correspond to the great responsibility of the United States and the Soviet Union for the world situation and would justify the hopes being placed in it. Together with other fraternal countries, we have sought to give the process of detente an all-embracing character so that detente can be realized in Europe, Aisa, Central America, Africa and everywhere.

Touching on the situation in Asia, Comrade Leonid Ilich Brezhnev emphasized that our policy in this continent as in other regions is one of consolidating peace and vigorously rebuffing the enemies of peace. It is a policy of peaceful cooperation with all those who want it, a policy of fraternal friendship with socialist countries, a policy of solidarity with all forces of social progress, and a policy of upholding the sovereign rights of various nations. We will never swerve from this firm Leninist basis of our foreign policy.

The Soviet Union fully supports the efforts for peace by Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea, which have consistently pursued a policy aimed at normalizing the situation in Asia and turning Southeast Asia into a region of peace and stability. We maintain that the close friendship among the three Indochinese countries is a useful factor for improving the atmosphere in this part of the world. We have also taken into account other circumstances, namely, that in the world there remain forces which try to impose their will on various independent countries in Asia. Those forces still continue stubbornly to cling to the bankrupt policy of pressuring and threatening various countries, including the Indochinese countries.

But, the Indochinese peoples have already shown that they can stand up for their freedom and independence and that no one can destroy their will. It would be better if this truth is understood by those who seek to turn back the wheels of history.

The socialist countries' policy is an honest and open one. Our hope is to bring peace to all countries and all people. We are inspired bv the fact that this policy has met with vigorous support from various developing countries and the Nonaligned Movement and that it has found sympathy among the realistically minded circles of various capitalist countries. This is a great encouragement for us. All progressive peoples in the world support a policy of peace. It is precisely this policy, and it alone, to which the future belongs.

Dear comrades, at this Third Congress of the LPRP, fine words have been expressed toward our party and state, and we would like to express our thanks for these sentiments of fraternal love. Comrades, please rest assured that the CPSU will always do its best to strengthen the lasting Soviet-Lao friendship.

Long live the LPRP, the Lao people's combat vanguard unit which builds the foundations of socialism! May the fraternal friendship and all-round cooperation between our two parties, two countries and two peoples be further consolidated! Long live peace and communism!

We promise that we will concentrate all our intelligence and strength toward accomplishing everything we can and that we are determined to organize the implementation of the resolution of the congress to deserve the trust, love and acclamation of our entire party, army and people and friends throughout the world. [applause]

Beloved comrades, looking back to the glorious path of our nation's revolutionary struggle from the past until the present, each congress has brought new strength and new workstyle to our party. It has guided the people to surmount various difficulties and obstacles and march forward to win new, still greater victories. We are very proud to note that our revolution and our beloved country have been developed and strengthened increasingly and have attained an ever stronger position and more vigorous strength with each passing day. We have maintained the strength of the special solidarity, militant alliance and all-round cooperation -- which has daily been consolidated and enhanced -- among the three countries of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea. We have maintained the strength of the close solidarity, assistance and cooperation in all respects with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, and the strength of the sympathy and support from various revolutionary forces and forces for peace throughout the world.

In the immediate future, the struggle to defend the country and build socialism against the schemes of sabotage, aggression and annexation of the big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in the Beijing ruling circles in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary powers will continue to be furious and complex. But, no matter how furious and complex the struggle will be, we are convinced that the third party congress's resoltuion will certainly be translated into actual practice and that our people's revolutionary cause will undoubtedly be successful. [applause]

Following the path laid down by our party, we will endeavor to march forward to triumphant socialism. [applause] Long live invincible Marxism-Leninism! [applause] Long live the honorable, glorious LPRP! [applause] Everything is for the success of the cause of national defense and socialist construction and for the prosperity and happiness of the Lao people of all tribes! [applause] May the solidarity and cohesion of the socialist community and of the various revolutionary forces and forces for peace in the world be further enhanced and developed! [applause]

With confidence and elation, I now announce the closing of the historic Third Congress of the LPRP. [applause]

BK011115 Vientiane KPL in English 1039 GMT 1 May 82

REACTION TO CONSUL'S ARREST IN CHICAGO

Sitthi, Arun Comment

BK030626 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 2 May 82

[Text] Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong yesterday told reporters at the airport of the air force command headquarters, where he was waiting for the return of Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon and his party from Europe, that he did not know Thai Vice Consul Sihadet Chidawong in Chicago, who was arrested late last week for his involvement in heroin trade. A report from Chicago, however, said that Sihadet is a C-4 official of the Foreign Ministry's under secretary of state office. Arun revealed that he had also been informed about the arrest of Sihadet by the Narcotics Control Board, and he later reported this matter to Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila.

Asked if Sihadet would be called back for any action, Arun replied that the Foreign Ministry had allowed the U.S. authorities to arrest Sihadet regardless of his diplomatic immunity, which can also be nullified by the United States because the offense took place in its territory. Therefore, the U.S. law must be observed.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila told reporters upon his arrival at the airport yesterday morning that he had been informed about the arrest of the Thai consul and instructed the Thai consulate in Chicago to notify the U.S. Government that it can take legal actions according to the U.S. law in this case.

NATION REVIEW Editorial

BK030145 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 3 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "The Diplomatic Pouch: How Did Heroin Get In?"]

[Text] When the diplomat of a country is caught in flagrante delicto it is somewhat shameful to admit that fact, but we believe that the Thai Foreign Ministry has been correct in cooperating with the Chicago police and the American drug enforcement agency to permit the arrest of Vice Consul Sihadet Chindawong, who operated, according to the report, a drug ring in the Chicago area and who was obtaining high-grade heroin through the use of diplomatic pouches. Thailand certainly salvages a lot of prestige in that the Thai Embassy in Washington did not holler about diplomatic privilege but quietly gave permission for the police to pick up Sihadet.

Normally every country picks its diplomats, to represent it abroad, according to a certain list of qualifications -- the list might differ from country to country, but the overall purpose is to project the best picture abroad. We also know that diplomatic personnel are used by certain countries for gathering intelligence -- everybody knows about the CIA, the KGB, the M16 and numerous others who do not go by any name but try to be a faceless as possible. There are certain countries which primarily specialize in commercial and economic intelligence and, let us face it: The old days of diplomatic courtesy and agreements by shaking hands are gone. This does not mean that the gathering of intelligence, for whatever reasons, should be condoned, but it is a fact of life which every country has to live with. Recently there has been a spate of activity by the KGB in Southeast Asia and we all have learned to live with it, occasionally expelling some and trying to keep a watch on the suspicious.

But what Sihadet has done does not amount to the sort of activity that will call for mere condemnation and expulsion. What Sihadet and his ring have done, if the report is true, is just an ordinary, despicable crime for his personal benefit, something punishable under law in every country, and which sullies the fair face of Thailand. We do know that, however careful the screening is, rotten apples do turn up in the barrel and the sooner they are removed and punished exemplarily the better. We are glad the Thai Foreign Ministry saw the wisdom of it and we are also sure that it will come up with the exposure of all the details that are involved. Drug trafficking is a crime we loathe second only to rape and murder.

The question whether Sihadet is to be tried in the United States or Thailand, is not actually primary. The problem for both the Foreign Ministry and Thailand's Office of Narcotics Control Board is: Who put the heroin in the diplomatic pouches? Sihadet picked it up in Chicago, but somebody must have put it in the pouches. So it is just not a single rotten apple in the barrel, there is another one. This should be the primary question in the whole unsavoury episode. As a matter of fact Sihadet himself might opt to be tried and imprisoned in the United States, if he is guilty, because the sentences there are lighter and conditions in prison more tolerable. However, the other 'rotten apple' hasn't got such a choice.

SIAM RAT VIEWS IMPACT OF NEW U.S. REFUGEE POLICY

BK020835 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 30 Apr 82 p 3

[Editorial: "A Question for the Government"]

[Text] The U.S. Government has decided to revise its policy regarding the acceptance of Indochinese refugees. This decision was made after U.S. administration officials and legislators recently undertook a series of visits to study the flow of Indochinese refugees into Southeast Asian countries. The new U.S. policy is designed to reduce the number of Indochinese refugees fleeing to Thailand and the countries of this region.

According to the new, stringent policy, refugees must have close ties with the United States -- such as having close relatives residing in the United States, having worked for the United States at some time in the past or having other ties with the United States or the Indochinese Governments prior to the communist takeover -- in order to be considered for resettlement. This means that the door is completely closed to refugees who do not meet these requirements.

The United States -- the biggest recipient of refugees from Thailand -- had previously been criticized for accepting unlimited numbers of refugees because such a policy encourages the Indochinese people to flee from their homeland. During their escape they become victims of such cruel fates as starvation, natural disasters, robbery, rape and so forth.

A factor motivating refugees to flee should be eliminated now that the United States has announced its new policy. If the flow of rerugees persists, there will have to be a reassessment as to why they continue to flee -- their dissatisfaction with the communist system, becoming the targets of forced expulsion in order to lessen the burden on their countries' administration or being sent abroad to undermine the security and economies of neighboring countries. Solutions will then have to be found for each of the reasons why refugees flee.

Thailand is currently having to shoulder a heavy burden in providing temporary shelter for the refugees. Although we have been implementing a policy of pushing refugees back, there are cases where this policy cannot be implemented, such as with the boat refugees from Vietnam.

The problem now is what to do with the refugees who lack qualifications for resettlement in the United States. The government must find a solution for this problem quickly, or the U.S. action aimed at solving the refugee problem could become a punishment for Thailand.

MILITARY SETS CONDITIONS FOR RETURN OF SRV PLANE

[By the Congkhadikit]

[Excerpts] Thailand is to ask for an apology from Vietnam for "an intentional intrusion" into Thai air space by a Vietnamese Antonov-26 on February 11. Hanoi will also be asked to bear the full expenses of transporting the Soviet-made plane back to Vietnam. Both the plane and the 12 survivors of the crash will be returned under those conditions.

The above is what Thai military authorities are requesting the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to inform the Vietnamese Government.

Thai military investigators have concluded that the Vietnamese Antonov-26 which crash landed 70 kilometres inside Thailand on February 11 "flew into Thai territorial air space intentionally," according to reliable sources concerned with the investigation.

Thailand plans to repatriate the 12 Vietnamese officers and airlift the AN-26 in pieces by helicopters to Utaphao Air Base, Sattahip, Chon Buri. From there, the Vietnamese can arrange to transport the plane by ship.

Arranging for the return of the plane and passengers may be the last major mission of Vietnamese Ambassador Hoang Bao Son, who is nearing the end of his tour here and will soon be returning to Hanoi for reassignment.

ARMY OFFICE COMMENTS ON CBW PREVENTIVE MEASURES

[Statement by 9th Division Deputy Commander Col Charun Phunsanong -- date not given; recorded]

[Excerpt] Since the beginning of this month we have no firm evidence concerning the use of toxic chemicals in the areas under the responsibility of the 9th Division. Nonetheless, there was evidence of sorts in the seizure of certain war materiel and gas masks from Vietnamese soldiers in the area east of Khao Din on the Kampuchean-Thai border on 2 and 3 April. The mass media are already aware of this and the higher authorities have been informed.

The use of gas masks by Vietnamese-Heng Samrin soldiers leads the 9th Division to the conclusion that they are probably making preparations to use toxic chemicals in their suppression of the opposition units in Kampuchea; the masks will be used to protect themselves during the campaign.

The 1st Army Region and the 9th Division have employed their psychological warfare teams to inform the local people of the possible use of toxic chemicals by the opposition and precautionary measures against their effects. The measures include not entering areas where toxic chemicals might be used. If entering such areas is unavoidable, the use of water for drinking or other purposes should be avoided. If contact with toxic chemicals is suspected, people are advised to wash themselves with clean water to dilute the concentration of the chemicals, to change clothes, and to keep the victims in well-ventilated area and at the same time to try to calm their anxiety.

SUPREME COMMANDER ON MEKONG RIVER INCIDENT

BK021018 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 2 May 82

[Text] Supreme Commander Saiyut Koetphon has reaffirmed that the shooting of a Thai river patrol craft by Loatian troops early this week was provoked by the Laotian side while the boat was cruising in Thai territory. General Saiyut has referred to the statement made by the Supreme Command and the Royal Thai Navy which charged that Laotian shooting was a provocative act for which the provocateur must bear full responsibility. However, General Saiyut says, Thailand is willing to follow the joint communique signed between the two countries spelling the desire to solve disputes through a negotiation. The supreme commander says that local level officials from both countries would meet for talks aimed at preventing a recurrence of such an incident.

VNA INTERVIEW WITH FOREIGN MINISTER THACH

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 30 -- The following is an interview by VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY with Foreign Minister Nguyen CO Thach, who has just returned from a visit to several countries in Europe and Asia:

Question: Would you tell us about the result of your visit to the Soviet Union, the German Democratic Republic, India and some countries in northern and Western Europe and about the prospects of the relations of cooperation between Vietnam and these countries?

Answer: I can say that my visit has yielded good results. I went to the Soviet Union and the G.D.R. in order to exchange with the leading officials of the foreign ministries of these two fraternal socialist countries views on bilateral relations and a number of important international questions with a view to enhancing our all-round cooperation and international collaboration in the spirit of the Vietnam-U.S.S.R. and Vietnam-G.D.R. treaties of friendship and cooperation. The Soviet and G.D.R.comrades highly appraised the result of the fifth congress of our party and the principled foreign policy of our party and state. They highly appraised the results of our diplomatic activities and considered my visit to some countries in northern and Western Europe and India as an important contribution to the common struggle of the socialist countries for peace and the reduction of world tension.

My visit to India, which took place only a few months after the visit to Vietnam by Indian Foreign Minister Narasimha Rao, shows that the relations between India and Vietnam hold an important position in the external relations of the two countries. After our relations with the other countries in the Council for Mutual Assistance (CMEA), our multiform cooperation with India has a special import for us and is developing satisfactorily on a firm and lasting basis. The Vietnam-India cooperation is an important factor for peace in Asia and Southeast Asia as well as for the development of the Non-Aligned Movement. It is also an example of the South-South cooperation.

I have visited France, Sweden, Belgium and the Federal Republic of Germany, where I discussed with the leaders of these countries and the European Economic Community questions relating to the promotion of understanding and lasting cooperation between these countries and our country and to peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The north and West European countries, first of all France and Sweden, hold an important position in the relations between our country and the West. Many north and West European countries I have visited as well as the European Economic Community as a whole agreed to have regular exchanges of views with us on long-term cooperation in the economic, cultural, scientific and technical fields.

Question: How do you appraise the result of your visit with regard to the situation in Southeast Asia?

Answer: The Soviet Union and the G.D.R. fully share our assessment of the situation in Southeast Asia. They warmly support the diplomatic initiatives of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea for solving questions of Southeast Asia. India is deeply concerned with the situation in Southeast Asia. India fully agrees with us on the fundamental cause of the tense situation prevailing in this region and supports the revival of the Kampuchean people. Like us, India holds that all Southeast Asia issues must be settled through dialogues among the countries concerned.

The northern and Western European countries are all concerned with peace and stability in this region. During our official talks as well as in our cordial conversations and meetings with the press, I have made clear the following three main points in the situation in Southeast Asia:

1. Experience in the past three years shows that the Indochinese countries are victims of China's hegemonistic policy. Like the A.S.E.A.N. countries, they want peace and stability in Southeast Asia. Only China doesn't. It has played up the A.S.E.A.N. countries against the Indochinese countries. It is the only country to foster Maoist forces for interfering in the internal affairs of Southeast Asian countries. That is why, the fundamental question now is to put an end to China's expansionist and hegemonist policy in Southeast Asia.

2. Experience in the past three years shows that the confrontation policy can neither weaken and subdue the three Indochinese countries nor solve the problems in Southeast Asia. Instead, it can only undermine peace and stability in this region. Harmony and cooperation between the A.S.E.A.N. and Indochinese countries without foreign interference is the only policy guaranteeing peace and stability in this region.

3. Experience in the past three years also shows that to support the Pol Pot clique only plays into the hand of China's hegemonist policy of using the pro-Beijing reactionaries to interfere in the internal affairs of the Southeast Asian countries and sabotage peace and stability in the region. It cannot reverse the process of revival of the Kampuchean people. To support the Kampuchean people's revival and oppose all attempts to restore the Pol Pot gang and other agents of Beijing is a decisive factor for peace and stability in Southeast Asia. More and more people among the authorities and public opinion in the northern and Western European countries have to various extents better understood the situation in Southeast Asia and sympathized with the stand of Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries.

Question: How do you view the attitude of the people in the countries you visited with our people?

Answer: In recent years the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the other reactionary forces have whipped up a noisy propaganda campaign of slanders and distortions aimed at denigrating our country and lowering our prestige on the international arena. But I could see during my visit that public opinion anywhere has high regards for our people, not only the people and newspapers but many leaders in north and West European countries praised our people's glorious history and heroism and our country's spirit of independence and sovereignty. Our people's bravery, self-devotion and industriousness have won sympathy from broad opinion in the world. Many persons who participated in the wide protest movement in Western Europe against U.S. aggression in Vietnam and are holding important social positions still keep their deep sympathy with our people. They still consider themselves belonging to the "Vietnam generation". We were deeply moved when visiting the room of a Swede decorated entirely with souvenirs from Vietnam. The public in the countries I visited is also well aware that our foreign policy is one of peace, friendship and cooperation with all other peoples.

RESULTS OF THACH'S EUROPEAN, ASIAN TOUR HAILED

OW010820 Hanoi VNA in English 0724 GMT 1 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 1st -- The success of Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's most recent visits to a number of European and Asian countries is proof of Vietnam's correct foreign policy, says NHAN DAN in its commentary today. "His visits to the Soviet Union and the German Democratic Republic", the paper says, "are new contributions to strengthening the solidarity and international cooperation among the fraternal socialist countries in the interests of each of them and of world peace and international security. His visit to India helps further increase and broaden the friendship and multiform cooperation between Vietnam and India for the sake of peace and stability in Asia.

"During his stay in France, Sweden, Belgium and the Federal Republic of Germany, the Vietnamese messenger had frank discussions with representatives of the host countries on international matters of mutual concern, including the situation in Southeast Asia".

NHAN DAN continues: "Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's successful visits bear vivid expression to the correct foreign policy of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, a consistent and just policy, which was re-affirmed at the recent Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. The Vietnamese state has ceaselessly tightened its solidarity, cooperation and friendship with the fraternal socialist community and its long-standing friends in the Non-aligned Movement and, on the other hand, stands for establishing and broadening normal friendly relations with all other countries irrespective of their political and social systems and on the basis of respect for one another's independence and sovereignty, equality and mutual benefit.

"Vietnam's correct diplomacy has won increasing sympathy and support from the world public in spite of the distortions and disruptive moves by the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists, the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces. Over the last six years or so, 20 more countries have established diplomatic relations with Vietnam, bringing the total number of such countries on all continents to 110.

"Nguyen Co Thach's visits have helped other countries of different social systems understand the situation in Southeast Asia more clearly and feel more sympathetic to our position vis-a-vis the other Indochinese countries. On the other hand, they help more clearly expound Beijing's expansionist and hegemonist policy as the root-cause of the present tension in Southeast Asia, and point to the correct way to restore peace and stability in this region, namely, to support the Kampuchean people's revival, oppose all interferences in the internal affairs of the People's Republic of Kampuchea, and promote the dialogue and cooperation between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries".

"All attempts by Beijing and other reactionary forces at distorting the significance and undermining the success of Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's visits are doomed to failure," the paper says in conclusion.

Vuong Thinh Comment

[Commentary by Vuong Thinh]

[Text] World public opinon has followed with interest and has acclaimed SRV Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's recent tour of the Soviet Union, the GDR, the Republic of India and a number of countries in and northern and Western Europe. The Vietnamese delegation was warmly and solemnly welcomed by the host countries, and the world press has favorably commented on this tour because it was aimed at contributing to consolidating peace and stability in Southeast Asia and in the world and at implementing the resolution of the Fifth VCP Congress on establishing and expanding normal relations at the state level and in the economic, cultural, scientific and technical fields with all other countries on the basis of respect for each other's independence and sovereignty, equality and mutual interest.

During his tour Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach held discussions in the Soviet Union and the GDR on intensifying Vietnam's overall cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries. He held discussions in India as part of the practice of holding permanent consultative meetings to strengthen the lasting and many-sided cooperation between the two countries in the interest of peace in Asia and Southeast Asia. He clarified Vietnam's correct stand and good will regarding the relations between Vietnam and the countries in northern and Western Europe and regarding international issues of mutual concern, including the issue of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

From the actual facts in the past 3 years many more people have come to realize that Vietnam and Kampuchea have been the victims of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists. Beijing's support of the Pol Pot clique in opposing the revival of the Kampuchean people, far from benefiting peace and stability in Southeast Asia, has turned the PRC into an accomplice and abettor of the genocidal clique and furthered Beijing's policy of sabotaging peace and stability in this region. From the actual facts one can also realize more clearly that the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea are united more closely and are continuing to advance steadily with the only desire to live in peace and friendship in order to rebuild their countries.

Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's talks with the leaders of the Republic of France, the Kingdoms of Sweden and Belgium, the EEC and the FRG were held in an atmosphere of frankness and mutual understanding. And this was one of the fine results of his tour. He discussed with the French leaders the orientation and measures to promote cooperation between the two countries in the economic, cultural, scientific and technical spheres. On this occasion the French Government announced its decision to give Vietnam some 6,000 tons of food as aid. In Stockholm, Vietnam and Sweden discussed the lasting economic cooperation between the two countries. The Swedish Government pledged to continue aid to the Vietnamese people for many years and announced its emergency aid to Vietnam in fighting natural calamities.

Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach returned to Hanoi on the afternoon of 29 April, bringing home the joy coming from the outcome of his tour. Commenting on this tour, AFP noted that it may pave the way for a dialogue between the Indochinese and Western countries. The FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW and many other newspapers and news agencies considered this tour a success. That is the obvious and outright truth. However, Beijing and its followers, including a number of persons among the Bangkok ruling circles, have deliberately smeared this tour. They have shown worry and resentment. XINHUA, used to making presumptive and wrong observations, has stated thoughtlessly that foreign minister Nguyen Co Thach's tour was a flop. One may ask the bootlocking writers of Zhongnanhia this question: If this was a flop, why are you so worried and annoyed?

It has been noted that since Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's return to Hanoi, Beijing's propaganda apparatus has daily distorted the objectives and results of his tour and spoken ill of Vietnam. Once, realizing that its practice was unfair, Beijing urged the Pol Pot clique to criticize the host countries for welcoming the Vietnamese guests. The clique has also haughtily warned these countries not to maintain relations with Vietnam and not to give it any aid. This is obviously brazen and shameless interference, and there is good reason to say that Beijing's practice runs counter to the course of things, because in certain aspects the relationship between two states are similar to those between two persons. This relationship is natural and necessary to all mankind, even to the Chinese rulers, who are pursuing a cruel policy of expansion and hostility toward Vietnam.

However, at present as in the past, we continue to advocate negotiations with China to solve the problems of mutual concern and to advance toward the normalization of relations between the two countries. For this reason, any interference in and opposition to the normalization of relations between Vietnam and other countries are futile or stupid. If any comparison should be made, one should clearly realize that Vietnam's attitude and acts are sincere and correct whereas China's attitude and acts are very negative and vile.

Beijing's practice reveals only more clearly its true nature as a plotter seeking ways to encircle, isolate and weaken Vietnam in its war of comprehensive sabotage in order to annex this country as the Chinese emperors did in the past. Beijing can in no way cover up its nature as a saboteur of peace and stability in Southeast Asia that stubbornly opposes all dialogues in this region and in the world.

Thus, it is obviously not Vietnam but Beijing that is isolated. Because of its dangerous policy of expansion and hegemony and because of its negative attitude and acts, it will be even more isolated and condemned and cursed by broad segments of world public opinion and even by the Chinese people.

"During our anti-U.S. resistance for national salvation in the past as well as in our socialist construction and national defence at present, (?we) always received valuable assistance and warm sympathy from our friends in the five continents, who regard our struggle as the conscience and dignity of progressive mankind and as a major struggle against imperialism and for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress. Our people will forever remember with deep gratitude these generous acts and noble sentiments".

In conclusion, Nguyen Duc Thuan said: "Nineteen eighty-two is the first year in the implementation of the resolutions of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam in order to continue taking our revolutionary cause forwards. The orientation and steps of our advance have been correctly set out. Our country's potentials are considerable. Many big difficulties remain, but our people are determined to translate the fifth party congress resolutions into reality, thereby creating a strong impetus in the economic and social life of our country".

[NHAN DAN 1 May editorial: "Exploit All Potentials To Create a Revolutionary Change"]

[Text] Today our people celebrate 1 May International Labor Day and the 30 April victory day amid the elation over the success of the Fifth VCP Congress. Together with the laboring people throughout the world, we welcome the vigorous growth and glorious victory of the three revolutionary currents of the era in the struggle for peace, democracy, national independence and socialism. We are also witness to the repeated defeats and serious crisis of imperialism and international reaction.

The U.S. imperialists are launching a global counterattack to recover their lost positions. They have frenziedly conducted an arms race, created a cold war atmosphere and sabotaged world detente and security. However, they have come up against the upsurge of the three revolutionary currents and the will of nations to protect peace. Comrade Brezhnev's peace initiative put forth at the 26th CPSU Congress has drawn wide support from hundreds of millions of people. It is an important contribution to maintaining the peaceful life of the people in the world. Mankind is now fully vigilant and, with a sense of confidence and responsibility, will not allow the imperialists and international reactionaries to interfere and carry out aggressive activities wherever they want.

The general situation in the world, as affirmed by our party congress, is a victorious and offensive advance, and no one can reverse the three revolutionary currents. The general situation of our revolution is also very good and the prestige of our country in the international arena is growing with every passing day. The congress resolutions have affirmed the tasks, orientations, targets, policies and measures to develop our revolution in the new stage. These resolutions are mobilizing all our party, troops and people to enthusiastically emulate in building socialism and defending our socialist nation.

Along with reviewing our victories and achievements, the party congress has also pointed out difficulties in several fields, especially in the economic domain and the people's daily life. We now clearly appreciate these difficulties. The party congress correctly analyzed the causes of these difficulties and is rationally and fairly resolving problems arising in the people's life. At the same time, it has noted our great potential for overcoming imbalances in our economy and gradually stabilizing production and livelihood.

Although we should realize our difficulties, we should also see our prospects and the real potentials within our grasp that can overcome our difficulties, especially in the fields of grain, consumer and export goods, communications and transport, distribution and circulation, and economic management.

Reorganizing the economy is the most important measure that will help us to manage and regulate our national economy satisfactorily, thereby bringing about concrete results. At production units and establishments, we must review and rearrange production system to increase output and decrease production cost in order to develop and improve investment.

We must concentrate on developing the production of grain and food products and some essential consumer goods to serve the people. Our agricultural production is blessed by nature, and we are fully capable of resolving the grain problem nationwide. Our present problem is that we have to accelerate grain production by all means; to correctly organize the collection, purchase, storage, processing and transport of grain; provide materials for agricultural production; and to strictly economize on grain.

In industrial production, we still have quite a lot of materials available and stockpiled in various warehouses which can be used together withdraw materials from agriculture, forestry, fishery and discards and rejects. We must accelerate the production of coal and electricity to serve the agricultural, light industrial and export sectors, while positively improving and increasing communications and transport.

We can also improve state control of goods to ensure the just and rational distribution and circulation of essential consumer goods to cadres, workers and civil servants. At the same time we must strengthen market management and price control and strive to eliminate speculators, smugglers and corrupt elements.

The national economic management calls for scrupulous implementation of the principle of democratic centralization. It is necessary of encourage democratic practises and develop the creativity of each sector, locality and grassroots unit. We must, however, concentrate on developing essential creativities in the interests of uniformity.

Our duty now is to surge forward and do our utmost to produce more assets for society and to improve our living conditions. We can live and spend only in the framework of our production. Only by developing the collective mastery of very sector, locality and primary installation and by launching a mass revolutionary movement can we exploit all our potentials.

Welcoming the 1 May International Labor Day and the 30 April victory day, our entire party, people and armed forces will emulate in implementing the fifth party congress resolutions; engage in productive labor and practice thrift; strive to create a revolutionary movement in our economic and daily lives in order to contribute to fulfilling the 1982 State Plan.

ARGENTINE POSITION SUPPORTED; UK ACTION ASSAILED

Peace Committee Message

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 30 -- The Vietname Peace Committee today sent the following message of greetings to its Argentina counterpart:

"The peace movement and the entire people of Vietnam, deeply concerned with the developments around the Malvinas issue, fully support the Republic of Argentina in the recovery of the Malvinas Archipelago, which belongs to its territory and comes under its jurisdiction. The Vietnamese people also vehemently protest against the British authorities for having not only refused to recognize Argentina's sovereignty over the Malvinas but also sent troops to invade the South Georgia Island aimed at making it a jumping-off place to attack the Malvinas, thus deliberately creating tension in the region and prolonging the obsolete colonialism already condemned by history.

"The Vietnamese people are confident that the issue will be settled through peaceful negotiations and the Argentine people's cause will surely end in victory".

OW030807 Hanoi VNA in English 0705 GMT 3 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 3 -- NHAN DAN today comes out strongly against the recent British air attack on Puerto Argentino Airport in an attempt to retake the Malvinas Archipelago by force. This attack, the paper points out, has seriously violated the sovereignty of the Republic of Argentina. The paper says: "This event reflects the stubborn policy of British colonialism and the greed of an old imperialist power, representing a military adventure against world peace and security. It also reveals before the world the perfidious, hypocritical nature of the U.S. imperialists".

NHAN DAN recalls that following Britain's imposition of all(?out) blockade of the Malvinas, the Reagan administration has ended its professed neutrality by announcing its support for Britain and its sanctions against Argentina. The paper notes that the British colonialists' armed attack on the Malvinas has been duly punished by the Argentine armed forces and vigorously condemned by Latin American people and progressive public opinion around the world.

"The Vietnamese people resolutely support the Argentine people in defending their national sovereignty over the Malvinas and demand that the British Government put an immediate end to all military schemes and acts against the Republic of Argentina," NHAN DAN concludes.

REPORTAGE ON BUSH'S MEETINGS, ACTIVITIES

Meeting With Fraser

BK301039 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Text] The U.S. vice president, Mr Bush, says America's days of lecturing its friends and apologizing to its enemies are over. In a speech to the National Press Club in Canberra, Mr Bush said Washington had no desire to dominate any part of the world. He said America wanted to keep its lines of communication with the Free World wide open and wanted to be a good friend. Mr Bush says Australia and America have a strong, viable relationship which allows problems to be talked about frankly.

The U.S. vice president earlier held talks with the prime minister, Mr Fraser. Radio Australia's Canberra office said the two men discussed the Falkland Islands crisis, problems within the Western alliance and bilateral issues.

After the meeting, Mr Bush told reporters that Mr Fraser had accepted an invitation to visit Washington next month. Mr Fraser is expected to hold talks with President Reagan on 17 May.

Mr Bush also held discussions with the leader of the opposition, Mr Hayden. Radio Australia's Canberra office understands Mr Hayden asked the vice president for the full cooperation of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Royal Commission on Drugs which is looking into the affairs of the Nugan-Hand Merchant Bank. A source in Mr Hayden's office said Mr Bush did not respond directly to the request, but said Washington was concerned at allegations of CIA involvement in the Nugan-Hand affair.

Further on Meetings, Dinner

[Text] American Vice President Bush says he thinks the ANZUS treaty is of value in helping to preserve peace. The ANZUS treaty is the defense alliance binding the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

Speaking at a ball in Sydney commemorating the battle of the Coral Sea in the Second World War, Bush said there were countries whose reckless international behavior presented an everyday threat to peace. He said these countries should know that the United States and its allies were resolved to preserve the peace.

On the third day of his visit to Australia Mr Bush has visited Melbourne. He had talks with the new Labor premier of Victoria Mr Cain and tonight attends a dinner hosted by Prime Minister Fraser.

Fraser's Remarks at Dinner

BK020912 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 2 May 82

[Text] Australia's Prime Minister Fraser said it was inevitable that fighting would take place over the Falkland Islands as long as Argentina maintained a stance of aggression. Fraser also said the United States declaration of material support for Britain in the crisis had been enormously important to the British. He said he personally had welcomed the American declaration as very good news.

Fraser was speaking after a dinner in honor of American Vice President Bush at which the Australian leader again warned of the continuing military buildup by the Soviet Union. He said the Soviet Union continued to devote about 13 percent of its national product to military purposes, compared with six percent by the United States and three percent by Australia. Bush, who is now in Sydney, has no public engagements on the 3d day of his visit and will leave for New Zealand tomorrow before going on to China.

PROTEST FILED WITH U.S. ON FISH-CATCH-QUOTA CUT

[Text] Tokyo, May 4, KYODO -- Japan has filed a protest with the U.S. Government against its recent decision to drastically cut the Japanese fish catch quota within the U.S. 200-mile fishery zone, the government disclosed Tuesday. The protest was lodged with U.S. Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige by Yoshio Okawara, Japanese ambassador to the United States, officials said. In the representation, the Japanese Government noted that the U.S. action is discriminatory against Japan, the officials said.

When Japan and the United States agreed late last year to set the Japanese quota for this year at 1,148,000 tons, the U.S. Government was expected to allocate 25 percent of the annual quota to Japan for the second quarter, starting in April. But according to a notice received April 26, the U.S. Government allocated only 15 percent of the annual quota to Japan in this quarter, while allocating 25 percent of annual quotas to other nations like South Korea and West Germany.

In the representation, the Japanese Government also complained that the U.S. Government was extremely slow in setting the second catch quota, according to the officials.

JSP PROPOSES PLAN FOR TRADE FRICTION AVOIDANCE

[Text] Tokyo, May 3, KYODO -- Japan's No. 1 opposition Socialist Party proposed Monday the creation of an export surcharge system to avoid trade frictions and switch the economy's emphasis to domestic demand. The party also called on the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to persuade the United States to change its high interest rate policy.

These and other suggestions were contained in a manifesto prepared by the party's policy council to declare the party's stand on the thorny trade issue and the Versailles summit which is expected to take up the matter next month. Party Chairman Ichio Asukata will personally convey the message to Suzuki in a meeting later this month.

The Socialist Party held the United States and the European Economic Community responsible for their low economic growth rates which it said were caused by a delay in adopting new technology and excessive military outlays. "The trade frictions will not disappear simply by forcing the agricultural and dairy industries to shoulder the burden," the statement said in a reference to the government's plans to step up imports of farm products. The Socialists urged the fuling party not to bow to U.S. demands for liberalization of farm imports by stimulating domestic demand.

In its first comprehensive trade policy pronouncement in many years, the opposition party suggested that the government initiate a surcharge system to curtail exports, which have been a driving force of the domestic economy.

The Socialist Party contended that Japan was not responsible for the trade issues involving textiles, steel and automobiles in the 1960's and 1970's. Rather, the party said, the deteriorating state of currency adjustments among industrial states and increasing military expenditures have caused these issues.

The Socialist Party cited the strengthening of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, reduction in military spending and financial assistance to developing countries as advisable measures to ease the trade frictions and protect the world economy from protectionism.

SOUTH'S 'PROVOCATIONS' PROTESTED AT MAC SESSION

[Text] The 412th MAC meeting is now in session at Panmunjom at the request of our side. As already reported, on 23 April our side urged the enemy side to convene the 412th MAC meeting at 1100 on 27 April to discuss matters concerning the enemy's repeated armed provocations these days. Fearing revelation of its crimes to the world, however, the enemy postponed the convocation of the meeting for 7 days on a preposterous excuse. However, it has been dragged to the meeting site.

At the meeting, our side has lodged a stern protest against the South Korean puppet army's firing guns on a large scale in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) on 21 April. Our side is now taking the enemy side to task for this incident.

According to the statement of Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, our senior member, members of the civil police of our side were on routine patrol duty on the road north of military demarcation line [MDL] marker 0805 on the morning of 21 April. It was around 1720 on the same day when members of the civil police of our side arrived in our territory north of MDL marker 0810, performing patrol duty. At this moment, the South Korean puppet army began firing at them with large-caliber machineguns and M-16 automatic rifles from a spot 600 meters south of MDL marker 0805. This firing continued for 10 minutes. At around 0645, the South Korean puppet army began to fire intensively at members of the civil police and at outposts of our side with automatic weapons, including 90-mm recoilless rifles and large-caliber machineguns, from a spot 1,200 meters south of DML marker 0820 and 1,000 meters southeast of marker 0826. This gunfire perpetrated by the South Korean puppet army caused casualties among our personnel, who had been performing routine patrol duty, and destroyed our outposts and other military facilities. Under this situation, our side was forced to take action in self defense. This action deterred the firing of the South Korean puppet army at around 0705 on the same day. Bullets from large-caliber machineguns which the South Korean puppet army fired at our side on that morning on two occasions amounted to more than 15,000; those from M-16 automatic rifles, more than 8,000; shells from 9-mm recoilless rifles, more than 30.

That the large-scale gunfirings perpetrated by the South Korean puppet army were premeditated and intentional provocations has been proven by the circumstances of the incidents. This has also been proven by the enemy's military movements after the incidents.

Around 1700 on 21 April, the South Korean puppet army fired 20 rounds from a large-caliber machinegun from a spot 1,300 meters south of MDL marker 1008 at our territory opposite this spot. At around 1515 on the same day, prior to this, it fired 20 rounds from an automatic weapon from a spot 350 meters south of MDL marker 1059 at our territory opposite this spot. Around 2125 on 21 April, the South Korean puppet army fired 20 rounds from an M-16 automatic rifle from a place near a spot 37 degrees, 49 minutes and 22 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees, 40 minutes and 48 seconds east longitude in the military control zone in the estuary of the Imjin River at our territory opposite this spot. Around 0722 on 22 April, it again committed similar armed provocations at a location near a spot 37 degrees, 50 minutes and 2 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees, 42 minutes and 49 seconds east longitude.

At around 1550 on 22 April, the South Korean puppet army fired scores of rounds of large-caliber machineguns from an outpost 900 meters south of MDL marker 0829 -- a place near the spot from which it had fired on the morning of 21 April.

At around 1830 and 2005 on 30 April, the South Korean puppet army committed armed provocations, firing more than 10 rounds from a large-caliber machinegun from a place near a spot 38 degrees, 17 minutes and 47 seconds north latitude and 128 degrees, 5 minutes and 10 seconds east longitude at our outposts opposite this spot on two occasions.

Our senior member said that the wicked armed provocations perpetrated by the South Korean puppet army were most outrageous violations of the armistice agreement and premeditated provocations designed to further heighten tension. Sternly denouncing the enemy side for wickedly committing an armed (?offensive) against our side, our senior member urged the enemy to guarantee responsible action to prevent the recurrence of such provocations. The meeting continues.

PROTEST LODGED ON 3 MAY SR-71 'INFILTRATION'

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors once again committed an act of espionage by infiltrating an SR-71 spy plane into the territorial skies inthe east and west of our country.

At 1414 on 3 May, the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated an SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the territorial airspace east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country. At 1432 on the same day, they committed an act of espionage against our country by infiltrating a spy plane into the airspace over the Kangyong Peninsula southwest of South Hwanghae Province.

Prattling about the North's military superiority, the U.S. imperialist aggressors have recently brought into South Korea more new aggressive weapons and intensified war exercises resembling a real war, while committing military espionage acts against the northern half of the republic in a more blatant way than ever before. This clearly shows how frantically the U.S. imperialist aggressors are leading the situation in our country to the brink of war and are accelerating preparations needed for an invasion of the northern half of the republic at any time.

VRPR CITES FLIERS OPPOSING KOREA-U.S. CENTENNIAL

[Text] According to a report by the Seoul city committee of the RPR, fliers entitled "We Desperately Oppose Functions Marking the Centennial of the Opening of relations Between Korea and the United States" have recently been scattered near Yoido Plaza.

The fliers say as follows: Citizens, the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan ruling bunch portray South Korea-U.S. relations as those between friends or companions. This is a shameless falsification of history and negation of reality. The 100 years since the U.S. aggressors invaded our country have been a history of aggression and plunder stained with blood. South Korea-U.S. relations today are master-servant relations between colonial rulers and the ruled. U.S. Vice President Bush recently visited South Korea and discussed partnership. This was to cover up their aggressive nature and boost the image of traitor Chon Tu-hwan.

Citizens, frustrating the functions marking the centennial of diplomatic relations between Korea and the United States is a righteous struggle against the aggressors and nation-selling traitors. Let us all come to our senses and struggle until we punish the flunkeyist traitors. Death to the Yankees!

Such was said in the fliers.

NODONG SINMUN MARKS 2 MAY STUDENT RIOTS IN SOUTH

[Text] Pyongyang, May 3 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN May 2 carried a signed article titled "No Repression Can Check Righteous Struggle of People." The anti-fascist struggle for democracy waged by over 12,000 students of Seoul University, South Korea, on May 2 two years ago spread to all parts of South Korea; it developed into a massive resistance of over 120,000 students from more than 60 universities on May 15 and called forth the heroic Kwangju popular uprising, the article notes, and says:

Today, two years after their May struggle, the South Korean students and people refuse to tolerate the repressive rule of traitor Chon Tu-hwan and, notably, are developing their struggle into an anti-U.S. struggle.

Recently, over 2,000 youth and students in Seoul highly praised the action of conscientious religionists in protecting the students who had set fire to the "American Cultural Center" in Pusan and staged an anti-"Government" demonstration. Students of Kangwon University, South Korea, actively defended the valiant anti-U.S. struggle of the students who had set fire to the "American Culture Center" in Pusan and held a demonstration, burning the U.S. flag and scattering anti-U.S., anti-"government" leaflets.

In their statements of protest, religious organisations of South Korea said that the "arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan was a matter of course" and it was a righteous struggle and that the religionists were right in protecting the patriotic students involved in this struggle and participants in the Kwangju popular uprising. And they strongly demanded that "commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea" Wickham be recalled home. This is a natural outcome.

It is none other than the U.S. imperialist aggressors who are backing the fascist rule of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the article says, and continues: It was the U.S. imperialists who manipulated behind the scene the massacre operation of the puppets when the heroic Kwangju popular uprising broke out. Now they are scheming to keep hold on South Korea forever and impose colonial slavery upon the people while encouraging the puppet clique to the suppression of the people, nation-splitting manoeuvres and provocation of another war. U.S. Vice-President Bush and many other bosses of U.S. imperialism recently crawled into South Korea one on the heels of another and openly revealed their intention to permanently occupy South Korea, threatening the people.

It is crystal-clear that unless the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule is terminated in South Korea, along with the overthrow of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, people cannot live in peace for a day nor can the democratisation of the South Korean society and the reunification of the country be expected. The South Korean people will more valiantly turn out to build a new society free from fascism and from aggression and domination of foreign forces and achieve the reunification of the country.

The U.S. imperialists and their stooge, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, must look straight at the situation and act with discretion. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan must immediately stop his treacheries to the country and the nation in suppressing and murdering fellow countrymen and step down from "power" as unanimously demanded by the people. The U.S. imperialist aggressors must no more encourage the treacheries of the puppets, but go back to their den, taking along their aggression forces.

VRPR SCORES 30 APR ROK ARMY COMMANDERS' MEETING

[Text] On the morning of 30 April, a so-called major army commanders' meeting was held at the war room in army headquarters with the participation of Army Chief of Staff Hwang Yong-si. The meeting was held to discuss matters on strengthening the operational posture of the army in the upcoming summer foliage season.

This meeting is intended to further accelerate war preparations under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion and to brutally suppress the recently increasing anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle of the people.

This meeting also shows that the army has become a tool for maintaining the Chon Tu-hwan ring's political power and for strengthening its military fascist ruling system.

The army should not suppress the people's patriotic struggle and should stand by the side of the people.

TEXT OF VRPR ON KIM CHONG-IL GUARDING KIM IL-SONG

SK030818 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Feature program: "Ray of Guidance" -- dialogue between station commentator Madame Yun and announcer Miss Yun]

[Text] [Miss Yun]: Hello, how are you? [Madame Yun]: Hello, how are you?

[Miss Yun]: The sagacious dear comrade leader, who is endlessly loyal to the great leader, can be said to be intent on caring for the health and long life of the great leader, giving priority, in his activities, to the respected and beloved leader's well-being.

[Madame Yun]: That is correct.

[Miss Yun]: As you know, the entire nation hopes for the good health and long life of the great leader, does it not? I think, without the great leader, we can hardly conceive of unlimited national prosperity or the growing future of our fatherland, nor can we think of freedom or happiness. I think, for this very reason, the entire people always wish good health and long life for the respected and beloved leader.

[Madame Yun]: Right.

[Miss Yun]: This unanimous aspiration of the nation is being brightly realized by the dear comrade -- the nation's star of guidance. He is said to be sacrificing everything to preserve the good health, long life and well-being of his father, the leader. The dear comrade leader's warm loyalty to the great leader, in regard to his caring for the good health, long life and well-being of the great leader, is said to have been extraordinary from boyhood.

[Madame Yun]: That's right. The dear comrade leader is said to have been loyal to the great leader from his boyhood. I recently obtained a copy of a book which contains stories about him. This is one of the stories. Young dear comrade leader, when the great leader was sleeping, used to drive birds and insects away from the garden lest their singing and buzzing waken the great leader. He wrote a letter to the respected and beloved leader at the commander in chief's headquarters at the height of the 25 June war. Shall I quote part of it?

[Miss Yun]: Yes, please.

[Madame Yun]: "Father, you are not simply an individual, but a leader of the entire Korean people. Therefore, your health, well-being and your caring for yourself is for the happiness of the entire Korean people as well as for us." This letter written by the dear comrade leader, in which he wrote that his father is not simply an individual but a great leader burdened with the fate of our revolution and that his health makes the entire Korean people happy, shows what a noble degree the dear comrade leader's loyalty in caring for the great leader's health reached.

[Miss Yun]: This is indeed reflecting the dear comrade leader's lofty feelings desiring the well-being of the great leader.

[Madame Yun]: That's right.

[Miss Yun]: The dear comrade leader's caring for the well-being of the great leader and loyalty to him have continued since boyhood. I think his caring for the great leader's well-being and loyalty to the leader are indeed lofty.

[Madame Yun]: Not for a moment in his busy day-to-day work for the party and state has the dear comrade leader ever forgotten to care for the well-being of the respected and beloved leader.

[Miss Yun]: Right.

[Madame Yun]: This being the nature of the dear comrade leader, it is said that whenever he organizes meetings or functions, he gives priority to the well-being of the fatherly leader and makes everything serve this end.

[Miss Yun]: Right.

[Madame Yun]: According to a comrade who has been to the North, the dear comrade leader, who always thinks of the great leader's well-being, ordered that all documents to be delivered to the leader be simplified as much as possible to prevent him from tiring easily.

[Miss Yun]: Right. This shows that he does not spare anything to ensure the well-being of the great leader.

[Madame Yun]: That's right.

[Miss Yun]: In particular, it is said that he willingly makes himself a member of the honor guard unit [Kunwidae] for the physical security of the great leader. A friend of mine who went abroad told me that the dear comrade leader voluntarily made himself a member of an entourage of the great leader to assist the great leader when he was visiting a foreign country long ago. Arriving there, the dear comrade leader saw to such matters as hotel rooms, the positioning of guards and others, correcting some errors. In addition, he volunteered to stand nightwatch without relief almost every night, walking around the garden, from time to time looking through the curtains into the room where the great leader slept. Indeed, these are stories which we cannot hear without emotion.

[Madame Yun]: These are not the only examples of the dear comrade leader's warm loyalty in regard to caring for the well-being of the great leader. It was in 1975 when the great leader was on his way home after concluding his visits to African and European countries. The plane the great leader was aboard happened to fly in the skies of NATO members. It was only after the dear comrade leader was assured that the plane with the great leader aboard had safely passed through the skies of those nations that he was relieved from his night-long sleeplessness.

On the evening when the great leader safely arrived in Pyongyang, the dear comrade leader personally called the cadre members who had organized the welcoming function for the great leader. He asked them if they knew if the leader had to walk in the dust which was raised by the crowd when the crowd on the lawn stamped their feet to welcome him. It is reported that he said to them: "You should not think you have carried out the function only because you offered him flower bouquets and assiduously organized the welcoming function. The cadre members were warmly affected by the dear comrade leader's ardent loyalty of caring for the well-being of the great leader, as well as felt a guilty conscience.

[Miss Yun]: Yes, it is a heart-warming story. There is another story which shows the good character of the dear comrade leader who is always concerned about how he can better guarantee the well-being and long life of the great leader. It is said that he is very sad that the fatherly leader had to wear glasses because he has worked hard, ignoring sleep at night all his life.

According to a comrade who has been to the North, the dear comrade leader has been deeply concerned about protecting the eyesight of the great leader. The dear comrade leader has had a little bright light emitted in front of the seat of the great leader so that the great leader might not feel darkness during art performances.

I think that the dear comrade leader's ardent loyalty, which is matchless in the history of the goodness of human beings for thousands of years, is the loftiest and noblest and beyond all comparison.

[Madame Yun]: I have another story. This is related by a fisherman who landed in the North as a result of a storm. This happened when preparations for celebrations to mark the 30th anniversary of the founding of the republic concluded. At dawn around 0300 on the day to celebrate the anniversary with the presence of the fatherly leader, the dear comrade leader came to the reviewing stand on the square. He wanted to conduct a preliminary check of the route which the great leader would later take in coming to the square.

The stairway of the passage way from the lounge to the speakers' platform is only two-step-layered. It is said that he ordered that the stairway be quickly leveled. He ordered that because he cared for the well-being of the great leader who would walk toward the platform, returning the enthusiastic cheers of the crowd. The dear comrade leader, who was carefully checking everything on the platform, held the steel railing of the platform and ordered that pieces of cloth be rolled around the steel railing so that the great leader might not feel chilly when he would take hold of the railing.

[Miss Yun]: I think that indeed the stories about the dear comrade leader's loyalty to the great leader, his care for the well-being of the great leader, have no limits. Dear Comrade leader Kim Chong-il cares for the well-being, good health and long life of the great leader day in and day out, deriving pleasure and happiness in ensuring the well-being of the great leader. He is a great example for all the revolutionaries of our era.

[Madame Yun]: Is he not? The more we hear about the dear comrade leader's warm loyalty to the great leader in his devotion to ensure the well-being of the great leader, the stronger is our resolve to enhance our loyalty to the great leader by emulating the dear comrade leader's noble example and to hasten national reunification and revolution to make the leadership of the great leader blossom in this land.

NODONG SINMUN DISCUSSES PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT

[NODONG SINMUN 2 May special article: "People's Government Is Political Weapon Which Guarantees Working Masses an Independent and Creative Life"; KCNA identifies this as an article]

[Text] In his classic work "The Task of People's Government for Remodelling Society on the Chuche Idea," the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song elucidated that to build communism, we should march forward with the uplifted banners of people's government and the three revolutions. He laid down the unique ideology that people's government is a political weapon which guarantees the working masses an independent and creative life. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: People's government is a political weapon which guarantees the working masses an independent and creative life.

The proposition advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a classic formulation of the character of people's government in the struggle for independence. To correctly define the character of people's government is the most important question in building and strengthening power. When the question is straightened out, we can enhance the functions of people's government and advance the struggle for the independence of the working masses. Revolution is the struggle for the independence of the working masses. Independence is guaranteed by power.

The independent rights and creative activities of the people are fully expressed when they hold the power of the state and exercise it correctly.

The power of the state is a basic factor which defines the status and role of the people. In a socialist society where the interests of the people are unanimous and unity and cooperation form the basis of social relations, power represents the interests of social strata and is a means for realizing those interests, whereas in an exploitative society power serves as a means for defending and realizing the interests of a social class. The popular masses should, therefore, become the masters of power and continuously consolidate power if they exercise independence.

Today our people implement the historic cause of remodelling society on the chuche idea. The question of enhancing the functions and role of people's government at this historic juncture is important. The struggle to remodel society on the chuche idea is a noble cause to accelerate our revolution, which began and has developed under the banner of the chuche idea, and to build communism, the ideal of mankind. Remodelling society on the chuche idea is the historic mission of the government of the republic. Only when we promote the functions and role of people's government can we accelerate the revolution and construction to vigorously advance the struggle to remodel society on the chuche idea and the cause of communism.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clarified the character of people's government in line with the realistic demand of our developing revolution which carries out the cause of remodelling society on the chuche idea. By so doing, he ensured people's government smoothly discharges its duties and functions. With the ideology on the character of people's government advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the most revolutionary way to ensure the popular masses independent rights and creative activities was brought to light. Independent rights and creative activities are the features of men. Through independent rights and creative activities, men gain the status as masters of the nature and society, creditably discharge their role as the masters and lead a life worthy of men. Accordingly, ensuring the popular masses independent rights and creative activities is the fundamental demand for having them lead an independent and creative life.

The independent will and demand of the popular masses become comprehensive by people's government and are realized through people's government. People's government represents the independent rights of the working masses and organizes the creative faculties of the popular masses. Only under people's government can the working masses become genuine masters of state and society who have independent rights and add value to human dignity. At the same time, people's government educates and indoctrinates all the members of society, enrolling them in state organizations, and marshals them as a political force, turning the popular masses into a boundlessly creative and powerful dynamic force for social progress.

Organization and unity are the fundamental sources of the creative might of the people. When the masses are not united or organized, they are, in fact, unable to display any strength and they cannot become a powerful force for remodelling and changing nature and society in a revolutionary fashion.

The unity and cohesion of the masses of people are realized and consolidated by the people's government -- a most comprehensive political organization. With the character of the people's government elucidated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, its militant function as the representative of the people's independent rights and as the organizer of their creative ability has been strengthened further, and an epochal turning point has been reached in achieving the independence of the masses of people. Thus, the people, with their independent rights, have come to enjoy a free and happy life. They are able to develop their unity and cooperative relations and further accelerate the revolution and construction by heightening their creative role.

The idea, advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, that the people's government serves as a political weapon which guarantees an independent and creative life for the masses is the elucidation of a firm guideline capable of providing the people with a happy material and cultural life.

The independence of the working people, together with their independent rights, is ensured by a material and cultural life. The material and cultural life of the people is an important part of social life and, without it, we can hardly speak of the independent and creative life of the masses of people. For this reason, to enhance the people's material and cultural life is an indispensable condition for their leading an independent and creative life.

In his work, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song elucidated that the people's government is the head of family, responsible for the people's life. This shows that the people's government should not only thoroughly defend and realize the people's aspirations and demands for independence but should also become a genuine people's government providing them with the happiest and most rewarding life. To have all the people lead a happy life and to systematically enhance their material and cultural life is an inherent characteristic of a socialist system. While the state in an exploiting society is used as a tool to exploit and suppress the working masses, such as peasants and workers, the state in a socialist society has a duty to responsibly ensure the material and cultural life of the people.

The object of our energetic advance in socialist and communist construction is, ultimately, to endlessly enhance the material and cultural life of the people and to make them all well-off. With the character of people's government clearly elucidated in his work, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has provided a revolutionary method of guaranteeing the people a more satisfactory and cultured life by enhancing the function of the people's government as the head of family wholly responsible for the people's life.

Thus, corresponding to its mission, our people's government has been able to wage a more vigorous struggle to strengthen its leadership in economic and cultural construction as well as to enhance the people's life. This is tantamount to opening a glowing path to systematically enhance the material and cultural life of the people, to eliminate the differences in working people's living standards and to make all the people equally lead a better life.

With the revolutionary idea on the character of the people's government elucidated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, a firm guarantee for defending the independent and creative life of the people has been provided. Even after the socialist system has been established, remnants of the toppled exploiting class and impure elements remain; danger of aggression by foreign imperialism also constantly remains. Under such conditions, enhancing the function and role of the people's government as a weapon for class struggle becomes an important demand for the defense of the people's independent and creative life.

In his work the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has clearly stated that the people's government is the defender of the working people's independent and creative life. This is a guideline enabling the people's government to firmly observe its class stand and revolutionary principle throughout the entire historic period of socialist and communist construction, based on a most scientific analysis of the lawful process in which the independence of the working masses is realized through the class struggle.

The function of the people's government as a weapon for class struggle should continue until communism is built. If we neglect class struggle, the people's interest will be harmed and grave consequences endangering the people's government itself will ensue.

With elucidation by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song of the function of the people's government as a weapon for class struggle, we can credibly guarantee the protection of the people's independent and creative life against any infringement by the enemy and vigorously advance, without any twists or turns, the struggle to realize the working people's independence. Indeed, the fact that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song extensively elucidated the characteristics of the people's government is an important event enabling the people's government to ensure the independent and creative life of the working people by brilliantly fulfilling its political mission and function corresponding to the historic era of modeling the entire society on the chuche idea.

All functionaries and workers of the governing organs should deeply study and learn the revolutionary ideas and theory put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his classic work, "Tasks of the People's Government To Model the Entire Society on the Chuche Idea" correctly understand their essence and thoroughly embody them. It is important for the functionaries of the people's government, in strengthening the people's government and enhancing its function in every way, to smoothly fulfill the duties and role assigned to them.

The functionaries of the organizations of the people's government are servants of the people and play an important role in strengthening and developing the organizations of the government. All functionaries of government organizations, deeply mingling with the masses, should explain and propagate the party's lines and policy to them, should seek proper measures to implement them by holding discussions with the masses and should encourage the masses to voluntarily participate in tasks to accomplish the party's policy. At the same time, they should actively struggle to look after the people's life in a responsible manner and to ceaselessly promote their material and cultural welfare.

Our people's government is not only a government suiting the stage of democratic revolution and socialist revolution but is a most superior government suiting the era of struggle to build socialism and communism. Deeply cherishing lofty pride in possessing the most superior revolutionary government, all party members and workers should participate in strengthening and developing the people's government in a manner worthy of masters.

We should strengthen our people's government in every way by brilliantly embodying the revolutionary ideas and theory put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his classic work, "Tasks of the People's Government To Model the Entire Society on the Chuche Idea," and expedite the historic cause of the chuche-orientation of the entire society.

UNC PROPOSES NNSC INVESTIGATE DMZ INCIDENTS

[Text] Panmunjom, Korea, May 4 (YONHAP) -- The U.S.-led United Nations Command (UNC) proposed to North Korea that the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission (NNSC) be given investigative responsibilities in the Demilitarized Zone at the 412th meeting of the Military Armistice Commission (MAC) held here Tuesday.

Rear Adm. James Storms, the UNC senior member to MAC, said, "These responsibilities would include investigating alleged major armistice agreement violations as well as investigating and reporting on the progress of removal of personnel and material from the DMZ." Storms said the proposal was made because the North Korean side "refuses to use the joint observer teams established by the armistice agreement to investigate allegations by either side."

Storms also said: "Based on current results, neither your side's method nor our side's method seems to contribute significantly to the desired outcome -- incident prevention. Both methods apparently serve only to permit each side to disclaim the findings of the other side." He said that authorizing the NNSC with such powers would avoid any objections based on intelligence gathering because the investigations would be made up of neutral observers.

North Korean senior member to the MAC Maj. Gen. Han Chu-kyong labeled the proposal "ludicrous" claiming that the UNC provoked the April 21 exchange of fire across the DMZ, destroying North Korean guard posts and inficting casualties. Han charged the UNC did not offer any responsible measures to prevent such incidents, but avoided its responsibility by merely turning it over to the NNSC.

North Korea originally requested the meeting be held April 27, but the UNC counterproposal for a Tuesday meeting was accepted by the North. The North Korean proposal came two days after the four-hour shooting incident across the DMZ on April 21.

ARMY COMMANDERS TO ADOPT NEW DEFENSE POSTURE

[Text] Commanders of major army units were told yesterday to take a fundamentally new defense posture on an overall offensive footing, departing from the general defensive concept which had been maintained since the founding of the armed forces.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Hwang Yong-si gave the instruction to an expanded commanders' meeting at the army headquarters. "We now have a need to fundamentally review our posture to overwhelm North Korea and protect the nation's right to survival," the army chief said. "The army has grown up as a defense-oriented general-purpose military organization in imitation of foreign organizational concepts and has not attempted to correct this course. Until today, it has failed to formulate an original military ideal based on the philosophy of national survival, any practical strategy guaranteeing deterrence of war, or any wide-ranging vision for contribution to national prosperity," Gen. Hwang pointed out.

"Therefore," he went on, "the most urgent task of the army at this moment is to restore our original shape and spirit and correct from the root all vulnerabilities that obstruct the development and vitality of the military."

He explained that the army should now be geared to the strengthening of ideological armament, the construction of offensive military power, economic operation of the forces, realization of broad unity and positive contributions to state policies as its new direction. He asked all levels of commanders to exert their total capabilities in achieving these goals by all means "putting your honor and position at stake and risking any sacrifice."

In the meeting, the commanders were asked to take strict precautions to check effectively the infiltration of North Korean armed agents expected to rise taking advantage of the green shade of trees in the spring and summer seasons. Noting the paramount importance of strong national consensus, they decided to spearhead the current pan-national spiritual renovation movement.

[Text] The National Assembly will hold a five-day special session Friday to look extensively into a deranged policeman's firing incident in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo. Three major political parties agreed on the special sitting, when their floor leaders huddled at the speaker's residence last night.

Speaker Chong Nae-hyok will announce the convocation of the extraordinary sitting today. Following a brief opening ceremony detailed report on the shooting rampage, and lawmakers will take the floor to interpellate the government. The interpellation will last through Saturday.

The assembly will convene five of the 13 standing committees Monday. The five are the Home Affairs, Defense, Legislation-Justice, Health-Social Affairs and Steering Committees. The assembly is slated to adopt a recommendation to the government in a plenary session before the five-day extraordinary sitting ends next Tuesday.

Emerging from the floor leaders' meeting, Yi Chong-chan of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) said "the shocking incident" calls for a special session. The Home Affairs Committee dealt with the incident in detail last Friday, which requires extensive discussions by other pertinent committees, Yi said. A recommendation will be drawn up at the end of the five-day special session which is designed to handle the incident "from a dimension of policies," he noted. The agreement made among floor leaders early last month to hold a special session late this month or early in June is subject to negotiation, he said.

Yim Chong-ki of the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) said he expects the government will present a final report on the incident to a plenary session. The government should make a political decision following the report, he said. He did not say what he meant by political decision, however. The DKP's demand for the en masse resignation is pending "the sincerity of the report and an apology," he disclosed.

Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun should offer an apology to the people on the occasion of the special session, Yi Tong-chin of the opposition Korea National Party (KNP) said. A policeman ran amok in Uiryong, Kyongsang-namdo April 26, shot 56 persons to death and injured more than 30.

In the meantime, the floor leaders of the DJP, DKP and KNP agreed to meet again Thursday to work out a detailed schedule for the special session. Earlier in the day, the DJP held two rounds of inconclusive meetings intended to work out a consensus on whether or not to hold a special assembly session to look into last week's firing rampage. Most participants in the meetings shared a view that it would hardly be desirable to hold a special session, because the issue had already been handled in detail at the Home Affairs Committee. Without making a consensus at the meetings, the DJP empowered floor leader Yi Chong-chang to determine matters about a special assembly session, spokesman Pong Tu-wan said. Kim Chong-ho, chairman of the Home Affairs Committee, briefed the meeting of senior officers and the subsequent floor strategy meeting on the results of Friday's panel session.

SINMUN VIEWS 'LESSON' TAUGHT BY FALL OF VIETNAM

[Editorial: "Vietnam: Where Has It Gone?"]

[Excerpts] This year's touring meetings on the security situation in major cities and provinces, which began on 15 April in Seoul, ends with its final meeting on Cheju Island on 30 April. Coincidently, today is the 7th anniversary of the fall of Vietnam, which was once our ally and for whom our army shed blood.

Vietnam, 2 years after it signed the truce, was absurdly defeated by a surprise attack of the communist North Vietnamese armed forces and was communized.

For this reason, with the report meetings on the security situation ending today, we must once again remember the fall of Vietnam 7 years ago as a valuable and precious lesson for us in view of the situation we find ourselves in today.

This lesson can be summarized in three parts.

Firstly, in today's international community, no country can entirely trust its own security to assistance from allied countries. In other words, without a determination for self-reliance in national defense and preparations for such strength equivalent to such a determination, no collective security system successfully serves its purpose. The fall of Vietnam teaches us such a bitter lesson.

What we must pay special attention to is that broader national harmony and unity are more indispensable than the maintenance of a strong army in establishing a defense posture.

Following the signing of the 1973 truce agreement, as a result of the antigovernment struggle led by the so-called third force, which asserted to be representing the conscience of the Vietnamese people, Vietnam's national consensus disintegrated just like sand and the Vietnamese political situation was plunged into chaos. Unable to stand it any longer, the United States, after 10 years of participation in the Vietnamese war, having sacrificed some 50,000 men and officers and expended some $100 billion in the war, withdrew from Vietnam. This coldly shows the reality and essence of a collective security system, which assumes mutual cooperation based on partnership as its major condition.

Secondly, the Vietnam war was not simply an internal conflict in a nation but a proxy war for the Soviet Union which is bent on communizing the world. This is readily proven by the fact that Vietnam is now under direct domination of the Soviet expansionism. How can we, who witnessed the southward invasion of 25 June waged by the North Korean puppets and are now confronting them -- who, backed by the Soviet Far East military forces, are insidiously waiting for an opportunity for southward invasion -- forget this lesson even for a minute?

Thirdly, signing a truce agreement with communists does not always mean peace. That is, communists, pretending to observe a truce agreement whenever they find the situation to be unfavorable to them, will always break the agreement and resort to invasion when the situation turns favorable. The North Korean puppets are no exception as far as this is concerned.

It is all the more regrettable that some senseless students and religionists, forgetting this lesson, have recently committed injudicious acts which quite possibly could repeat the Vietnamese example.

In view of the results so far, the burning of the American Cultural Center in Pusan and the anti-U.S. statement issued by some religionists in support of the arson are acts destroying national security and benefiting the enemy, and they deserve denunciation.

Needless to say, the most urgent task facing us at this moment is to firmly ensure national security and the people's rights to existence while achieving sustained national development in order and stability. To achieve this, a reestablishment of a clear-cut outlook on national security -- a common denominator for national harmony -- is called for more than anything else.

AFP CITES KPNLF COMMUNIQUE ON COALITION PROPOSAL

BK030752 Hong Kong AFP in English 0737 GMT 3 May 82

[Text] Bangkok, 3 May (AFP) -- The three anti-Vietnamese Cambodian resistance movements have agreed to participate "in a common struggle, retaining their own identity, their own ideology and their own points of view," the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) said in a communique reaching here today.

The three groups -- the KPNLF, the Khmer Rouge and the movement of former Cambodian leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk -- are seeking the withdrawal of some 170,000 Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, but have not yet succeeded in forming a joint front.

The leader of the non-communist KPNLF, former Premier Son Sann, said during a recent visit to Singapore and Kuala Lumpur that he was ready to have a meeting with the two other groups, one of which -- the Khmer Rouge -- holds the Cambodian seat at the United Nations.

The KPNLF communique said that Son Sann "is determined to contribute to the formation of the coalition government of Democratic Kampuchea." It said he hoped that a new meeting of the three movements would be held "without delay" in one of the capitals of the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) grouping Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines.

The communique also said Son Sann would send the two other movements "a constructive proposal that should lead to the immediate formation of a coalition government."

Earlier this year, Khmer Rouge Premier Khieu Samphan and Prince Sihanouk held talks in Beijing which Mr. Son Sann did not attend.

BANGKOK REPORTS KHIEU SAMPHAN-SON SANN MEETING

BK040100 Bangkok POST in English 4 May 82 p 1

[Text] Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan and the leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), Son Sann, held talks at an undisclosed location last week, leading to some hope that a meeting of the three Kampuchean resistance factions might take place by the end of this month. The venue for the meeting of the three factions has been tentatively fixed at Kuala Lumpur.

Informed sources described the atmosphere at last week's talks between Khieu Samphan and Son Sann as "very friendly, with both sides seeming to soften their original positions."

Both Democratic Kampuchea (Khmer Rouge) and the KPNLF expressed major policy differences over the framework of the proposed loose coalition of anti-Vietnamese forces during the nine rounds of meetings the ad hoc committee in Bangkok last year. Son Sann even failed to show up at the summit meeting of the three groups organised by the Chinese Government last year in Beijing.

However, following last week's meeting, the KPNLF issued a press release stating that Son Sann remained determined to contribute to the formation of a coalition government, and to lead the struggle in all forms against Vietnamese aggression until Kampuchea is totally liberated.

The release stated that Son Sann would make known his "constructive" proposal aiming at the immediate formation of a coalition government, and would make efforts to ensure that the coalition becomes an acceptable reality.

It quoted Son Sann as saying he hoped a meeting of the three resistance factions would take place soon.

SINGAPORE PAPER CARRIES SON SANN INTERVIEW

BK260958 Singapore THE STRAITS TIMES in English 24 Apr 82 p 18

[Excerpts of interview with KPNLF leader Son Sann by Nancy Cheng -- given 20 April in Bangkok; capitalized passages published in boldface]

[Text] ON HIS RECENT 4-MONTH TOUR TO EUROPE, THE U.S. AND CANADA; "Our mission was to tell people everywhere about our situation. We expose our needs, you know, like Buddhist monks in the morning standing with the bowls; whatever you give them, they are satisfied. Also, I was asking my countrymen for their opinion, Cambodians everywhere object to a tight collaboration with the Khmer Rouge. I met many sympathetic people and I believe humantarian aid for us is increasing. But many governments look to the ASEAN countries for [the] lead, for example, in the provision of aid, and to find a formula for a coalition government. ASEAN is the key.

"Many Western governments are asked by their people why they voted to support the DK (Democratic Kampuchean) seat at the UN when the government committed so many atrocities. The reason is the ASEAN formula so far has been the best to keep the Heng Samrin regime out. Australia did not vote for the DK Government, but they told us they will vote for a coalition government seat in the UN if we were in it. In Europe, I was particularly pleased with the resolution passed at the European parliament at Strasbourg which, among other things, unanimously acknowledged the existence of the KPNLF."

ON THE KPNLF'S IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVES: "The main objective, of course, is to fight the Vietnamese in order to liberate our country. Secondly, to maintain a seat at the UN on the resistance side. We have to help, serve and defend the Khmer people."

ON CLAIMS THAT THE VIETNAMESE HAVE BROUGHT PEACE AND ORDER TO KAMPUCHEA: "People who say that are not the real friends of Kampuchea, they are making propaganda. We continue the resistance to Vietnamese occupation because we do not want to become second-class Vietnamese.

"The Vietnamese want us to become assimilated into their culture. The Khmer will have to change their names and learn their language, just like what happened during the last century when the Vietnamese 'liberated' the Muslim state of Champa in Vietnam. And the people there had to escape into Kampuchea to avoid becoming Vietnamese. The Vietnamese population, too, is not having enough to eat, so their troops take our rice and food for themselves and send some back to Vietnam.

"Before this occupation, Kampuchea exported food -- we had plenty of rice and fish -- but now the Vietnamese are taking it away, so they are not doing something good for the Cambodian people. A lot of smuggling goes on in Phnom Penh, so people living in the cities do not suffer as much as those in the countryside. Some of them have nothing to eat. They come into our zones, arriving in bad condition. Our zones now have a population of over 120,000 and it is swelling every week."

ON SOME JOURNALISTS' COMMENTS THAT THE NAME SON SANN IS NOT WELL KNOWN INSIDE KAMPUCHEA: "I am not fighting for fame. I am fighting for liberation."

ON THE BATTLE OF SOKH SANN: "There are four reasons why the Vietnamese attacked Sokh Sann. One, they intended to wipe out Khmer resistance. Two, they wanted to eliminate our forces in Sokh Sann. Three, they wanted to break the morale and will of our soldiers to fight and, four, they wanted to capture our position in Kampuchea.

"Though we had to evacuate our camps in the area, it is the Vietnamese who lost the battle because they not only failed to lower the Khmer people's morale; they suffered over 1,000 casualties. On our side we had only 18 wounded and six killed. And their invading forces outnumbered ours eight to one.

"During my visit last week to the new settlement area, I was told that the Vietnamese soldiers tried to force one woman and her young child to goback to Phnom Penh by setting fire to her hut to force her decision. But she preferred death and leapt into the flames with her daughter. The Vietnamese razed two camps.

"We need much help from friends. We do not want to embarrass our friends by specifying our needs, but they know what we want. We are grateful to those who help us. We have 9,000 men but not enough weapons. There are 3,000 more men, fully trained but no arms. The 3-day battle at Sokh Sann established our credibility as a fighting force, and the morale of the soldiers is very high. "During my visit last week, the people there unanimously reaffirmed their desire to remain in the zone to fight the Vietnamese rather than go to a third country or to return to occupied Kampuchea."

ON THE NEED TO RESTORE ANGKOR WAT: "The KPNLF was the first to propose a neutral and demilitarized zone around Angkor Wat and Angkor Thom, back in 1978. We have just written to the director-general of UNESCO urging him to take the matter up. We prefer to take charge of the restoration of Angkor Wat ourselves, but the ruins must be restored by experts immediately."

CHEA SIM ADDRESSES PHNOM PENH MAY DAY MEETING

BK031427 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0408 GMT 1 May 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 1 May (SPK) -- Chea Sim, chairman of the KUFNCD National Council and chairman of the National Assembly, addressed a meeting held in Phnom Penh this morning under the sponsorship of the front in honor of the International Labor Day (1 May). He appealed to Kampuchean workers to unite closely in order to implement the resolutions of the fourth party congress and of the third plenary session of the party Central Committee.

Present in the presidium were, among others, Chea Sim, of the KUFNCD National Council and of the National Assembly; Mat Ly, vice chairman of the National Assembly; Soy Keo, deputy minister of national defense; Yos Por, secretary general of the KUFNCD; and Tep Vong, vice chairman of the National Assembly. Members of the diplomatic corps accredited to Kampuchea also attended.

Following the opening speech by Heng Teav, vice chairman of the Kampuchean Federation of Trade Unions, Chairman Chea Sim said: In this solemn festival, we take the liberty of expressing our warmest congratulations to the Soviet Union, the first socialist country in the world which blazed the trial toward communism.

We take the liberty of expressing our congratulations to the fraternal countries of the socialist community, which stands as the solid bulwark of the revolutionary currents and which is now making admirable achievements in socialist construction. We congratulate the oppressed nations which have broken their fetters and recovered their independence and freedom. We congratulate the international working class, the fighters for peace, who have won many victories in pursuing their noble objectives of fighting for the right to live in peace and for democracy and for social progress by preventing the U.S. imperialists and other reactionaries from perpetrating perfidious maneuvers. In fact, these latter wanted to push mankind into the abyss of a destructive and tragic nuclear war.

We are very pleased with the rapid development of the present world situation.

Chairman Chea Sim went on to say: Thanks to the assistance and support of the revolutionary alliance between the two fraternal peoples of Vietnam and Laos [as received], of the fraternal socialist countries and of the progressive peoples in the world, the Kampuchean people won victories over the French colonialists and U.S. imperialist aggressors and totally overturned the barbarous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime which was in the pay of the Beijing expansionists. Following the 7 January 1979 historic victory, our country entered a new era -- an era of independence and freedom while progressing toward socialism, an era which inspires progressive mankind to the highest degree.

Our people, who were treated as slaves, have been saved, have risen up for the first time in their history and have become the masters of their lives, destiny and fatherland.

Aware of being the masters of their own territory, during these past 3 years our people have made sacrifices and struggled firmly and courageously, winning great victories in all fields. Thanks to the support of the army and people of Vietnam, our army and people successively foiled all the dry-season subversive plans and maneuvers of our enemies. Our land and our people have experienced a rapid rebrith. The life of our people has gradually stabilized.

Political security and social order are, in a word, well maintained. The Fourth KPRP Congress held in May 1981 fixed the pertinent political line of our country's revolution. Through democratic commune-level elections and general elections, the state power has been established from the central to the grassroots echelons and is growing stronger with each passing day.

The Second and Third KUFNCD Congresses have consolidated the national alliance and solidarity. Those who previously sided with the enemy have returned to the fold and are living normally with our inhabitants. Their number is growing every day.

On the international stage, the role and prestige of the PRK are growing with each passing day. The militant alliance of the three fraternal Indochinese countries now constitutes a solid and vigorous force. The solidarity and cooperation among the three Indochinese countries and the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries has developed further. This is a factor justifying the continuing progress of the revolution of our country.

In order to amplify these victories, during the past dry season our army and people successively achieved new and appreciable gains. The Pol Pot-Ieng Sary traitors, despite the aid and assistance of their Beijing expansionist bosses, could only experience more stinging defeats. In fact, they failed in their subversive maneuvers during the past dry season.

Since then, we have prevailed over drought and floods, thereby ensuring production during the rainy season. The arable land throughout the country has increased by 15 percent compared to the 1980-81 dry season.

Our workers and artisans have made great efforts to produce the tools for necessary agriculture and goods to meet the needs of the people. Our rubber plantation workers have been trying to increase rubber production. Through the rehabilitation of industrial and rubber production, the working force and trade union organization have been established and have developed. On the occasion of the new year, our people joyfully celebrated the Chaul Chhnam Thmei Festival in complete security. This clearly proves that the mass organizations have rapidly developed, successfully implemented the resolutions of the fourth party congress and that our people are inspired by a sense of patriotism and love for the new regime. And all of this demonstrates the stability and progress of our country's revolution.

What we have achieved up to now, Chea Sim stressed, we owe to the Communist Party, government, people and army of Vietnam, who have not hesitated to make sacrifices in order to save us from the abyss of genocide and who continue to assist us and sincerely support us in defending our national independence and building the fatherland.

We would like to thank the comrade Vietnamese experts who are now sharing our hardships, who are carrying out heavy tasks with us and who are making every effort while displaying a high sense of internationalism to help us.

We express the feelings of our people to the parties, governments and peoples of Vietnam, Laos, the USSR and other peoples of the fraternal socialist countries, who, in good collaboration, effectively support our people in all fields. We sincerely thank the international working class; the peace-, freedom- and justice-loving forces in the world; the Indian Government and people and the other nonaligned countries; and the international organizations and friends who have contributed and are contributing their active support to our people.

Our people are determined to carry out the resolutions of the Third Plenary Session of the KPRP; foil all the destructive maneuvers of the Beijing expansionists and U.S. imperialists; firmly defend the territory, territorial waters and airspace of the fatherland; and, at the same time, make efforts to redress the economy, with agriculture as the core.

Chea Sim talked about the tasks for 1982 and stated: To carry out all our revolutionary tasks successfully, we must grasp and observe the political line laid down by the party and hold aloft the two banners of authentic patriotism and proletarian internationalism.

Solidarity with Vietnam is a political line of strategic significance and with a determined character for the Kampuchean revolution.

He said: Our people want to maintain the bonds of solidarity and sincere and loyal friendship between Kampuchea and Vietnam just as they would protect that which is most dear to them. Our people are pleased with the brilliant successes of the Fifth VCP Congress and wish the Vietnamese people success in the implementation of the fifth congress resolutions. We express satisfaction with the Third LPDR Congress. We wish the congress brilliant successes and a successful implementation of its resolutions! We will strive to defend, maintain and immortalize the alliance between Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos. In fact, this is a determining factor for the victory of the revolution of the three Indochinese countries and a factor in guaranteeing peace and stability in Southeast Asia. Together with the fraternal peoples of Vietnam and Laos, we reaffirm the effective position and the will contained in the proposals presented at the conference of the three Indochinese foreign ministers in Ho Chi Minh City and the conference held in Vientiane in February.

We enthusiastically welcome the pertinent initiatives of the Soviet Union put forward by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev at the 26th CPSU Congress, at the 17th trade union congress and recently in Tashkent.

We resolutely support the struggle of the peoples of the countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America who oppose imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, apartheid and Zionism and who are struggling for national independence and social progress.

The chairman pointed out that the greatest danger to mankind is the collusion between imperialism headed by the United States and the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists and affirmed that the solidarity of the progressive forces in the world will cause their warmongering policy to fail.

Chairman Chea Sim appealed to the combatants, workers, intellectuals, peasants and Kampucheans living abroad to unite, cooperate with the fraternal Vietnamese people and make efforts to implement the resolutions of the Fourth KPRP Congress, the Third Plenary Session of the KPRP Central Committee as well as the 10-point program of the front successfully.

KAMPUCHEA COMMENTS ON INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY

BK030716 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0401 GMT 1 May 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 1 May (SPK) -- Like workers of other countries, Kampuchean workers are aware of the great changes in the world, says the paper KAMPUCHEA in an editorial welcoming International Labor Day, 1 May.

The victory of the Russian October Revolution in 1917, the paper says, has given birth to a new society, dislodged colonialism from colonies and weakened the imperialist system. The three revolutionary currents -- the development of the socialist community, the national liberation and independence movement and the struggle of workers in the capitalist countries -- are combined into a powerful force of struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

Carried away by their own momentum, all peoples are heightening vigilance and seeking by every means possible to foil the maneuvers of international reaction led by U.S. imperialism which, in collusion with the Beijing ruling circles, is foolishly indulging in an arms race, threatening to launch a nuclear war and engaging in the conquest of lost territories.

In Kampuchea, the paper goes on, where the feudalist regime was toppled and that of genocide abolished, the multifaceted cooperation with Vietnam and Laos, and the assistance of the socialist community fostered by the Soviet Union and progressives in the world, have helped the Kampuchean revolution advance steadily in spite of the maneuver of the Chinese expansionists, the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys.

The front's central organ urges workers throughout the country to do their best to make the 1982 economic and cultural development plan a success and to defeat the psychological warfare and the sabotage activities of Chinese expansionism, U.S. imperialism and their lackeys -- Pol Pot, Son Sann and Sihanouk.

The paper calls on the Kampuchean people to implement the resolutions of the Fourth KPRP Congress, thereby contributing to the struggle of the working class and workers throughout the world for peace, independence, democracy and socialism, the paper concludes.

RADIO COMMENTARY WELCOMES LPRP CONGRESS

[Unattributed editorial: "Warmest Welcome to the Third Congress of the Glorious LPRP"]

[Text] After carrying out its tasks for a period of time in which it achieved brilliant successes in al' fields, the LPRP today convenes its third congress in a joyous atmosphere. Filled with profound sentiments of friendship and militant solidarity, the entire party and people of Kampuchea sincerely greet the fraternal Lao party, government and people on this grand opening of the Third LPRP Congress.

The Kampuchean people are well aware that the LPRP, formerly the Indochinese Communist Party, was founded to fight and topple the feudalist regime and the oppressor class of all stripes as well as the aggressive colonialists. As soon as it was founded, the LPRP fought vigorously in the resistance against the French colonialists and U.S. imperialists and for the salvation of the Lao people and country. Particularly, since its victory over the U.S. imperialists in 1975, the LPRP has disseminated a correct line in leading the Lao people throughout the country to struggle vigorously in order to build their nation and fatherland. It is due to this correct and wise leadership of the LPRP that the Lao people have scored brilliant achievements in all aspects, such as in the political, economic, social and cultural fields. At the same time, the revolutionary power has been strengthened with every passing day and the people's livelihood has become increasingly stable. Moreover, the unity of the entire nation remains firm. No reactionary force can break this unity. The enemy of the Lao people is very furious to see the constant development of the Lao revolution. The Beijing hegemonists and expansionists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, have sought by all means to destroy the achievements of the Lao revolution. They have instigated the reactinaries who are their lackeys to sabotage the peaceful life of the Lao people living along the border area adjacent to China, continued their threats and created constant tension there; however, these perfidious maneuvers and activities have all been frustrated.

All these brilliant achievements and great feats achieved by the fraternal Lao people attest to the correct and wise leadership of the LPRP which is a genuine Marxist-Leninist party. The LPRP has created its lines of leadership with lively scientific characteristics in conformity with the concrete conditions of the country and people. At the same time, these victories cannot be separated from the sincere support and assistance of Kampuchea, Vietnam, the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries. These victories are achieved through the line of national independence that links closely with that of international solidarity initiated and constantly implemented by the LPRP.

The Third LPRP Congress will correctly evaluate the situation in the country and the achievements of the tasks set forth by the second congress as well as set targets for future implementation in order to build the country toward socialism. For this reason, the Third LPRP Congress is of great significance in initiating new lines for implementation by the Lao revolution and people.

Filled with sentiments of friendship and militant solidarity, the Kampuchean people warmly greet the great achievements scored in the past by the fraternal Lao people. The entire party and people of Kampuchea express their sincere welcome to the Third LPRP Congress and wish it brilliant success.

Sisomphon Lovansai's Speech

[Speech by Sisomphon Lovansai, member of LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, at closing session of Third LPRP Congress -- live]

[Text] Respected members of the presidium, distinguished guests, dear comrade delegates: Assigned by the presidium of the congress, I would like to announce the results of the election of the party Central Committee elected at this third congress of our party.

In the face of the requirements and heavy responsibilities in the new period of the revolution, the congress has decided to increase the sectors that make up the party Central Committee in both quantity and quality. They are as follows:

To ensure the guiding and organizing of the implementation of the congress resolution, the new party Central Committee comprised 55 comrades -- 49 comrades are full members and 6 comrades are alternate members. They represent both sexes, all ages and nationalities at the central and local levels, and various strata. The ratio is: Lao Loum [Lao people living in the lowlands], 79 percent; Lao Theung [groups of Lao tribes living in hilly areas], 15 percent; and Lao Soung [also called Meo people], 6 percent.

In short, there was only one woman in the previous party Central Committee. The current Central Committee includes four female comrades. The average age of this party Central Committee is 55, with the oldest being 74, and the youngest being 38. There are 15 comrades who were members of the Indochinese Communist Party.

The previous party Central Committee comprised 27 comrades, all of whom have been reelected. Khamsouk Sai-gnaseng's Speech

[Speech by Khamsouk Sai-gnaseng, member of the LPRP Central Committee and minister of agriculture, forestry and irrigation, delivered at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- recorded; date not given]

[Text] Respected presidium, beloved distinguished guests and comrades: First of all, we would like to welcome and express our wholehearted support for the political report presented by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee, and the other reports read at this congress.

I would like to present a report on agricultural transformation and development in our country to this congress. Agriculture is a very important service for it constitutes a base on which to build and develop industry. Our country is in a tropical region and possesses favorable conditions for developing crop cultivation and livestock raising. It has an estimated 4 million hectares of arable land. Of these, 815,330 hectares are suitable for rice growing. Rice has been cultivated on 430,000 hectares so far. Laos also has several plains suitable for growing industrial trees and contains vast pasture lands totaling some 3,184,670 hectares suitable for developing livestock and growing industrial trees.

Being a small agricultural country with scattered production and dependent on nature, our country must solve many problems in advancing toward large-scale socialist production. It will take considerable time to advance in this direction.

During the past 6 years, in spite of serious natural calamities, our people have made every effort to overcome all difficulties and score glorious historical achievements. We have built a number of material and technical bases as well as irrigation facilities, thereby doubling the size of the irrigated area. Some 1,700 new machines have been installed. Animal feed factories and vaccine laboratories have been set up and schools for the training of technical cadres have been expanded.

With regard to foodgrain production, in 1976 we harvested some 700,000 tons of paddy. By 1981 paddy production had increased to 1,154,000 tons -- an average of 335 kilos per Lao citizen -- thus enabling us to become self-sufficient in food. Our task in growing industrial trees and developing animal husbandry has made good headway.

As for the transformation of agriculture, to date we have set up several thousand agricultural cooperatives and tens of thousands of mutual aid labor teams. The establishment of agricultural cooperatives has been basically completed in the rice-growing areas in Houa Phan, Xieng Khouang, Phong Saly and Oudomsai Provinces. In addition, each locality has also set up model agricultural cooperatives, thus encouraging peasants to embark on a collective livelihood gradually. Nevertheless, our agricultural production has yet to meet all the requirements in the life of our people, industrial production and export.

Comrades, to develop agricultural production in the years to come, we must firmly grasp and simultaneously apply the three revolutions in agricultural production in a correct and creative manner as follows:

1. We must strive to consolidate and develop state farms, including crop cultivation and livestock breeding stations, aiming at making the state take the initiative in controling various important agricultural products in order to stabilize the people's life and create exports.

2. We must organize a study of experiences with regard to the consolidation and building of agricultural cooperatives, aiming at allowing their production to develop in earnest. The income of cooperative members must be steadily increased. At the same time, efforts must be made to do away with the vestiges of feudalist exploitaton and ownership and the arbitrary control of land. Policies must be adopted to deal with abandoned farm land and to allow cooperative members and farmers to sell their products. Production tools and draft animals must be sold to them at low prices with a view to promoting and expanding agricultural production. At the same time, we must earnestly promote the development of household economy of farmers, cooperative members, cadres, armymen and policemen.

3. We must strive to build more material and technical bases for agricultural production, including irrigation projects, reservoirs and artesian wells at the district level. We must improve and develop experimental crop seed stations, establish more schools for training technical and professional cadres, sell farm tools to farmers at low prices and selectively organize the inspection and utilization of modified means and farm implements with the aim of adequately meeting the requirements of economic and agricultural production in the new stage. At the same time, we must encourage and guide farmers to engage in intensive agriculture, minimize the clearing of forests, shift to farming on terraced fields and hoed-up fields, and grow industrial trees.

Comrades, to fulfill the aforementioned tasks, the agricultural and irrigation services and all agricultural cooperatives must step up their efforts. In addition, close coordination among the other services concerned must also be achieved. I am fully convinced that given the talented and clear-sighted leadership of our party, coupled with the perseverance and studiousness of our people, the agricultural transformation and development in our country will make new and firm advances, thereby contributing to the task of defending the country and building socialism.

In conclusion, I wish the congress a glorious success. Thank you. [applause]

PRIME MINISTER PREM DISCUSSES EUROPEAN TOUR

London Press Conference

BK300439 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0000 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Excerpt] Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon, who is currently on an official visit to the United Kingdom from 27-30 April, left Claridge House yesterday at 0900 local time to visit Phuttha Prathip Monastery, which is a Thai temple in London. The prime minister privately donated 200 pounds for the temple's work.

At 1030, the prime minister granted an interview to newsmen at Claridge House. Among the questions asked at the interview regarded the presence of child labor abuse despite this year being the Bangkok bicentennial [word indistinct]. The prime minister replied that he wanted to emphasize that cases of child labor abuse, such as those reported, occurred only occasionally and that they are not widespread. The Thai Government, through the Interior Ministry and the Labor Department, is closely watching the matter. The prime minister expressed regret at the reports which stated that Thai children are used like slaves in the labor force.

The prime minister disclosed at the interview that he and Mrs Thatcher also discussed the Falkland Islands dispute. He said Thailand supports UN Security Council Resolution 502 calling for withdrawal from the Falkland Islands of combat forces by all parties -- a solution similar to the UN Security Council [as heard] resolution calling for a withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kamphchea. Thailand favors a peaceful solution to the Falklands dispute.

Asked about widely circulated reports that Thailand emerged victorious from its negotiations with the EEC, the prime minister said he and the Thai Government do not regard it as victory in a sense, but feel that the EEC trade commission has treated Thailand with great sympathy.

Remarks Upon Return

[Excerpt] The prime minister and his delegation received warm and honor-filled welcomes from the leaders of the United Kingdom, Belgium, Austria and France during their visit to these countries. This statement was made by Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon to a group of newsmen upon his arrival this morning at the Don Muang Air Force Command Airport:

[Begin Prem recording] Generally speaking, we received a very warm and honor-filled welcome from these countries. It was a welcome accorded to an old friend following a long absence of contact at the head of government level. To cite France as an example, the last visit to that country by a Thai prime minister was 28 years ago -- the visit made by Marshal P. Phibunsongkhram. During our visit to these countries, we had an opportunity to meet their heads of state and heads of government. We also met the president of the European Economic Commission. [end recording]

Concerning political consultations, the prime minister has this to report: [Begin recording] During our meeting with the heads of the governments in these countries, we were asked about the situation in Thailand and the problems of the region, about threats to regional peace coming from the aggression and occupation of Kampuchea and about the role of world powers in that problem. We explained these things to them in detail. This was a very good opportunity for me and the foreign minister to explain to them about the problems of our country. They have never before had such a chance to hear directly from the government, except from reports from their embassies.

We told these countries, including the European Economic Commission, all they wanted to know. They have understood the situation and reaffirmed their support for Thailand's and ASEAN's stand with regard to the implementation of the UN resolutions as well as the proposal put forward by the international conference on Kampuchea. These countries and the EEC reassured us that they will not change their policy regarding Kampuchea and will ban economic aid to Vietnam so long as Vietnam refuses to abide by the UN resolutions and does not pull troops out of Kampuchea, thus allowing the Kampuchean people to enjoy their right to self determination. They also recognized the importance of ASEAN in promoting regional peace and stability.

Regarding the refugee problem, these countries praised our humanitarian policy and expressed their sympathy for Thailand's heavy burden from the beginning to present. They have pledged, therefore, continued assistance for our country and support for Thailand's policy in seeking a solution to this problem. [end recording]

VOFA RESPONDS TO SRV CRITICISM OF PREM VISITS

BK300740 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Who Is Guilty of Interfering With the Internal Affairs of Another Country?"]

[Text] If you were to watch closely the progress of the current visit of prime minister of Thailand Gen Prem Tinsulanon to four Western European countries, Belgium, Austria, the United Kingdom and France, we will be able to understand that the Thai premier is exerting his utmost effort in seeking European cooperation in the promotion of international peace and stability. In his speech to the European leaders, including the EEC, the Thai prime minister said that Thailand shares with these European countries the conviction that the conflicts among nations should be resolved by peaceful means and in condemning armed intervention in Kampuchea by the Vietnamese forces.

Thailand and the EEC had joined the international community in adopting the UN General Assembly resolutions calling for the total withdrawal of the Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and allowing the Kampuchean people to determine their own future free from foreign interference. Paradoxically, the speeches of the Thai prime minister to the EEC and the European leaders had been condemned by the VIETNAMESE NEWS AGENCY as an attempt by Thailand to interfere with the relations between Vietnam and the Western European countries. The VIETNAMESE NEWS AGENCY, which is known for its flair for distorting and twisting the facts, accused Thailand for serving the aim of Beijing and Washington in opposing the three Indochinese states. The Thai premier had often stated during his visit to the European countries that Thailand cherishes nothing more than an opportunity to develop itself in peace and freedom, free also from outside interference in Thailand's internal affairs by any powers. Furthermore, Thailand's support of the UN resolutions to solve the Kampuchean problem peacefully is being shared by the EEC and other European countries. Thailand and other ASEAN countries had also made proposals to see comprehensive political settlement in the Kampuchean situation by peaceful means in accordance with the relevant UN resolutions and the recommendation of the United Nations international conference on Kampuchea. But it is regrettable that Vietnam has stubbornly refused to abide by the UN resolutions and has never mentioned or commented on the proposals by Thailand and ASEAN. Instead, Vietnam has continued to occupy Kampuchea with about 200,000 Vietnamese troops.

Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea not only violates the UN Charter and international law, but also has caused international tension with far reaching repercussions well beyond the region. Yet, using their inverted logic, Vietnam is accusing the Thai prime minister of interfering with Vietnam's affairs. Was it not because of the Vietnamese interference with the Kampuchean affairs that Belgium is withholding its aid to Vietnam until Vietnam abides by the relevant UN resolutions?

During the talks between the prime minister of Thailand and the president of the EEC, both sides showed common views concerning the general global situation and expressed their strong opposition to the aggression in Afghanistan and Kampuchea for foreign forces and to all forms of outside interference in internal affairs of countries. In asking the EEC to withhold all forms of aid to Vietnam until Hanoi abided by the UN resolutions, the Thai prime minister only wanted Viewnam to realize that its aggression in Kampuchea is being generally opposed by the world community and will serve no basis for justifications for Vietnam to receive outside aid as such aid would only encourage continued aggression and occupation of Kampuchea by Vietnam. In principle, Thailand has no objections to Vietnam's receiving aid from the EEC or from other countries, as Thailand has a genuine desire to see the Vietnamese economic situation be improved and the living standards of the Vietnamese people be substantially upgraded. At present, Vietnam's economic situation is in the state of near disaster and its social and political machineries are not functioning well. Even a prominent Vietnamese newspaper editor had grimly admitted that there were shortfalls and weaknesses in the economy of Vietnam. But instead of concentrating its resource to recuperate its sick economy for the benefit of its own people, Vietnam has unwisely chosen a disastrous alternative to plunder its resource in an unwinnable war in Kampuchea and in its ruthless suppression of the Khmer patriotic forces. This being the case, Vietnam should search its conscience and ask itself who indeed if interfering with the internal affairs of Kampuchea, instead of pointing its finger at the other country.

Thailand and ASEAN had even offered to assist Vietnam in rehabilitation and reconstruction of the economy of Vietnam, and ASEAN will be the first to do so if Vietnam agrees to abide by the relevant UN resolutions which include, among others, the withdrawal of all the Vietnamese military forces from Kampuchea. The prime minister of Thailand has every legitimate right to deliver his speech to the EEC and the European countries during his four-nation tour as he had an overriding desire to bring peace and stability to the region. In precisely the same manner, the Vietnamese foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thach, was not denied such a right when he asked the European countries to give aid to Vietnam during his visit to Europe a few days earlier, although his request was immediately turned down by the Belgian Government which insisted that Vietnam must first abide by the UN resolutions. Therefore when the VIETNAMESE NEWS AGENCY accused the Thai prime minister of interfering with Vietnam's internal affairs, it was merely attempting to subvert the efforts by the Thai prime minister towards finding peaceful solution to the Kampuchean problems which is a major international problem besetting the Southeast Asian region today.

PRASONG SUNSIRI DISCUSSES FIGHTING IN KAMPUCHEA

BK260234 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 26 Apr 82 p 5

[Excerpts of interview with Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council -- date and place not given]

[Text] Question: How do you evaluate the fighting during the recently-concluded dry season between the Kampuchean resistance forces against the Vietnamese and Heng Samrin's troops in western Kampuchea?

Answer: This is the third dry-season fighting between the two sides and it also marked the heaviest level of fighting as well. Vietnam might have aimed at completely wiping out the resistance forces in this year's dry-season offensive, but I could state categorically that Vietnam has failed in that mission.

I have watched the developments very closely. This year, Vietnam has learned from the two previous dry-season offensives in western Kampuchea by changing its logistical support methods in western Kampuchea near the Thai border.

This year, they (the Vietnamese) have also made another significant change in another aspect of their military strategy. Before, they used to send Vietnamese soldiers from the southern part of Vietnam. But, as is well known, the Vietnamese soldiers from the south, weren't too enthuastic about the fighting in Kampuchea. That's why Vietnam had to change its military composition in Kampuchea -- by dispatching more soldiers from the northern and central parts of Vietnam. About 80 percent of those soldiers posted near the Thai border in western Kampuchea are from the north and central areas of Vietnam. The remaining 20 percent from the south were given the duties of providing support in the field. But the actual fighting is by those from the north.

The Khmer Rouge guerrillas' ambush tactics and guerrilla warfare in the past two years had dealt quite a blow to the Vietnamese in Kampuchea. Bridges were detonated and ambushes were frequent, posing some serious logistical supply obstacles to the Vietnamese. That's why they changed the logistical supply system in this third year of fighting as well.

Question: There have also been reports of heavy weapons being deployed by the Vietnamese near the Thai border this dry season as well? What is your information on this?

Answer: Yes, the Vietnamese have deployed very heavy weapons and military equipment during this dry season fighting as well. They included armoured carriers, artillery pieces, and 130-mm cannons which have a firing range of 26 to 27 kilometres. The Vietnamese also used more close air support this year.

Helicopters were also widely used. Helicopter landing strips were built along the border, including those in Battambang, and Sisophon to ferry logistical supplies when ambushes on land by the Khmer Rouge became a main obstacle. They were hard hit by booby-traps and ambushes by the Khmer Rouge against the Vietnamese convoys of troops on normal land routes.

So, unlike the dry-season fighting in the two previous years, air cover and support for the Vietnamese played a much more important role in this third year. It could be said that the Vietnamese must have learned the lessons from the two previous years to improve their fighting capability in various aspects as I mentioned earlier.

Question: How high have the casualties been on both sides in the dry-season fighting this year then?

Answer: The Khmer Rouge and the Son Sann resistance as well as other anti-Vietnamese forces might have suffered heavy losses. But the Vietnamese side also suffered very heavy losses. Both sides, it could be said, suffered high losses. A large number of Vietnamese troops were wounded by landmines.

Besides, the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea also suffered from an acute shortage of food. Rice was the most important problem. Many intelligence reports agreed that the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea simply didn't have enough food to eat. They had to take out part of the rice stock planted by the Kampuchean people and stored by the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin rulers. About 4,000 tons had to be taken out of the stock to feed the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea. They also had to rely on rice planted by Vietnamese troops who had cultivated ricefields in the Kratie area. So, rice and food became quite an acute problem.

Another problem was that the Vietnamese troops were hit by malaria in large numbers as well. Several intelligence reports also mentioned an epidemic of eye diseases in western Kampuchea which affected a large number of Vietnamese troops in the area. That affected their visibility and their fighting capability.

All these problems have made it impossible for Vietnam to achieve its goal in launching a large-scale and heavy dry-season offensive in western Kampuchea this year. They might have been able to apply pressure or destroy certain areas used by the Khmer Rouge and other resistance groups, forcing them to retreat to other areas.

But in the Phnom Malai areas, the Khmer Rouge resistance forces continue to stay on with strong mobility. They haven't pulled out of the area as the Vietnamese had hoped for.

Question: But the rain is coming. What do you predict will now take place?

Answer: Yes, the rain is coming. The Vietnamese are speeding up the construction of bridges -- and to strengthen their strongholds in the frontline, aimed at being able to make their presence felt throughout the upcoming rainy season. At the same time, the Vietnamese have also built more helicopter landing strips near the Thai border. That shows that the Vietnamese still intend to fight on in the rainy season although during this season, their ground forces can't move too conveniently. That reflects a different policy from the past two years. This year, the Vietnamese want to fight on even during the rainy season.

But you must understand that they (the Vietnamese) have suffered very heavy losses in this year's dry-season fighting.

Question: What's the actual casualty figures on both sides?

Answer: I have the figures. But I wouldn't want to go into detail. I can categorically tell you that the Vietnamese losses have been very heavy.

Question: How are they going to fight in the rain?

Answer: The rain has in fact been falling for about a month in western Kampuchea. The rain there comes earlier than in Thailand. It has been flooding over there. Several roads have been put out of use in some western Kampuchean areas.

There are clear indications that the Vietnamese now realize that the heavy equipment such as tanks and artillery pieces that had been deployed have now been immobilized by the flooding. The Khmer Rouge, using guerrilla warfare, do have an advantage under such a situation.

In the western and northern Kampuchean areas near the Thai border, therefore, casualties have been high on both sides. But in the southern areas, from Koh Kong down, the Vietnamese had been hard hit by the Khmer Rouge and other resistance groups. The Vietnamese have had no victories over the resistance groups in that area at all. That, too, has forced the Vietnamese to have second thoughts.

So, the war in Kampuchea will continue. It will be a war of attrition. The Vietnamese simply can't achieve their goal.

Vietnam has also tried other means. For example, it has tried to build up a Heng Samrin's own fighting force, hopefully to replace some of the Vietnamese troops. This is Vietnam's plan to hoodwink the world into believing that it would carry out a partial withdrawal of troops. But it is clear the Vietnamese, even when they are trying to build up a so-called "Heng Samrin force," do control the Heng Samrin forces at all levels. Vietnam also controls the social and economic life in Phnom Penh.

The Vietnamese have also tried to recruit young Kampucheans into the armed forces. But they also face many problems, including food and medicine shortages. The Kampucheans also see that the Vietnamese are controlling the country -- even the trainers are Vietnamese.

The Kampuchean recruits keep asking: When will the Vietnamese leave Kampuchea and will the Kampucheans stop fighting their own fellow countrymen? This fact I can testify because many recruits from Heng Samrin's regime have defected to the Khmer Rouge side. The number of defectors is high.

So, I think it is very difficult for Vietnam to really build up a Heng Samrin force to pave the way for partial withdrawal of its own troops. The Vietnamese will stay on.

Question: Is the Soviet Union's military assistance to Vietnam continuing?

Answer: Yes. The Soviet Union continues to dispatch military aid, including heavy weapons, armoured carriers, artillery pieces, etc. Russian experts are also in Kampuchea. Russian engineering corps are also in Kampuchea to build bridges, roads etc. Therefore, the Russians have not stopped offering aid to Vietnam at all.

Question: How do you interpret reports that the Russians may be trying to establish their own direct links with the Heng Samrin regime without having to go through Vietnam?

Answer: Let's go back slightly to the ouster of Pen Sovan from the senior post in Phnom Penh. There may have been several interpretations of this situation. But today, let me quote from some of my own sources of information, which say that the purge of Pen Sovan from a senior post came as a result of his attempt to get away from Vietnam and become closer to the Soviet Union. Pen Sovan was said to have blocked several of Vietnam's efforts in Phnom Penh.

I have been told that the food shortage in Vietnam has forced the Vietnamese to send their boats to Kampuchea's Tonle Sap, which is full of marine life. Pen Sovan was said to have opposed that. So, the Vietnamese are facing opposition from the Kampuchean people -- just like the Soviet Union is facing opposition from the Afghan people and the Polish people.

Question: Do you foresee the conflicts between Vietnam and the Soviet Union coming out in the open some day in the near future?

Answer: At the moment, the interest of Vietnam and the Soviet Union run in parallel, but Hanoi aims only at short-term objective, which is to consolidate its influence over Kampuchea and Laos. And to achieve that Vietnam still has to depend on the Soviet Union. Moscow looks for long-term objectives, meanwhile, and views what Vietnam is doing as being favorable to its own interest in the long run. In the end, the Soviet Union will have access to bases and other military facilities in Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos.

The Soviet assistance won't stop. The return is high for such a low investment, in the Soviet viewpoint. There may be differences between Moscow and Hanoi but they are too small to affect the current relationship between the two countries. There are differences of opinion in several aspects and Moscow has expressed the intention to have Vietnam make improvements in the administrative and economic management structures which are plagued by corruption and outdated methods. But Vietnam has not complied fully with what the Soviet Union wants.

Question: How do you read the outcome of the fifth congress of Vietnam which ended recently?

Answer: I have been reading the details of the speeches made during the congress with great interest. I think basically, the changes that were decided during Vietnam's latest congress were to resolve its own internal economic problems. If you read the list of the new Politburo and the Central Committee, you would notice that most of those who were promoted were largely related to economic affairs -- and those purged or ousted were also connected with economic affairs.

Even Le Duan, in his speeches, also admitted the mistakes the country had committed. He admitted failures in Vietnam's economic management.

The second point worth noting was Le Duan's reference to the promotion of younger people to senior positions. But then, they didn't try to do it too drastically. The trend for the future is that a new breed will replace the old generation. The mention of corruption in Le Duan's speech also indicated that elements at various levels in the party suspected of corruption would be purged, and new ones will come in.

The ouster of six Politburo members wasn't a drastic move. They were mostly old people. That was not a direct punishment. They all maintain their positions in the Central Committee. It was just changing of duties and getting new faces to replace the old ones.

But there is one other point: The promotion of Lt Gen Le Duc Anh, commander of the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea, to the Politburo as a full member without having to become an alternate member, first indicated the thinking in Hanoi that it was convinced that its policy in Kampuchea had been correct. The quick and big promotion for this man, who is the commander-in-chief of the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea, was interesting particularly if one considers that Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach was only made an alternate member.

So, the fifth congress of Vietnam certainly confirmed the Vietnamese foreign policy. I see no changes there. In fact, it could be a tougher policy, no compromises.

Question: So, you don't see any softening of position by Vietnam towards ASEAN's proposals for a political solution in Kampuchea?

Answer: I think Vietnam has only been playing the propaganda game when it says it wants to do this and that.

Question: You recently suggested that Thailand should perhaps adopt a "hands-off" policy on the Kampuchean issue and should not get overly involved in the issue.

Answer: Yes, I made that proposal before. I still believe in that policy today. The Kampuchean problem is for the Kampuchean people to solve. I have always said that when a bullock cart gets stuck in a muddy trek, the people riding the cart must jump down and help to get it back on the road again. God helps those who help themselves. The problem will continue. But if they could agree among themselves, that would be a good thing. But if they continue to play the game, we can't do mucy. We have been helping them all along -- at least in terms of moral support.

Question: There have been reports that the Laotian resistance forces have also been more active and stronger than before.

Answer: Yes, that's what I have learned as well. The Laotian resistance groups have been strengthened recently. But let me not go into details. All I can say is that their leadership has been strengthened, much stronger than before.

Question: On the anti-piracy issue, I heard that you have just received a proposal for assistance from the United Nations High Commissioner's office for Refugees (UNHCR). What's happened to that?

Answer: It's a duty of Thailand to conduct its own anti-piracy programme already, within the Thai territorial waters. And if the UNHCR should come up with more assistance, we could increase our capability. We have received the proposal of aid amounting to aobut $3.6 million in assistance. I am looking into this proposal, about which I have told the UNHCR people that it would be good for only one year's operations, with no strings attached.

I will have to consult with senior officials of concerned government agencies.

Question: There was a German humanitarian group which has proposed to send its ship to deter piracy in the gulf of Thailand. What do you think of that?

Answer: If they really want to be charitable, they should send the ship right at the mouth of the river at Siagon to receive the refugees so that the refugees do not have to suffer on the high seas. Why waste the fuel by letting the ship cruise in the Gulf of Thailand? That's not solving the problem. Vietnam has always tried to start problems while others try to solve tham at the wrong end. Vietnam can switch on the tap anytime to release the refugees or to start trouble like the invasion of Kampuchea.... The Vietnamese even take away medicine supplied by international relief agencies to Phnom Penh destined for the poor Kampucheans. But the Vietnamese divert them for their own purposes. This fact has been told to me by none other than some international relief officials themselves who saw it happening. Of course, I have other channels of intelligence reports. About 70 percent of such relief supplies that go into Kampuchea have been diverted by Vietnam for military purposes. And the remaining 30 percent has been distributed to a handful of people around the areas near Phnom Penh only.

Question: So, you still think Thailand should stick to its current policy towards Vietnam.

Answer: Yes, as long as Vietnam continues its stubborn policy, I believe we should remain firm. We can't accept the illegitimate actions of Phnom Penh. If Vietnam is aggressive, we would have to be aggressive. If they are stubborn, we would have to react in the same way. Naturally, I am not talking about being militarily aggressive. But we must be aggressive in our diplomatic efforts. If the Vietnamese give out lies, we should retort with facts. Our ambassadors around the world must be prompt in releasing the facts to the local media abroad.

POST REPORTS SRV GUNNERS SHELL KHMER SEREI CAMP

[Text] Ta Phraya -- About 20 Kampuchean civilians were killed and many others wounded when Vietnamese gunners shelled a Khmer Serei refugee camp near the Thai border yesterday morning. Most of the dead were reported to be women and children.

Informed military sources said the shelling attack on the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) camp began at about 6 a.m. as the Vietnamese launched a simultaneous infantry attack on its Khmer Serei guards. During the next seven hours about 40 105-mm and 155-mm artillery shells rained down on the camp, opposite Ban Sangae in Ta Phraya District, and about 50 kilometres north of Aranyaprathet. The artillery attack sparked scenes of panic in the camp, which houses about 18,000 Kampuchean civilians and about 5,000 rightist Khmer Serei guerrillas.

No information was available on casualties suffered by the guerrillas and the Vietnamese troops involved in the infantry attack. After the bombardment, relief workers from the International Red Cross rushed to the camp to ferry the wounded to an Italian-operated hospital in Ta Phraya and another at the Khao-i-Dang refugee camp.

Informed military sources had earlier reported hectic Vietnamese troop movements near Ban Kalo, opposite Ban Sanlo Chagan of this border district indicating that a military action was imminent.

NGUYEN CO THACH INTERVIEWED ON RECENT VISITS

BK031430 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 2 May 82

[Interview with Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach by unidentified Vietnam central TV correspondent on the results of his recent visit to Europe and Asia -- recorded, date not given]

[Text] [Question] Comrade minister, you recently visited the Soviet Union, the GDR, India and a number of West and North European countries. Would you please tell us the purpose of these visits?

[Answer] I recently visited a number of countries in Europe and Asia for the purpose of strengthening long-term cooperation between Vietnam and these countries and promoting an exchange of views on problems of mutual concern, including the problem of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

[Question] Would you please tell us about the results of Vietnam's long-term cooperation with the countries you visited?

[Answer] Concerning the results of cooperation between Vietnam and these countries, first of all we must mention our cooperation with the Soviet Union and the GDR, the two socialist countries I visited. This cooperation is based on the Vietnam-USSR and Vietnam-GDR treaties of friendship and cooperation. Our country's long-term cooperation with these two countries is developing successfully and broadening with each passing day.

With regard to India, we also discussed plans for long-term cooperation. In the past, there was only short-term cooperation. The two sides agreed on the programs and objectives of long-term cooperation between Vietnam and India. Both sides are very satisfied with the long-term cooperation between our two countries.

As for other West European countries, especially France and Sweden, we also discussed with them long-term bilateral cooperation on the basis of mutual benefit, respect for each other's sovereignty and independence, with no political conditions attached. We are very satisfied with the results of cooperation between Vietnam and France, Sweden and a number of other countries.

[Question] Comrade Minister, aside from the results you have just mentioned, what else has your visit achieved to contribute to the stability of the situation in Southeast Asia and to ensure a more satisfactory development of peace in this region?

[Answer] Yes, one of the two objectives of my visit was to exchange views with various countries on the problems of mutual concern, especially the problem of peace and stability in Southeast Asia. On this problem the stand of the Soviet Union and the GDR is very clear; that is, it wishes to see peace and stability in Southeast Asia and is against the scheme to bring back the Pol Pot clique to oppose the Kampuchean people's revival.

As for the other countries, they now have a better understanding of our position, and the majority of the countries we visited wish to see peace and stability in Southeast Asia and do not approve of the policy aimed at pitting the Southeast Asian countries against one another. Most of these countries also want to contribute to the cause of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

A number of West and North European countries understood and clearly said that if the problems in Southeast Asia are to be resolved satisfactorily, first of all the relations and conflice between China and Vietnam must be settled.

We are very satisfied with the results of our visits. They contributed to the cause of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

[Question] What did public opinion in the various countries think about your recent visits?

[Answer] Public opinion in various parts of the world differed in evaluating our visits. In the socialist countries -- the Soviet Union, the GDR and other socialist states -- public opinion contended that these visits were highly successful and that they served the common cause of the socialist countries, namely, world peace and cooperation. In other countries, such as India, public opinion was very satisfied with our visit and valued it very highly.

Elsewhere, especially in Western Europe, at first, prior to our arrival, a number of newspapers contended that our visits would encounter difficulty. However, toward the end of our tour in each country, public opinion unanimously agreed that our visits had achieved very good results.

From these facts, we can see that all those who want peace and stability in Southeast Asia welcomed the visits. Meanwhile, there have been some isolated voices against our trips which contended that they were unsuccessful. These were the voices of the forces who want to oppose peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

[Question] Comrade Minister, could you tell us specifically who are these opposing forces and what are their allegations all about?

[Answer] Well, we must indeed point out clearly that those who opposed these visits in a -- we can say -- frantic manner are the Beijing reactionaries. They falsely claimed that these visits were a failure. Now, what is the truth? We must know that the Beijing reactionaries always turn white into black and black into white. As we all know, writer Lu Xun of China wrote a book about the stories of Ah Q. In one of these stories Ah Q, when badly beaten, told himself that the attacker had beaten his own father, and on the basis of this line of reasoning considered this a victory. It is ridiculous to consider a serious beating a victory. But we all know that this is a way of reasoning often used by the Chinese reactionaries. Recently they advertised their great proletarian Cultural Revolution to the world but now everyone knows that it was not great in terms of revolution but of counterrevolution, not cultural but brutal, and not proletarian but antiproletarian.

As for their leaders, for example, Secretary General Deng Xiaoping was considered a clear-sighted leader prior to 1965 but was condemned in 1966 as a reactionary following the road of capitalism. Then in 1973 he was praised for being a good discipline of Chairman Mao, but again in 1975-76 he was disgraced and branded a reactionary following the road of capitalism. And now he is a key leader of China. This is what they have been doing, and, of course, they are bent on opposing us anyway. However, they have failed and now they have turned to condemning the countries that extend cooperation toward us.

In the field of international relations, every country has its own sovereignty. But the Chinese reactionaries want to use the pressure of a big nation to prevent the West European countries from cooperating with us. I think that as sovereign and independent states, the West European countries definitely have their national pride and they will not yield to the pressure of the Chinese reactionaries. On the other hand, we can see that the world trend is toward cooperation. Of the entire world, only two forces are opposed to international cooperation and they are the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese reactionaries.

[Question] During your recent tour, Comrade Minister, you had extensive contacts with the press. On this occasion, could you give us your opinion as regards the attitude of the press in the West and especially in the countries you visited toward us? And how do they understand us?

[Answer] We have very good impressions about world public opinions toward our people. I called five press conferences in all, and throughout all five I deeply appreciated the respect paid to our people by the press circles. They admire our people's spirit of stalwart struggle, and at the same time, highly priase the independent and sovereign character of our country and people. This is because they have clearly seen that our people cannot be conquered, either by the brute force of 15 million tons of bombs or by the temptation of billions of dollars. Moreover, they have also seen that our country is pursuing a policy of peace, friendship and cooperation with all nations.

I also met a number of government officials of West European countries. Upon meeting us, they recalled the good memories of their participation in movements to struggle against the U.S. war of aggression in Vietnam, and now they still consider themselves as belonging to the Vietnam generation. They have very deep feelings toward us. I had an opportunity to visit a Swede at his apartment, and to my great surprise, I found that the apartment was decorated with a pair of rubber sandals, a conical hat and numerous other memorabilia from Vietnam. I was deeply moved by this.

Of course, during the course of these press conferences, some people, with their discordant voices, posed questions that, I think, must be reported to the compatriots at home. For instance, a question was thrown at us asking: Is it true not that you are now opening the door to the West in order to reduce your dependence on the Soviet Union? My answer to this question was as follows: Vietnam has never closed its doors. Our doors always remain open but some circles have been deceived by U.S. imperialism and China into believing otherwise.

As for the relations between Vietnam and the Soviet Union, we must say that over the past 35 years the Vietnamese people have fought very valiantly to gain independence, but it is true, I told them frankly, that had it not been for the assistance, support and strength of the Soviet Union, our Vietnamese people would not have been able to achieve independence. Moreover, the Soviet Union totally supports and respects Vietnam's independence.

Another issue that needs to be clarified involves the question of who is telling the world that Vietnam in dependent on the Soviet Union. They are none other than the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese reactionaries. But why are they so concerned about Vietnam's independence after they dropped 15 million tons of bombs on our country and sent 600,000 Chinese troops to invade us? I told them clearly that in 1976 when Vietnam joined the World Bank, the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries did not make any comments as they considered this action an independent and sovereign move by Vietnam. However, when we joined CEMA in 1978, Western countries severely condemned and criticized Vietnam. What does this prove? It proves that the Western countries or some circles in the West want Vietnam to depend on them whereas the Soviet Union obviously respects Vietnam's independence.

On the other hand, some people asked whether I was making the trip to seek a postponement in the payment of debts. My answer was that yes, we in Vietnam are facing difficulties, and there are some debts which we cannot repay yet. However, it is a fact that of the 150 countries in the world, 90 are in debt, and they owe in all the gigantic amount of $450 billion. So it is not strange at all that we owe some money after we have gone through 35 years of war and now being threatened by the Chinese reactionaries while 90 other countries which have been free from war have run up debts. Nor is it strange that we cannot repay our debts after 35 years of war. It is only strange that other countries cannot repay theirs although they have been enjoying peace.

On the other hand, in spite of the 35 years of war, we recently repaid France 500 million francs. This year we are still more than 100 million francs in debt. I discussed this with the French Government and got a very understanding response, for many other countries, though free from war, are still unable to repay their debts. Therefore, people who understand the issue in this light do not find it strange at all.

Naturally, we are discussing this only in order to understand the general situation in the world. For our own people, we must always remember that the crucial problem is to step up production and not to rely on foreign loans.

[Question] Comrade minister, you made your trip following the conclusion of our fifth party congress. Please tell us of general public opinion about our congress.

[Answer] Our fifth party congress was one of the congresses that attracted great attention from world public opinion. The world peoples paid attention to our congress because they were aware of our difficulties and wondered how our congress would deal with these difficulties. After the congress, when I went on my trip, I found that public opinion in the various countries I visited was very favorable toward our congress. The views are favorable in the sense that the situation in Vietnam is assessed to be very stable. This assessment is based on the fact that in spite of all the difficulties, our party has strictly carried out self-criticism and criticism. On the other hand, it has maintained continuity in leadership -- two-thirds of the comrade members of the Political Bureau continue their leadership while the remaining third have left voluntarily after fulfilling their duties to ensure succession and rejuvenation of their ranks, and similarly a third of the comrade members of the party Central Committee have moved out to make room for 66 others.

This has been highly regarded in the world. It proves that our party is very stable and powerful and its ranks are both massive and strong. And the comrades who have left are also held in high regard. At the same time, it also proves that our party is very revolutionary as evidenced by its spirit of self-criticism and criticism and the change effected within its ranks to ensure continuity and rejuvenation. All this has been highly evaluated by people the world over.

Moreover, people find that the resolutions adopted by the congress, especially the orientations for the 5-year plan, are very practical. It is also seen that in the course of this congress, we displayed a very high sense of international solidarity. Many parties sent their delegations to attend the congress and those that could not attend sent their greetings to our party. All this testifies to the very high prestige of our people as well as the very high prestige of our party in the world.

[Correspondent] Thank you, comrade minister.

OPERATIONS OF REGIMENT IN KAMPUCHEA DESCRIBED

BK221346 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 21 Apr 82

[Part I of article by (Thanh Dinh) on Bac Son Regiment operating in Kampuchea]

[Summary] I went to Bac Son Regiment at a time when the unit was holding a political-military conference to draw upon combat experiences. Comrade T, a cadre of the 9th Battalion who had just commanded a detachment to totally annihilate a group of Pol Pot remnants, was relating the fight.

According to him, the 9th Battalion is stationed in a western border area of Kampuchea where the terrain is very dangerous and the unit troops are faced with many hardships, namely, drought in the dry season and flooding in the rainy season. "Taking advantage of the inclement weather, the Khmer Rouge bandits are frequently organized into small groups to infiltrate into the western area of Kampuchea, lay mines along various trails and stage raids into the populated areas, and then quickly retreat into Thailand." How can these groups be totally annihilated? This question has been discussed by the battalion party committee and command cadres in several conferences to find a solution.

"Battalion Commander T personally led a detachment to the usual hideout of the enemy remnants. After spending 2 days and nights in the jungle, the detachment discovered the enemy's rendezvous point.

That night Commander T guided his combatants in removing seven of the enemy's directional mines then laid them around the enemy's staging point. He divided his detachment into several groups to block the enemy's front and rear columns and to support one another in combat. The morning came, and when the enemy troops were having breakfast, the seven mines blew up and our troops fired machinegun rounds at the enemy. Dozens of enemy troops were killed on the spot. The remaining troops attempted to escape to Thailand but they were intercepted and mauled completely by our forces coming from all directions."

After Commander T finished his briefing, the Bac Son Regiment commander said: "The realistic combat experiences of the 9th Battalion indicate that if we want to ensure the border security, not only do we have to defend our strongholds firmly but we also have to conduct mobile operations to strike the enemy and know how to use our available weapons skillfully."

Learning from the 9th Battalion, the other units of the Bac Son Regiment quickly changed their combat tactics and scored many combat achievements. The regiment commander told me that our combatants have endured many hardships and have devised many creative tactics to fight the enemy. Citing the 3d Detachment of 8th Battalion as an example, he said: "After detecting the enemy track in N area, the detachment combatants secretly laid ambushes for 5 successive days and nights without any success. The food rations they carried along were almost depleted. There were only 2 kilos of rice left for the whole detachment. The unit could have returned home and would not have been blamed since the enemy did not appear. With a high sense of responsibility, however, the detachment combatants shared a few handfuls of rice among themselves and continued to climb hills and ford streams in search of the enemy. Two days later the enemy remnants were seen cooking rice by the side of a stream. The detachment was then divided into several groups to envelop and kill many of the enemy troops."

I arrived in the 8th Battalion and had a chance to meet the 3d Detachment combatants, who were urgently drawing upon their past combat experiences for training purposes. During my stay in the Bac Son regiment, I could see that all units were conducting training for troops to learn how to ambush and pursue the enemy and how to remove and use the enemy's mines. The same situation was noted at the 7th Battalion.

Developing their achievements, the cadres and combatants of the Bac Son Regiment are trying to devise even more effective tactics to fight the enemy in order to contribute to defending the southwestern border of Kampuchea.

Part II

[Part II of article by (Thanh Dinh) on Bac Son Regiment operating in Kampuchea]

[Summary] Early in the dry season this year, I visited the border areas of Battambang Province with Comrade (Nara), a correspondent of the Kampuchean revolutionary army's radio program, acting as my guide, while the local people were reaping the 10th-month rice and making preparations for planting the spring crops.

Seeing the local peasants happily at work, my guide said: "This area is within artillery range from the Thai border, and the Pol Pot army remnants always try by every means to conduct sabotage activities. The people here do not worry at all, however, because stationed on the frontline are Vietnamese volunteer troops who are working side by side with the Kampuchean revolutionary army in patrolling and guarding the border. The Vietnamese soldiers have not only endured difficulties and hardships and made sacrifices in combat to save our country from the genocidal scourge of the Pol Pot executioners, but they have also done their best to contribute to building a new life for the people here."

To substantiate his remark, Comrade (Nara) took me on a visit to a mass proselyting team of the Bac Son Regiment which was on a mission in Mongkolborei District. On arrival at the team's headquarters, I found out that all the team members had left for the various hamlets and Comrade T was on duty alone. He recalled that immediately after the liberation of Kampuchea, the Khmer Rouge had intruded into this area from the Thai side of the border and perpetrated untold crimes against the local people. Under a constant threat from the Khmer Rouge, many families planned to move elsewhere.

"In the face of this situation, cadres and combatants of the Bac Son Regiment were ordered, on the request of our friends, to come here to fight the enemy and protect the people's safety. The regiment personnel, working day and night, formed many attacking prongs to track down the Pol Pot army remnants relentlessly. Hundreds of Pol Pot troops were killed by our troops in the forests and the surviving ones fled into Thailand. After a month, Mongkolborei District was safe and the people returned to continue their normal activities and build the revolutionary administration. Cadres and soldiers of the Bac Son Regiment removed all the mines planted by the enemy to ensure the people's safety and helped the poor local families build their houses. Braving hardships, our troops spent months in the forests rescuing more than 1,000 youths who had been herded by the Pol Pot troops into their bases."

Moved by the wholehearted concern and care of the Vietnamese soldiers, many people broke into tears, saying: The Vietnamese troops have given us a second life. Your deeds will be remembered forever by our future generations.

I cannot recount in full here all the actions imbued with love performed by the Bac Son Regiment cadres and soldiers toward the fraternal Kampuchean people. But let us hear Comrade T tell more about the activities of our troops:

Since the liberation of Kampuchea, the regimental cadres and soldiers have given 3,500 kilos of rice and over 200 kilos of salt to the local people. Many comrades even offered their own shirts to the elderly and the sick they rescued in the forests. While many members of our unit were stricken with malaria, we still shared our medicines with thousands of people. We organized courses to train nurses for Mongkolborei District and helped build several dispensaries and other social welfare projects in service of the Kampuchean people. In the past, although busy with combat activities, the regimental personnel spent thousands of man-days helping the local people in agricultural work.

The cadres and soldiers of Bac Son Regiment have also guided the local people in adopting a new workstyle. Not long ago, when the local administration planned to set up solidarity production teams, it met with suspicion from the people as this form of production reminded them of the exploitative communes under the Pol Pot regime. Fully aware of the people's misgivings, cadres and soldiers of the regiment joined the local cadres in explaining to the villagers the benefits of collective work as well as the differences between the revolutionary administration and the Pol Pot regime. Their efforts paid off, and within a short period of time many people of Mongkolborei District voluntarily signed up for collective work.

With the help of solidarity production teams, the regiment personnel coordinated with the local administration in building many strong combat villages. The district people prepared more than 500,000 bamboo spikes and millions of bamboo posts to build a fence along the border. Assisted by the Bac Son Regiment, Mongkolborei District has organized a powerful local armed forces unit. Every village now has a guerrilla detachment which serves as a nucleus in both production and combat.

THAI PREMIER PREM'S REMARKS IN EUROPE ASSAILED

NHAN DAN 4 May Comment

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 4 -- NHAN DAN today remarks that the statements made by Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon during his recent four-nation tour in Europe were in no way different from Beijing's usual allegations. The paper says that he gave a false picture of Kampuchea and distorted Vietnam's justifiable assistance to the Kampuchean people in defending their independence and freedom. The Thai prime minister not only turned down the Indochinese countries' prposals for dialogue with the A.S.E.A.N. countries, but also urged the European Economic Community to stop aid to Vietnam.

The paper writes: "Three things were clear from Prime Minister Prem's attitude: Firstly, Thailand keeps slinging mud at Vietnam despite its proposal that the two sides stop criticizing each other in newspapers. Secondly, Prem blatantly interfered in the friendly relations between Vietnam and France and other European countries. Thirdly, Prem persisted in his opposition to direct talks between the A.S.E.A.N. and Indochinese countries, contrary to the wish of the peoples of Southeast Asia for peace, stability, friendship and cooperation in the region".

The paper goes on: "Although Prem said that Thailand 'rules out a military solution to the conflict' on the 'Kampuchean problem,' he declares his opposition to negotiations. What solution is he seeking, then? Bangkok's collusion with Beijing against Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries has increased tension in the region and caused added difficulties to the normalization of relations between Thailand and Vietnam. It does no good to the Thai people or to peace and stability in Southeast Asia. Such a policy will come a cropper".

Hanoi Radio Comment

BK021311 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 2 May 82

[Text] Speaking in Brussels on the first leg of his tour of Western Europe last week, Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon chimed in with Beijing's distortion of facts about Kampuchea and Vietnam-Kampuchea relations. He also urged the EEC to cut off aid to Vietnam.

He even claimed that the EEC decision to provide humanitarian aid to Vietnam indicated a lack of resolve and destroyed joint efforts to find a political solution to the Kampuchean problem. In this connection, our radio has this commentary:

Who gives the Thai prime minister the right to interfere in the relationship between Western Europe and Vietnam? Who gives him the right to impose a political solution to an independent and sovereign state -- the People's Republic of Kampuchea?

Let us have a look at recent developments in Brussels to see who has good will. Of late, while visiting Belgium and the EEC, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co thach reaffirmed Vietnam's foreign policy of peace and friendship and its desire to develop cooperative relations with all countries on the basis of respect for each other's independence, equality and mutual benefit.

Vietnam's good will has been welcomed worldwide by progressive public opinion. Only Beijing reacts to this with rancor. by chiming in Beijing's tune, Mr Prem has run counter to the aspirations and interests of the Thai people. This has been clear to all sober-minded people. Public opinion in Thailand has warned the Prem government of tailing after Beijing by opposing the Indochinese countries. Reality shows that Zhongnanhai wants to create tension in Southeast Asia and weaken all regional countries to gradually annex this region. Naturally the Thai people cannot help being indignant with the fact that some people in Bangkok's ruling circles are pursuing a policy of serving China and the United States. This policy of creating pressure to bear on the three Indochinese countries runs counter to the aspirations and interests of the thai people and is detrimental to peace and security of the peoples in Southeast Asia.

BUSH TRIP SEEN AS MOVE TO COORDINATE WITH PRC

[Text] According to Western sources, U.S. Vice President George Bush, on his trip to Asia and the Pacific, visited Singapore 27-29 April. Upon his arrival in Singapore, Bush strongly announced that the United States is still the big power in the Pacific and that it will maintian its military presence in this region and adhere to its commitments with friendly countries in this part of the world. Bush praised Singapore for its spirit of opposing the so called danger of communist aggression. He expressed support for Singapore and ASEAN's stand on the Kampuchea issue -- which opposes the PRK by maintaining the Pol Pot genocidal clique at the United Nations and supporting the Pol Pot remnat troops and other Khmer reactionary groups to fight against the Kampuchean people.

Bush's statements showed that in this trip, he has brought along various diabolical tricks and schemes in order to coordinate with Beijing to oppose Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos. These are also his gift for Beijing before his arrival for a visit to China.

MARCOS ANNOUNCES LABOR MINISTRY REORGANIZATION

HK020034 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 1 May 82

[Text] President Marcos yesterday reorganized the Ministry of Labor and Employment. He issued directives granting workers additional benefits and providing them with better service. Speaking at the Labor Day celebration at the folk arts theater, the president also rejected the blanket approach in wage policies, saying this will endanger many thousands of jobs at this period of economic crisis, and suggested the adoption by both labor and management of what he called a sort of social contract or social compact. The president feared that an across-the-board wage increase at this time of economic crisis would result in the closing of many industries, particularly the marginal ones.

[Begin Marcos recording] I have always felt that labor and management agreed at the tripartite congress a long time ago, because they agreed to use this [words indistinct] unity. United labor; unity, or you perish. But there is no question that the world is now going through some very difficult times. Our principal trading partners are in recession. Unemployment is rife everywhere in both rich and poor nations. Pockets of political tension characterize the global scene, and we still have to resolve some of the nagging problems that accompany national development. The effects of these external forces and manifestations [words indistinct] aggravate our growing pains. We are now witnessing a major transition in human history, one which I hope will be eventually resolved in a flowering of mankind's potential and a fulfillment of [words indistinct] [end Marcos recording]

During the ceremonies, the president issued executive orders and letters of instruction, among them, directing Labor Minister Ople to revise existing safety regulations under the labor code, to improve construction practices and technology, an increase by 20 percent of the pension for retired social security [word indistinct] members, a 20-percent increase in disability benefits, 5,000 pesos burial expenses for deceased workers under the employees' compensation commission, and an increase to the death benefits for workers in the sugar industry.

In his speech, the chief executive said the reorganization of the Labor Ministry is part of the administration's efforts to promote employment, preserve industrial peace and protect the welfare of the Filipino worker. The sweeping revamp involved a change in the leadership in six bureaus of the ministry, in all staff services in all the ministry's 13 regions.

DEMAND FOR MUSLIM STATE CALLED UNACCEPTABLE

OW291249 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 29 Apr 82

[Text] The demand of Nur Misuari for a state in the south is not acceptable to the Islamic Conference. In an interview with newsmen, the president said Misuari had defied the many resolutions of the Islamic Conference calling for the resolution of the conflict within the framework of Philippine sovereignty and territorial integrity. The president recalled that in his talk with Islamic Conference Secretary General Shaykh Chatti, the Muslim official made it clear that if Misauri insisted on his demand for a separate state the Islamic Conference cannot support it.

The president also said that his talks with Saudi Arabian King Khalid and Prince Fahd during his 3-day official visit to Saudi Arabia doused Misuari's hopes of forming a separate state which would include Mindanao, Palawan and Sabah.

MARCOS URGES ARMY ATTENTION TO GUERRILLA WARFARE

HK270042 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 26 Apr 82

[Text] President Marcos has directed the Armed Forces of the Philippines to pay more attention to guerrilla warfare, counterinsurgency and countersubversion operations. The president was guest speaker at the 85th anniversary of the Philippine Army.

In his speech, the president stressed that while the world today concentrates on nuclear weapons, he is certain that in the next several decades, here in Southeast Asia, we will be meeting with problems of internal peace brought about by subversion. He also said Bataan must not happen again, and called on the armed forces to be always vigilant in coping with both external and internal threats to national security. The president also said the armed forces must be developed into an ever-prepared force to cope with both external and internal threats.

In his address, the president also cited the significance of the support given by Saudi Arabia to the Philippines during his recent visit there. He said the Saudi Arabian backing to the government endeavors in the south should end any hopes still being held by the Moro National Liberation Front leaders for secession. The president said the results of his visit to Saudi Arabia advanced the cause of the country's hopes for peace and development in the south. He said the Saudi Arabian leaders are fully supporting the autonomous system in the Muslim regions of Mindanao.

JCP SOURCES HINT AT RAPPROCHEMENT WITH CCP

[Text] Tokyo, April 30, KYODO -- The Communist Parties of Japan and China may patch up their relations this year after a 16-year estrangement over a major policy dispute, JCP sources here said Friday. The sources said there were indications that the JCP would invite a Chinese delegation to its convention scheduled for July.

But a JCP spokesman ruled out such a possibility at least at present. Hiroshi Tachiki, the JCP's International Affairs Bureau chief, said there has been no "official approach" from China to mend its fences with the Japanese opposition party. The two communist parties broke off their ties in 1966 when the late Chinese Chairman Mao Zedong and JCP leader Kenji Miyamoto held talks but failed to narrow the differences in their policies toward the Soviet Union, strategies for a socialist revolution in Japan and other key policy lines. Since then China's official media had called the JCP a group of revisionists, led by Miyamoto. The JCP, in return, had accused the Chinese Communist Party of engaging in "interventionism."

But the sources said Beijing has stopped calling the JCP revisionist since late 1980, when the Chinese Communist Party criticized its own past international policy. Since that time, the sources said, there have been growing indications that the communist parties are moving closer to each other.

The movement has gained momentum, in particular, on the JCP's part over the past several months, the sources said. They said two JCP members of the Diet (parliament) visited the Chinese Embassy in Tokyo for the first time last November to attend a reception for a Chinese delegation. The lawmakers visited the embassy with knowledge of the JCP leadership, the sources added. Japan established diplomatic relations with China in 1972.

The sources said there were unconfirmed reports that "a number of" JCP members and persons close to the party visited the embassy since mid-January. The sources also noted that the JCP had stopped criticizing the Chinese Communist Party at least publicly since last October. The party newspaper AKAHATA has refused to carry advertisements for anti-Chinese books, according to the sources.

Meanwhile, in January, China's journal introduced an AKAHATA serial by JCP Secretariat chief Tetsuzo Fuwa that criticized Soviet foreign policies, the sources said. In addition, they said, the major Chinese newspaper GUANGMING DAILY carried the memoirs of the late Japanese Communist leader Sen Katayama in January. The JCP responded by placing a translation of the memoirs in its publication last month, the sources added.

In an interview, Tachiki said the JCP might normalize relations with Beijing if the Chinese refrained from meddling in the domestic affairs of the Japanese Communists. "The Chinese should also respect our policy of independence," the JCP spokesman said. But he added: "So far, there has been no official approach from China. Nor do we have any intention to make any (to normalize ties)."

The sources said the signs of possible rapprochement between the two communist parties came amid growing indications that the JCP was moving away from the Soviet Communist Party. The JCP is critical of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and handling of the Polish crisis. Their estrangement may have been reflected in the JCP's boycott of the convention of the Vietnam Communist Party, held in March. Vietnam, a Soviet ally, has had frequent clashes with China along their common border. The JCP sent a high-powered delegation to the previous Vietnam Communist Party convention in 1976.

PYONGYANG REPORTS FURTHER ON 4 MAY MAC MEETING

[Text] The 412th meeting of the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] was held at Panmunjom on 4 May at the proposal of our side. As already reported, on 23 April our side urged the enemy side to hold a MAC meeting at 1100 on 27 April in connection with the enemy's recent repeated armed provocations. However, the enemy, fearing the revelation of its crimes to the world, postponed the convocation of the meeting, reluctantly appearing at the meeting site after 7 days.

At the meeting, our side lodged a strong protest with the enemy against the extremely grave armed provocation it committed in the Demilitarized Zone [DMZ] against our side and called the enemy side to account.

According to the statement of Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, senior member of our side, members of the civil police of our side were performing routine patrol duty along the road north of military demarcation line [MDL] marker No 0810 in the central front, on the morning of 21 April. It was around 0520 on the same day when members of the civil police of our side arrived in our territory north of MDL marker No 0810, performing patrol duty. At that moment, the South Korean puppet army began firing at them with large-caliber machineguns and M-16 automatic rifles froma spot 600 meters south of MDL marker No 0805. This firing continued for 10 minutes. At around 0645, the South Korean puppet army again began to fire at members of the civil police and at outposts of our side with automatic weapons, includign 90-mm recoilless rifles and large-caliber machineguns, from a spot 1,200 meters south of the MDL marker No 0810 and 1,000 meters southeast of marker No 0816.

Such barbarous and indiscriminate armed provocations by the South Korean puppet army caused casualties among members of our side who were performing routine patrol duty and destroyed outposts and facilities of our side. Under this situation, our side was forced to take action in self-defense. The rascals' military provocation was impeded by our self-defense action at around 0705 on the same day. Bullets from large-caliber machineguns which the South Korean puppet army fired at our side on two occasions aounted to more than 15,000; those from M-16 automatic rifles, more than 8,000; shells from 90-mm recoilless rifles, more than 30.

Following this grave military provocation, around 1700 on the same day, the South Korean puppet army fired 20 rounds from a large-caliber machinegun from a spot 1,300 meters south of MDL marker No 1008 at our territory opposite this spot in the eastern sector of the front. At around 1515 on the same day, prior to this, it fired 20 rounds from an automatic weapon from a spot 350 meters southeast of the MDL marker No 1055 at our territory opposite this spot. Around 2125 on 21 April, the South Korean puppet army fired several rounds from an M-16 automatic rifle from a place on the western front near a spot 37 degrees, 49 minutes and 33 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees, 40 minutes and 48 seconds east longitude in the military control zone in the estuary of the Imjin River at our territory opposite this spot. Around 0722 on 22 April, it again committed similar armed provocations at a location near a spot 37 degrees, 50 minutes and 2 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees, (?41) minutes and 49 seconds east longitude.

At around 1550 on 22 April, the South Korean puppet army fired at our outposts scores of rounds from large-caliber machineguns from an outpost 900 meters south of MDL marker No 0829 in the eastern sector of the front -- a place near the spot from which it had fired on the morning of 21 April. At around 1830 and 2005 on 30 April, the South Korean puppet army committed armed provocations, firing more than 10 rounds from a large-caliber machinegun from a place near a spot 38 degrees, 17 minutes and 47 seconds north latitude and 128 degrees, 5 minutes and 10 seconds east longitude in the eastern front, at our outposts opposite this spot.

Our senior member said that the wicked armed provocations perpetrated by the South Korean puppet army were most outrageous violations of the armistice agreement and premediated provocations designed to further heighten tension. Sternly denouncing the enemy side for wickedly committing armed provocations against our side, the senior member of our side urged the enemy to guarantee responsible action to prevent the recurrency of such provocations. But the enemy, far from apologizing for its crime, attempted to shift the responsibility for the incident on to us and even absurdly insisted on entrusting to the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission [NNSC] the investigation into incidents in the DMZ, which is not under its authority.

As to the sophism of the enemy, the senior member of our side sternly denounced it as a petty trick to evade responsibility for its grave crime and an act making a mockery of the NNSC and crudely violating the armistice agreement. The armed provocations committed by the enemy, he said, were not accidental incidents nor independent acts of an individual soldier but provocations intentionally planned and organized by the U.S. imperialists.

This was made clear by the course of the incident and the later military movement of the enemy, the senior member of our side said, and he continued: While committing the large-scale armed provocations causing casualties among the civil police of our side, the enemy fired bullets at our side in succession in the central, eastern and western sectors of the front and repeatedly infiltrated even the SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the airspace of our side.

At around 0959 on 22 April, following the firing of rifles and guns on 21 April, the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated an SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the airspace above the Kangnyong Peninsula, in the western sea of our country. They infiltrated the reconnaissance plane into the airspace above (Yolhae), east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country, at around 0940 and 1127.

The criminal acts of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet army, including the aerial espionage and military provocations, totalled more than 4,000 cases from 6 March to 30 April, that is, before and after the grave armed provocations on and after 21 April. All facts prove that these were deliberate and premeditated armed provocations of the enemy to ignite another war in Korea, the senior member of our side declared, and went on: Today, the U.S. imperialists are pushing ahead full-scale with their troop reinforcement plan and staging aggressive military exercises and war maneuvers. Thus, they are actively accelerating preparations for war provocations.

Through the large-scale war exercise "Team Spirit 1982," the U.S. imperialist aggressors have perfected even more new war preparations. They have sent many military leaders to South Korea and let them conspire for war with the bellicose South Korean elements. They have inspired war fever by frequently visiting the frontlines. The visit to South Korea by U.S. Vice President Bush is a good example. As soon as he arrived in South Korea, Bush inspected the South Korea-U.S. combined field and frontline units, and, at meetings on security and in a speech at the National Assembly, he openly stated that the United States will not retreat from South Korea. He raved that U.S. troops will be reinforced and military assistance to South Korea will be intensified.

The senior member of our side sternly denounced his remarks, noting that such utterances mean the U.S. imperialist aggressors will continue occupying South Korea and further accelerate preparations for aggressive war provocations. By pointing to concrete data, he strongly refuted the remarks about our so-called military superiority and invasion as aimed at concealing their aggressive nature. The senior member of our side exposed the political aims of the enemy concealed in such remarks, just like a thief crying, "Stop thief!"

By raving about our military superiority, invasion and so forth, the enemy is attempting to soothe anti-U.S. sentiment growing higher these days among the South Korean people and to suppress the voice of world condemnation against the rascals.

At the same time, the enemy is attempting to legalize the occupation of South Korea by U.S. imperialist aggressors and their war preparation maneuvers by continuously presenting the theory on the threat of southward invasion, which has already been discredited. Noting that the enemy has perpetrated one armed provocation after another and has intensifed espionage and hostile acts against our side, timed to coincide with Bush's tour of South Korea, the senior member of our side said that the enemy can neither achieve its wicked aim by any vicious trick nor escape responsibility for the grave military provocations.

Various incidents, including the armed provocation of 21 April, and the enemy's acts at this meeting show more clearly that the rascals are the outrageous violators of the armistice agreement, warmongers recklessly acting to strain the situation in our country and to lead it to the brink of war, and shameless swindlers who are unscrupulous about methods benefiting their vicious aims. As the enemy commits one grave armed provocation after another against us along the MDL, while hastening preparations for a new war in real earnest in South Korea, the situation in our country is becoming more strained and a critical situation in which armed conflicts may break out any moment has been created in the DMZ.

He stressed: It is entirely thanks to our side's patience that the large-scale armed provocations of the South Korean puppet army did not turn into a total armed conflict. But the enemy must clearly know that there is a limit to our patience. If the enemy side persists in its reckless play with fire against our side along the MDL, defying our repeated protests and demands, we will mete out a stern punishment to the provocateurs. The enemy must look straight at reality and act with discretion, he warned.

The senior member of our side stressed: The U.S. imperialists occupying South Korea should not instigate the South Korean military fascist elements to oppose us and should not adhere to new war provocation maneuvers. They should withdraw from South Korea, taking along all the aggressive forces, in accord with the demand of the Korean people and the peace-loving people of the world.

VRPR HITS SOUTH'S PLANNED NAVAL FIRING EXERCISES

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] At this hour, we will talk about the Chon Tu-hwan ring's attempt to conduct naval firing exercises. The Chon Tu-hwan military group has announced that it will conduct naval mobility and firing exercises in the sea off Pusan port and the sea linking Chinhae and Masan ports from 6 to 8 May and in the sea along the west coastline from 5 to 8 May. This is an act of intentionally heightening tension on the Korean Peninsula and a brazen challenge to people at home and abroad who desire peace and the peaceful reunification of the peninsula.

As is known, a very adventurous and unprecedentedly large joint South Korea-U.S. military exercise called "Team Spirit 1982" was staged in this land from 13 February to 26 April, simulating aggression against North Korea. Before the echo of the rackets of this war exercise, which had continued for more than 70 days, faded, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is now maneuvering to make gunpowder reek by again staging naval mobility and firing exercises in the south and west seas. This reveals the bellicose nature of the Chon Tu-hwan ring -- a group of pro-U.S. stooges. This clearly shows that this ring is a grcup of traitors who have heightened tension on the Korean Peninsula and have desperately opposed the country's independent and peaceful reunification.

In principle, war and peaceful reunification cannot be compatible. Today, the world's progressive people, together with our people, ardently desire the attainment of peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula at the earliest possible date through the alleviation of tension on the Korean Peninsula and through the elimination of the danger of war.

This is very important in preserving peace not only on the Korean Peninsula but also in Asia and the world. Lying about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, however, the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military group -- their stooges -- have massed vast armed troops in the area along the armistice line and have further accelerated maneuvers to make preparations for a new war by continuously kicking up the racket of a reckless game of playing with fire against the North.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring's attempt to stage powder-reeking naval mobility and firing exercises in the south and west seas is an intentional act to lead the situation on the Korean Peninsula to a more dangerous stage and to heighten tension. Because of the Chon Tu-hwan group's reckless war maneuvers, tension has increased in our country and the danger that a war might break out at any moment has further increased. Every fact shows that, although Chon Tu-hwan has clamored about peace and peaceful reunification in words only, he is actually clinging to maneuvers for war and division.

Our people will never tolerate the Chon Tu-hwan ring's criminal maneuvers to oppose the country's independent and peaceful reunification and to drive the people to suffer horrible war disasters. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should correctly view the desire of the people at home and abroad and the trend of the times for peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula, should act discreetly, immediately stop kicking up the rackets of reckless war exercises and step down from power without delay in accordance with the unanimous will and desire of our people.

NODONG SINMUN URGES EXECUTION OF 1982 BUDGET

[NODONG SINMUN 30 April editorial: "Let Us Vigorously Struggle to Successfully Execute This Year's State Budget in All Sectors"]

[Text] Today, all workers throughout the country, upholding the historic policy speech delivered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at a joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly [SPA], have vigorously, courageously and confidently risen in the struggle to imbue society with the chuche idea, and we are assigned the important task of vigorously accelerating socialist economic construction by successfully executing this year's state budget, which was reviewed and adopted at the first session of the Seventh SPA.

As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the state budget is a basic financial plan and a state law which plans overall state affairs. Only when we correctly execute the state budget can we expand production, develop science and culture and continuously improve the people's living standards. Thanks to the party's wise leadership and the lofty revolutionary zeal of our heroic working class and all workers who are endlessly loyal to the party and the leader, state budgets have been successfully executed every year in our country. The state budget was successfully executed last year, based on a new upsurge in socialist construction and the rapid development of all sectors of the people's economy. Our state finances greatly contributed to strengthening the country's political, economic and military might.

The thoroughgoing execution of this year's state budget based on the brilliant successes in executing the budget lasy year is of great significance in further consolidating the country's economic and financial foundations, in vigorously accelerating production and construction and in improving the people's living standards a step further. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: We should make epochal progress in the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea and make this year the most brilliant one in the history of the revolutionary struggle of our people by enacting a new, great upsurge this year in all sectors of revolution and construction.

To implement the second 7-year plan ahead of schedule in all sectors of the people's economy in accordance with the militant tasks set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his new year's message and in his recent policy speech, and to open promising prospects for achieving the 10-point prospective goals for socialist economic construction, we should vigorously carry out the four nature remodelling projects and concentrate on achieving chemical and metallurgical goals. We should more rapidly develop agriculture, fisheries and light industries so that we can improve the people's living standards a step further.

Reflecting such demands for socialist economic construction, this year's state budget has been correctly formulated to accelerate socialist construction to the maximum by financially guaranteeing a high speed of economic development and a balance among the sectors of the people's economy. Correctly executing the national economic plan and the state budget for this year is an honorable and worthwhile struggle to brilliantly implement the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's outstanding policy for economic construction, and it is an honorable task of accelerating the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea under the leadership of the party. By displaying the spirit of absolutely and unconditionally implementing the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's instructions and the party's policies -- the materialization of these instructions -- functionaries and workers in all sectors and units should accomplish the revolutionary tasks assigned their sectors and units in a responsible manner worthy of masters, thus winning new, brilliant victories in executing this year's plan and state budget.

To enact new innovations and progress in executing the people's economic plan and state budget for this year, it is above all important for us to more vigorously carry out the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural. Vigorously forging ahead with the three revolutions is a decisive factor for accomplishing ahead of schedule the vast militant tasks for this year and the second 7-year plan and for achieving the new 10-point prospective goals.

All functionaries and workers should firmly arm themselves with the great chuche idea, should think and act in accordance with the requirements of the chuche idea and should assume an attitude worthy of masters in their work. In particular, they should closely study and master the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's ideas on socialist financial management and the financial policy of our party -- the materialization of this idea. With an indomitable fighting spirit, they should thoroughly implement this policy to the end.

All sectors and units of the people's economy should continuously improve technical and economic indices by vigorously carrying out a mass tachnical innovation movement, by improving production equipment and technical production processes and by extensively introducing advanced technology. They should also vigorously forge ahead with the cultural revolution.

An important guarantee for successfully executing this year's plan and state budget is the effective mobilization and utilization of the already provided production potential and an increase in production with the existing facilities, materials and labor force.

The foundation for the self-reliant economy, which our people have provided through the self-reliant and arduous struggle, has enormous production potential. The success of our struggle largely depends on how we effectively mobilize and utilize this potential.

Upholding the teachings of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we should thoroughly establish a planned, preventative maintenance system for facilities and supervise and plan production and organization, thus leaving not even one unit of equipment unused but operating it at full capacity, completely utilizing the already provided production capacity. Thus, using indices, we should accomplish without fail daily, monthly, and quarterly plans ahead of schedule. Along with this, upholding the party's slogan "Let us save, save and save again!" We should firmly maintain our stand as the masters of the nation's economy, thereby economizing on electricity, fuel, raw materials and materials to the maximum extent and scientifically setting standards for consumption of all materials. Thoroughly abiding by these standards, we should systematically lower the rate of material consumption per unit of production. In particular, by planning and coordinating management activities, plants and enterprises should endlessly lower the prime cost of products.

So as to successfully execute this year's state budget and create new upsurges in socialist economic construction, we should more thoroughly accomplish the Taean work system and highly display the superiority of the new industrial guidance system. The Taean work system created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a powerful weapon for economic management to which we should firmly adhere during the entire period of socialist and communist construction. By going down to the lower units, strengthening political guidance and thoroughly accomplishing the mass line in conformity with the demands of the Taean work system, the workers of all sectors and all units should highly enhance the revolutionary zeal of the productive masses and successfully carry out the assigned revolutionary tasks.

Along with this, we should thoroughly establish the unified, intensive production guidance system in confirmity with the demands of the Taean work system, better accomplish the policy of making the planning unified and detailed, and supervise and plan the work of managing facilities, materials, the labor force and financing, thereby carrying out economic management in a scientific and rational fashion. The new industrial guidance system provided by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a most superior industrial guidance system of our own style which assists in thoroughly implementing the Taean system by strengthening party and political guidance of industry and by correctly combining the state's centralized, uniform guidance with provincial creativity.

Always grasping in detail the actual situation of plants and enterprises, all provincial economic guidance committees should establish an orderly system under which they responsibily and uniformly grasp and guide all work ranging from the planning and management of facilities, guarantee of materials supply, and the organization of the labor force to financial evaluations. Functionaries should always go down to the plants and enterprises, give priority to political work and solve all pending problems in time, thus vigorously leading the masses to endless upsurges in production.

Correctly enforcing the independent economic accounting system is important work to which we should give priority in thoroughly accomplishing the Taean work system and successfully executing this year's state budget. The independent economic accounting system is an original method of managing the socialist state-run enterprises, which enables us to preserve the state's principle of planned management in accord with the real character of the socialist society and its transitional nature, properly maintain a balance at enterprises with regard to relative management originality, and correctly combine political and moral incentive with material incentive in economic management.

This year, all sectors of the national economy, all plants and enterprises, with deep understanding of the significance of practicing the independent economic accounting system in socialist economic construction, should practice the independent economid accounting system more superbly, meeting the demands of the Taean work system.

Endlessly strengthening the local budget system is an important demand in rapidly developing the local economy and culture, making the material and cultural life of the people more prosperous and further accelerating socialist construction. Functionaries at local power bodies should keep production at local industrial plants at a high level by improving guidance and management over local industries and, in particular, firmly consolidating the small and medium-size chemical plants, while actively accommodating the people in their living by maintaining well the network of social nourishment supply and the network of accommodating the people, also improving these networks. They should also guarantee the outlay of local budget funds by increasing income and earning more money for the state.

To successfully execute the state budget for this year, we should strengthen financial management and financial control and establish strict financial regulations. All the functionaries and working people should spend the nation's money as stipulated by regulations by thoroughly observing our party's financial management regulations. They should never violate the regulations or spend the people's money without thorough consideration. At the same time, the guidance functionaries of the state economic organizations and enterprise management functionaries should execute the state budget without deviation by constantly improving the activities of managing the enterprises and thoroughly observing financial regulations.

All state organization, enterprises and cooperative organizations should actively mobilize the masses to financial management and firmly turn financial management into works of the masses themselves by strengthening the monthly and quarterly financial summing up system provided by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the daily financial summing up system put forward by our party. At the same time, the financial banking institutions should strengthen the control of won.

To implement successfully this year's national economic plan and correctly execute the state budget, it is important to heighten the role of party organizations. All party organizations and members of the three revolutions work teams should direct their efforts toward continuously pushing ahead with the three revolutions of ideology, technology and culture, while superbly carrying out the work of giving guidance to and assisting the functionaries of the economic sectors and working people so they can make continued renovations and continually advance with self-reliant revolutionary spirits and high revolutionary verve. In addition, they should correctly lead the functionaries of all sectors so that they can perform well financial management work with the right stand andoutlook of finance.

Let us all make this significant year a most brilliant year in the annals of our people's revolutionary struggle by successfully implementing this year's plan and the state budget by energetically marching in the spirit of the speed battle joined to chollima, upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's new year's message and policy speech.

NODONG SINMUN NOTES KIM CHONG-IL CHUCHE TREATISE

[NODONG SINMUN 3 May editorial: "Let Us More Firmly Arm Ourselves With the Chuche Idea of Our Party"]

[Text] Today, the entire country is seething with a magnificent advance movement to thoroughly implement the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's historic policy speech on the task of the people's government in imbuing society with the chuche idea. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is a great chuche-type revolutionary program indicating the way to thoroughly embody the chuche idea in all sectors of revolution and construction and to achieve the final victory of the chuche idea.

One of the most important tasks in brilliantly implementing this magnificent program is to more aggressively forge ahead with the work of firmly arming all party members and workers with the chuche idea. Continuously strengthening indoctrination and propaganda on the chuche idea to meet the requirements of the developing reality is a firm policy consistently pursued by our party. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The basis of the ideological revolution is to firmly arm party members and workers with the chuche idea of our party.

The chuche idea is the unitary guidance ideology of our party and is a firm guideline for the revolution and construction in our era. The history of the advance of our revolution is one in which all the people have struggled and achieved victory with this revolutionary idea as a firm creed. All of our revolutionary gains shine with the chuche idea. Only when all the people firmly arm themselves with the chuche idea can they advance and complete their revolutionary cause. This is an indisputable truth which has been proved in the historic course of our protracted and arduous revolution. Learning from this truth and paying attention to the work of arming party members and workers with the chuche idea in accelerating the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea, our party has assisted in vigorously forging ahead with this work. In particular, it has clearly solved various theoretical questions in understanding the chuche idea and has helped all party members and workers profoundly master and thoroughly put it into practice.

Today, all the people are living and struggling with the chuche idea as a firm world outlook and as a guideline in their work and daily life. Thus, society is overflowing only with the chuche idea. This is the precious fruition of the leadership of our party.

The recent publication of the treatise "On the Chuche Idea" by Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau and secretary of the KWP Central Committee, has marked a very important occasion in firmly arming party members and workers with the chuche idea and making them fight stoutly under its banner. The treatise comprehensively explains all questions concerning the formulation, principles, study and materialization of the chuche idea. Because of this, the treatise serves as a fine textbook for the study of the chuche idea and as a guideline for study and propaganda on the theory of the chuche idea. It is very significant for our party members and workers to have this scientific work in vigorously accelerating their revolutionary cause under the banner of the chuche idea.

The work of arming ourselves with the chuche idea is work which we should further strengthen now, when the revolution and construction have developed further. Today, our revolution has reached a very high stage in which we are struggling with the work of imbuing society with the chuche idea as a general mission. By vigorously forging ahead with the work of arming party members and workers with the chuche idea, we should expedite the final victory of the chuche idea.

The chuche idea is a great prevolutionary idea with which all party members and workers should firmly arm themselves, which they should regard as a world outlook and which they should thoroughly materialize. As explained in the treatise, the chuche idea is above all a great guiding idea which reflects the trend of a new historic era. The greatness and truth of the revolutionary idea of the working class rests with the fact that this idea reflects the requirements of the contemporary era for the development of the revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, based on profound insight into the requirements of our era and into the situation of the initial stages of the communist movement in our country, discovered in his early years the new truth that the revolutionary struggle should be waged independently and creatively, relying on the people, and he has developed and completed the chuche idea as the guiding idea of our era in the course of generalizing the rich experience which he has gained while leading the revolution and construction.

Thus, he has developed the people's revolutionary struggle to achieve sovereignty to a new, higher stage. In grasping the truth of the chuche idea, we understand the historic achievements of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in ushering in and advancing a new, historic era under the banner of the great chuche idea. The chuche idea is an encyclopedic revolutionary idea comprehensively containing a philosophical principle and the principles of developing nature, society, revolution and construction. The chuche idea contains the most scientific and revolutionary philosophical principle. As clarified in the treatise, the chuche idea, on the basis of clarifying the essential feature of man, raises the position and role of man in the world as a fundamental philosophical question and brilliantly explains this position and role, thus establishing a new world outlook, placing priority on man.

Only when we firmly arm ourselves with the chuche idea can we assume the revolutionary stand of viewing the world in the interests of man and of making the world serve man. The chuche idea is the evolution of a new principle in social history. As clarified by our party, the chuche idea explains the truth that the people are the subject of social history, that human history is the history of the struggle of the people for independence, that the socio-historic movement is a creative movement of the people and that the independent idea of the people plays a decisive role in the revolutionary struggle. Only when we profoundly master the chuche idea, therefore, can we correctly understand the lawful rule of the development of society and history and vigorously wage the struggle to achieve the sovereignty of the people.

The chuche idea also elucidates the most correct guiding principle which we should abide by in revolution and construction. Possessing a correct guiding principle is a basic factor influencing success in the revolution and construction. The chuche idea stresses the need for maintaining an independent stand, for adopting a creative method and for holding ideology as a basis in the revolution and construction. Only when we thoroughly materialize the guiding principle developed by our party can we correctly formulate and thoroughly implement our lines, policies, strategy and tactics and victoriously accelerate our revolutionary cause.

Indeed, the chuche idea is a great revolutionary idea which has performed a tremendous role in the development of the ideological history and revolutionary practice of the working class. A genuine outlook on the world of our era -- the chuche era -- was established and the basis of the revolutionary theory of the working class was formed by the chuche idea. An epochal turn was effected in the revolution and construction and the revolutionary movement of our era was vigorously accelerated.

We should correctly understand the historic position and greatness of the chuche idea by intensifying the study of this idea. By so doing, we can vigorously accelerate the revolutionary cause with a firm conviction in the victory of the chuche idea, more deeply cherishing great pride in living in the fatherland of the chuche idea.

The treatise "On the Chuche Idea" clarified questions of principle of the chuche idea, developed and enriched its content and powerfully proved its originality and invincible vitality. This is an epochal event which laid a new milestone in arming people with the chuche idea and in embodying it in the revolution and construction. It carries great significance that the party members and working people are firmly arming themselves with the principles of the chuche idea developed in depth by our party. The significance of this lies in the fact that it makes all party members and working people firmly adhere to and glorify eternally the great ideological and theoretical exploits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Safeguarding the ideological and theoretical assets achieved by the leader of the working class is a firm guarantee for vigorously advancing and accomplishing the revolutionary cause. The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song has solved numerous difficult and complex ideological and theoretical tasks raised before the times and the revolution by unique ideological and theoretical activities during the entire period of leading the revolution and construction.

Thus, he made great idological and theoretical achievements which are of immortal significance to the revolutionary struggle of the working class. The future of our revolution and the prosperity of the times are entirely dependent on how we safeguard and develop these lofty assets.

Considering that eternally safeguarding and adhering to Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary idea as the great guiding idea of our revolution is the most important mission assigned by the times and the revolution, our party has directed utmost attention to this work. The principles of the chuche idea put forward by our party are precious assets for safeguarding the purity of Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary ideas and developing and enriching them. Therefore, the work of arming ourselves with our party's ideology and theory of embodying them is work for safeguarding and adhering to the ideological and theoretical achievements made by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

No work is more important for our people, who are carrying out the revolution under the banner of the revolutionary idea of the great Comrade Kim Il-song, than this work. It is of great significance in accelerating the historic advance to model the entire society on the chuche idea that all party members and workers arm themselves with the principles of chuche advanced by our party. The work of embodying the chuche idea in the revolution and construction can be successfully carried out only when party members and workers deeply understand the principles of the chuche idea and make them into their firm faith.

In the past, our people could vigorously advance the revolution and construction solely along the road of independence by overcoming various difficulties and trials under arduous conditions because they had a strong belief in the chuche idea. Today, we are vigorously accelerating the historic cause of modeling the entire society on the chuche idea. The principles of the chuche idea elucidated by our party are the guidelines which enable us to correctly understand the chuche idea and to intensify the struggle to embody the chuche idea in all domains of the revolution and construction.

We can credibly push ahead with the cause for the chuche-orientation of the entire society, convinced of victory and with hope for the future, when we advance adhering to this powerful ideological and theoretical weapon. Today our party's chuche idea clearly shows the road along which our times and revolution should advance. A firm guarantee for achieving the final victory of socialism, expediting the independent reunification of the fatherland and vigorously accelerating the cause of realizing the independence of the entire world lies in that we are living and struggling following the banner of this great revolutionary idea. Putting forward the work of firmly arming outselves with the chuche idea and embodying this idea as the primary task, we should effect a new turn in this work.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: All party members and workers should firmly arm themselves with the chuche idea without fail and should think and act in accord with the requirements of the chuche idea. What is important in arming ourselves with the chuche idea is to develop this work by directing our primary attention to deeply understanding the ideological and theoretical achievements of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song which opened up a new stage in the development of the revolutionary idea of the working class.

The chuche idea has performed a tremendous role in effecting a great change in the development of ideological history and in advancing the revolutionary movement of our era under the banner of independence. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song illuminated the road on which our revolution should advance by creating the immortal revolutionary idea. This is his greatest achievement.

Cherishing the great glory of implementing the revolution and upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- founder of the chuche idea and the outstanding ideologist and theorist of our era -- as the great leader, we should resolutely safeguard and glorify all ideological and theoretical assets the leader has created.

Deeply recognizing that only when they follow the road the leader has pioneered, adopting the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's chuche idea as a guideline, can they win victory in implementing the communist and socialist cause; party members and workers should always uphold the leader's revolutionary idea and leadership. Thanks to our party's positive struggle, the chuche idea is being further glorified with each passing day. Our party is a great chuche-type party which, adopting the chuche idea as a leading guideline, struggles for the ultimate victory of the chuche idea. The chuche idea, which was founded by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, has been resolutely safeguarded and brilliantly developed by our party. We should endlessly glorify the immortal successes our party has attained in the course of leading the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea, regarding them as sound assets for the future of the revolution.

Also of importance in firmly arming ourselves with the chuche idea is deeply studying the principles of the chuche idea. Studying the principles means to grasp the fundamental principle of social development and the revolutionary struggle. Only when we study the principles of the chuche idea can we deeply grasp its profound truth and its greatness and correctly embody the chuche idea. By deeply studying the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's works and our party's publications, all party members and workers should be well versed in the essence of the idea, the thesis contained in them and their theoretical content and basis. By doing so, all party members and workers should be absolute believers in the chuche idea who think and act in conformity with the chuche idea.

The treatise "On the Chuche Idea" serves as a fine textbook for understanding and (?grasping) the theory of the chuche idea. Party organizations should create an atmosphere in which they sincerely study the content of the treatise with party members and workers. To arm ourselves with the chuche idea, we should conduct this work in close combination with revolutionary practice.

The chuche idea is a practical weapon and its vitality has been confirmed through our revolutionary practice. Along with making party members and workers understand the chuche idea in theory, party organizations should make them personify the truth of the chuche idea and its greatness by teaching them the history of our revolution which has won victory under the banner of the chuche idea, the reality of our fatherland in which the chuche idea has fully blossomed and the revolutionary people's struggle to safeguard independence. Party organizations also should make party members and workers responsibly implement their revolutionary tasks as masters and demonstrate the results of their knowledge of the chuche idea through practical struggle by teaching them tasks to embody the chuche idea and other tangible methods.

Functionaries engaged in scientific theory are assigned a very heavy duty of further deepening propaganda and indoctrination on the chuche idea. Functionaries engaged in the sector of social science should intensively and comprehensively study the achievements and experiences our party has attained in embodying the chuche idea and, basing themselves on it, positively contribute to correctly resolving practical problems arising in accelerating the revolution and construction. Functionaries engaged in the educational sector, including universities, should bring up students as a genuine revolutionary elite by strengthening indoctrination in the chuche idea among students. Functionaries engaged in the sector of theory and propaganda should effect a new turn in propaganda work on the chuche idea by writing more articles to expound and conduct propaganda on the chuche idea.

The immortal chuche idea is a great ideological banner leading our revolution and construction to victory. Living and struggling along the road indicated by the chuche idea, defending the revolutionary banner of the chuche idea, is our people's unanimous will. No force can block the road ahead of our people, who adopt the chuche idea as their firm faith.

All party members and workers should expedite the ultimate victory of our revolution by firmly arming themselves with the great chuche idea and stoutly struggling to embody it.

MINISTER PROPOSES NORTH-SOUTH ECONOMIC EXCHANGES

SK050146 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 5 May 82 p 1

[Text] Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik emphasized yesterday that economic exchanges between South and North Korea should be actively promoted involving raw materials and primary products. In a speech at the Federation of Korean Industries, Son said, however, that political intercourse should be eliminated in these prospective exchanges.

For the economic exchanges, Son said, South Korea can buy iron ore, lead, zinc and anthracite from North Korea in return for industrial raw materials, social overhead capital facilities, advanced technological know-how and offering financial loans which North Korea needs.

Son added that unification should be achieved in a peaceful and democratic way under any circumstances. He said major factors which will affect the future unification will be the power gap between South and North Korea, and possible changes in North Korea's relations with Communist China and the Soviet Union and the solidarity in the Seoul-Washington defense structure.

He said prospects for inter-Korea economic exchanges will be good when Kim Il-song is no longer a factor because North Korea will be more pragmatic at that time.

ENERGY CONSUMPTION DROPS IN FIRST QUARTER

[Text] Seoul, Apr 30 (YONHAP) -- Calculated in oil-terms, Korea's energy consumption in the first quarter of 1982 totalled 109.5 million tons, down 8.9 percent from the same period last year, according to the Energy-Resources Ministry. The ministry said that consumption of oil-related energy sources decreased by 14.3 percent from last year's figures to 43.7 million barrels.

First quarter oil imports stood at 40.4 million barrels, down 24.1 percent from the corresponding period last year. Korea's hard coal consumption also decreased by 5.7 percent from last year to 5.9 million tons, while that of soft coal increased by 33.7 percent to 1.9 million tons. Ministry officials attributed the decrease in energy consumption to the lingering recession and relatively warm weather.

Due to accumulating oil and coal stockpiles, the ministry has readjusted the goals of the country's energy consumption for the remainder of this year.

The ministry lowered the expected increase of oil consumption from the original 4.5 percent to 1.3 percent; that of hard coal from 6.5 percent to 3.5 percent; and that of electric power from 9.8 percent to 6.5 percent.

The ministry plans to import 187 million barrels of oil, down 5.5 percent from original projections; four million tons of hard coal, down 34.9 percent; and 8.6 million tons of soft coal, up 3.4 percent from the first estimates.

Ministry officials said decreases in energy imports will save Korea 289.8 million U.S. dollars.

DK CABINET ISSUES STATEMENT ON APRIL MEETING

BK050416 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 4 May 82

["Statement of the Cabinet of the Democratic Kampuchean Government" -- dated 21 April]

[Text] The Cabinet of the Democratic Kampuchean Government held a meeting from 20 to 21 April 1982 under the chairmanship of Khieu Samphan, chairman of the state Presidium and prime minister. All ministers, except for those who were engaged in missions abroad and urgent matters, attended the meeting. The cabinet reviewed and summed up the outcome of the government's work in all aspects in the dry season from October 1981 to April 1982 which has just ended, and set plans for the 1982 rainy season and 1982 as a whole.

The cabinet noted with satisfaction the outcome of the government's activities in this dry season. All members of the government have exerted every effort in carrying out their respective tasks in the military, diplomatic and all other fields -- such as health, social affairs, cultural and economic fields -- and in leading the struggle to crush the last dry-season offensive of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy in all areas throughout Kampuchea.

The date 12 April 1982 in which the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy was compelled to flee in great shame from the Phnum Malai, Mak Hoeun and Sisophon-south of Route 5 battlefields is an historic day as it marks when all the people, national army and guerrillas of Democratic Kampuchea successfully smashed the 1981-82 dry-season offensive of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy which it regarded as the last dry season in which it must wipe out all the forces of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas.

Thus, the defeat suffered in this dry season by the Vietnamese enemy clearly attests to its strategic defeat in military field. Along with the strategic defeat of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, the people, national army and guerrillas have made progress in all aspects.

In the military field, along with crushing the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy's dry-season offensive, we recaptured the territory that was under our control in the past rainy season. We have even expanded this liberated zone; thus the number of people living in our Democratic Kampuchean zone in all regions throughout the country has increased.

In the political field, the Kampuchean people have become increasingly aware that the only force fighting the Vietnamese enemy is Democratic Kampuchea. They have become well aware that Democratic Kampuchea -- which fights in pools of blood without fear of death in order to resist the Vietnamese aggressors, liberate the nation and defend our race -- has made every effort to rally all patriotic forces to fight against the Vietnamese aggressors. This is why they have actively supported Democratic Kampuchean efforts for national unity. With every passing day, the people welcome and wait for the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas to liberate them. As for the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, all the Kampuchean people harbor great rancor against it and only wait for a chance to crush it. In Vietnam, the Vietnamese people resent the aggressor Le Duan Vietnamese clique. The clique's leadership apparatus is tottering to an extent unprecedented in the history of Vietnam. For example, the Fifth Congress of the so-called Vietnam Communist Party removed a number of old-hand Political Bureau members. They were replaced by new ones who have no influence among the people, workers and armymen. This also attests to the fact that Le Duan Vietnamese enemy has suffered a strategic defeat.

In the diplomatic field, we have made progress with respect to the point that the forces which are supporting us in the international arena have become more stable, in comparison with last year. The international front opposing expansionism has become more organized and firm. Particularly, this front has become well aware of Democratic Kampuchea's role in resisting the Vietnamese-Soviet expansionist strategy. Meanwhile, the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy has become extremely isolated in the international arena. Countries throughout the world -- except for the Soviet followers -- have all voiced a strong demand for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and put economic and financial pressures on Vietnam by absolutely refusing to resume aid to Vietnam. The world is well aware that Vietnam is the aggressor and the destroyer of the heritages of the Kampuchean national culture, such as the Angkor temples. Therefore, Democratic Kampuchea has achieved satisfactory progress in the military, political and diplomatic fields.

In the economic field, although the state of the genocidal war prevents us from recording any big progress, the crops that our people planted have increased fairly, even though the amount still does not meet the people's needs.

As for the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, it had found itself completely and totally at an impasse in the military, political and diplomatic fields, although it has exerted all-out efforts to carry on its maneuvers -- particularly in diplomatic field -- and to redress its military situation in order to delay its defeat. Its economy has plummeted to the bottom.

In summation, despite the obstinacy and efforts of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, we have made progress in all aspects although in our struggle we have had to pass through very complicated struggles full of twists and turns. Aside from the military maneuvers of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, we must also pay attention to its political maneuvers to subvert and undermine our internal ranks in an attempt to foil the rallying of our Kampuchean national forces. In particular, we must pay attention to its diplomatic maneuvers to extend its occupation of Kampuchea through the burying of the UN resolutions which demand the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. In this effort, the Soviet Union and Vietnam have tried to undermine the international front that opposes global and regional expansion. Through this, they hope that they might be able to divert the current situation into one in which Democratic Kampuchea -- the sole fighting force which has attacked and recorded successive defeats against the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy on the Kampuchean battlefield -- will become isolated.

In the face of this dark design of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy, the cabinet would like to appeal to all of the Kampuchean people inside and outside the country and all the male and female combatants and cadres of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrilla units in all battlefields throughout the country to uphold the banner of great national unity more highly and struggle shoulder to shoulder in order to fulfill the following tasks in the coming rainy season and in 1982 as a whole:

1. Continue to fight and resist the offensive drives of the Vietnamese enemy since it will certainly strive to carry on its abject military operations;

2. Continue to disseminate and implement more effectively the PDFGNUK policies, particularly among the people living in the zone temporarily controlled by the enemy; and

3. Strive to mobilize friends in the international arena. The cabinet would like to stress that Democratic Kampuchea does not want to solve the Kampuchean problem only through the armed struggle. Democratic Kampuchea welcomes any measure so long as it makes the Vietnamese enemy withdraw its troops from Kampuchea. In this immediate period, however, the Vietnamese aggressors have compelled us to take up arms to fight against them, otherwise our nation would die and we would lose our fatherland.

Concerning the problem of national unity, the Democratic Kampuchean Government is the one which initiated the secret negotiations with the other parties which are opposing the Vietnamese aggressors and the one which led to the signing of the joint communique in Singapore on 4 September 1981. Later on, the Democratic Kampuchean Government strived to meet with other parties, such as the meeting with Samdech Norodom Sihanouk on 21 and 23 February 1982 in Beijing with the aim of successfully realizing this national union. Moreover, for this sacred cause of national union, the Democratic Kampuchean side has made all kinds of sacrifices and a great deal of contributions.

At present, the Democratic Kampuchean Government must lead the struggle to fight the Vietnamese aggressors because if we do not fight the Vietnamese aggressors, our nation would die. Thus, the best measure for all friends concerned -- near and far who oppose global and regional expansion -- is to increase their support for Democratic Kampuchea, which is a legitimate state, so as to oppose the Vietnamese aggressors more effectively.

Moreover, the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy's war of aggression has wreaked upon the Kampuchean people great misery, ailment, starvation, destruction and separation, and caused the death of 2.5 million Kampucheans. For this reason, the cabinet would like to appeal to all peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world to join with each other and put an end to this unjust war by:

1. Supporting the legal and legitimate Democratic Kampuchea state through a vote of support to maintain the Democratic Kampuchean seat at the United Nations in the coming 37th General Assembly;

2. Putting all forms of pressure on the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy to force it to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the 34th, 35th and 36th UN resolutions, including such measures as cutting economic, financial and all other kinds of aid. Do not give any aid to it; and

3. Giving all forms of aid to the Kampuchean people who are waging the struggle.

Availing itself of this occasion, the cabinet would like to express its commendation for the great spirit of sacrifice of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas and all of the Kampuchean people who have inflicted most shameful defeats on the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy in this dry season which it considered a decisive dry season.

The cabinet bows its head to pay homage to the noble souls of the comrades in arms who have sacrificed their young lives for the survival of the nation and preservation of the fatherland.

In conclusion, the cabinet would like to express profound thanks to ASEAN and all other countries in the world which have given their support and assistance to the Kampuchean people's just cause to liberate their nation and defend their race. A Kampuchean proverb says: A friend in need is a friend indeed. The ASEAN countries and other countries have supported and helped us in a time of difficulty in which we have faced the danger of losing our nation and race. The Kampuchean people will forever remember the good deeds of these true friends.

BK050655 Hong Kong AFP in English 0611 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Bangkok, 5 May (AFP) -- The ousted Khmer Rouge government is ready to meet two other anti-Vietnamese Cambodian factions for further talks on a coalition virtually anywhere anytime, a Khmer Rouge official said today.

The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) -- Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines -- have been maneuvering to bring about such as tripartite resistance summit before the ASEAN foreign ministers hold their annual conference in Singapore in June.

KAYSONE PHOMVIHAN'S REPORT TO LPRP CONGRESS

[Political report by LPRP Central Committee General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan at Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane — live]

[Text] Respected members of the presidium, respected comrade guests, dear comrade delegates:

Since the second party congress, continuing the country's heroic struggle cause, our country's revolution has -- under the leadership of the party -- gone through difficult and hard times and won great victories of historic significance, thereby driving out the U.S. imperialists, liberating the whole country, eliminating the feudalist system, fulfilling the national-democratic revolution, and leading this country to embark on a new era, an era of independence, freedom and socialism. [applause]

The historic victories in liberating the country and fulfilling the national-democratic revolution:

Approaching the early years of the 1970's, our people's national salvation struggle against the U.S. imperialists entered the period of winning the final victory. After sustaining defeats in their attempts at Vietnamizing the war in Vietnam, waging the intensified special war in Laos and in expanding the war to Kampuchea, the U.S. imperialists found it necessary to sign the Paris agreement on Vietnam in 1973 and to recognize the Vientiane agreement on Laos in that same year. The United States also found it necessary to withdraw its troops from the various Indochinese countries. However, they nurtured the hope that with the approval of Beijing they could implement its postwar schemes in Laos through its lackey forces. At a time when the United States was defeated and at an impasse, the reactionaries in the Beijing ruling circles made use of the Indochinese people's victories as a bargaining chip for the United States to place China in the United Nations and make concessions with China on the Taiwan issue. They have colluded with the United States in their scheme to apply pressure on the Lao and Vietnamese revolutions to force them to depend on China.

Despite the collusion between the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese reactionaries to implement their dark desires, we vigorously brought into full play our subjective factors, strengthened the actual forces of the revolution in all respects, were determined to build and turn the liberated zone into a state and prepared every condition for advancing toward the liberation of the whole country.

Coordinating in battles with Vietnamese volunteer forces, our army and people heroically defeated the U.S. intensified special war in Laos step by step and liberated fourth-fifths of the entire territory and over one half of the population in the country, thus forcing the United States to recognize the Vientiane agreement on Laos dated 21 February 1975. We vigorously encouraged the political struggle movements of the masses, maneuvered for a very important and great strategic position and shattered the enemy's postwar schemes, thereby creating fasic favorable conditions for leading the revolution to win complete victory.

In the autumn of 1973, a sector of the central leading organization and 1,500 fighters of the LPLA moved into Vientiane and Luang Prabang in victorious and gallant manner. Directly led by the party and encouraged by new victories, mass movements in the areas temporarily controlled by the United States and its puppets developed enthusiastically, extensively and thoroughly. By late 1974 and early in 1975 the revolution surfaced in almost all areas temporarily controlled by the enemy.

At a time when the situation in our country was ripe for simultaneous uprisings all over the country, the Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples won complete victories, thus creating a very favorable condition for the revolution in our country.

Seizing this historic opportunity -- which is available once a millennium -- our party mobilized the masses on a timely basis to stage simultaneous uprisings through the three strategic blows and legal struggles in the three zones [old liberated zone, newly liberated zone and enemy-occupied zone] and launched all-round attacks against the enemy, defeating the various U.S. puppet forces, paralyzing their resistance and forcing them to disarm.

On 5 August 1975, our people basically shattered the lackey administrations in all provinces and municipalities. On 23 August 1975, the people's revolutionary administrative committee of Vietiane Province and municipality introduced itself in a mass rally in the capital. This marked the actual end of the coalition administration.

On 1 and 2 December 1975, the national congress of the people's representatives acknowledged the abdication of King Sisavang Vatthana, recognized the dissolution of the national political coalition council and the national provisional coalition government, abrogated the out-of-date monarchical system and established the LPDR.

We then liberated the whole country and swiftly and completely established the people's democratic administration throughout the country without causing any major damages. We effectively maintained political tranquillity and public order, prevented the people's daily lives from being drastically changed and immediately built a new position and a new force of the revolution. All this is a miraculous success of our leadership, thus befitting our people's saying: The lotus is left unscathed, the mud unstructured, but all the fish are caught. [applause]

The historic victories won by us are also a success for the three Indochinese countries, the various national liberation movements and for the force of peace, democracy, and progress in the world. They are also a victory for invincible Marxism-Leninism. These victories contributed to the partial collapse of U.S. neocolonialism, checking the dangers of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists and to shifting the balance of forces in favor of peace, national independence, democracy and social progress in this region and the rest of the world. [applause]

In short, after waging a struggle against aggression and occupation by the feudalists and foreigners and the imperialists for 2 decades -- particularly after the 30 years of struggle against the French colonialists and the U.S. imperialist aggressors -- our people of all tribes have become the genuine masters of the country and have had sufficient conditions to fulfill their sole, time-honored earnest aspiration: peace, independence, national concord and national unification and an opportunity to build and make the country prosperous and achieve a lasting happy and plentiful life. [applause]

Dear comrades; the initial great victories of our country's revolution on the path of advancing toward socialism:

Immediately after seizing administrative power throughout the country, our party resolutely affirmed that it was necessary to lead the country to advance directly to socialism without pursuing the road of capitalist development. Our party decided to smash the apparatuses of the old regime and build and strengthen the principles of the party-led people's democracy in order to carry out the duties of the proletarian dictatorship. Our state nationalized the banks, factories and plants of the old regime and the private citizens who had fled the country.

Our state took control of the financial branch, communications, electricity, water works, information systems, posts and telecommunications, the press, radio broadcasting networks, publishing establishments, all books and stationery and all other educational sectors.

In the diplomatic sphere, we have adopted a policy and line of completely relying on the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, strengthened the special militant alliance between our people and the Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples and supported the movements of peace, national independence, democracy and social progress in the world.

The actual behavior of the revolution in our country in the past years clearly proves that our party line and policies conform with the rule of the revolution in our country and of the era. It is the first basic factor deciding all the victories of our country. [applause]

The following are our major achievements:

On the national defense and public security front: After fulfilling their national liberation revolution, our people have had only one earnest aspiration, that is, to build the country in peace, consolidate national independence and maintain friendly relations with various nations. However, our people cannot easily carry out this task. After retreating from Laos, the U.S. imperialists have used Thai territory as a springboard to send their lackeys to reactivate bandit and reactionary underground bases; create rebellion and confusion; and bribe, encourage and force some people to evacuate and flee the country, thus sabotaging our people's peaceful and happy life.

The Chinese leaders have long followed in a desperate manner the path of expansionism and hegemonism. On this path of expansionism to Southeast Asia, they have schemed to first swallow the various countries in Indochina. They have exposed their betrayal to the revolutionary peoples in the world as well as to the Chinese people. They have become the most dangerous enemy of our people. They have schemed to connect our territory with Kampuchea where they are clinging to the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary lackey clique to pressure Vietnam in the hope of making the latter yield to them.

Since early in 1979, they have sent several divisions of troops close to the border in preparation for aggression against our country. They are closely colluding with the U.S. imperialists and the ultrarightist Thai reactionaries to feed and train tens of thousands of exiled Lao reactionaries and are using the pro-Maoist reactionary forces in this region to carry out sabotage activities in many respects against our country.

Clearly understanding the stubborn nature and the subtle, dangerous enemy schemes, we have always maintained high vigilance and have ceaselessly consolidated and strengthened the all-people national defense and public security forces. Our various armed forces and public security forces have coordinated with various Vietnamese volunteers in certain areas, and have joined with the people of various ethnic tribes in fighting the enemies in all respects. As a result, their schemes in restoring forces and [word indistinct] with a view to overthrowing our young LPDR have been defeated.

With wholehearted support from our people of various tribes together with the assistance from various fraternal countries, our armed forces and public security forces have been rapidly developed in all respects. Our nation will forever remember the meritorious deeds of our heroes, cadres, combatants and people as well as those of the Vietnamese voluntary fighters and other international fighters who have heroically sacrificed their lives for the cause of our national liberation and for their lofty international obligations to defend our beloved country. [applause]

Since the liberation of the whole country, our party has always regarded the task of guiding the economic transformation and building, the cultural development and the improvement of the people's living conditions as the most important political task.

With the correct line and policies of the party and with the perseverance of our people -- together with great international assistance -- over the past 6 years, the total amount of social products has increased by 43 percent. National revenue has increased by some 40 percent per capita on the average. The amount of agricultural and forestry output has increased 1.5 times while the amount of rice production has increased from 700,000 tons in 1976 to 1,145,000 tons in 1981. The number of cattle has increased from 900,000 to 1,300,000 during the same period. We have begun to carry out intensive agriculture, increase cultivation seasons and build irrigation projects. Fallow land has been restored while wasteland has been reclaimed. Over the past 6 years, the acreage of cultivation has been increased by 33.5 percent compared with that in 1976. The area of irrigated ricefields has doubled. The number of machines used in agricultural work has increased five times. Since 1980, we have basically solved the problem of food shortages.

We have restored and broadened our capability to produce several industrial items, for example, in electricity, repair mechanization, coal exploitation, salt, gypsum, construction materials, food processing and other industries. Electricity production increased 3.57 times in 1981 compared with that produced in 1976. The number of bricks increased by 15 times, farm tools increased by 1.5 times while food industries (beer, cigarettes, and so on) increased by 1.5 times in 1981 compared with those in 1976. Some 600 additional kilometers of roads were also built during this period. We have set up silos in many areas while rebuilding dozens of district or provincial towns which were damaged by the war.

Over the past 6 years, we have set up as many as 31 state agricultural and forestry settlements, thereby expanding the movements to switch to agricultural cooperatives throughout the country. As of today, four provinces have basically completed setting up agricultural cooperatives in rice-farming areas. The state has managed 188 state-owned industrial factories having a total of 15,000 workers. The state has controlled the whole air transportation branch while controlling 60 percent of the auto transportation force. Throughout the country, there are a total of 180 state-owned shops, 346 cooperative stores and 150 service bases. The figures of retail price business have increased by five times while the quantity of consumer goods in the country increased by 7.4 times compared with those in 1976. We have set up the national bank to implement the unified financial system throughout the country. We have announced the implementation of several policies, for example, on pricing, wages, taxes, work procedures and so forth.

Economic relations with foreign countries have been established and broadened. We have been provided with great international assistance, in particular, from various fraternal socialist countries. We have made great efforts in the economic and financial fields.

There still remain enormous difficulties in the economic area. What has made us confident, however, is that through studies done in the past few years, we have gradually found appropriate directions, paths and measures for the carrying out of the economic transformation and construction in the period of bypassing to socialism in our country. [applause]

In the cultural, educational and public health sectors, we have also achieved considerable progress. We have helped 85 percent of uneducated people to stamp out illiteracy. The number of formal students has increased almost twice while the number of vocational school students and senior high school students has increased several times. At present, there are as many as 10,000 Lao students and workers studying abroad.

We have vigorously developed the field of information and culture under various form. We have consolidated the radio stations in various areas while expanding newspapers, bulletins of the party, mass organizations and the army. We have broadened the activities of art and literary and acrobatic troupes as well as of stationed and mobile film projection teams. Sports activities and public health networks have also been rapidly expanded.

The number of cadres in the public health service has increased 1.8 times during the past 5 years. The work on social welfare, war veterans and mother and child care has also been developed considerably. Additionally, we have reeducated and trained thousands of people who are victims of the old society, and have helped them to return to becoming good citizens again. Our major weak point is that the efficiency of these works is still not good and that in general, the struggle on this front against the enemy's sabotage and destruction is still passive.

With regard to the strengthening of the proletarian dictatorship system, our party has concentrated forces on building and rehabilitating various organizations in the proletarian dictatorship system. The party has firmly grasped and strengthened various organizations concerning the state authority and rights and popular democracy. It has concentrated on training, building and broadening the contingent of cadres, particularly the leading cadres at various levels and of various branches. The task of mobilizing workers, state employees, farmers, youths, women, and intellectuals, as well as the work relating to Buddhist monks and novices and tribal chiefs, have also been unprecedentedly consolidated and broadened. The use of the worker-peasant alliance and the role of revolutionary people have been clearly promoted and expanded.

The congress wholeheartedly praises and hails the working class, farmers, other laboring people, intellectuals, elderly people, youths, children, monks or novices, personages, chiefs of various tribes, and industrial, trade, transportation and construction businessmen as well as those Lao residents abroad and aliens in our country for their achievements in production and in maintaining the administrative power, defending and building our beloved country. [applause]

Regarding foreign affairs, we note with pleasure that the special relations between the two parties and countries of Laos and Vietnam have been deepening with each passing day. the signing of the treaty of friendship and cooperation in July 1977, and the signing of other agreements between Laos and Vietnam marks a turning point of historic significance in the relations between the two countries. In the circumstances in which our country has suffered various difficulties created by the enemies or caused by natural disasters, the SRV has continued to give us sincere support and great and valuable assistance.

Our party, state and people have positively supported the fraternal Kampuchean people in staging uprisings to overthrow the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime and to gain genuine independence and freedom. The Kampuchean people have quickly revived and have now been developing along the path of advance to socialism. Our country and the PRK have signed agreements on economic, cultural and trade exchanges and cooperation, and other agreements in other sectors. Following the signing of these agreements, the mutual understanding, mutual trust and mutual assistance in the national defense and construction between the two countries have been further strengthened.

The solidarity and the relations of all-round cooperation between our party, state and people and those of the Soviet Union and of other fraternal socialist countries have also been consolidated and enhanced. The Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries have given great, effective assistance in many fields to our country. Our country's relations with many countries and other international organizations have been incessantly broadened. Our friends have also given increasingly more support and assistance to us.

On the other hand, we have also made a positive contribution to the cause of common struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism in this region and the world. [applause] We note with satisfaction that following our establishment of the new system, our country has become a member of the socialist community of which the Soviet Union is the core. This is a result of the indomitable struggle of the entire party and people of various tribes in our country. This shows the great international socialist trust and love which have been given to us by the various fraternal parties and countries. We must endeavor and surge forward to be worthy of this trust. [applause]

Comrades, alongside with the achievements we have scored, we must accept that we still have numerous shortcomings. This is because we are still characterized by subjectivism, and fail to see all of the difficulties and complexities in the turning period of revolution. This is why in the recent past, we have failed to carry out the political and ideological work profoundly. The efficiency of work in certain fields is still awkward. The work has not been carried out in a timely manner. The cadres and party members -- including key cadres -- have not yet come to understand the party's line, plans and policies profoundly.

Under the new circumstances, a number of party cadres and members have become bureaucratic-minded and divorced themselves from the masses. Moreover, some of them have even become less efficient and have been led astray. Their ideological and political work has not been closely coordinated with organizational work. The organizational machine appears immense and impressive, but its efficiency is low.

A number of local administrations and work branches have not yet genuinely directed their work toward the foundations. Party foundations in several areas remain unstable and weak. The administrations at these foundations have failed to develop their effectiveness to be a genuine tool for guaranteeing the people's right to mastership. A number of mass organizations have not been able to fulfill their responsibilities and roles.

On the economic front, we still remain subjective; we have failed to firmly grasp economic laws, to vigorously promote the people's right to mastership and to pay close attention to reviewing economic efficiency. We still run the economy in a bureaucratic and administrative manner, and cling to nepotism, thus creating an unsound working pattern and inviting more unfavorable reaction from the people. Because orders have been used in an administrative manner in the agricultural and trading transformation front, certain economic foundations which have already been reorganized now lack firmness. On the educational, cultural and public health fronts, only quantitative and format aspects have been stressed -- we have failed to pay attention to raising quality, building necessary material foundations, and providing sufficient welfare facilities to school teachers, cadres and employees in this sector.

Comrades, after reviewing the situation of the development of the revolution in our country in the past 10 years, I have some points to make:

1. Laos is a small country with a small population. Our living standard is very low in many respects, but our people maintain a tradition of ardent patriotism, and have united closely to fight gallantly against external aggression. Favorable historical and epochal developments allowed us to set up a genuine Marxist-Leninist party, which has been the first decisive factor for all the victories of our revolution. In carrying out an arduous and protracted struggle under confusing international conditions, our party has always firmly adhered to the stand of the working class, remained faithful to its ideology, firmly grasped the correct revolutionary goal, and firmly adhered to a clear-cut theoretical line of thinking. It always holds aloft the banner of national independence and socialism, and blends genuine patriotism with glorious proletariat internationalism. Our party remains absolutely firm to its strategy. It remains absolutely resolute in dealing with the enemy, but absolutely faithful to comrades and friends. Our party has guided our people of all nationalities to gallantly overcome numerous difficulties and trials. It fully understands the reality and the balance of forces at all times, under all circumstances and in all places so that it can outline a wise and correct strategy, method and form of fighting to win victory. A correct line, a firm and sound strategy, wise tactics, and a creative and timely revolutionary approach are the decisive factors in all victories or our revolution. [applause]

2. The special aspects of the current reality and the requirements of the revolutionary struggle demand that we firmly grasp and endeavor to continually strengthen the apparatus of proletarian dictatorship, turn our attention to vigorously building political foundations, strengthen the proletarian dictatorship in the countryside and in all economic, technical, administrative and academic foundations in order to guarantee the right to mastership of the laboring people of all nationalities, and more vigorously attack all forces hostile to the revolution in our country.

3. In advancing toward socialist construction under the current reality in our country, we must closely coordinate the two tasks of defending and building the country. We must not place more emphasis on one than the other. However, we must regard economic construction and cultural development as the most important and decisive duty because it is the ultimate goal of the revolution, and a foundation for securely defending the country and building the new regime. Because our numbers are small as a nation, in advancing toward socialist construction we must implement several steps of bypassing. We must extricate ourselves from the natural economy, and transform small-scale production into the large-scale socialist production. We must advance from and transform agricultural and forestry production into industrial production. The development of production is a fundamental aspiration, but for our country the circulation and distribution of goods play a very significant role in developing production. That is why the trade service is very important. To fulfill the objective of this sector, we must first of all try in every way to expand the communications and transport network both within the country and to other countries. The economy is the most decisive factor, but culture plays a very significant role. This is because without sound cultural standards, we will not be able to transform and build the economy, defend the country, and become the genuine masters of the country and our own destiny. Therefore, we must advance the ideological and cultural revolution, especially in the educational field, one step ahead of other tasks.

Line, Orientations and Tasks of Our Revolution in the New Stage

Comrades:

I -- In the new stage, the revolution in our country has developed with the following major characteristics:

1. Embarking on the new stage of the revolution, together with Vietnam and Kampuchea, our country has become an outpost of the socialist system in Southeast Asia, directly confronting a new international reactionary alliance with the Chinese expansionist reactionaries as a shock brigade.

The reactionary clique in the Beijing ruling circles, in collusion with U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces, has become the direct and dangerous enemy of our people; therefore, the struggle to defend our independence, sovereignty and new regime is to be a very fierce and protracted struggle and surely it will make the Who Will Win struggle between the two paths -- socialist and capitalist -- ever more intense and complicated.

2. We have set up a superior political regime, and our multiethnic people have become masters of the whole country; but our economy is by far underdeveloped and our cultural level leaves much to be desired. We possess a great variety of rich natural resources and enjoy fundamentally favorable international conditions; however, our capacity to exploit the potentials of our country and international aid is still very limited.

The consequences of 30 years of war of aggression and the neocolonialist vestiges of U.S. imperialism still require many years to overcome.

Since our economy is underdeveloped, the differentiation of classes in our society is not sharp and evenly distributed in various regions. Workers, peasants and other sections of laboring people account for about 95 percent of the population. In our society there still exist exploiting elements. However, they are small in number, do not engage in large-scale exploitation and do not constitute a main obstacle to the development of production. The main obstacle is our small production permeated with the character of a natural economy. Therefore, the biggest problem at present is to encourage and provide assistance, guidance and organization for the various strata of people, particularly the working peasants, to take up the path of socialist collective production voluntarily, thus gradually eliminating poverty and backwardness.

Our nation is composed of many ethnic groups whose levels of development are not equal, and the vast majority of our people are Buddhist believers. Over the past decades, all strata of the population and all the ethnic and religious groups have united into a bloc in the national united front, marching under the party banner, and have resolutely risen to fight for national liberation, to defend and build our fatherland. Ours is a nation which has enjoyed a fine tradition of unity, indomitable fighting, faithfulness and loyalty. This is a fundamental strength quite favorable to us in the building and development of the revolutionary movement to bring socialism to our people and help us overcome all difficulties, defend the fatherland and successfully build socialism.

3. We are carrying out the socialist revolution at a time when the socialist countries have become a powerful system in the world with the Soviet Union as a mainstay, when Vietnam and Kampuchea are also firmly defending their national independence and building socialism. We embark upon the socialist revolution at a time when the third scientific-technological revolution has developed intensively and widely and when the socialist countries and the world's working class have obtained mastery of this revolution.

The above-mentioned three major characteristics are closely connected and affect all spheres of work throughout the new stage of our revolution; but the most salient characteristic is that we are advancing to socialism from too low an economic and cultural level, and furthermore, we are subjected to the enemy's continuous sabotage.

II. General Line, Orientations and Tasks of the Revolution in the New Stage

A. To advance directly to socialism, bypassing the stage of capitalist development, is the necessary path of our revolution aimed at meeting the cherished aspirations of the people of all ethnic groups in our country, namely, to consolidate peace, firmly safeguard sovereignty and national independence and build a lasting, prosperous and happy life.

This is a question of the development law of our revolution and also the law and the inevitable trend of the present epoch, namely, national independence linked with socialism. Socialism can only materialize on the basis of the working people being real masters of their country and society under the party's leadership, and a large-scale mechanized industry. To advance to socialism from a small farmers' natural economy of self-sufficiency and self-support, is a very new, almost unprecedented path. It must go through various transition steps and must be a long one, full of difficulties and hardships.

We should rebuild all forces of production as well as the relations of production, infrastructure as well as superstructure. Of these,what is the most fundamental is the building of the new productive forces and the molding of new socialist people fully capable of managing the state and society and organizing a life of work and happiness for millions of people.

The general line of our revolution in the new stage is as follows:

To ceaselessly consolidate and strengthen the proletarian dictatorship, to organize and ensure close unity of the working people of allethnic groups and the exercising of their right to master their country and society.

To carry out simultaneously the three revolutions in which the revolution in production relations will pave the way for the productive forces to develop; the scientific-technological revolution is the kingpin and the cultural and ideological revolution should take a step ahead all for the socialist construction.

To exploit and bring into full play all potentials of the country, starting from agriculture and forestry, taking the development of agriculture and forestry as a base for industrial development, to transform the natural economy.

To turn small production step by step into socialist large-scale production, to carry out industrialization gradually and selectively, considering socialist industrialization as the central task of the period of transition in order to develop the production forces, to build up and constantly consolidate the socialist relations of production, to turn our country into one having developed agriculture, forestry and industry.

To build a prosperous, happy and joyful life for the people of all ethnic groups, to eradicate for good the exploitation of man by man.

To strengthen national defense and security, firmly defend our sovereignty, national independence and the new regime.

To build a peaceful, independent, unified and socialist Laos, and together with Vietnam and Kampuchea firmly defend the outpost of the world socialist system in the region and actively contribute to the struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism in the world.

In carrying out the above-mentioned general line we should lead the Who Will Win struggle between the capitalist and socialist paths, and this is a new stage in the class struggle. It will evolve in every field of social activities. As an outpost and in face of the perfidious enemy who is bent on disrupting us, the struggle to take our country to socialism will be a most arduous, difficult, complex and fierce one. The whole party, the people and the army should always grasp firmly and simultaneously accomplish the two strategic tasks: To defend the country and to build socialism. These two tasks are most important and closely interlinked, assisting and supporting one another. Nevertheless, the most fundamental and decisive task is to build socialism. Only when socialist construction is carried out can we achieve the objectives of the revolution, meet the cherished aspiration of the people of all ethnic groups and secure firm bases to safeguard the new regime.

B. The above-mentioned general line and tasks should be fully grasped and carried out throughout the period of transition to socialism, in which the basic objectives of the whole period are:

To constantly strengthen, consolidate and perfect the proletarian dictatorship system and to materialize the right of mastery by the working people of all ethnic groups.

To build the necessary material and technological basis of socialism, and to endow our country with developed agriculture, forestry and industry.

To build and perfect the socialist relations of production, to ensure that the socialist economic sectors play the dominant role in the national economy, and eradicate for good the exploitation of man by man, enabling the economic law of socialism to develop their full effects.

To build a contingent of cadres and workers fully qualified for national construction and the management of social affairs.

To achieve unity of the people of all ethnic groups, strive to help the tribes catch up with one another and live in real concord.

To stabilize and improve the people's living standard, and to satisfy the ever-increasing material and cultural needs of the people.

We envisage achieving these basic objectives within some 5-year plans. However, in each period and each 5-year plan, we will have to refer to the situation, to set concrete objectives to be achieved in each step forward and each period, and eventually gain complete success for the basic objectives of the whole revolutionary stage.

In order to carry out the above-mentioned general orientation, tasks and basic objectives, we should grasp firmly and act upon the following guidelines:

1. To combine transformation with construction, considering construction as the main task, the most important aspect of which is the building of the production forces and the training of new people capable of conducting production, business operations, leading and managing economic affairs.

2. To advance gradually and steadily, combining small, medium and large-scale projects at the start by considering the small and medium-scale projects as the main ones. To promote joint efforts by the state, the collectives and the people, closely combine the three interests, ceaselessly raising labor productivity and practicing the utmost thrift in production and consumption.

3. To closely combine economy with national defense, and vice versa, shifting to the grass-roots to accomplish three major tasks simultaneously: To build and consolidate political, security and national defense bases, to develop economy and culture and to stabilize and improve the living standards of the people of all ethnic groups.

4. To promote to a high degree the sense of national self-reliance and self-help, to exploit all potentialities in the country while relying decidedly on the socialist system, ceaselessly strengthening and consolidating the militant alliance and special solidarity of the three peoples of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea, maintaining close solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, and striving to obtain assistance from friendly countries and international organizations in order to build socialism successfully.

C. At present, we are in the initial stage of the transitional period, the orientation and tasks of which are to basically stabilize the situation in every aspect, especially in the three aspects of political security, strengthening of the system of proletarian dictatorship right from the grassroots and stabilization and further improvement of the living standard of the people of all ethnic groups. At the same time, we must make good basic surveys.

All this is meant to create prerequisites, a basis and a springboard for the building and development of the economy and culture on a larger-scale, at a quicker speed in the plans for the 1990's. Therefore, our whole party and people should focus efforts on these five major objectives:

1. To develop agriculture and forestry toward gradually advancing to socialist large-scale production, to restore and develop handicrafts and small industries in order to solve once and for all the problem of foodgrain and foodstuffs for the whole country; to turn out increasing quantities of other essential consumer goods; to stabilize and further improve the living standard of the people of all ethnic groups, while facilitating the accumulation for socialist industrialization; to establish a number of key economic zones which can contribute to an adequate solution of the problem of foodgrain and foodstuffs and the creation of a number of main items for export.

2. To build an efficient system of transportation, postal services and communications throughout the country and with the outside world, first and foremost, the roads; to clear out and make good use of the waterways; to better the air service and make preparations for the construction of a railway line linking our country with Vietnam.

3. To construct an electrical network and an engineering industry of small and medium-size enterprises all over the country while making preparations for medium and large-size power stations in order to meet the energy requirements of production and the people's daily needs, and bring a new look to the economic and social physiognomy of our country.

4. To complete in the main the transformation of nonsocialist economic sectors under progressing forms, so as to give the leading role to the socialist sectors.

5. To train and foster a contingent of leading cadres, economic managers and a contingent of scientific and technical cadres and skilled workers as needed and fully capable of managing the economy and society and being the masters of their country.

I -- Orientations and Tasks of National Defense and Security

Comrades, entering the new stage, the struggle between us and the enemy will be most arduous and violent. We have to cope with the enemy's activities of sabotage in many fields, and at the same time we must always stand ready to fight against a war of aggression. Therefore, the tasks of national defense and security are still tasks of primary importance.

The whole party, people and army must firmly grasp the party's political line and the line of all-round national defense and security by the whole people, take into account the aggregate strength of the people of all ethnic groups throughout the country, do our best to build strong defense and security forces, ceaselessly strengthen and consolidate the all-round militant alliance with the two fraternal countries, Vietnam and Kampuchea, closely unite with and rely upon the multifarious assistance from the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, in order to stabilize internal security in a fundamental and steady manner, enhance the potentials of national defense and always stand ready to fight and defeat every scheme and act of aggression by the enemy on whatever scale in whatever forms and methods, in every part of our fatherland.

To fulfill the above-said tasks, we should successfully perform the following:

1. To encourage and educate the whole people to enhance their patriotism and love of socialism, to resolutely make any sacrifices for the defense of national independence and the new regime, heighten their revolutionary vigilance, see through the enemy's schemes and maneuvers, actively fight against psychological warfare, espionage war and all acts of sabotage by the enemy, actively participate in the building of the defense and security forces and create the country's defense potentials.

2. To strive to consolidate security at the grassroots level, to continue the implementation of the policy of vigorously moving down to the grassroots, to correctly apply the party's three-aspect guideline to meet all the three requirements simultaneously: to oppose the enemy, to build up and consolidate grassroots organizations and to push up production to improve the people's living standard.

3. To actively build the people's defense and security forces composed of the standing army, the mass armed forces, and the security force into all-sidedly strong forces which always stand combat ready and ensure their being sharp instruments of the party.

4. To combine closely economy with national defense and vice versa. In the economic projects it is necessary to take into due consideration the demands of national defense. In the building of national defense, attention should be paid to the defense of economic interests, the practice of strict thrift, thus cutting down the budget and alleviating the people's contributions.

5. To achieve a close militant alliance with Vietnam and Kampuchea and to rely upon the aid and assistance from the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries so as to enhance the fighting capacity of the armed forces and to increase the defense and security potentials of our country.

6. To strengthen the party's leadership over the defense and people's security forces.

The party organizations should pay attention to the building of the army and the people's security forces, making all these forces always worthy of being most reliable and efficient instruments to defend the party, the people, the new administration and regime. Research should be carried out for the purpose of renovating and perfecting the organization and leading methods of the party with regard to the people's armed and security forces. The decisive factor is to strive to train and foster officers and perfect the commanding staffs of the military and security forces at all levels.

II — Orientations and Tasks of Economic Transformation and Building in the New Stage of the Revolution

A. The task of economic transformation and building in the new stage of the revolution in our country is to build up an independent and socialist economy with developed agriculture, forestry and industry, aimed at satisfying the ever-increasing requirements of the material and spiritual life of the people of all ethnic groups and serving as a solid base for the defense of the fatherland and the new regime. To this end, we should properly handle the following seven relationships:

1. Strive to develop agriculture, forestry, handicrafts, light industry, while selectively building some other necessary industrial establishments, with the development of agriculture and forestry serving as a basis for industrial development, place industry at the service of agriculture, forestry and communications and transport, build agriculture, forestry and industry into a unified economic structure right at the localities and grassroots levels.

2. Actively reorganize production, make a redivision of labor, develop other trades and occupations, regarding the development of production as the basis, commerce as the main link, communications and transport as the spearhead, applying an integrated series of economic levels so as to promote production, to expand and develop marketable goods, to transform the natural economy, gradually to develop small production to socialist large-scale production.

3. Closely combine transformation and building of the economy, taking building as the main aspect, promulgate a policy for making good use of the five economic sectors to develop production and fulfill the state plan, giving priority to the building of the state and collective economic sectors, enabling the socialist economic sectors to play a leading role and eventually, a dominant role in the national economy. Efforts should be made to help the household economy of cooperative members, cadres and workers, considering it a component part of the socialist economy. In the immediate future, our policy is to make use of the private sector, by promoting its positive aspects, limiting its negative features with a view to transforming it step by step and eventually eradicating the exploitation of man by man.

4. Build the central and local economies simultaneously. Central and local economies are to be combined into a unified economic structure, so as to create conditions for the gradual abolition of the gap between countryside and city, between various regions in the country.

5. Correctly handle the relationship between accumulation and consumption. Rely firmly on our natural resources and our people's work force to meet the indispensable requirements of life of the people of all ethnic groups and those of national defense, and step by step accumulate for national construction. We should encourage and organize all forces in the country to engage in production. Introduce technical innovations, raise labor productivity, and practice the utmost thrift in production and consumption.

6. Closely combine economic construction with the strengthening of defense and security, while the defense and security forces must protect and take part in economic construction.

7. Promote to a high degree the spirit of self-reliance and self-help, fully exploit all the capacities in the country while striving to make the most of economic assistance from and cooperation with other countries.

B. Concrete orientations and economic tasks for each branch and some key areas.

1. Agricultural and forest production is our strength and a base for rapidly meeting the needs of the people's life, making an important contribution to creating initial capital for the socialist industrialization of our country. In the immediate future, we should do our best to develop agriculture, all-sidedly to turn into account our agriculture's and forestry's strong points, namely, food and industrial crops, stock-breeding, adequately, with our own efforts to solve the problem of foodgrain and foodstuffs. Efforts will be made so that from 1985 on foodgrain output per capita will reach 350 kg of paddy or more, (note including other auxiliary food crops in paddy equivalent, and the state will have an annual reserve of foodgrain of at least 6 months' consumption.

The agriculture and forestry branches have to forge ahead in order to meet the requirements in food and clothing, to turn out a large quantity of farm and forest products for export, considering it a strategic task to export these products so as to provide for imports and two-way transactions with the countries engaging in economic cooperation with our country.

To this end, it is imperative to:

Take active measures to bring the land into intensive cultivation for rice and other starch crops -- maize, potatoes, cassava; achieve good results in improving farming techniques, water conservation, encourage the use of various kinds of fertilizers, and the selection of good seeds; put more labor in various stages of intensive cultivation, protect and tend crops and improve agricultural implements. Each province is to establish its own key areas for food production. The central government must concentrate its guidance on key provinces of rice production, particularly Vientiane.

Work out plans for properly investing in and guiding the development of short-term and long-term industrial crops, with an eye to the short-term crops which are easily grown, drought-resistant and the cultivation of which the people have got practice and experience in such as tobacco, sugarcane, cotton, hemp, mulberry, soya, beans, peanut, sesame and perennial industrial crops such as coffee, cochineal and styrax. Areas specialized in industrial crop cultivation are to be formed.

Actively develop animal husbandry, gradually make it a principal branch so as to meet the domestic requirements and export. Importance is to be attached to raising the animals that our people have experience in rearing, such as buffaloes, cows, horses, goats, pigs, chickens and ducks, fish, etc. Exploit to the full the potentials of pasture, and strive to raise the present population of buffaloes and cows to 2 million head by the late 1980's with an eye to developing breeds of high productivity.... The elephant population should be protected and increased in provinces where conditions exist.

Organize the protection, preservation, reafforestation, of the forests well and exploit them in a rational way, protect the forest resources, the fauna and the environment, minimize the clearing of forests for crop cultivation. Actively encourage and help people to shift to farming on terraced fields, tilled fields and rotating crops on burned clearings. Strengthen the system of forest control, enhance the responsibility of the localities and the people for protecting forests. Efforts are to be made to turn out a large quantity of marketable forest produce, and raise the annual timber output to about 400,000 cubic meters.

Socialist Transformation of Agriculture

We should persuade the peasants to embark on the socialist collective path of production in the form of agricultural cooperatives, in order to transform the private ownership into socialist collective ownership, thereby creating favorable conditions to get the three revolutions underway in the countryside, contributing to the transformation of the natural economy of self-sufficiency and self-support, eradicating exploitation in the countryside, and developing agricultural and forestry production in the direction of advancing to socialist large-scale production.

In order to form cooperatives we should correctly apply three principles, namely, voluntariness, mutual benefit and democratic management, with special attention given to the peasants' right of collective mastery, and the harmonious combination of the three interests, taking into account the psychological, political and social factors, particularly in the ethnic tribal areas. There should be no coercion whatsoever. We should strictly observe the guideline: to provide active leadership, to secure steady advance and to proceed from small-scale to large-scale, from easy steps to difficult ones. The state is to plan for and invest in the training of cadres, to assist the cooperatives in finances, materials and technical knowhow so as to promote the supremacy of collectivization.

The objective of agricultural cooperativization in the 5-year plan is mainly to accomplish the building of cooperatives in the rice-planting areas. In the areas where farming is done on both burned clearings and rice fields, if good cadres are available and the people show willingness, cooperatives can be set up. If conditions are not yet ripe for forming cooperatives, mutual-aid teams can be set up instead. Where farming on burned clearings is dominant, we should study various forms of collectivization so that the most proper ones can be put into practice. As to the localities where the people have been specializing in crop growing or forest exploitation we can consider the formation of cooperatives according to trades.

We should consolidate the existing state farms and forestry yards in conformity with the socialist system of business operations. Further development will be made only where conditions exist for concentrated production and where the state has worked out plans of cooperation with foreign countries.

Along with the consolidation and development of the collective economy, we should attach great importance to and assist the development of household economy of co-op members.

2. On industrial, handicrafts and domestic craft production.

We should work out plans to rapidly develop handicrafts, small industries, light industry, processing industry, electricity, building materials industry, mechanical engineering to serve agriculture, forestry, communications and transport, and at the same time to consolidate, expand and build a number of new industrial, mining and chemical establishments. The electric, engineering and communications branches should go ahead in order to create conditions for other branches of production to develop and to meet the needs of the people's life.

Electricity: We should try to consolidate and make full use of existing installations to serve production, especially agriculture and forestry. We should rapidly build small-scale electric networks, paying attention to the mountain regions and some northern and southern provinces. We should make the best of foreign assistance in conducting surveys and designing medium-and big-size hydroelectric stations in central and southern Laos.

Mechanical engineering: We are to build some groups of small-and medium-size engineering workshops in provinces and district for repairing and producing agricultural implements, hand tools. Simple and improved means of communications and transport.

Light industry and food industry: The production of textiles, garments, salt, sauces, liquors, soft drinks, cigarettes, confectionary, and so on, should be vigorously pushed up to meet the people's needs and their quality is to be raised to export standard.

Handicrafts and small industries: Due attention should be paid to the supply of capital, technicians, to the disposal of products, and the promulgating of satisfactory pricing policies and taxation in order to encourage the development of handicrafts, small industries, the processing of agricultural and forest produce, the making of finearts articles and the production of goods from local materials.

We should undertake basic surveys to reassess our natural resources, including land, forest, mines and energy sources, pay attention to the continued prospecting and surveying for the mining of tin, gold, potassium, salt, gypsum, iron, coal, oil and gas, so that we can work out plans for restoring and expanding the exploitation of tin, gypsum and precious metals and can make preparations for mineral exploitation in the years to come.

3. Capital construction: We should establish and consolidate the state-owned building companies at the central and provincial levels, while making full use of the building capacity of collectives and private companies in order to ensure the effective building of major economic and cultural projects.

It is necessary to build and develop the industry of building materials: wood, bricks, tiles, stone, lime, and cement (it is advisable to build some clinker-grinding establishments) so as to meet the requirements of the state and the people.

4. On communications, transport and postal services: The communications and transport branch is a spearhead branch, most important not only to the national economy and the people's life, but also to national defense, politics and culture.

In the years to come from 5 to 10 years -- there should be plans to assign the localities and grassroots level to join efforts with the central government in constructing roads of various types linking all the hamlets, districts and provinces together and eventually to get communication through all over the country.

Capital, labor and necessary means and materials, are to be mustered to make the most of international assistance to construct motor roads to the east and to lay durable oil pipelines across the Phou Luong range from Vietnam to Laos.

Efforts should be made to clear out riverways, to repair and maintain the airports in good conditions, work out plans for consolidating, expanding and building more warehouses, bus stations and wharfs where required.

Surveys are to be carried without loss of time for early devising a project of building railways by the late 1980's. We should work out plans to actively develop, improve and put into use simple means of transport and should not merely rely upon or wait passively for the supply of modern means.

On communications and postal service there should be an improvement in the organization and an increase in the means, including simple ones, to ensure accurate secret and timely communications thus satisfying the requirements of politics, national defense and security, economy and culture.

5. Commercial service: Our commercial service (both domestic and foreign trades) is to be consolidated and developed in order to discharge its main tasks, namely, to handle the commodities required for the people's consumption, to sell to and exchange with the people what they need, to promote exports to pay for imported goods essential to the economy and the people's life, thereby to stimulate the development of production and facilitate the reorganization of production, the redivision of labor, the expansion and creation of new occupations. It is also a duty of the commercial service to fight against the infiltration and manipulation of our market by foreign capitalists and the expansionist reactionaries.

The service must strive to take control of the principal sources of goods, especially foodgrains, main export goods and important import goods. It must take firm hold of wholesale business, spread the network of state-run trade out to every district, the network of marketing cooperatives to all the hamlets, allow private business to trade with the people, and set up markets in the countryside where conditions permit. It is to broaden its network of service, especially in cities, provincial capitals and townships.

Importance is to be attached to training, without delay, a contingent of commercial cadres and agents. Efforts are to be made to train and foster company directors, shop managers, chief accountants and shop assistants with professional skills.

6. On prices: In the present state, pricing is meant to effectively serve production and the people's life and contribute to the implementation of state plans, to market control and to the fight against speculation and hoarding. Our pricing policy is to cover expenditures and to obtain profit for enlarged reproduction, promote technical improvement, increase labor productivity, enhance the quality of goods, ensure the three interests with due attention paid to the interests of working people, and to enable the socialist trade service to purchase and get hold of the sources of commodities.

We must stipulate regulations and practice the control of overpricing, thereby facilitating the assessment and realization of production plans, making an active contribution to the planning of the national economy.

7. To finances and banks: The financial branch will perform the following functions:

To discharge in a good way its task in the elaboration and execution of the budget.

To make inventories in order to have a precise knowledge of all the sources of state assets, from the central down to local levels, which are acquired from inside the country and from abroad, study and timely promulgate policies of financial revenues and expenditures, taxes and duties, give guidance to, and exercise supervision over establishments of production and business to ensure strict observance of the rules and regulations of financial accounts and cost accounting, and strict management of the spending and reception of monetary capital by all branches and authorities.

The banks should fulfill the following tasks:

To step up credit operations, currency control and circulation and payment services through the banks so as to ensure capital for production and trade. To promulgate and supervise the policies on strict control of cash, foreign currencies and precious metals in conformity with the lines and policies of the party and the state. There should be policies to encourage various strata of the population to deposit their money in savings accounts.

8. On labor and wages: Attention should be paid to educating everybody on the right and obligations of labor. Labor should be strictly organized and labor discipline enhanced so that all people who are able to work will participate in productive labor, fighting, or other work, and oppose laziness, dependence, parasitism and waste of labor. There should be unity of the three interests to make working people pay constant attention to the efficiency and quality of their work. Female labor should be placed in suitable trades and jobs.

We should constantly improve works tools, renovate the organization and methods of work so as to raise labor productivity, attach importance to training in new techniques and style of work for the young generation. The wage system is to be improved on the principle of distribution according to labor, with a view to ensuring a required standard of living for wage earners, studies are to be made on introducing piece-rate wages, job-rate wages, a social security system is to be promulgated.

9. To practice thrift is a great policy of our party and state.

The utmost thrift must be practiced both in production and consumption; spending is to be placed under strict management with a view to achieving highest economic efficiency with minimum expenditure. Both present labor and past labor should be economized. Every citizen, every working man and every organization must be educated on the policy of thrift and must practice economy.

Stern punishments will be meted out against any act of embezzlement, waste, and violation of public property. There will be regulations to force offenders to make compensation and to subject them to administrative or legal sanctions.

10. To correctly handle the relationship between the central and the local economies, to build a rational economic structure.

The central and local economies are component parts of a unified economic structure. A good handling of the relationship between the central and local economies is of decisive impact on the development of the whole national economy.

We should concentrate on building successfully the district economy. The district must base itself on its economic and demographic characteristics to work out plans for building structures of agricultural and forestry production, developing small industries, handicrafts, consumer goods and building material industries, striving to meet its needs in foodgrain and foodstuffs through its own efforts and producing large amount of consumer goods and contributing to the state.

The province is to become an all-round strategic unit. In the economic field, it must build its own state farms and forestry yards, electric, engineering, building material establishments, turn our consumer goods and process foodstuffs. The province must regulate and ensure the balance between demand and supply of foodgrain and foodstuffs, satisfy the local needs in consumer goods on its own, exchange the surplus with the central government, with other provinces and for export, and plan to train management cadres of various types for the district and the grassroots level.

The central branches assume the management of key economic establishments beneficial to the whole national economy, the projects of cooperation with other countries, take control of export goods of strategic significance and important import goods, assist the central government in studying and promulgating policies and regulations, in organizing scientific and technological research, and in training and fostering cadres for the localities and the grassroots.

In cities, especially the capital of Vientiane: Construction and management in all fields should be promoted in order to turn the cities into centers representing the new political, economic, cultural and social system, and increasingly tighten the relations between cities and the countryside, between the workers and the peasants.

11. On economic relations with foreign countries: This is a matter of universal law. Entering the new stage we cannot rely upon one-way international assistance, but we must promote self-reliance and self-help, engage in international cooperation and step up exports to pay for imports.

With Vietnam and Kampuchea, we must proceed from mutual assistance and cooperation on single project or single undertaking to coordinated planning, practicing a division of labor and engaging in all-round and mutually beneficial cooperation.

We must engage in all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries in order to create conditions for the building of necessary material and technical basis, especially for the training of management cadres, scientific and technical cadres and skilled workers. We should expand economic relations with and secure assistance from India, from other countries and international organizations which are sincere in helping our country. We will continue to maintain economic relations with Thailand and other ASEAN countries on the basis of mutual benefit, respect for each other's independence and sovereignty and noninterference in the internal affairs of each other.

12. To do good planning and proper implementation of plans, gradually make the state plan a real second program of the party, a main instrument to carry out economic and social management.

All levels and branches should base themselves on the orientations of the 5-year state plan already promulgated, in coordination with the concrete situation and conditions of the branches and localities, to work out plans for their branches and localities in the most active way and with the utmost endeavour. Attention should be paid to working out concrete plans at state-owned enterprises and cooperatives with stable orientations for production, in the big economic projects which the state and localities mean to put into execution.

In our country, planning is done at three levels, that is, the central government, the local level and the grassroots level, including the district. Yet the management of plans is done at only two levels, that is, the grassroots level and its immediate senior. In the future, where corporations and associated enterprises are formed, the management will be undertaken at three levels.

Our planning work at present only stops at mapping out general orientations and endeavours to work out a number of major balances in such aspects as foodgrain, labor, materials, fuel, currency, goods, exports and imports. Planning should be closely combined with the management of business, strict observance of cost accounting and abolition of the system of state financing.

We should undertake basic surveys in order to firmly grasp the labor and natural resources of the country. In the immediate future, we should concentrate on making surveys of key areas. Statistics and general departments in all branches and at all levels must be perfected without delay so as to ensure the accuracy of statistics, thereby serving the amendment and perfection of plans already mapped out and making preparations for subsequent planning.

III — Orientations and Tasks in Culture, Education, Public Health and Social Service

A. In order to take the cultural and ideological revolution a step ahead, in which education is regarded as the central task, we should build a culture, education and public health which have a national character and a socialist content, so as to help the people of all ethnic groups get all-round education with regard to politics, culture, science and technology, professional skills and health.

For the time being, we should make everybody grasp fully the situation and the tasks set forth by this congress for the new stage, promote their sense of pride and confidence in the correct and creative leadership of the party, their sense of responsibility and determination to defend our fatherland and build socialism.

It is imperative to strengthen propaganda and education work so as to make Marxism-Leninism gradually dominate the political and spiritual life of our multiethnic people.

We should enhance the quality of the new education and actively make it universal in every area and every ethnic group, introduce vocational training into the curriculum of junior and senior secondary schools, so as to timely meet the requirements of fostering new working people fully capable of being masters of their country and society.

The fine tradition of our national culture and arts is to be promoted, while absorbing the quintessence of the culture of our times so as to build a new socialist culture and make the life of everybody, every family, every hamlet and village and every tribe ever more joyful, happy and healthy, to inspire the emulation in labor, promote solidarity, affection, concord, equality, mutual respect and assistance.

We must struggle to wipe out the vestiges of the reactionary and obscurantist culture of the old regime, to fight and prevent the infiltration of depraved and reactionary culture from outside.

We must strive to develop a system of the people's health care, the prophylactic and hygiene movement, the Three-Clean campaign and that of mother and child care, the physical education and sports movement, aimed at improving the entire people's health, developing our race and our population, and effectively preventing dangerous diseases and bad habits and customs harmful to the health, life, production, fighting and work.

B. Some major objectives for culture, education and the protection of health in the years to come:

1. To carry out propaganda and education on the lines and tasks of national defense, socialist construction, and the party's policy of international solidarity, down to every citizen.

2. To strive to complete the elimination of illiteracy and make primary education universal for the people of all ethnic groups.

3. To do our utmost to develop in an integrated manner the systems of preschool education, complementary education, general education, higher and vocational education. We have to rapidly consolidate and expand vocational schools, secondary professional schools, colleges and universities as regards the necessary disciplines, such as agriculture, forestry, water conservation, commerce and communications, engineering, electricity, pedagogy, medicine and pharmacy, and so on.

4. To try our best to consolidate and develop the work of information and press, culture and arts.

5. To do our best to build and expand the network of public health, prophylactic hygiene, mother and child care, physical education and sports organizations down to the grassroots and develop the valuable treasure of our traditional medicine.

C. Some major measures:

To strengthen the party's leadership, the guidance by the administration and mass organizations at all levels in the cultural, educational and health care fields, in the molding of new people, the building of a new economy and culture.

To work out plans to train cadres and to invest appropriate capital in the building of material facilities for the branches of culture, education, public health, physical education and sports.

To devise a plan for a movement of the people to give contributions to the building of education, culture and arts, to develop a movement of physical culture and sports, prophylatic hygiene, mother and child care, the protection of children, and so on.

To strive to make the most of international aid for training cadres, workers and students, and of the assistance in means, materials, medicines, equipment and facilities for the branches of culture, education, public health, physical culture and sports.

IV --Orientations and Tasks of Consolidating and Strengthening the People's Democratic Power and Promoting the Role of Collective Mastery of the People of All Ethnic Groups

A. Our power which is the power of the people, by the people and for the people constitutes an instrument to exercise the working people's right to collective mastery.

In order to fulfill the two strategic tasks of national construction and defense, the administration has to strengthen the instruments of dictatorship, which comprise the security forces, military forces and law-enforcing bodies, to strengthen the institutions which exercise the functions of economic building and management, cultural and social development, and so on. We should not neglect any of these fields, but since economic activities constitute a base for other activities and at the same time they represent a new and difficult task, therefore, special attention should be paid to strengthening the efficiency of the state in this regard.

In order to promote the effectiveness of the administration, we should urgently undertake some major tasks as follows:

1. We must strengthen socialist legality, work out a socialist constitution at an early date, and a basic law code of the Lao People's democratic state. Pending a new constitution, it is necessary to review, systematize and legalize all the decrees and regulations which the government has promulgated, and to supplement them with important and necessary laws particularly with regard to economic affairs. We should educate the party cadres, members and the people in the understanding of current laws and urge them to respect and abide by them.

2. We should set up and expand schools to train and give refresher courses to administrative cadres and management cadres, especially to train and foster the cadres who assume important and key posts in the administrative committees. The courts, prosecutors' offices, inspectors' offices and advisers sections assisting the administrative committees.

3. We should set up and perfect the inspectors' offices under the administration at all levels and define responsibilities for all the mass organizations, the members of trade unions, youth union and women's union to fulfill the function of control and supervision over the administration and the bodies in charge of economic and cultural management.

4. We should try our best to prevent bureaucratism, authoritarian attitude, corruption, waste and violations of the people's right to mastery.

B. To bring into play the people's role as collective masters, strengthen the unity of the people of all ethnic groups and to broaden the national united front.

1. In the socialist revolution, rallying and uniting all the working people and promoting their role as collective masters under the party's leadership, continue to be the driving force determining the success of the revolutionary cause.

Consequently, in the new revolutionary stage, the national united front in our country still plays a strategic role.

2. The tasks of mass mobilization in the new stage: to urge the working masses in all ethnic groups especially workers, peasants, revolutionary intellectuals, to forge ahead and to become masters of their country and society, to unceasingly expand the contingent of workers and revolutionary intellectuals, to educate and organize the peasants, take them to the path of collectivization and make them, together with the working class, the core and the main force in socialist construction.

To continue consolidating and broadening the national united front, uniting all ethnic groups and religions, creating conditions for all ethnic groups to participate in the cause of national defense and construction on an equal footing and to enjoy equal rights and obligations.

3. The tasks that need to be done:

a. To build and consolidate at any cost the trade unions, which must be regarded as a large school where the members can enhance their political, cultural and professional standards and participate in the management of economic, state and social affairs.

b. To study appropriate forms of organizing and educating the peasants so as to rally and educate them along the path to collective farming, to enhance their patriotism and love for socialism, promote a new life for them and consolidate the ties between peasants and workers.

c. To mobilize, educate and organize the youth to play the role of a shock brigade that takes the lead in combat, national defense, the scientific-technological revolution, production, construction, transport, in developing the movements of culture, arts, physical education and sports, prophylactic hygiene, in building a new way of life and in the fight against negative aspects in society, against superstitions, and so on. To strive to educate and train the members of the youth union, thereby turning them into the reserve force of the party.

d. In the new revolutionary stage, work among women is aimed at achieving equality between men and women, real liberation for women, thus enabling them to contribute to the building of socialism. We should assist our women through education work, to enhance their political consciousness, their knowledge in all fields, promote their role of mastery, participate in social activities and in the management of the affairs of the country, especially in jobs suitable to women such as those in health services, education, and so on.

5. To further unite the people of all ethnic groups into a united bloc, bring into play the role of the national united front at all levels, with a view to heightening the understanding of the people of all ethnic groups about patriotism, socialism and national unity, about the equality and mutual assistance among various tribes, thereby eliminating the feuds created among them by imperialism and feudalism or arising from backwardness, so as to defend and build the country.

The role of monks and priests is to be actively promoted in the cause of defending the fatherland and building socialism. To realize the above-mentioned objectives, orientations and tasks, we should launch a widespread, far-reaching and continuous socialist emulation movement in all fields of activities at all branches, all levels and all units of production. We should make people understand that they can only express their love for the country and for socialism by engaging in the emulation movement to fulfill assigned tasks and plans with good quality, and that only through the emulation movement to introduce initiatives and technical innovations, rationalize organization, and practice thrift can they raise labor productivity, increase fighting capacity and enhance work efficiency, thus contributing to the revolutionary cause of the country, building a lasting prosperous and happy life for the people of all ethnic groups, for each family and each individual.

Dear comrades, over the past 10 years, the revolutionary struggle of our people has been carried out amidst a confusing international situation in which profound changes have taken place, thus marking a new development in the three revolutionary currents, while the imperialists -- led by the U.S. imperialists -- are weakening and deteriorating in all fields, which has tipped the balance of forces in favor of peace, national independence, democracy, and socialism throughout the world.

Since the establishment of the LPDR, implementing the correct foreign policy of our party, we have scored great achievements in the international front, thus incessantly raising the status and role of our country in the international arena. In the new period, our party and state have adhered to the foreign policy of peace, independence and socialism. We have continuously strengthened our special solidarity, militant alliance and all-round cooperation with the fraternal Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples; strengthened our close soliarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries; acquired support and sympathy from the revolutionary movements and peace- and justice-loving peoples throughout the world; striven to safeguard peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia; built favorable international conditions for the tasks of national defense and construction; and smashed the hostile policy of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists and collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces to sabotage our revolutionary struggle in all fields, thus securely defending the independence and sovereignty of our country, and contributing to the common struggle of the world for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. [applause]

In the past as well as at present, we have exerted every effort with a view to strengthening the militant solidarity, special relationship and all-round cooperation between Laos and Vietnam, and between Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, equality, mutual respect and assistance, and in the spirit of friendship and comradeship in order to enhance the overall strength of the three countries in defending the national independence, the socialist construction in each country and to defend securely the outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia for the sake of peace in this region and the world.

On the stage of this historic congress, we once again would like to extend our warm affection and sincere gratitude to the VCP Central Committee -- led by respected and beloved Comrade General Secretary Le Duan -- and the fraternal Vietnamese people for rendering wholehearted assistance to the Lao people's revolutionary struggle over the past (?5) years. We totally support the just cause of socialist construction and national defense of the Vietnamese people. We are fully convinced that under the beacon of the correct resolutions adopted at the Fifth VCP Congress, the Vietnamese people will score even greater victories. [applause]

We will do our utmost to support the revolutionary struggle of the Kampuchean people. We hope that the fraternal Kampuchean people, under the glorious banner of the KPRP, will rapidly surmount the serious vestiges of the most ferocious, genocidal, Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- lackey of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists -- and win new, greater achievements in restoring, developing, building and safeguarding the gains of their revolution and lead Kampuchea on the path of socialism. [applause]

We will strive to strengthen our relations of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist family. This is the everlasting and unchangeable policy reflecting the principles of our party and state. It is a law in deciding the victory of the national defense and national construction of our country. [applause]

We would like to express our profound gratitude to the communist party and the state of the Soviet Union headed by esteemed Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, and president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR, and to thank the soviet people for their deep concern, strong support and great and effective assistance imbued with proletarian internationalism to our revolution.

We highly value and completely support the peace proposal advanced by the Soviet Union, which is a significant and concrete peace initiative proposed by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev at the 26th CPSU Congress and on several other occasions. We regard this proposal as a great contribution of the Soviet Union to the peace and security of all nations. We hope that the Soviet people who have great capabilities and a sense of creativity will victoriously implement the resolutions adopted at the honorable and majestic 26th CPSU Congress. [applause]

We strive to strengthen our friendship relations and cooperation with other fraternal socialist countries and to solicit effective assistance from all fraternal countries for use in defending and building our country. We sincerely thank the parties, governments and peoples in the socialist countries for rendering great support, wholehearted assistance and effective cooperation to our people.

Our special solidarity with Vietnam and Kampuchea and our all-round solidarity and cooperation with the great Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries is a permanent cornerstone of the foreign policy of our party and state and the source of our invincible strength which cannot be destroyed by any enemies. [applause]

We completely support the Polish United Workers' Party and the Polish state in applying drastic and necessary measures to smash the rebellious and chaotic activities of the internal reactionaries in collusion with the imperialists to sabotage the socialist system in Poland and to separate Poland from the socialist community and the Warsaw Pact. [applause]

We always stand side by side with the heroic Cuban people in their struggle against the destructive policy and threats of aggression of the North American imperialists in order to securely defend Cuba -- an outpost of socialism in the Western Hemisphere. [applause]

We wholeheartedly hail the peace initiative of the MPR and other countries in the socialist community. [applause]

We strongly support the struggle for peaceful reunification of Korea, and demand that the United States withdraw its troops from South Korea. [applause]

We strive to strengthen the solidarity and unity of the international communist and workers movements in the interests of our common struggle against the imperialists and reactionaries so as to score victories for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism and to defend the purity of Marxism-Leninism. [applause]

We totally support the struggles for national liberation and independence of the countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America, and the struggles of workers and laboring peole in all developed capitalist countries. We resolutely condemn the Israeli Zionists -- supported by the United States -- for continuing their occupation of Arab soil and their covert annexation of the Golan Heights of Syria and for attacking and plundering the territories of Iraq and Lebanon.

We completely support the just struggle of the Arab Palestinian people for their national fundamental right to establish a separate and independent Palestinian state on their former home land. [applause]

We completely support the Afghan people in resisting the international reactionaries and the acts of interference and aggression of the imperialists and the international reactionaries in order to safeguard the gains of the April revolution and to advance their country along the path of socialism they have chosen.

We completely support the peoples of Angola and Ethiopia, the PDRY, Nicaragua, Grenada, Mozambique, Libya, and the Saharan Democratic Republic, who are struggling to defend the gains of their revolutions and to resist the interference and aggression of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys.

We stand on the side of the peoples of Namibia and South Africa in their struggle against the South African apartheid regime.

We oppose and condemn the North American imperialists for openly and arrogantly threatening and invading Nicaragua and for depravedly interfering in and violently suppressing the patriotic movements of the peoples in El Salvador, Chile, Guatemala and other countries. [applause]

We continue to cooperate with Cuba, Vietnam and other active members of the Nonaligned Movement in trying to convince this movement to adhere strictly to the objectives of its struggle against the imperialists and to consolidate political independence, to wrest back economic independence, and to set up a new international economic order.

We highly value the role and contributions of India to the Nonaligned Movement to maintain world peace, particularly in South Asia and Southeast Asia.

We cherish the relations of friendship with India and Burma, and will never cease in our endeavors to further strengthen these relations. [applause]

Our consistent policy toward the ASEAN countries is that the two groups of countries in Indochina and ASEAN must peacefully coexist with each other, maintain good-neighbor relations, and hold consultations with each other to resolve the problems in the relations between the two groups of countries on the basis of equality, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity; noninterference in each other's internal affairs; and nonimposition of views, so as to build Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation.

As neighboring countries sharing a common border of 1,600 km with the Kingdom of Thailand, and because the peoples in the two countries have maintained neighborly relations for a long time, the LPDR desires to maintain and develop the relations of friendship and good neighborliness as well as to expand economic, trade, cultural and sports relations with Thailand. On this basis, our government signed joint communiques with the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand in January and April 1979, reaffirming the principles of relations between the two countries and other measures aimed at strengthening these relations of friendship. We always try to do our utmost to carry out our pledge in the interests of the peoples of Laos and Thailand and for peace and stability in Southeast Asia. We demand that the Thai side should correctly implement the various agreements between the two countries, and cease allowing other reactionary countries to use Thai soil to sabotage our country.

We continue to develop relations with all countries regardless of the difference in our political and social systems on the basis of peaceful coexistence. We sincerely thank all countries and international and regional organizations for rendering economic, cultural and technical assistance to the Lao people. [applause]

We resolutely resist the U.S.-Chinese collusion which constitutes a primary danger to the national independence, peace and stability of this region. If the United States sincerely desires to improve its relations with the LPDR, as it has repeatedly stated, it must express such good intentions by actual deeds, that is to cease waging slanderous propaganda and other acts in opposition to the LPDR. The peace-loving Lao people always desire to develop relations of friendship with the American people.

Regarding China, we have done everything within our power to maintain and improve the friendly relations with the Chinese people. But we resolutely oppose the hostile policy of the reactionary clique in the Beijing ruling circles. For the sake of the interests of the peoples of Laos and China, for the sake of peace in Southeast Asia and the world, we are willing to develop normal relations with the PRC on the basis of respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, noninterference in each other's internal affairs, equality, mutual benefits, and we must cooperate to resolve all problems in the relations between the two countries through peaceful negotiations.

We strive to cooperate with fraternal socialist parties and countries as well as all progressive countries in the world to resolutely oppose the arms race, to demand the reduction of forces, and to oppose the warmongering policy of the U.S. imperialists and the international reactionaries for peace and security of all countries. [applause]

Comrades,

I -- Our Party Is the Organizer and Leader of Every Victory of the Revolution in Our Country

A. The Lao People's Revolutionary Party was born and grew up in a backward agricultural country with an underdeveloped economy and culture, a newly-formed working class, hence the overwhelming majority of the party's membership come from a laboring-peasant background. Nevertheless, it is really a Marxist-Leninist party, a new type of party of the working class.

1. Since its coming into being, our party has led the multiethnic people of our country in a long, arduous and unflinching struggle against the domination and aggression by imperialism and reaction, it has accomplished the national liberation revolution and is now leading our people in the fulfillment of two strategic tasks: Defending the fatherland and building socialism. In that struggle, tens of thousands of our nation's finest sons and daughters have proceeded from national consciousness to class consciousness. They have been revolutionized, become workers and then party members. Also in that struggle, the party has succeeded in forging a staunch and well-tested general staff, that is, the present Central Committee and Political Bureau.

2. True to Marxism-Leninism, learning selectively from the experience of fraternal parties, our party has applied with creativeness this revolutionary doctrine to our country's specific conditions, worked out a correct line and creative revolutionary methods which have led the revolution in our country from one victory to another.

Since its founding, our party has strictly adhered to the Marxist-Leninist principles on party building, fully grasped and observed the principles of democratic centralism and criticism and self-criticism, firmly maintained its internal unity, oneness of mind and discipline. It has always attached importance to building the party in all three aspects -- political, ideological and organizational, keeping in close touch with the masses and fighting for their interests.

3. Our party was originally a section of the Indochinese Communist Party created and tempered by Comrade Ho Chi Minh, prominent fighter of the international communist and workers movement, great leader of the Vietnamese people. Growing up at a time when socialism has triumphed in many countries and become a mighty world system, our party has had favorable conditions to raise its theortical standard of Marxism-Leninism and enjoy the assistance of many fraternal parties, in particular, of the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Communist Party of the Soviet Union for its self-forging and building. Our party has always been an intergral part of the international communist and workers movement. It takes pride in its correct political line, and in its contingent of staunch party cadres and members. The spirit of thoroughgoing revolution, of revolutionary offensive and of unconditionally serving our multiethnic laboring people as well as the sense of internal unity and international solidarity are extremely valuable and fine traditions that our entire party must cherish and strive to develop so as to fulfill its glorious revolutionary mission in the new stage.

B. Since the second congress, especially over the last 6 years since the party came to power, we have made considerable achievements in party building work.

1. Holding firmly to Marxism-Leninism, learning selectively from the experience of fraternal parties, our party has put forth correct revolutionary lines, policies and methods, and correct forms of struggle, thus accomplishing the national democratic revolution in the whole country. After seizing power in the whole country, our party has immediately led our people into the stage of socialist revolution with two strategic tasks: defending the fatherland and building socialism. It has promptly set up the state apparatus from the central to the base levels, firmly grasped and strengthened the various instruments of proletarian dictatorship, brought into play the right to mastery of our multiethnic people, thus quickly bringing stability to the general situation in the whole country, creating a new posture and strength with which to firmly defend the fruits of the revolution and to take the revolution forward.

2. Over the last 6 years, the number of leading cadres from the district level upwards has increased threefold, that of professional and technical cadres fivefold and the number of party members has been up by nearly 50 percent. The party has made great efforts to foster its cadres and members whose standard has been raised markedly and outstandingly in some respects, hence their ability to fulfill many large, heavy complicated and new tasks.

3. The party Central Committee as well as many provincial, district and basic party committees have made a resolute effort to regularize the party's activities, promote internal democracy, and uphold the spirit of criticism and self-criticism -- as a result, a high degree of unity and unamimity has been achieved and negative aspects arising from new circumstances have been limited. The unity and oneness of mind in the Central Committee and in party committees at other levels have been an important factor for unity in the whole party, army and people, and for ensuring the smooth going of various spheres of work.

C. Over the past period, in our party-building work, besides the achievements that we have made, there still remain shortcomings and errors to be resolutely overcome.

1. In shifting from the national democratic revolution to the socialist one, we did not firmly grasp the characteristics of a party in power. As a consequence, our work of political education and ideological guidance has not been far-reaching and perceptive enough, and hence the thinking of party cadres and members and the masses has not kept up with the changing political tasks. A number of party cadres and members have had their fighting will and revolutionary spirit quickly eroded; they are no longer examplary in their conduct and have become bureaucrats alienated from the masses; some have even been degraded, degenerated and bought off by the enemy.

2. Organizational work has not kept pace with the demands imposed by the political tasks. Party-building and consolidating work has not been closely combined with the building up and strengthening of the system of proletarian dictatorship and with economic and social management. It has been a big shortcoming of ours not to pay adequate attention to finding out and fostering new elements, and to training cadres who would serve as hard cores for the movement and be recommended for party membership. The network of basic party organizations in newly liberated areas has remained thin.

3. Some party committees, branches and leading cadres have made light of party-building work and of the principles governing party organization and activity, neglecting both democracy and centralism, assuming too much responsibility while slackening leadership, lacking serious criticism and self-criticism. Particularly, several branches and levels have slighted the work of organizing the implementation process and control work.

The above-mentioned shortcomings have exerted a bad influence on the party's quality of leadership and fighting capacity.

II — The Party-Building Task in the New Revolutionary Stage.

A. The leadership of the party always constitutes the primary factor for every victory.

Now that our party is leading the country in the building of socialism, it is of extremely great significance, with regard to party-building work, to clearly realize the characteristics of a party in power in new circumstances, because its position, tasks, instruments and methods of leadership have undergone a substantial change. The working class and the laboring people, from being slaves, have become masters of their own country and society. Therefore, our party, as the vanguard detachment of the working class, has become the actual leader of the whole society. It is responsible for assuming leadership in all fields: Political, military, economic, cultural, social, foreign policy, attending to every matter from big to small. Every decision taken by the party will have a direct bearing upon the destiny of the country and the life of all strata of the population.

In the present situation, our party is leading the people in the struggle to carry out two strategic tasks: To defend the fatherland and to build socialism of which the latter is by far a more difficult and complicated task.

Being in power, the party must use the whole system of proletarian dictatorship with the administration as the most important instrument, to defend and rebuild the country and build a new society. It must know how to make use of all types of measures: educational, administrative and economic, thus making the masses understand that rights and duties must always go together if their right to mastery is to be ensured.

The content of that leadership, as mentioned above, calls for the upholding of the party's leading role. The network of party organizations should be extended to every sphere and branch of activity of the state and society. Each party cadre and member must really endeavour to get a firm hold of the party line to acquire scientific knowledge and experience needed for fulfilling his task of leading. The party must carry out painstaking education to raise the party cadres' and members' potentiality, step up control work and maintain discipline thus ensuring all party cadres' and members' firmness thus ensuring all before the temptation of power, pleasure-seeking and money as well as all kinds of possible negative influences.

B. To make the party always worthy of being the leader and faithful servant of the laboring people and capable of fulfilling its national and internationalist duty, we must carry out the party-building task in conditions of a party in power along the following line: to strive to build the party in such a way that it can firmly preserve its nature of a new-type party of the working class, be worthy of being the leading nucleus of the proletarian dictatorship, become a bloc of unity in spirit and action, keep in close touch.

with the people of all ethnic groups, have correct lines and policies, a thorough revolutionary ideology, a wholesome and strong organization and a contingent of party cadres and members who are politically reliable, possessing adequate knowledge and capacity for leadership and management, expertness in practical activities, and determination for leading the whole people to accomplish the mission of safeguarding national independence, successfully building socialism in our country and fulfilling our internationalist duty.

III — Guidelines For Party Building

In order to carry out the party building task, in the new stage, we must apply the following guidelines:

1. Build the party in all three aspects: political, ideological and organizational, which are equally important, closely connected and complementary to each other.

2. Party building must be closely linked with the mass revolutionary movement and with the execution of the party's political tasks in each period. The masses should be encouraged to participate in party building and to criticize party cadres and members.

3. The party is the nucleus of the system of proletarian dictatorship and takes direct leadership of that system; that is why party building and development must be closely associated with the consolidation, perfecting and development of the state apparatus and mass organizations.

4. The building of the party and consolidation of party organizations must be combined with the raising of party cadres' and members' quality.

5. We must regularly admit qualified people and expel unqualified ones from the party. The admission of new people to the party must be done with extreme caution against opportunist and enemy elements who try to infiltrate the party for the sabotage purposes.

IV -- Some Major Tasks

1. To step up political and ideological education, inculcate the party lines for the new stage deeply in all party cadres and members, making them real combatants on the political and ideological front, who tirelessly propagate the party lines and policies among the masses, mobilize and organize the masses to put these lines into successful application. Education must be carried out so that everybody can raise his theoretical standard of Marxism-Leninism, deepen his patriotism and love of socialism, heighten his spirit of national self-reliance and of pure proletarian internationalism, be faithful to his comrades, firm and uncompromizing vis-a-vis the enemy, combat the attitude of halfway revolution, quietist and wavering tendencies, inferiority complex, dependence on others, narrowminded nationalism as well as such evils as abuse of power, arbitrariness, bureaucratism, waste and corruption.

2. On party members: The party's strength lies in its organization. However, the quality of the party's membership determines to a considerable extent the fighting capacity and ability for leadership of party organizations. That is why, in order to perform satisfactorily the work of building and perfecting the organization, we must try our best to heighten the quality of party members who must in the first place be patriotic Lao citizens conscious of the communist ideal, or more concretely:

They must be exemplary in labor fighting, work and lifestyle, determined to put the party and state lines and policies into application, possess a high sense of organization and discipline, have a vanguard fighting spirit, a spirit of revolutionary offensive, not shrink back before difficulties, be endowed with a pure proletarian internationalism, a resolute and firm attitude vis-a-vis all enemies of the fatherland and socialism, struggle uncompromisingly against any act that runs counter to the interests of the revolution, the people, the fatherland and socialism, lead a wholesome, simple life, be diligent, thrifty, public-minded and disinterested, not keeping aloof from the masses.

They must study hard to raise their political, cultural, scientific, technical and professional standards to satisfactorily perform their tasks being leaders.

They must keep close to the people, respect the laboring people's right to mastery, attend to the people's life, know how to explain the party lines and policies to the people, listen to the people and enjoy the love and trust of the broad masses.

In expanding the party's ranks, the greatest attention must be paid to admitting outstanding elements from the working class, the laboring peasants, revolutionary intellectuals or children of revolutionary families.

Extreme caution must be taken against opportunists and agents of imperialism and international reaction who try to infiltrate the party for sabotage.

3. The building of a contingent of party and state cadres which is both of good quality and large, capable of fulfilling the heavy tasks of the new revolutionary stage, is a very urgent task. We should promptly work out programs and plans to train and foster cadres to meet the immediate needs and prepare for a new step of development.

When selecting, fostering, training, assigning and promoting cadres, we must pay attention to those cadres who have revolutionary virtues and capacity, are faithful and devoted to the revolution, have a high sense of responsibility towards every task assigned them and a clearcut position concerning friends and foes, possess adequate political, economic and cultural knowledge and maintain good relations with the masses.

Particular importance must be attached to selecting, training and promoting cadres of workers, collective peasants, revolutionary intellectual stock and cadres who come from revolutionary families. At the same time, attention should also be paid to appointing and promoting women cadres, young cadres and cadres from ethnic minorities.

It is necessary to quickly form and stabilize the contingent of key cadres in various branches at all levels.

4. On internal unity, criticism and self-criticism. Acting upon the teachings by the masters of world revolution on preserving the unity and oneness of mind of the party as the apple of one's eye, our party has waged a constant struggle to ensure its unity and oneness of mind. Any manifestation of division and factionalism must be considered one of the biggest crimes against the party and the revolution.

The foundation of the party's unity and oneness of mind lies in its political line, objectives and tasks for each period which demand strict compliance by all party branches, cadres and members. A party committee must be a center of unity, each comrade on the committee must show exemplary conduct and take initiative in achieving unity.

To ensure unity, the party must hold firmly to criticism and self-criticism as a weapon. This constitutes a law of development of the party. Self-criticism should be conducted actively and preferably from higher levels downward. The courage shown in self-criticism and in accepting criticism and the determination to remedy shortcomings and errors constitute a yardstick measuring each party organization's, cadre's and member's consciousness and loyalty to the party.

Criticism and self-criticism are very good methods to build the party's ranks and strengthen unity, but it must be used correctly and prompted by sincerity, mutual love and respect, and wholehearted sympathy to help each other fulfill one's tasks and make progress together. We must combat arrogance, subjectivism, self-complacency, lack of rank criticism, rivalry or envy, shifting blame onto others, or criticism on petty matters only.

5. To strengthen the party's organization and perfect its apparatus. The party operates like a living body with a center of command and various component elements and organs.

Basic party organizations are places where we translate the party's line, policies and resolutions into realities, train and temper party cadres and members and establish direct contacts with the masses to understand their mood and aspirations.

Only with strong party cells and basic party branches can we educate and temper party members in a satisfactory manner, admit qualified people to the party and rid it of unqualified ones. Conversely, good party members make party cells and braches strong. Thus, basic party organizations must be strengthened in the first place if we want to build a strong party.

All provincial, district and grassroots party committees must pay due attention to and draw up plans to build basic party organizations so that by the end of 1985, no places shall be left without party cells.

The perfecting of party committees at various levels and their auxiliary staff: In a few years to come, we must strongly shift the focus of our work to the grassroots level with efforts centered upon perfecting the district level which is one of the important levels at present, vis-a-vis the realization of the party lines and policies, the state laws and plans. The district should be built into not only an administrative, national defense and security unit but also an economic, cultural and social unit.

Party committees at various levels should perfect their staff apparatus. In this ministries and branches under the government and those branches under the provincial and district administrative committees and in production and business enterprises, the system of one person in charge will be exercised. In their work of leadership, party committees at various levels must pay utmost attention to the following: political and ideological education making everybody firmly grasp the party's lines and policies, organizational work and control of discipline, organization and mobilization of a socialist emulation movement among the masses.

It is necessary to make a study aimed at changing the party organizational structure and improving the work of expanding the party ranks in the regular army and security forces in order to further strengthen the party's direct leadership in conformity with the requirement of the present tasks and situation.

6. To step up security work in the party: The party constitutes the decisive factor for every victory of the revolution. Consequently, all kinds of enemies have spared no efforts to undermine our party since its coming into being.

At present, the enemy of our country's revolution is seeking by all means to undermine our party in many respects. That is why the work to defend the party's line and policies, the various leading bodies, the party organizations and the party cadres and members has become an extremely important task.

Various organizations from the grassroots upward must step up the control of their party cadres and members, and each party cadre and member must consciously help party organizations by controlling control himself. Party organizations at all levels must regularly attend to the work of defending the party and put it more and more in order.

7. To improve the method of work: For leading bodies and chiefs, to have a scientific method of work is a big question of decisive importance for the quality and efficiency of work, internal unity and oneness of mind.

In the immediate future, we must resolutely regularize party activities. The content of party meetings should be improved and their quality enhanced so that each party meeting can adopt correct decisions. To attain this end, before a decision is made, surveys and study must be undertaken to collect concrete and sufficient information on the situation and various alternatives prepared, the best of which is to be chosen. Once a decision is made, the implementation process must be organized to turn it into realities. Responsibility must be divided, a deadline set for the completion of each task and control carried out as to how the decision is being implemented.

Routinism and unplanned style of work as well as the tendency to take upon oneself too much work without clear division of responsibility must be combated.

8. To step up control work: Control work is a main function of party committees of various levels. Lack of control is tantamount to lack of leadership. Control is meant to enhance the efficiency of guidance and ensure the successful implementation of decisions and timely rectification and readjustment when necessary. Specialized party commissions should be used to carry out control of related administrative branches and work; at the same time, mass organizations should be assigned the responsibility to carry out control and supervision of every sphere of work of party and administrative committees as well as of all party cadres and members.

Dear comrades, we are entering the seventh year of the first phase of the transitional period. The immediate tasks confronting the whole party, army and people are very heavy and complicated. We have to oppose all the schemes of aggression and subversion by the enemy, defend our national independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity. We have to build our country and ensure that our multiethnic people can live in peace, prosperity and happiness, at the same time accumulate material resources for the building of socialism. All those tasks are very big and difficult. But we are confident in their victorious accomplishment because we have the leadership of a Marxist-Leninist party, the posture and strength of our people have grown considerably and we also enjoy the solidarity, assistance and cooperation of Vietnam, Kampuchea, the Soviet Union and other countries in the world. Persevering in the line of socialist revolution, holding firmly the two banners of national independence and socialism, fulfilling the two strategic tasks and the five major immediate targets, we will certainly succeed in bringing prosperity to our beloved fatherland, standing firm at the outpost of the socialist system in the region, and fulfilling our sacred national and internationalist duties.

All for the defense of the fatherland, for socialism and for the well-being and happiness of the Lao multiethnic people!

Long live the Lao People's Revolutionary Party!

Long live invincible Marxism-Leninism!

Long live peaceful, independent, united and socialist Lao!

I would like to end this political report with an old Lao saying: Who ever says that Laos is a sad country? Do not believe that, for Laos is like the last cucumber on a dying plant.

Laos will march forward and become prosperous forever!

I would like to end my report now.

POST: SOVIET CULTURAL CENTER IN LAOS ATTACKED

BK050055 Bangkok POST in English 5 May 82 p 1

[Text] Several persons were wounded when a hand grenade exploded at the Soviet cultural centre in Vientiane on Sunday afternoon, according to reports reaching Bangkok yesterday. Laotian authorities later said two young Laotians were arrested in connection with the bombing. The three-storey centre was still closed yesterday and guarded by Pathet Lao soldiers.

The attack followed the Third National Congress of the People's Revolutionary Party, which ended on Friday. Security was heavy and a curfew was imposed in Vientiane last week, giving rise to speculation that the authorities may have expected trouble during the four-day congress.

There have been sketchy reports that the Laotian resistance was involved in a serious disturbance in Vientiane Province within the past fortnight.

SITTHI ON FRENCH BID FOR THAI-SRV TALKS ON KAMPUCHEA

BK030515 Bangkok POST in English 3 May 82 p 3

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said yesterday Thailand will consult fellow member countries of ASEAN on the French proposal that Thailand open high-level negotiations with Hanoi to find a political solution to the Kampuchean problem.

The proposal was made by French President Francois Mitterrand and Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy to Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon during their meeting in Paris on Friday [30 April]. The prime minister then assigned ACM Sitthi to meet his French counterpart, Claude Cheysson, and discuss the proposal in detail.

Upon his arrival in Bangkok yesterday, ACM Sitthi commented that the timing was not right for high-level negotiations with Hanoi. But he said Thailand would not close the door to lower-level talks. However, he maintained that such talks should not take place before the visit to Hanoi of Austrian Foreign Minister Willibald Pahr, who is chairman of the ad hoc committee of the international conference on Kampuchea. Besides, ACM Sitthi said, he had to bring the issue for consultation with the other ASEAN countries first.

He commented that he would not overlook the French proposal because it showed they were interested in helping solve the problem. He said Cheysson admitted during the meeting that the French had partly caused confusion in the three Indochina countries in the past and promised to help in whatever way they could to solve the problem.

ACM Sitthi said that despite minor differences between Thailand and France because Paris recognised the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin government in Kampuchea, the French were still of the opinion that the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea would be one solution to the Kampuchean problem.

ACM Sitthi described his meeting with Cheysson as friendly, reflecting the good relationship between the two countries. Meanwhile, Deputy Foreign Minister Dr Arun Phanuphong said the three Khmer resistance groups -- the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) led by Son Sann, the Khmer Rouge led by Khieu Samphan, and former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Moulinaka -- were expected to hold their meeting in Kuala Lumpur.

Earlier reports said Malaysian Foreign Minister Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie had offered Kuala Lumpur as a venue for the summit between leaders of the three anti-Vietnamese factions. Dr Arun added that the three Khmer leaders should hold their meeting before the meeting of ASEAN foreign ministers to be held in Singapore in June.

It welcomed the efforts made by Vietnam in discharging its internationalist obligation toward Laos and Kampuchea, in consolidating and strengthening the combative alliance among the three Indochinese countries and in contributing to stabilizing and safeguarding peace in Southeast Asia.

The delegation of the Communist Party of Vietnam warmly hailed the successes recorded by the Nicaraguan people in the past three years or so, under the clearsighted leadership of the Sandinista National Liberation Front and the government for national reconstruction of Nicaragua, in carrying out drastic political, economic and social reforms and in defending national independence and sovereignty against any pressure, provocations and threat of agression by the U.S. imperialists and their allies.

The VCP delegation expressed its full support for the just cause of the heroic Nicaraguan people and the five-point stand of the Nicaraguan Government for national reconstruction aimed at easing through negotiations tension in Central America caused by the Reagan administration's bellicose policy. The VCP delegation affirmed its unflagging militant solidarity with the Sandinista National Liberation Front and the people of Nicaragua and expressed its firm conviction that the Nicaraguan people would overcome all difficulties and trials and succeed in building a new beautiful and prosperous Nicaragua and firmly defending the independence and sovereignty of heroic Sandinista homeland.

The two sides shared the view that in their weakening and losing situation, imperialism and other war-like forces are trying to accelerate the arms race, causing tension in many places and plotting to bring the world back to the cold war period. The two sides welcomed and supported the initiatives of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and supported the efforts of progressive and non-aligned countries towards consolidating peace and national security, boosting the process of easing the world situation and the danger of war.

The two sides held that in the present international situation, it is of paramount importance to strengthen the unity among the socialist countries, the national liberation movement and the world movement for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress.

For this reason the two sides fully supported the struggle of the peoples in Asia, Africa and Latin America against imperialism, old and new colonialism, hegemonism and expansionism-Zionism, racism, and apartheid and, at the same time, voiced their determination to contribute actively to that struggle.

The two sides expressed their satisfaction at the constant consolidation and development of the cooperation between the Sandinista National Liberation Front and the Communist Party of Vietnam, between the Nicaraguan Government for national reconstruction and the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, and between the peoples of the two countries.

SRV PROTESTS UK ACTIONS AGAINST ARGENTINA

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 4 -- A spokesman for the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today issued the following statement concerning Britain's hostilities against Argentina:

"According to foreign news reports, Britain has since April 30, 1982, sent its air and naval forces to repeatedly attack many points and Argentine forces on the Malvinas Archipelago and tried to land its troops there. This act of military escalation was taken by Britain right after the U.S. had openly declared its support for and its readiness to give aid to Britain and proclaimed "sanctions" against Argentina.

"These are brazen acts of armed aggression against the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Argentina, seriously threatening peace and security in southern Atlantic and increasing world tension, these acts of military adventure have laid bare the colonialist and bellicose nature of the British authorities and their outdated policy of using force to compel Argentina to give up its sovereignty over Malvinas and to restore the colonial status of the archipelago.

"By supporting Britain against Argentina, the Reagan administration has appeared in its true colour as an imperialist warmonger who has taken advantage of any opportunity to increase its interference and cause tension in the interests of the U.S. imperialists, against the independence and sovereignty of other nations and international peace and security.

"Together with progressive public opinion in Latin America and the rest of the world, the people and the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam severely condemn the bellicose and aggressive acts of the British authorities and the complicity of the U.S. against Argentina. We demand that Britain and the U.S. cease at once those acts and respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Argentine".

ARMY URGED TO IMPLEMENT VCP CONGRESS RESOLUTIONS

[Excerpt of TAP CHI QUAN DOI NHAN DAN April 1982 editorial: "Develop the Effectiveness of the Practical Organizational Task To Turn the Party Congress Resolutions Into Reality"]

[Text] The fifth party congress resolutions are the achievements of all our party, people and troops in concentrating their minds collectively on materializing and further enriching policies in line with the development of the country in the coming years.

The very correct congress resolutions on the strategic mission, the main economic and social task as well as the tasks, guidelines and measures concerning national defense, culture and society; on strengthening the socialist state; on foreign policy, and on party development have opened very bright prospects for our country successfully to build socialism and firmly to defend the socialist Vietnam fatherland.

The congress also indicated clearly: Only by making the right decisions can we basically establish guidelines for action. The vital problem is to organize and implement resolutions, turning them into reality. Mainly, therefore, the party is faced with the immediate problem of broadly developing the practical organizational task following the success of the party congress. This is a very broad and arduous task and, at the same time, a field in which we are still weak.

In the field of practical organization, the problem of prime importance to all sectors and units is to take the right decisions and actions. The decisions and actions taken by sectors, units and localities must materialize the party congress resolutions into countless specific policies and acts in the various domains of national life. The party congress resolutions and the decisions and actions of sectors and authorities at all echelons must constitute a unified whole. This is the dialectic unity of the common and personal things. The party congress resolutions guide the resolutions of various sectors and authorities at all echelons. The resolutions of sectors and authorities at various echelons must agree with the party congress resolutions and result from the materialization of the party congress resolutions through applying them to the real situation and tasks of each sector and each unit.

Consequently, all sectors, echelons and units must firmly grasp the party congress resolutions if they want to adopt the correct resolutions, policies and acts. At the same time, they must know how to apply them creatively to a given situation and to their own specific political tasks. It is of paramount importance to recapitulate experiences and correctly assess good points and weaknesses in order to formulate accurate guidelines for action. In this connection, each sector and each unit must further qualitatively improve its review of experiences when the fifth party congress resolutions have been issued.

The report on party development at the congress indicated: In the future, on the basis of firmly grasping the fifth party congress resolutions and reviewing the implementation of the fourth party congress resolutions, each echelon, sector and unit must recapitulate it experiences over the past 5 years in order to unify further their knowledge of the party lines, find the causes of shortcomings for remedial action and advance our tasks toward even greater successes.

To try to identify the strongpoints and the shortcomings and to distinguish right and wrong is most necessary in reviewing our tasks and experiences. To do this, we must conduct self-criticism and criticism in an objective, upright, courageous and impartial manner. It has been suggested in the political report that after this congress, self-criticism and criticism should be conducted profoundly within the party and among state organs at all levels, and that effective measures should be adopted to correct all shortcomings and mistakes.

The attitude manifested by the recent party congress toward the review of the implementation of the fourth party congress resolutions is a tremendous lesson for us to conduct self-criticism and criticism. By affirming its achievements and strongpoints along with openly admitting its shortcomings and errors, our party has further proved itself to be a firm and strong Marxist-Leninist party with a high sense of responsibility toward the country's revolutionary cause. All sectors, echelons and units as well as every cadre and party member should learn from and inherit this spirit of self-criticism and critism fully so as to be able to review their tasks and recapitulate their experiences in a satisfactory manner.

As pointed out by the party congress, it is our effort to detect our shortcomings in order to find a solution to them which reflects our maturity. In light of the party congress resolutions, we must assess the situation more thoroughly and determine clearly what has been done correctly, what has not yet been done or has been done incorrectly, what have been our good points and shortcomings, and what should we continue to do and how should we do it to be in accordance with the line, tasks and policies laid down by the party congress? This is necessary in order to enable all sectors and units to move forward to fulfill all assignments outstandingly.

Once the revolutionary theory has been disseminated among the masses, it will become an invincible material force. Therefore, if we want to transform the party congress resolutions into reality, we must make everybody understand these resolutions throughly.

This is the most important part of the practical organizational task because the masses will devote all their mind and ability to creating a broad, deep and vigorous movement for revolutionary actions only when they thoroughly understand and consider these resolutions as their own struggle objectives.

We must also disseminate these resolutions to every person, cadre and soldier along with enabling the masses to understand correctly the situation in the country and in their localities and units, realize their advantages and difficulties, and foresee the fine potentials as well as the complexities which may arise in the process of the implementation of these resolutions and the struggle orientations by each echelon, unit and person so that they can develop their advantages, overcome all difficulties and work actively and creatively in order to fulfill all norms and tasks set forth in these resolutions.

To understand these resolutions thoroughly it is necessary to achieve a high degree of conformity in terms of awareness and ideology. The correct awareness and ideology, however, cannot be achieved simply through theoretical persuasion and spiritual encouragement; it can only be ensured by closely combining ideological work with organizational measures. Meanwhile, we still cannot claim that we have actually made the masses understand or created confidence with a firm scientific basis for them to implement the party congress resolutions successfully, if we fail to pay attention to solving the specific problems encountered by them in the process of applying these resolutions.

Every organization and every individual, no matter which sector or echelon he belongs to, is dutybound to struggle to transform the party congress resolutions into reality. Each sector, each organization and each individual, however, has its or his particular role in the social organization. Therefore, in implementing the party congress resolutions, it is necessary to define clearly the responsibilities of each organization and each individual in accordance with its or his particular functions and duties.

In addition, the work assigned should be considered as a political task and target for action, which we must strive to achieve at all costs. That work can also be considered as a criterion to assess the quality and strength of each organization as well as the political quality and operational ability of each individual.

To carry out its tasks satisfactorily it is crucial that each locality and each unit must bring into full play its own combined strength. The system of leadership by the party, mastery by the people and management by the state is the system most suitable for the system of socialist collective mastery to create great combined strength. In the people's army, there arises among the basic units the need to develop the executive role of unit leaders, the leading role of basic party organizations and the collective mastery role of the masses of cadres and combatants. Nevertheless, to develop combined strength while actually performing organizational work it is necessary to define clearly the responsibilities of each organization and each individual in accordance with its or his particular functions. The organization is large; it is staffed with a great number of cadres and its forces are massive. But it is impossible to create strength without a realistic and well-defined division of labor. Furthermore, there may even arise a chaotic situation in which everyone acts according to his own whim and obstructs one another's work.

Thus, effecting a division of labor and assigning responsibilities is also a science -- the science of using the organization and forces, the science of coordination and the science of developing the combined strength. Close and practical coordination must be planned for every work assignment and for each specific period of time. It is necessary to set a time limit for the completion of each work assignment by an individual instead of letting him finish it in his own time.

In every unit, the leader must first of all have organizational capability. He must not only know what needs to be done but must also assign work to the various organs and echelons in the unit in such a way as to ensure that all the unit's activities will be carried out under a unified plan that calls for harmony among the various elements of the unit as well as between the unit and the organs concerned and for close coordination with regard to both planning and timing. He must avoid giving a loose rein to the various organs and units as this would make him incapable of developing his supervisory role as a leader; and at the same time, must also avoid taking all matters into his own hand as this would make it impossible to develop the role of the various organizations, services and units, and limit the creation of a great combined strength necessary for fulfilling the unit's political task most satisfactorily.

Controlling the implementation of tasks is one of the key leading functions of the party. Vladimir Ilych Lenin considered control over implementation as a key issue concerning practical work. Likewise, our party has always stressed that to lead without control is not to lead. From the time resolutions and viewpoints are adopted through the entire period in which these viewpoints are put into practice and translated into revolutionary activities of the masses, there unfolds a process of turning awareness into action and words into deeds. This process must be put under regular and close supervision and control so as to ensure agreement between viewpoints and actions and proper implementation of resolutions.

All correct resolutions and viewpoints have the effect of improving the situation and advancing the revolution. To ensure this we must surmount all obstacles and overcome all difficulties in repelling all negative phenomena and the inertia that exists in each individual as well as in each organizatin. At certain times and in certain places, it is impossible to avoid shortcomings and deviations in the process of thinking and acting. To control and remedy the situation promptly is the best measure for overcoming the practice of working perfunctorily and preventing the prolongation of errors and shortcomings with the aim of ensuring that resolutions and viewpoints are understood fully and carried out properly.

Viewpoints and policies, no matter how carefully they are deliberated and discussed, are accurate only in some key basic aspects. Reality will determine their accuracy and point out the need for supplementation and readjustment. By carrying out control work promptly, we will able to provide guidance as required by the situation and set forth appropriate policies to meet promptly the development of the process of organizing the implementation of tasks. This is also the best way to overcome the bureaucratic workstyle that alienates us from reality.

New factors, progressive models and innovations are generated from the process of implementing party resolutions and viewpoints within the mass movement. Through control work, we must discover new factors and progressive models. Newly formed factors are fragile and weak at the beginning; they may even be hard to detect and are seldom recognized immediately. Therefore, in carrying our control work, it is necessary to carefully study new factors in their embryonic stage. Utmost attention must be given to fostering them and helping them reach maturity, developing their full potentials and assuming a general and universal character so that they will have the effect of vigorously promoting the mass movement for revolutionary actions.

The effectiveness of practical organizational activities, as pointed out at the fifth party congress, is derived not only from work methods and conduct, but it is also the combined result of ideological and organizational work and of the quality and capability of the contingent of party cadres and members at all echelons and in all sectors. To translate resolutions into reality we must promptly develop Leninist work methods and conduct by, first of all, changing the methods for issuing resolutions and organizing their implementation. It is necessary to grasp firmly and ensure even more satisfactorily the agreement between theory and practice, between words and deeds, and between policies and the organizations in order to guarantee full and effective implementation of resolutions.

In all activities, we must closely combine revolutionary character with scientific character, and link revolutionary character with organized actions and well-connected methods in order to produce good results.

In light of the fifth party congress, our entire army is determined to surge forward and bring about a turn to the better in practical activities with a view to fulfilling in an outstanding manner all the great military tasks set forth by the party congress and making a worthy contribution to the cause of defending the socialist fatherland and building socialism in the new stage.

U.S. CHEMICAL WARFARE CHARGES CALLED 'SLANDER'

OW300637 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Station correspondent Vuong Thinh commentary]

[Text] Friends: For many months now a typical insidious propaganda campaign has been waged by the U.S. imperialists. After its failure to vilify Vietnam through various campaigns, conducted in coordination with Beijing and other reactionary lackeys, including the human rights and refugee campaigns, Washington has turned to falsely charging the Soviet Union and Vietnam with conducting chemical warfare in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia. To this end, the U.S. propaganda machine and that of Beijing, Bangkok and other reactionaries have persistently and repeatedly concocted evidence and advanced charges in an atcempt to isolate the Soviet Union and Vietnam, or failing that, to sully their images in the international arena.

The White House has made public a number of samples of tree bark, stones and water allegedly contaminated by "yellow rain" and brought in from Laos and the Thai-Kampuchean border areas. They also held exhibits, compiled reports, conducted testimony before the U.S. Congress and exerted pressure so that the United Nations, along with the United States, sent investigative teams to areas bordering Afghanistan and Kampuchea. They also published declarations by refugees. With this so-called evidence on display, they gleefully pronounced, in the manner of a triumphant judge: You see, there is a lot of hard evidence. How can the Soviet Union and Vietnam deny their crimes?

Before we raised our voice in protest, differing opinions on the matter emerged right in the United States. Many U.S. radio and television networks and many U.S. papers have confronted the White House with this question: That is all we have as evidence? Do you think we can draw a definite conclusion from that? Meanwhile, U.S. scientists who participated in the roundtable talk held by the ABC television network early this month bluntly said they did not believe in the U.S. Government's charges. Other scientists have advised that the U.S. Government should not act thoughtlessly lest it should undermine its own prestige. What a sincere and appropriate piece of advice! Of course, people cannot arrogantly impose their subjective will on others and flaunt hard facts and scientific evidence. Also, broad segments of public opinion, including U.S. public opinion, have pointed out that U.S. authorities certainly could get anywhere those samples of tree bark, stones and water allegedly contaminated by "yellow rain." Even toxic chemicals can be easily bought from U.S. stores. As for the rantings of some witness-refugees, how can the U.S. Government, which understands the value of law and justice, rely on the rambling talk? In other words, broad segments of public opinion have categorically rejected the U.S. Government's slanders about the use of toxic chemicals in Afghanistan and Kampuchea by the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

The truth is not always good to say, runs the Vietnamese saying, but sometimes it must be said. His excellency the U.S. secretary of state was so upset by the public's upright comment that he completely forgot to assume the attitude befitting diplomats when he berated the U.S. press for defending the communists, for betraying the U.S. Government and the American nation. However, truth in itself is all powerful and cannot be obstructed by any force whatsoever.

What is behind the U.S. slander campaign? The United States is taking this move to conceal its stepping up of the nuclear arms race, accleration of production and stockpiling of chemical and biological weapons, and promotion of the race to use space for military purposes.

It is evident that no one has witnessed any chemical warfare waged by the Soviet Union and Vietnam. As for the United States, it has, at least, conducted two wars of this type: In Korea, in the early 1950's and then in Indochina, for about a decade. How can people forget that the U.S. forces used more than 96,000 tons of herbicide during the Vietnam war, primarily agents orange, white and blue and more than 7,000 tons of toxic chemicals, primarily CS, contaminating 1.6 million people, 44 percent of Vietnam's jungles and 40 percent of Vietnam's arable land. World scientists have pointed out that the deliberate U.S. use of Agent Orange, with a high level of the dioxin toxin highly damaging to the environment, has caused contamination of extremely serious consequences.

Obviously, the current U.S. Government's slander campaign is aimed at whitewashing the U.S. chemical warfare crimes. It also serves as a pretext for its more monstrous future crimes. Toward this end, the United States has resorted to all kinds of tricks, including infiltrating a commando [bieetj kichs] team into Laos to plant phony evidence of "yellow rain." When that team was in danger of being detected, it dispatched another commando team with the order to assassinate the first team in order to destroy evidence. This revelation by a U.S. commando, by the name of (Barnes), has exposed Washington's extreme perfidy, brutal acts, and deceitful and insidious propaganda.

However, no matter how cunningly his excellency the U.S. President Reagan, his excellency the Secretary of State Haig, and other White House officials conduct their slander campaign, they will fail to deceive people and will certainly be brought to trial before public opinion's tribunal as the most notorious and monstrous chemical warfare criminals.

VCP OFFICIALS ADDRESS EMULATION MEETING

[Report on "recently held" ceremony to sign emulation pledges by high-ranking cadres of the VPA; with portions recorded]

[Summary] Determined to step up the determined-to-win emulation movement, implement the fifth party congress resolutions successfully, and conclude the 4-year major campaign satisfactorily, representatives of our people's armed forces recently held a ceremony at the VPA General Political Department's conference hall to sign their emulation pledges.

"On behalf of the standing committee of the military commission of the party Central Committee and the Ministry of National Defense, Sen Gen Hoang Van Thai, member of the party Central Committee and vice minister of national defense; and Col Gen Le Trong Tan, member of the party Central Committee, vice minister of national defense and chief of the VPA General Staff, witnessed the signing of the emulation pledges together with the heads of the Political General Department, the Rear Services General Department, the Technical General Department, and the Army General Inspectorate."

In his opening speech, Maj Gen Tran Van Phac, member of the party central committee and deputy head of the Political General Deparrment, said: [begin recording] "On behalf of the standing committee of the campaign of the Ministry of National defense, we are pleased to report to the military commission of the party Central Committee, the ministry of national defense, and to all of you, comrades, that, since early this year, a seething movement for emulation pledges has developed extensively among many units, regiments and divisions of our people's armed forces, as well as in various provinces, institutes, schools, hospitals, and national defense enterprises, depots and stations.

This movement has been launched to welcome the success of the fifth party congress and satisfactorily conclude the 4-year period in which our entire army has implemented the major campaign initiated by the party Central Committee Secretariat.

"Some localities have even held conferences to display good examples and progressive models in combination with the launching of a new emulation drive, which has developed broadly and deeply in all units of our army, including those at the grassroots level. To date, the movement for our emulation pledges has expanded to all major units in various military regions, army corps, and armed branches and services, as well as to all general departments of the Ministry of National Defense. This has, in fact, clearly reflected new progress and new quality in the socialist emulation movement among all units of our army, which we should be happy about." [end recording]

On behalf of the military commission of the party Central Committee and the Ministry of National Defense, Col Gen Le Trong Tan warmly praised the representatives from various units, organs and schools in the entire army for their efforts and unity in the socialist emulation movement. After reviewing the struggle targets specified in their emulation pledges, Col Gen Le Trong Tan urged these representatives to organize and implement all emulation pledges most satisfactorily.

He said: [begin recording] The first point is that although the signing of the emulation pledges is merely the initial stage, it reflects your determination -- a determination with both revolutionary and scientific bases. But it is the next stage -- the stage of action -- which is the important and decisive one. And it is natural that the stage for revolutionary action is the more difficult and complicated one. Therefore, only by organizing this stage skillfully will we be able to successfully fulfill all the tasks which have been laid down by our party. All revolutionary tasks must be carried out through the masses' movement for revolutionary action.

"The second point is that you, comrades, have signed the pledges to emulate each other in groups. The signing of these pledges reflects your responsibility toward the higher echelons and the masses [words indistinct]. You should do what you have pledged to do most satisfactorily. Therefore, the signing of the pledges to emulate with each other is considered to be most important.

"The third point is that to successfully implement the pledges you have just signed today, it is most necessary for high-ranking cadres, commanders and deputy commanders of all military regions, army corps and armed branches and services, as well as cadres in charge of all general departments of the Ministry of National Defense to play an exemplary and leading role in this task. They must also ensure the agreement in words and deeds so as to set good examples for the lower echelons and their units to follow.

"The standing committee of the campaign is entrusted with studying the emulation pledge of each group carefully before submitting it to the Ministry of National Defense for approval. It is necessary for the members of the Standing Committee of the Campaign to handle this matter skillfully. The Ministry of National Defense will follow, inspect and compare the implementation of these emulation pledges, and will give worthy commendation and reward to leading units.

"May I wish you, comrades, in all military regions, army corps, armed branches and services, organs and schools outstanding successes in all tasks entrusted by our party, government, people and army." [end recording]

GOLKAR AHEAD AS ELECTION RETURNS ARE TALLIED

BK050201 Hong Kong AFP in English 0146 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 5 May (AFP) -- Indonesia's ruling Golkar had a whopping 63.7 percent of the vote with more than half the returns in from the country's general elections yesterday, officials said here today.

The army-backed Golkar had 29,009,784 of the 45,658,624 votes counted in the 27 provinces where over 82 million voters were registered, the central election board said. The Golkar was thus running slightly ahead of its 1977 showing when it rolled up 62 percent of the vote. The board said that the Moslem United Development Party (PPP) had 12,661,630 votes, or 27.7 percent and the Indonesian Democratic Party (PDI) 3,900,210 for 8.6 percent.

Results were still trickling in from remote regions. The official results were to be announced June 9 after going through three election committees and the central election board.

Most of the 82 million registered voters went to the polls yesterday following a hectic 45-day campaign that left 18 people dead in clashes and dozens more in traffic accidents during raucous motorcade rallies.

The ruling Golkar Party had been widely expected to come out on top in the third election since President Suharto took power in 1967. The only question remaining was if it could match its landslide win of five years ago in the face of surprisingly strong opposition from the PPP and PDI. Army troops were under orders to shoot troublemakers "on the spot" yesterday, but no major incidents were reported.

At stake were 364 of the 460 seats in parliament -- the other 96 are government appointed -- plus seats in 27 provincial assemblies. Once they are elected they will hold a congress next year widely expected to return President Suharto, 60, to a fourth five-year term.

Meanwhile, King Khalid ibn Abd al-'Aziz of Saudi Arabia will also visit Indonesia at the invitation of President Suharto, but the timing of visit is still to be determined. The president's invitations were extended to the three heads of state by Defense and Security Affairs Minister and concurrently Armed Forces Commander General M. Yusuf during his visit to the three countries.

General Yusuf, who returned home today, said on arrival that during his visits to the three countries he he had succeeded in enhancing mutual understanding. As reported earlier, General Yusuf handed over to the heads of state in the three countries he visited a letter from President Suharto. He also held talks with the ministers of defense, discussing mutual relations, particularly cooperation in the military field.

General Yusuf also visited military installations and had an opportunity to meet with Indonesians living in the three countries.

KCNA CITES EX-U.S. OFFICIAL ON 'ANTI-U.S. TREND'

SK050429 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0411 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang May 5 (KCNA) -- Ranard, former director of the office of Korean affairs in the U.S. State Department, said in his article to the New York TIMES on April 26 that the United States is now faced with unheard-of anti-Americanism in South Korea, according to a KNS report from Tokyo.

Recalling that recently students set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan and leading figures of the Catholic Church issued an anti-U.S. statement, he wrote that the younger generation of South Korea was seeing the United States with critical eyes.

He pointed out that the U.S. assistance to the Pak Chong-hui fascist "regime" for 18 years and later to the Chon Tu-hwan fascist "regime" touched off the anti-American sentiments in South Korea.

He stressed that after puppet Pak Chong-hui was shot dead, the United States not only hindered a democratic reform in South Korea but also defended the bloodbath in Kwangju and pursued "a quiet diplomatic policy" toward the problem of saving Kim Tae-chung and, particularly, the Reagan administration even "invited" Chon Tu-hwan to the United States to have talks, which helped the South Koreans judge that the United States tolerate the oppressive "regime."

Another characteristics of the anti-American sentiments in South Korea is the consciousness growing among intellectuals and students that the U.S. troops are present in South Korea to defend U.S. investment and trade, Ranard noted.

VRPR URGES ACCELERATION OF ANTI-U.S. STRUGGLE

SK051220 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 3 May 82

[Talk from the feature program: "Hour for the Armed Forces"]

[Text] As is well known, anti-U.S. sentiment is growing among people of all walks of life across the country. Our people's anti-U.S. struggle was not launched just recently.

The 18 March arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan and the subsequent incident of scattering antigovernment and anti-U.S. leaflets resulted in the development of our people's anti-U.S. struggle to a higher level. Our people's anti-U.S. slogans: "The United States must not make this land its colony any longer!" and "Yankee, go home" were an explosion of our people's anti-U.S. sentiment which has accumulated for 37 years, the powerful cry to denounce the U.S. imperialists -- ringleaders of aggression and plunder -- and the expression of the people's aspirations for national dignity and sovereignty. For this reason, people from various strata extended positive support for and solidarity with the patriotic struggle of Pusan youth and students. When the joint investigation team composed of tens of thousands of police and military personnel searched for patriotic youths and students, people of all walks of life provided them with various conveniences. Furthermore, they turned out for the anti-U.S. struggle with the students.

At the 16 April congregation at the Catholic church located in Hehwa-Tong Chongno District, Seoul, about 1,400 college students of Seoul fully supported the just action of Fr. Choe Ki-sik, the director of the educational center in the Wonju Diocese, who had provided shelter for the three patriotic students involved in the Pusan arson. Shortly after the meeting they staged a demonstration to denounce the Chon Tu-hwan ring's rascist tyranny.

The 15 April statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization and the 27 April statement issued by the Korean Christians' Council demanded the recall of the U.S. Ambassador Walker and the commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, Wickham, from South Korea, sternly denouncing the U.S. policy toward South Korea.

Around the time U.S. Vice President Bush visited South Korea, an anti-U.S. struggle was vigorously staged. They students of the Kangwon University in Chuchon waged a demonstration on campus on 22 April, burning the Stars and Stripes and scattering antigovernment and anti-U.S. leaflets. In the leaflet, they denounced the U.S. Reagan administration and the Chon Tu-hwan ring, crying a slogan: "Yankee, go home!" and expressed their solidarity with the anti-U.S. struggle of youths and students who set fire to the American Cultural Center on 18 March.

On 26 and 27 April, youths and studetns of Seoul staged a demonstration and hundreds of them waged an antigovernment struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan ring -- a group of pro-U.S. stooges -- around the place where Bush stayed. This was the antigovernment and anti-U.S. struggle which followed the 24 March antigovernment struggle of Koryo University students, the 9 April struggle of the students of the Hanguk University of foreign studies, the 13 April sit-in struggle of young Christians at a church in Seoul and the anti-U.S. and anti-fascist struggle of the Ehwa University students.

Dear officials and men of the armed forces, as is well known, an anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan spirit is growing among officials and men of the armed forces. At a tearoom in Chunchon, Kwangwon Province, on 11 April, three South Korean soldiers beat up two U.S. GI's who were committing an act of outrage on the owner of the tearoom. At Oggu County, North Cholla Province, at around 2100 on 18 April, Corporal Yi used an M-16 rifle to shoot dead a U.S. Army officer who was trying to rape a married woman.

The anti-U.S. struggle growing among people of various strata and officers and men of the armed forces is not an accidental phenomenon, but the explosion of resentment against the United States.

An army 2D lieutenant who heard the statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization said: The United States is not our friend. Through 7 years in the army, I confirmed that the United States is the enemy of democracy and the Korean masses. We cannot be U.S. mercenaries. We will fight against the United States.

As long as U.S. troops are stationed in South Korea and U.S. aggression and interference with our domestic affairs continue, our people and the officers and men of the armed forces cannot extricate themselves from present suffering and ordeal. The officers and men of the armed forces should fight together with people of various strata who have risen up in the anti-U.S. struggle.

NODONG SINMUN ARTICLE HITS U.S. 'MILITARY BLOCS'

SK051143 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1037 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang May 5 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN May 4 carried an article titled "U.S. Imperialists Criminal Policy of Military Bloc."

The author of the article says:

Openly pursuing the "policy of strength" and crying for "superiority of strength," the U.S. imperialists defined the formation of military blocs as a major means of their realization and force it upon their allies.

In order to knock into shape a new military bloc in the Asian-Pacific region, they use bilateral treaties and cooperative organisations and, at the same time, stage large-scale military exercises in this region in an effort to round off the command system of the countries participating in them.

In recent years, the U.S. imperialists inveigled the Japanese self-defense marine force into the war exercises "Rimpac" and are holding criminal confabs to draw the South Korean puppet army forces into it. This makes it plain what they seek through the exercises.

Facts prove that the U.S. imperialists are making haste with a strategic plan to form a new military bloc in the Asian-Pacific region at the practical stage.

On the other hand, the U.S. imperialists are manoeuvring to form a new military bloc in the Middle East, a major base of resources and military strategic vantage-point, and in the Central American region, and instill spirits into the weakening NATO.

All these manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists are an anachronistic attempt.

Forced by the trend of the era of independence, SEATO and CENTO, aggressive military blocs of U.S. imperialism, went out of existence, and, earlier, ASPAC had met its doom. NATO is tottering due to serious contradictions and antagonism within itself.

This foretells that the U.S. imperialists manoeuvres to form new military blocs going against the trend of the times are fated to go busted.

NODONG SINMUN DENOUNCES U.S. STANDS ON FALKLANDS

SK060518 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0427 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang May 6 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today in a commentary says that Britain's military attack on the Malvinas Islands is a grave threat to peace and security in the southern Atlantic and a challenge to the desire of the peaceloving people of the world for a peaceful solution of the Malvinas problem.

Britain's encroachment upon Argentina's sovereignty is an expression of its wild design to act as an "emperor of the sea" as in the past by brandishing the old gunboat policy, remarks the commentary.

The author of the commentary recalls that when the Malvinas incident broke out, the United States, wearing the mask of a "mediator," directly involved itself in this issue and secretly transferred material of its espionage on the military action of Argentina to Britain, backing its aggressive acts.

The commentary says:

In its plan of "three nation rule" and "five-point plan" the United States tried, by taking advantage of the clash between Britain and Argentina, to seize the Malvinas Islands and use the islands as a major military strategic base in the southern Atlantic in realising colonial domination over Latin America.

But when this plan fell flat, the United States threw away the mask of the "mediator" on April 30 and openly announced that it would apply sanctions against Argentina and side with Britain and, synchronising with this, U.S. Senate and House sub-committees adopted a lution on the United States' full support to Britain.

Facts tell that U.S. imperialism is the chieftain of the imperialists and colonialists trying to block the decolonisation of the Malvinas Islands and realise their aggressive design on Latin America and is not "a friend" but a vicious enemy of the peoples of Argentina and Latin America.

The commentary stresses:

Britain must stop all its military actions in the Malvinas Islands area and withdraw its armed forces of aggression from there.

The decolonisation of the Malvinas Islands must be realised. This is a demand of the times.

If the imperialists defy this just demand, they will be more vehemently denounced and rejected by the peaceloving people of the world.

THREE IN SOUTH INDICTED FOR SECURITY VIOLATIONS

SK060502 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0424 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 6 (KCNA) -- The South Korean military fascist clique on May 3 indicted three youths -- Yi Ho-chol residing in Onchon-Dong No. 2, Tongrae District, Pusan, Chong Ku-sun, former student of Pusan University, Sol Kyong-ae, former teacher of a primary school -- on suspicion of violating the notorious "National Security Law" and "Law on Assembly and Demonstration," according to a report.

It has been made known that they have conducted righteous activities for several years, awakening the population and students and rousing them to an anti-"government" struggle.

The military fascist clique had thrown a dragnet long ago to hunt Yi Ho-chol and others and arrested them on April 6 by invoking fascist laws and have since brutally tortured them, plotting to impose harsh penalties upon them.

PROVINCIAL RALLYS DENOUNCE SEOUL GOVERNMENT

OW051844 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1518 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang May 5 (KCNA) -- Mass meetings were recently held in North Pyongan, North Hamgyong and Kangwon Provinces to denounce the Chon Tu-hwan group's fascist suppression of the South Korean people and students.

Speaking at a North Pyongan provincial mass meeting, Paek Man-su, vice chairman of the provincial people's committee, and representatives of all strata said:

On March 18 South Korean students and people set fire to the "American Culture Centre" in Pusan and scattered a large number of anti-U.S., anti-fascist leaflets. This was a just patriotic struggle for building a new society, independent and democratic, where there is neither aggressor nor traitor, by driving out the oppressors from South Korea and burying the colonial military fascist rule there.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique imprisoned patriotic students and conscientious religionists who rose in the anti-U.S. struggle and is brutally persecuting and torturing them to harshly penalize them on charges of violation of fascist evil laws including the "National Security Law" and "Law on Assembly and Demonstration", they said: That is vicious fascist attack on the patriotic and democratic forces of South Korea aspiring after independence, democracy and reunification.

Kim Yong-yun, vice-chairman of the North Hamgyong Provincial People's Committee, and representatives of various segments in their speeches at a provincial mass meeting bitterly denounced the Chon Tu-hwan gang's brutal suppression as a savage fascist offensive against the patriotic and democratic forces of South Korea desirous of independence, democracy and reunification and a despicable treachery which can be committed only by such dirty pro-U.S. flunkeyist traitors as the traitor Chon Tu-hwan.

They said: The U.S. imperialists must give up the foolish design to maintain the colonial fascist rule by putting up such fascist murderers as traitor Chon Tu-hwan and quit South Korea without delay, taking along all their forces of aggression before they are driven out by the powerful anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people.

Kim Hi-chun, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee, and representatives of various circles at a provincial mass meeting said that the pro-U.S. treacherous acts of the Chon Tu-hwan group in suppressing patriotic students are aimed at offering South Korea to the U.S. imperialists as their permanent colony and military base, perpetuating the division of the country and realizing their wild dream for long-term office.

If the Chon Tu-hwan group does not want to follow in the footsteps of the preceding dictators, it must discontinue the pro-U.S. flunkeyist treacherous acts, end the frantic suppression of the people and immediately and unconditionally release the arrested and imprisoned patriotic students and people.

Hamgyong Rally

[Text] A mass rally of North Hamgyong Province denouncing the fascist oppression of the South Korean people, youths and students by the Chon Tu-hwan clique was held at the provincial art theater on 4 May.

The mass rally was attended by responsible functionaries of organs of power and working organizations, college deans, and working people and youths and students of the province.

At the rally, (?Kim Yong-hyon), vice chairman of the People's Committee of North Hamgyong Province; Ho Chong-pal, representative of workers; (Tae Kang-hun), representative of youths and students; and (Kim Kwang-ho), representative of artists, spoke.

The speakers noted that the Chon Tu-hwan ring, a group of human butchers who usurped power with guns and swords and the support of the U.S. imperialists and have emerged as new fascist dictators, is imposing intense oppression of the people in the wake of the arson at the U.S. cultural center in Pusan and turning South Korea into an area of horror and terror.

Noting the gallant struggle of the South Korean people, youths and students who set fire to the U.S. cultural center in Pusan and scattered anti-U.S., antifascist leaflets, the speakers said the struggle was an eruption of the South Korean people's pent-up animosity and indignation against the fascist colonial rule by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and a display of the firm will to recover national prestige, sovereignty, achieve democracy and the peaceful reunification of the country.

They said the act of arson was deserved punishment for the U.S. imperialist aggressors who have continued the illegal occupation of South Korea for 37 years and imposed an intolerable colonial slavery and poverty on the South Korean people. Nevertheless, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique is continuing the indiscriminate arrest and detention of patriotic youths, students and people who joined the just anti-U.S. struggle and imposing an unprecedented oppression, the speakers noted, and went on to say: The barbarous oppression being imposed in South Korea by the clique is an outrageous fascist assault on the South Korean patriotic and democratic force seeking independence, democracy and reunification and treachery against the nation which could be committed only by an ugly pro-U.S. traitor like Chon Tu-hwan.

They said it is an inviolable right of the South Korean people, youths and students to struggle against the oppressors persisting in aggression and plunder and imposing despotism in a foreign country.

Without the elimination of the U.S. imperialist aggressors -- the plunderers, murderers, and ringleaders in imposing indescribable misfortunes and agony on the South Korean people and the atrocious enemy of democracy and reunification, the achievement of the democratization of South Korean society and the independent and peaceful reunification of the nation is impossible, the speakers said, and went on to add: The South Korean people, youths and students must raise even higher the torch of the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle.

The speakers said they actively support and encourage the struggle against fascism and for democratization waged by the South Korean youths, students and people who boldly lit the flames of the anti-U.S., antifascist struggle in Pusan and continue to turn out everywhere in South Korea in the just struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their stooge the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique and for democratization and national salvation.

They said the U.S. imperialists must abandon their dream of continuing their fascist colonial rule by using fiendish, fascist murderers like traitor Chon Tu-hwan and immediately withdraw from South Korea along with all their aggressive forces before they are expelled by the persistent anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people.

The speakers said the South Korean people, youths and students must raise even higher the torch of the anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle and more boldly turn out in the struggle for independence, democracy and reunification.

They said emphatically that by upholding the programmatic task which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song advanced in his historic policy speech, the working people of the province will more vigorously struggle under the wise leadership of the glorious party center for the consummation of the chuche revolutionary cause and the acceleration of the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland.

While the speakers were continuing their speeches, frequent shouts bitterly denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique's fascist suppression of the South Korean youths and students were heard from the audience.

CHON TU-HWAN'S ANTICORRUPTION CAMPAIGN DECRIED

SK051023 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1005 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 5 (KCNA) -- At the puppet National Assembly some time ago, traitor Chon Tu-hwan blabbed that he would root out the inveterate corruption in South Korea and establish a "truly clean country and clean society" through a "three-point purge campaign."

Setting out to usurp power, the traitor put on the veil of "uprightness" and "probity."

What is more unseemly was that he even made his wife advertise his "integrity."

"My husband has no desire for material gain or selfishness but is indulging in an upright, commoners life like a monk."

This is what the wife of traitor Chon Tu-hwan prattled at a meeting in a hotel in Seoul.

When the scandal of his cousin whom he had installed at the post of "chairman of the Central Committee of the South Korean Cereals Association" was brought to light, traitor Chon Tu-hwan staged a farce of arresting him and used this for propagandizing his "uprightness and honesty" and "decision." He did not forget, of course, to set free his cousin by stealth and bury the case in obscurity.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a fascist dictator who usurped "power" at the point of the bayonet and the mastermind of corruption and swindle.

He put into his safe overnight the stupendous amount of money and immovables and 500 million dollars deposited in Swiss and other foreign banks, which had been hoarded by the slain traitor Pak Chong-hui through shady channels by bleeding the people white on the strength of fascist power in 18 years.

After his seizure of "power," traitor Chon Tu-hwan raked up over 420,000 million won by arresting, intimidating and blackmailing not only "old power-based illicit money-hoarders" such as Kim Chong-pil and Yi Hu-rak but also puppet high-ranking "officials" of vice-ministerial level, and he nabbed and beat comprador capitalists, squeezing from them for more than 100,000 million won under the name of "political contributions."

He misappropriated hundreds of billions of won out of the "National Treasury" filled with the sweat and blood of the South Korean people. The bribes he received from comprador capitalists after granting illicit loans to them reached the mark of tens of billions last year alone.

The inducement of foreign capital is a major means of his illicit accumulation of wealth. Last year alone he took a fabulous amount of foreign currency out of foreign capital to the tune of 7,900 million dollars by swindle and grabbed 12 million dollars through illicit dealings in rice import from the United States.

More disgusting are his bribery vis-a-vis his U.S. imperialist master.

To cite examples known to the world, he greased the palm of the U.S. president with several million dollars and gave many precious metals and more than 200,000 dollars in cash to "commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea" Wickham. And countless others have received bribes from Chon Tu-hwan the puppet. Among them are the former U.S. presidential assistant on national security, the U.S. ambassador to South Korea, the former "chief of staff of the U.S. forces in South Korea" and assistants and advisors to the U.S. president.

The money spent by the traitor on bribes over the last two years ran into far more than ten million dollars.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a prodigal who is indulging in debauchery, squandering money he has illicitly hoarded by abusing power.

A newspaper published in Japan said that the traitor "passes as a sexual maniac who is fond of wine and women and likes to play tennis and golf in daytime and go to Kisaeng girls and secret restaurant at night."

Such is the true colour of traitor Chon Tu-hwan who cried for "integrity" and "probity."

He is the mastermind of corruption, chieftain of bribery and boss of swindlers who outdistances all his predecessors in South Korea.

BUSINESS SURVEY SEES NO UPTURN IN ECONOMY

SK060256 Seoul YONHAP in English GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 6 (YONHAP) -- There is no sign of recovery in the Korean economy in the second quarter of this year, according to the Korean Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) Thursday. KCCI predicted that business conditions will be worse compared to the same period last year in exports, demand, production, employment and operation.

The gloomy economic forecast comes from its recent survey of 19 key industrial sectors including coal, petroleum, steel and iron.

According to the survey, domestic sales in the second quarter will decrease 8.5 percent from the level recorded one year ago, exports will drop 1.7 percent, production will fall 5.5 percent, employment will drop 6.7 percent and operation will decline 4.0 percent.

Domestic sales of coal, chemical fiber and fertilizer will slightly increase from the same period last year, but other industrial sectors will suffer domestic sales declines, the survey said.

Except for machinery, shipbuilding, petrochemicals, cotton fabrics and raw silk, exports will remain at last year's levels or below, according to the survey.

A KCCI official based the unfavorable economic prospects on the fact that overseas demand is still slack, the government's pump-priming measures in the past months have not yet produced tangible results, and the increased production in the agricultural sector that led last year's growth failed to boost farmers' purchasing power.

SIHANOUK DISCUSSES PROGRESS ON COALITION TALKS

DW031229 Bonn DIE WELT in German 29 Apr 82 p 7

[Interview with Prince Norodom Sihanouk by Fernando Mezzetti, Beijing correspondent for IL GIORNALE NUOVO and DIE WELT; date and place not given]

[Excerpts] WELT: Prince Sihanouk, what progress has been achieved in negotiations aimed at forming a union of resistance force in Kampuchea?

Sihanouk: I am willing to meet Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge within the framework of a second summit after the Singapore summit last fall. We must have a discussion. Actually it is Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge who must find an agreement. I must make one condition: The meetings must take place either in China or Korea. I cannot go to any other place. I am poor, and I do not have money such as those who are being supported by foreign powers. They have money and they can go everywhere. I can't; I have no money. Last winter when I wanted to return to Europe, His Excellency President Kim Il-song, leader of Korea, bought the tickets for me and my entourage. (giggles). If the meetings are to take place somewhere else, I cannot attend. I would then have to send my delegate, His Excellency Mr In Tam, who was premier under Lon Nol, the one who dismissed me in 1970.

Ah, (sighs), what a man, that In Tam. He can travel; he has pockets full of money. Who gives him the money? Can you tell me? No? Then I will tell you. Maybe the Americans give him money for having been their puppet. Nobody gives me money because I have been nobody's puppet.

WELT: When could this tripartite conference take place?

Sihanouk: As soon as possible because this would serve the interests of all. It does not depend on me. The question is when will Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge achieve a compromise? However, that is very, very difficult (laughter). They have irreconcilable positions. I am in the middle. It will suffice for the two others to agree.

WELT: Why did you accept the ASEAN suggestions to form a coalition with Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge?

Sihanouk: You don't know? Well, then I will tell you. I accepted it because I want to have good relations with ASEAN and with China. They want the coalition. However, I personally (laughs, puts his hand into his jacket and raises his voice), honestly and deep down in my heart do not want a coalition with the Khmer Rouge at all. Eh, eh. (expression of disgust appears on his face). If the Khmer Rouge turn it down, China cannot criticize me. It would have to criticize those who are its allies. If they turned it down, I would be very, very happy about that.

WELT: Some say that the Khmer Rouge want a coalition, but on their own terms....

Sihanouk: That is clear. They would very much like to have a coalition under their leadership, under conditions which Sihanouk and Son Sann would have to accept. For me, Sihanouk, it is easy to say yes to all suggestions, especially since I know that the Khmer Rouge and Son Sann will never agree. I am risking nothing by saying yes to everything. I say yes to Son Sann, I say yes to the Khmer Rouge.

WELT: THe Khmer Rouge have dissolved their communist party as a sign of good will.

Sihanouk: That is just tactics. The Khmer Rouge will remain the Khmer Rouge. Pol Pot is not dead and he will remain their leader. There is no communist party any more, but they will remain communists -- supercommunists, very very communistic -- I have known them well for a long time.

WELT: When you meet with the Chinese leaders, whose guest you are, do you speak in the same way about the Khmer Rouge?

Sihanou: In 1979 just after I had returned to freedom, I told them hard facts about their friends. However, I no longer do. I want to have good relations with the Chinese and since I cannot change their ideas regarding the Khmer Rouge, I must be more careful. However, they know that I am thinking.

WELT: If union were achieved between the resistance forces and a united front were formed, what role would you play?

Sihanouk: Don't talk about a united front, that expression stinks of communism. Let's say coalition. I could be the head of state. What else could I do? Son Sann, the anti-communist, could be the premier. As the head of state I could represent my country, which unfortunately calls itself Democratic Kampuchea. That makes me laugh. When a country call itself democratic, it is saying that it is not. Did you ever hear somebody say the united democratic states of America? (laughs) Whatever the title will be, as the head of state I would at any rate not have any power. I will just give speeches at the United Nations or before some other international organizations; I will head delegations to countries recognizing Democratic Kampuchea, such as Yugoslavia, for example. I could also meet with President Mitterrand or President Reagan who do not recognize my country, but who would receive me privately to offer me a cup of tea or coffee. Maybe I would have an opportunity to ask for assistance to those forces fighting in my name, mainly for food or medicine. I could thus support my armed forces and become a respectable head of state.

WELT: One notes a certain optimism on your part...

Sihanouk: Me an optimist? Not even in my dreams. I am a pessimist. (laughs with satisfaction) All current efforts are not leading to anything concrete. Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge will never agree. However, there is no reason not to make an attempt. The Vietnamese will laugh at us even more. They will never withdraw, I have no illusions in this respect. They reject all suggestions aimed at a political solution. They know only the language of power. I see no other way to liberate Cambodia than through war.

WELT: Do you look forward to a war between China and Vietnam?

Sihanouk: Absolutely not. If China were to defeat Vietnam, it would bring the Khmer Rouge back to power. If my people were forced to choose between a return of the Khmer Rouge and Vietnamese occupation, they would prefer the second possibility. That is bad, but it is more accetable than a return of Pol Pot.

WELT: And now what?

Sihanouk: I am thinking of Ethiopia, which has invaded by the Italians in 1935. The Negus was forced to flee and nobody would have reestablished Ethiopia's independence had there not been a great war ending with the defeat of Mussolini. The same will happen to Cambodia. It can regain independence only through great international events. I see no other solution. (laughs with satisfaction again).

WELT: What are your relations like at present regarding the Chinese and the Khmer Rouge?

Sihanouk: Good with the Chinese and correct with the Khmer Rouge.

Kampuchea Center Meeting

BK020846 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Text] Before attending the Kampuchea Day activities in Tokyo, our Democratic Kampuchean delegation led by Mrs Ieng Thirith, minister of social affairs, participated in a meeting to mark the second anniversary of the center for assistance to Kampuchea.

A number of Japanese personalities attended the meeting, including His Excellency Hideo Den; His Excellency (Yota Kahata), Democratic Socialist Party member of the House of Councilors; and Mr (Yota Kyosi Komino), deputy general secretary of the center for assistance to Kampuchea.

His Excellency (Yota Kahata) declared the meeting open and Mr (Yosi Komino) presented a report on the center's activities since its foundation on 9 April 1980. During its 2-year existence, the center for assistance to Kampuchea has carried out many activites and has overcome all obstacles in order to assist the Kampuchean people who are the victims of barbarous acts perpetrated by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors, expansionists, swallowers of territory and race exterminators.

After the report by Mr (Yose Komino), the organizing committee invited Mrs Ieng Thirith to speak. She described the current situation in the struggle of the people and the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas, which is progressing in all fields. She expressed deep thanks to the center for its assistance to Kampuchea. Mrs Ieng Thirith's speech was applauded many times by all those present at the meeting.

Later, there was a projection of an 8-mm film shot by the fifth delegation of the center for assistance to Kampuchea in March 1981 during the time that the Vietnamese enemies were carrying our operations in the Sisophon-South of Route 5 region. This film showed combatants of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas as well as our female combatants of the transport units valiantly going to the frontline battlefields. It also presented our people working happily and with optimism in the rear battlefields in order to assist the frontline battlefields.

Before closing the meeting, His Excellency Hideo Den expressed his firm conviction on the final victory of the Kampuchean people and appealed to the entire meeting to make efforts to increase their activities in support of the just struggle of the Kampuchean people. The entire meeting applauded in support of this appeal. This meeting ended at 1700.

After this meeting, the center organized a demonstration calling for a Vietnamese troop withdrawal in conformity with the resolutions of the 34th 35th and 36th UN General Assemblies. The demonstrators walked to the (Toyo Kaikan) hall in order to attend another meeting to mark Kampuchea Day.

RALLY GREETS HIGH-LEVEL CSSR MILITARY DELEGATION

BK021000 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Text] On the morning of 27 April, cadres and combatants from all levels attached to various units and schools under the Defense Ministry in Phnom Penh rallied at a meeting held at the Chattomuk conference hall by the Defense Ministry to welcome the high-ranking CSSR military delegation. For the occasion, the Chattomuk conference hall was decorated with the national flags of the two countries and slogans written in Khmer and in Czech and Slovak saying: "Welcome to the high-ranking CSSR military delegation which has come to pay an official friendship visit to the PRK" and "Long live the close bonds of solidarity and friendship between the people and army of Kampuchea and the people and army of the CSSR."

The meeting began at 0930. Present in the presidium were Comrade Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, chairman of the Central Propaganda and Education Commission, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of national defense; Comrade Soy Keo, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, deputy minister of national defense and chief of the KPRAF General Staff; Comrade Meas Kroch, chief of the General Political Department; and Comrade Di Phin, chief of the KPRAF General Logistics Department.

On the CSSR side were Comrade General Martin Dzur, member of the Czechoslovak Communist Party Central Committee, minister of national defense and head of the high-ranking CSSR military delegation; Comrade Zikmund Tobias, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the CSSR to the PRK; and two other members of the delegation.

After the playing of the national anthems of the two countries, Comrade Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, chairman of the Central Propaganda and Education Commission, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of national defense, made a speech. He said: Today, the Kampuchean people and army have the great honor to welcome this high-ranking CSSR military delegation on an official friendship visit to the PRK. The model of heroism set by the Czechoslovak people and army during the past 37 years in which they fought resolutely and liberated their country from the claws of the German fascists on 9 June 1945 has spread its influence throughout the world.

The comrade stressed: The wholehearted support and assistance from the Vietnamese and Lao parties, governments, peoples and armies and from the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countires, including fraternal Czechoslovakia, have enabled our country to develop rapidly.

The comrade noted the perfidious maneuvers of the reactionaries — lackeys of the expansionists and imperialists -- who are seeking by all means to establish a so-called coalition government in an attempt to deceive and make the world support them. However, all of their dark designs to sabotage Kampuchea's revolutionary gains and push the Kampuchean people back into the abyss of genocide have been frustrated by the Kampuchean people and army in close cooperation with the Vietnamese people and army.

In conclusion, Comrade Bou Thang stressed: [Begin recording] Although the CSSR is far from the PRK, the relations between our two peoples and armies link us closely with one another [applause] as proved by the visit to the PRK in February 1980 by a Czechoslovak delegation led by Comrade Gustav Husak.

The presence of this high-ranking Czechoslovak military delegation constitutes another source of encouragement for our people in confronting all acts of interference in the Kampuchean people's internal affairs committed by the Beijing expansionists, the imperialists and other international reactionaries. We always remember when Comrade Husak said: We would like to reaffirm to our esteemed and beloved Kampuchean comrades that the CASR and all the Czechoslovak people firmly support the Kampuchean people and will continue to support and assist them in all fields.

All of these manifestations have made us confident that now and in the future the Czechoslovak people and army will always be on our side. We will strive to learn from the model of heroic struggle set by the cadres and combatants of the fraternal Czechoslovak army so that our army will become a developed army, scoring combat feats similar to those of the armies of the fraternal socialist countries. We pledge that the Kampuchean, Vietnamese and Lao peoples, in all circumstances, will unite and cooperate in the cause of defending and building their socialist fatherlands.

In conclusion, allow us to extend, through the comrades in the delegation, our greetings and best regards to the Czechoslovak Communist Party, people and armed forces. May you achieve new victories and succeed in building advanced socialism. May the bonds of solidarity, friendship and cooperation between our two peoples and armies remain firm and develop with every passing day.

Long live the PRK! [applause]

Long live the glorious CSSR! [applause] [end recording]

In his reply, Comrade General Martin Dzur said: [Begin recording in Czech fading into Cambodian translation] Dear Comrades and friends: We are very happy with our military delegation's official friendship visits to the SRV and your beautiful country -- the PRK. We express our profound thanks to the comrade defense minister and all other comrades for the warm reception accorded our delegation. Please allow us to extend to you and to all the members of the KPRAF the best regards from the officers and men of the Czechoslovak people's army.

We would like to express our great joy over the great victories scored by the most patriotic and progressive forces of the Kampuchean people. Our working people greatly appreciate the remarkable efforts made by the Kampuchean people in order to eliminate the remnants of the old regime, rebuild the economy and social structure, maintain their revolutionary gains and reconstruct a new and just society. Our working people strongly condemn the imperialist and reactionary forces and their Chinese associates for their gross interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea.

We have seen the leadersip of your KPRP and govenment, the great vigilance taken in training the defense forces of the PRK and the efforts to build your armed forces. Beside you, there are the Vietnamese comrades and the Vietnamese comrades in arms who share your responsibility in order to protect independence, that is, to ensure that there are no threats on your beautiful fatherland and to contribute to peace in the region and elsewhere throughout the world.

Although our two countries are far from each other, our [words indistinct] live in peace so that we have the abilities to carry on national construction and ensure a prosperous life for our peoples. So long as the PRK exists, the CSSR has a true friend. Our visit clearly attests to our great joy to have been able to contribute to the (?strengthening) of friendship between our two countries and armies in the interest of socialism and peace in the world.

Long live the glorious PRK!

May the friendship and relations between our two armies become increasingly strengthened and develop with every passing day.

[Words indistinct] fulfill their tasks with vigilance and wisdom so as to ensure the defense of the revolutionary gains, socialism and peace. [end recording]

PHNOM PENH ON MARCH ATTACK ON SON SANN ELEMENTS

BK040536 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 29 Apr 82

["Roundup of KPRAF activities in the first 3 months of 1982"]

[Text] In the first 3 months of 1982, Lucifer Pol Pot made an all-out effort to seize our territory by sending their remnants into various forested areas along the border, such as (Nam Sok), So Da, O Da and Hill 547. Notivated by the same idea, Son Sann's Sereika elements sneaked in to set up camps west of Toek Chhak and on Hills 340 and 364. Meanwhile, Thai artillery shells were fired from the other side of the border into our territory in support of these bandits.

At the same time, these bandits propagandized that Kampucheans will not attack Kampucheans and launched maneuvers to distort the truth about Vietnam and our country. Moreover, they used beautiful girls to lure our cadres and combatants into following them. However, in the first 3 months of 1982 which were in the middle of the dry season, the Pol Pot remnants and Son Sann's Sereika elements suffered heavy blows. It is possible that they have not yet recovered from these blows and fright.

In a battle at Hill 547 on 15 January, 47 enemy remnants attempting to nibble at our territory were (?crushed) on the spot. In a battle at (Nam Sok) on 25 January, over 300 enemy elements were killed and their wounded commanders fled in haste back to Thai territory. In an attack at O Da which the enemy tried to seize from us, on 5 March we crushed over 100 enemy elements.

On 17 March we attacked the area which Son Sann's Sereika elements tried to seize at (Toek Kak) which they called Sok San. In this attack, we crushed and captured hundreds of enemy elements. Son Sann's 20th and 90th battalions were routed and fled in disorder. The commanders took off their paratrooper uniforms and fled for their lives. We seized and destroyed hundreds of tons of their rice, fuel oil and weapons.

As a result of our attack on a group of Pol Pot remnants sneaking in to conduct sabotage and criminal acts in the vicinity of Samraong, our cadres and combatants of brigade "Kor" killed 17 Pol Pot remnants and seized 17 weapons. On 30 March, 33 remnants of this group surrendered and handed over 7 weapons to us.

Thus, in the past 3 months, over 1,100 Pol Pot remnants were wiped out, 652 others were taken prisoner and 254 others surrendered to the revolutionary authorities. We seized over 1,000 weapons, 1,200 mines and a large quantity of war materiel. The areas that the enemy tried to seize were all smashed. Although these figures are still incomplete, they still reflect the heavy losses suffered by the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionary groups. Moreover, these figures show that the KPRAF and the Vietnamese volunteer forces were able to duly respond to the enemy's aggressive acts. In some battles, the enemy remnants were too frightened to counter us. In others, the enemy remnants were all put out of action by our forces.

Up to today, our border defense line remains intact. The enemy has been unable to fulfill its ambition to seize even a small piece of our land. On the contrary, it has paid a high price for this piece of land by sacrificing over 1,000 of its men and hundreds of tons of weapons, fuel oil, vehicles and war materiel which were either seized or destroyed by our forces.

Concerning this fact, many (?European) newspapers noted that the Khmer Rouge guerrillas or the Pol Pot remnants have never suffered such a heavy defeat as in the few months of the season at the beginning of 1982.

The Pol Pot clique's military situation is in total impasse.

NOUHAK PHOUMSAVAN'S ECONOMIC REPORT TO CONGRESS

BK031429 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0430 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Speech by Nouhak Phoumsavan, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, to the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane on 27 April -- recorded]

[Text] Members of the presidium, comrade delegates, distinguished guests: The political report of the party's Central Committee presented by its general secretary, Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, has summed up in a comprehensive manner both our achievements and victories and our shortcomings and weaknesses over the past 10 years, especially the last 6 years of national defense and socialist construction. At the same time, it has mapped out the line, orientations and tasks of the period of transition to socialism and of the next few years to come.

This report, which deals mainly with the economic-social aspect, will review the implementation of the orientations and tasks of the past years, particularly the 3-year plan 1978-80, map out the objectives and tasks of the first 5-year economic-social plan 1981-85 aimed at taking our country to a new step of development and creating the basic conditions for the plan of economic-social development in the later years.

To correctly define the economic-social objectives and tasks of the first 5-year plan is of extremely great significance and must be considered one of the primary tasks of our country's revolution.

Since the complete liberation of the country, on one hand, we have met with numerous difficulties resulting from the low level of our economy, the heavy legacies of the old regime, the intense sabotage activities of the enemy and the repeated natural calamities. But on the other hand, thanks to the correct line of our party, with the tradition of unity and tenacious revolutionary struggle, diligent labor, and the great international assistance, especially from the fraternal socialist countries, our entire people have brought into play their role as master of the country, overcome all difficulties, striven to successfully implement the resolutions of the Central Committee and the 3-year state plan for economic-social development 1978-80.

In recent years, we have smashed the enemy's sabotage activities, initially overcome the heavy consequences left by the old regime and the war of aggression and limited the damage caused by natural calamities in 1977 and 1978. We have promptly restored production, taken one step forward in building up the productive forces and socialist relations of production, consolidated our national defense and security, developed our international relations and recorded initial victories in the "who will win" struggle between the socialist and the capitalist paths. Our economy has developed a step further. In 1981, our gross national product increased by 43 percent, per capita national income by 40 percent and population by nearly 10 percent, as compared with 1976. That is a favorable condition for developing the economy and raising the people's standard of living.

On agricultural production: The state allocated 30 percent of its annual investment funds to building material-technical bases. We have introduced the use of fertilizers and new rice strains, launched the movement to build an irrigation network and practice intensive cultivation, and encouraged the peasants to engage in collective farming. As a result, agricultural production has undergone positive changes. The hectares of rice increased at an average rate of over 6 percent per annum, the irrigated areas have increased twofold, agricultural machinery more than five-fold, the rice output was up from 700,000 tons a year in 1976 to 1,154,000 tons a year in 1981 when for the first time we did not have to import rice. The cattle population stands at 1,300,000 head, an increase of 44.7 percent. There are now 31 state-run farms and forestry sites in the whole country. The cooperativization movement has developed on a widespread scale. Up to now, four provinces -- Houaphan, Phongsaly, Udomsai and Xieng Khouang — have completed in the main the building of cooperatives in rice-growing areas. A good thing is that we have had a contingent of scientific and technical cadres and cooperative's managers which, though still small, has brought into play its effectiveness in the production movement in the countryside.

On forestry: We have stepped up the investigation and survey of forest resources in many areas, on a total surface of nearly 1 million hectares. Timber production in 1981 more than doubled that in 1977, lumber for export was up by 103 percent. The exploitation capacity of equipment was 500,000 cubic metres per year, 25 sawmills with a total capacity of 200,000 cubic meters per year have been restored or newly built.

On industrial production: Progress has been recorded in several areas. We have restored, expanded, built or put into operation a number of important industrial establishments. In 1981, as compared with 1976, the output of electricity increased 3.57 times, bricks 15 times and agricultural implements 1.5 times. Gypsum production in 1981 reached 40,000 tons. Small industries and handicrafts have been restored and developed in various localities, thus meeting in part the needs of production and life.

On communications, transport and posts we have built an additional 600 km of motor roads, many more bridges, ferries, warehouses and wharves at important communication junctions. The volumes of state-transported goods have increased 1.54 times in tonnage and 2.1 times in tonnage per kilometer. We have also expanded the air transport network to different regions in the country and abroad. With the assistance of the Soviet Union, we have completed in the main the construction of the satellite communication station.

On capital construction: Investments increased by an average of 8.2 percent per annum, of which 60 percent were for agriculture, forestry and communications and transport. Besides investments in economic projects, we have restored and built many provincial and district towns, particularly in the former liberated zones. Approximately 100,000 square meters of apartment buildings have been constructed.

On distribution and circulation: We have rapidly set up the network of state-run shops and trading cooperatives, broadened economic exchanges between urban and rural areas.

At present, there are 180 state-run shops and 356 cooperative shops in the whole country. Our trade relations with foreign countries, especially with the fraternal socialist countries, have developed step by step. The turnover of retail goods in 1981 was up 5.1 times, domestic goods purchased by the state 7.4 times and the volumes of exports and imports nearly twofold as compared with 1976. Restrictions on marketing activities and circulation of goods, which formerly were of common occurrence in many localities, has in the main been removed. We have step by step applied a pricing policy that is aimed at simulating production, guiding consumption and regulating in part the incomes of the various strata of population. We have unified the two systems of prices of the two zones -- the former and the new liberated zones — and in 1976, readjusted several times the state's purchasing prices for agricultural and forestry products and sale prices for a number of industrial commodities and at the same time applied such forms of prices as rationing prices, prices close to the free market prices and agreed-upon prices with a view to stimulating production and stabilizing the living conditions of cadres, soldiers, workers and employees.

On finance and banking: We have nationalized the private banks, formed a state financial and banking system from central to local levels, withdrawn from circulation the "Vientiane kip," issued the "liberation kip" and carried out a monetary reform in late 1979. We have unified the wage system, applied a new wage system in early 1980 and a policy of extra-wage allowances in early 1982. Since 1976 the state has promulgated several policies on financial management, taxes, credits, cash control, foreign currencies control, etc. The management of material aids from abroad has been improved and more regularized.

Financial and banking activities have been effective to a certain extent in terms of serving the party line and state policies.

Our party's correct foreign policy has created favorable conditions for obtaining aids from and expanding our economic cooperation with foreign countries. The annual volumes of aids account for about 15 percent of the gross national product, of which 64 percent are from the socialist countries.

On culture, education and public health: Under the party line, for the past few years, culture, education and public health have gone through a vigorous development. Educational, cultural, artistic, health care and sport activities have become a flourishing mass movement in all the localities. Up to now, 85 percent of the illiterates have been taught to read and write. The number of pupils attending general education schools has doubled, and the number of teachers has increased 4.4 times. Students of vocational and higher education institutions have also increased manyfold in number. At present, nearly 10,000 pupils, students and workers are training abroad. On the average, one out of every 3.5 persons went to school in 1981.

Medical care has developed fairly well. In 1981 the number of hospitals, dispensaries and hospital beds doubled that in 1976. The contingent of medical workers comprises nearly 10,000 professors, doctors, assistant doctors and nurses. Social and disabled soldiers affairs, mother and child care have also commanded the attention of the authorities at many levels and branches.

Our state has paid attention to building and developing information, cultural and artistic activities. At present, there are seven central and local radio stations, 19 movie houses, 88 mobile film screening teams, 19 professional artistic ensembles in the whole country. From 1976-80, 1.65 million books with a progressive content and 5 million copies of different newspapers and magazines were published.

Along with pushing up the cultural and artistic activities, we have conducted rehabilitation and reeducation programs to help thousands of victims of the old regime return to a wholesome life.

All those activities have helped improve the spiritual life of the people of different ethnic groups in all parts of the country.

Comrades, the achievements recorded in the last period are very great and have brought about a new change in the economic and social life of our country. They have once again proved that our party's line and policies are totally correct and accord with the capabilities and aspirations of the people.

However, besides those successes, in our march forward, we still have difficulties and a number of notable shortcomings and weaknesses as follows:

We advance to socialism from a small production still bearing many characteristics of a natural economy which is underdeveloped and imbalanced in many respects. Old practices still exert a daily influence upon our work. It takes various steps and time to overcome this state of affairs, but in the recent period, our being impatient and hasty at times led to disregard for the people's right to mastery, use of coercive orders and restrictive measures, which have exerted a negative impact on economic and social life. The organization of economic management has been characterized by a cumbersome and heavy apparatus, a bureaucratic administration based on the state-financing system, a widespread attitude of relying on others and wasteful practices. The concretization and application of the party line lacked timeliness and efficiency, consequently, many aspects of work failed to produce satisfactory results.

In the fields of culture, education and health care, we have paid more attention to quantity and form instead of attaching importance to content and quality. We have not allocated sufficient funds for investment in building cultural, educational, health establishments and providing other material facilities for the activity of those branches. The authorities at various levels and branches should also pay more attention to the contingent of cultural, educational, health and sports cadres, creating every favorable condition for them to develop their talents at the service of the fatherland and the people.

Comrades, delegates, the political report has expounded the orientations and tasks of transforming and building the economy, developing culture, building the new society and new type of people for the whole period of transition to socialism and for the initial step from now to the early nineties.

The basic tasks of the transitional period, as set forth in the political report, are to strive to build an independent and socialist economy with a developed agriculture, forestry and industry with a view to satisfying the ever-higher demands of the material and spiritual life of our multi-ethnic people and creating a firm basis for the defense of the fatherland and the new regime, to build up a culture, an education and a health care system bearing a national character and a profound socialist content and aimed a fostering our multi-ethnic people in all aspects -- political, cultural, scientific, technical, professional and health, defending and building the new regime, preserving our race and raising our population, to build a society in which all strata of the population, all ethnic groups live in unity, concord, equality, mutual respect, love and assistance. Every person, every family, every hamlet can enjoy a prosperous, happy and joyful life. We must strive to fulfill those noble tasks through a number of 5-year plans and each plan must have concrete requirements.

On the basis of fully grasping and applying the party's general line and major economic, cultural and social policies set forth in the political report, in the 5-years 1981-85, of which we have gone through more than one year, the whole party, army and people are to concentrate all our efforts on developing production, further stabilizing and improving the people's living conditions, creating the necessary material bases, contributing to consolidate national defense and security, with a view to creating preconditions for the plan of subsequent years. More concretely we must carry out the following major tasks:

1. To strive to develop agriculture, forestry, handicrafts, small industry, light industry and a number of other industries on the basis of reorganizing production and redistributing labor so that we can satisfy by ourselves and in a steady manner the needs of the people and state for foodgrain, foodstuffs and some essential consumer goods and from 1985 on the state can begin to have an annual food reserve of at least 6 months.

2. To strive to build a number of initial material bases of prime necessity, build a smoothly running system of communications, transport, postal services and telecommunications in the whole country, build convenient motor roads to Vietnam: To study expanding the network of electricity and small-and medium-size mechanical establishments in order to serve the development of agriculture, forestry, communications, transport and the people's lives.

3. To strive to organize the distribution and circulation system so as to stimulate production, and contribute to the reorganization of production, redivision of labor, development of various branches and trades, utilization and transformation of the non-socialist economic sectors, thus creating favourable conditions for the state to control and manage most of the food commodities; control agricultural and forestry produce liable for export and important imported goods, broadening and regularizing the domestic market, managing in a satisfactory manner our trading relations with foreign countries, enabling the state to control finances, currency and prices, stabilizing and further improving the living conditions of cadres, armymen and laboring people.

4. To develop production and business, all the five economic sectors must be used satisfactorily, with priority given to helping state-run and collective economy to develop. Other sectors are to be used and transformed in the direction of serving the state plan. Attention should be paid to building and perfecting the state plan. Attention should be paid to building and perfecting state-run enterprises in industry, agriculture, forestry, trade, construction and transport in accordance with the socialist mode of production and business management.

We should do our best to engage the majority of laboring peasants in collective farming under appropriate forms so as to develop production, improve the people's living standard, create conditions for carrying out the three revolutions, consolidate the worker-peasant alliance and strengthen our political bases in the urban and rural areas.

5. We must build the central economy while striving to build the local economy, gradually setting up a unified economic structure with a rational and clear-cut division of responsibilities in order to bring into play the strong points of each locality. While the localities should be invested with adequate responsibilities and powers so that they can take initiative and achieve higher efficinecy in their activities, it is necessary to strengthen the central authorities' control concerning policies and regulations and also to combat sectionalism and fragmentation. Special attention must be accorded to investing capital in key economic projects and building cities, particularly the capital city of Vientiane. The role of industry and handicrafts in the cities should be brought into play so that they can help develop the countryside, consolidate the relations between the cities and the countryside, between industry and agriculture and strengthen the worker-peasant alliance.

6. We must take every possible measure to perfect and expand the educational system including preschool, complementary, general and vocational educations, invest capital in the construction of material facilities and enhance the quality of education, particularly the quality of the contingent of teachers, in order to eliminate illiteracy, once and for all, rapidly make primary education universal for the whole population and actively raise the cultural standard of our cadres, workers, soldiers, strengthen the contingents of workers in the fields of culture, education, health care, physical culture and sports, literature and arts...both in terms of the content of their work and their personal qualifications. The party's lines and policies are to be disseminated and fully grasped by the entire people of all ethnic groups, first of all by the cadres, workers and soldiers... all branches at all levels must have programs to train and foster cadres, workers and soldiers in order to meet the immediate and long-term requirements, with prime importance attached to working out plans for training leading cadres, commanders, economic managers and diplomats.

We should expand the health care system, upgrade the contingent of physicians, multiply health centers, promote the use of traditional medicines, step up maternal and child care, roll back dangerous diseases such as malaria, intestinal and lung diseases, and cut down the infant mortality rate.

7. To combine economy with national defense and security we must do our utmost to consolidate at any cost our political basis, first and foremost in crucial areas, border areas, tribal areas and cities, closely coordinate the three tasks, namely to do good defense and security work, strengthen the political basis and look after the livelihood of the people of all ethnic groups. We must closely combine economy with national defense and vice versa. The economic branches must work out plans to serve well the army and security forces in their activities of national defense and maintenance of public order and security. Our soldiers and security forces must actively participate in economic construction, cultural development and building a new society, contribute to foiling every plot of the enemy to sabotage our economy and undermine our people's life, help to check and drive back negative phenomena in economic and social life.

8. To consolidate and strengthen the economic alliance and cooperation with Vietnam and Kampuchea on the basis of equality and mutual benefit. Starting with helping each other in single undertaking, mutual assistance and cooperation in building a number of economic projects of common interests and beneficial to each country, assisting one another in marketing products and transit transportation, we shall advance to coordinate planning, effecting division of labor and achieving all-round cooperation.

We must make the most of the economic assistance and cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries so as to develop our potentialities at home, and effectuate equal and reciprocal cooperation of mutual benefit. At the same time we are to expand economic relations with India, the ASEAN countries, other countries and international organizations on the basis of respect for each other's independence and sovereignty, equality, mutual benefit and noninterference in each other's internal affairs.

9. To perfect the economic management mechanism, strictly observe the principle of democratic centralism, boldly bring into play the activeness and potentials of the local and grassroots economies. We are to practise the socialist mode of economic management, management, resolutely abolish the management based on the administrative state financing system which results in waste and irresponsibility, while neglecting labor productivity and economic efficiency.

Based on the above-mentioned general orientations and tasks, the concrete tasks and a number of main targets of the first 5-year state plan are arranged as follows:

1. Agriculture: The primary task of our whole country at present is to speed up agricultural production, with special importance attached to the production of foodgrain and foodstuffs with a view to solving, on our own, the food problem, producing materials for industry and goods for export.

On food crops: Rice, maize and soybean — efforts will be made to hit the target of 1.6 million tons of foodgrain in paddy equivalent by 1985, with the paddy output of 1.4 million tons, an increase of 246,000 tons of paddy as compared with 1981.

The central government is to concentrate its leadership over the key areas of Vientiane, Champassak, Saravane, Savannakhet, Khammouan and Sayaboury. The provinces are also to focus their efforts on their paddy areas. Nevertheless, they should pay the utmost attention to auxiliary crops and bring the land into cultivation, even in the dry season.

Industrial crops: We should promptly enlarge the acreage of short-term crops such as tobacco, sugarcane, cotton, beans and peas. Importance should be attached to the tending, reclamation and gradual enlargement of cultivated hilly areas for long-term crops of high economic value such as coffee, tea, mulberry, cochineal, plants on which to rear storax, etc.

Animal husbandry: Given our climatic conditions, available pastures and our people's experience, we should step up the rearing of buffaloes, oxen, pigs and poultry. Efforts should be made to increase the population of buffaloes and oxen by 7 percent per year, that of pigs by 15.6 percent and of poultry from 40 to 50 percent in 5 years. In order to reach these targets, joint efforts are to be made by the state and the people, by the central and local authorities. Due investment is to be put in for developing draught power, water conservancy, animal breeds and crop varieties, producing fertilizers, animal foods and veterinary medicines. Technical establishments and stations should be spread down to the districts so as to provide timely service.

2. Forestry: Forests constitute an immense natural resource of our country. Timber output is expected to reach from 1.6 to 2 million cubic metres in 5 years with two-thirds processed for home construction and export. With a view of hitting the above-mentioned targets, the forestry branch should be consolidated and strengthened in its organization, particularly in the key areas — Khammquan, Savannakhet, Champassak, Vientiane and Sayaboury. We will organize timber-exploiting associated enterprises in order to link all the steps of production, form exploitation to marketing, into an integrated unit. The movement of afforestation and protection of forests will be promoted. Due attention is required to multiply and expand seedling-rearing centers in the localities, pine seedlings and other woods for the future paper industry. Basic forest surveys are to be continued.

3. Industry and handicrafts: Second only to agriculture, industry, in particular consumer goods industries, and handicrafts play an important role in our people's life and in export. It is estimated that by 1985 the output of cloth and fibers will increase 5 times, soap 6 percent, sauces 6 times, confectionary 2.5 times, and cigarettes 2.8 times as compared with 1980.

With regard to the existing industrial establishments: The supply of necessary equipment, spare parts, fuel and materials for those establishments should be so calculated that each of them can operate to its full capacity, particularly electric power stations, mines, timber yards, cigarette, beer, soap factories, zinc-coated ironsheet plants and mechanical workships in each province.

The construction of the industrial establishments which fraternal and friendly countries have undertaken to assist in investment need to be promptly completed so that they can begin turning out products by the second 5-year plan, especially those producing building materials -- cement plants, brick and tile factories, sawmills....

Small industry and handicrafts production is to be speeded up, particularly in establishments which process and produce with simple methods sauces, fish sauce, dried fish, dried meat, confectionary, cloth, garments, building materials such as timber, bricks and tiles, etc.

It is necessary to revamp the organization and management at the central level and there should be rational division of work between the central and the provincial branches. The central government only concentrates on managing and investing in branches with high technology and of nationwide scale, while the province assumes the management of the investment in branches with ordinary technical standard and on a small scale, mainly in the service of the province or several provinces linked together by geographical conditions.

The state should issue policies to encourage and help develop household economy. According to concrete conditions -- the capacity of cultivable land, labor and occupations -- each household should work out plans for cultivation, livestock breeding or producing handicraft articles for home consumption and export.

In developing industry, especially consumer goods branches, it is possible and advisable to persuade private owners to put in their investment. The state should work out policies to encourage, or can engage in state-province joint ventures in order to develop the industry, thereby satisfying the needs of home consumption and export.

4. Communications and transport, postal service and telecommunications: The political report has asserted that communications and transport is the spearhead branch of the national economy. Therefore, in the 5-year plan, the volume of goods circulation will increase by 84.8 percent by 1985 as compared with 1980, and the number of passengers to be transported will increase by 44 percent in the same period. [sentence as heard]

With regard to communication lines, the state will concentrate on building Highway 9 and repairing and raising the level of Highway 13 and other roads which link Laos with Vietnam with the total length of 400 km and another 547 km will be asphalted. With the assistance of fraternal socialist countries we will build a system of bridges, ferries, wharves and large river boats.

In order to build a network of roads spreading throughout the country, the responsibility for the management of and investment in that network should be rationally divided between the central and local levels.

Apart from appropriate investment for mechanised means of transport, it is necessary to invest capital in and encourage the development of simple means for both road and river transport, in conformity with the practice of each locality, to work out policies to encourage private owners and collectives to invest in transport. When making investment for equipment, servicing establishments and spare parts should be paid attention to.

The airports should be kept under good management, the system of storehouses, wharves and coach terminals should be consolidated and expanded. At the same time, exploitation and survey work should be conducted in an active manner so as to work out programs of investment for the building of railways in subsequent plans.

Postal service and telecommunications: The postal service should be consolidated and perfected in organization so as to ensure quick, accurate communications and national secrets. During the 5-year plan, the number of telephone switchboards in the whole country will increase by 20.7 percent, telephones by 51 percent, post offices by 78 percent and wireless transceivers by 79 percent. With regard to our international communications, besides the ordinary wireless telephone channels, we shall put into operation, at an early date, a ground satellite station built with the assistance of the Soviet Union. The delivery of private and official mails also needs improving. We should increase mechanized means while making use of simple ones in mail delivery.

5. Capital construction and investment: With regard to capital construction and investment in this 5-year plan, special attention should be given to the investment in building the material basis for such branches as agriculture, forestry, water conservation, communications and transport and industry. The structure of investments will be so shaped that 80 percent of the capital is put in for production establishments -- 20 percent for agriculture, forestry and water conservancy, 41 percent for communications and transport, 19 percent for industry -- and the other 20 percent for non-productive branches, 50 percent of which is for education and training.

In this 5-year plan, the average annual growth rate of investment for capital construction is to reach 8.2 percent, in which capital from sources at home will increase by 8.1 percent. The capital from foreign assistance, including non-refundable aid and loan, will increase by 8.7 percent.

With the experience drawn from the low efficiency of investments over the past years, all the branches at various levels which engage in projects already endorsed by the state must focus their efforts on completing key projects, strictly observe regulations on deadlines, on the management of labor, materials, equipment and monetary capital supplied by the state.

The existing building companies must be consolidated both with respect to organization and material and technical equipment. State bodies at central and local levels must work out policies to encourage private builders, building material cooperatives and contractor organizations to build for the people and the state.

6. The commercial service and the people's life: In order to perform its function as the main link between the various economic branches, the commercial service is to conduct business operations so as to facilitate the development of agriculture, forestry, industry and handicrafts, and as a good housewife of the people, it must directly contribute to the stabilization of the people's life.

In the first 5-year plan our task is to consolidate and expand the network of state-run trading service, strengthen the control of goods sources, create step by step the initiative position and steer private trading activities in the direction favorable to socialism. The total volume of goods circulation through the state run and collective trading network in 1985 will be up twofold as compared with 1980, in which essential commodities for the working people's daily life will greatly increase: rice by 57.8 percent, sugar by 20 percent, salt by 22 percent, meat 2.1 times, fish 4.1 times, cloth by 61.5 percent, readymade garments by 3.5 times, soap by 70 percent, writing paper by 33.3 percent, bicycles by 6.6 times, kerosene by 15.5 percent, household utensils by 35.5 percent, tools 87.5 percent, and a number of other consumer goods. On the average, the volume of retail goods per capita is expected to increase by 73.5 percent.

In order to strengthen the control of goods sources, the central state-run trading service should consolidate and expand the network of purchasing while the state will concentrate efforts on dealing in and controlling foodgrain and a number of main export goods. With regard to selling, it is necessary to firmly control wholesale, and especially the sale of important imported items.

Activities of the state-run and collective trading service should be done in a centralized and unified manner from the center down to localities, while rational distribution of work and proper decentralization of management should be made on both economic tasks and interests.

Since there are many limitations in communications and transport service, we should apply operational research in distribution and circulation in each region to the benefit of the state in order to limit to the lowest possible degree the transportation in vicious circle and long stagnation of goods in storehouses, quicken the rotation of capital, and collect money for the state from the people.

We should issue policies aimed at encouraging business operations concerning state-run, collective and private service establishments, particularly in cities and towns. We should strengthen the control of markets, combat manipulation, speculation, hoarding of goods and market disruption.

Through the state-run trading service, we will strive to ensure equitable distribution and circulation, and better serve the working strata of the whole society. Our state should work out policies to stimulate the development of social production as as to supply jobs for the whole society, raise the income of all social strata and gradually satisfy the people's essential needs. Because of low conditions of social production, we should solve the problem of living conditions in a selective way with special attention paid to improving the organization of supply and services. Efforts should be concentrated on catering for the life of workers, public servants and the armed and security forces.

7. Export, import and economic cooperation with foreign countries: The gross value of exports and imports between our national and socialist countries, and capitalist markets as well, is expected in this 5-year plan to achieve a considerable increase as compared with that of 1980.

Export: The total value of exports in 1985 will be up 3.4 times over that of 1980, in which exports to the socialist countries are expected to raise 6.8 times and to capitalist markets 2.4 times.

Import: The total value of imports in 1985 will be up threefold as compared with 1980, in which imports from the socialist countries will increase 3.5 times and from capitalist markets 2.8 times.

However, imbalances will still remain during this 5-year plan and the task of the whole country, including central and local authorities, is to focus on ever greater investments in producing export goods and to regard this as an urgent task of strategic importance.

Regarding economic cooperation with foreign countries: Developing economic cooperation with foreign countries has always been a matter of practical significance and universal law. In order to meet the demand for economic and social development, we have set great store by the promotion of our economic relations with foreign countries, first of all with the fraternal socialist countries, including the two other Indochinese countries and the Soviet Union, considering it a matter of principle in the party's and state's foreign policy.

In the 1981-85 5-year plan, the gross value of foreign assistance and cooperation is expected to increase considerably as compared with the past years, [as heard] in which socialist countries will account for 70 percent of the total and the remaining 30 percent will come from other countries and international organizations.

8. Population and labor The population of the whole country is expected at 4 million by 1985. The growth rate will be 2.4 percent and the labour force will involve 200,000 more people; among them, those in industry will increase by 15 percent and that in building and transport by 30 percent. From this development, by the end of 1985 the labor force in the sector of material production will make up 89 percent, while that of non-productive branches will account for only 11 percent.

At present, the occupational, professional and technical standards of labor forces are still very low, but the use and distribution of these forces are irrational in many respects. Therefore, in the years to come, we should combine the reorganization of social production with the redistribution of labor in order to attain higher efficiency.

In the process of development production, trades and services, it is necessary to strengthen the provision of improved implements while step by step improving mechanized equipment, especially in heavy work, in order to alleviate the intensity of labor and raise labor productivity. In managerial work, we should thoroughly apply the system of distribution according to labor, practice cost accounting and resolutely abolish the state-financing administrative system. Efforts should be made to widely apply the system of piece-rate wages, productivity bonuses and emulation rewards, which should be properly distributed in line with existing policies.

9. Finance, banking and pricing: Regarding finance and banking, in the 5-year plan, the state budget revenue in 1985 is expected to increase by 73.5 percent as compared with 1981 -- the averaged annual increase is 11.7 percent -- and domestic revenue is estimated to increase by 88.2 percent -- the averaged annual increase is 13.5 percent -- while foreign revenue -- nonrefundable aid and loans -- is also expected to increase by 65.5 percent in 1985 compared with that in 1981.

The state bank should actively step up credit investment, cash management, foreign currencies management, and broaden noncash payments in the national economy with a view to contributing to serving production and goods circulation, strengthening economic management, and implementing the cost accounting system in production and business units.

That is why the task of financial and banking services in the period ahead is very heavy and they should better perform their function of managing investment capital, both home and foreign, in order to accelerate production, construction and business with economic efficiency.

Accumulation and consumption is a major policy of our party and state that requires all the people to thoroughly comprehend and implement. We must boost up the production movement, increase labor productivity while practicing thrift in production and consumption so as to favor accumulation. We should launch a movement to use homemade goods and limit the need for imported consumer goods.

As to pricing, in the condition that the goods economy in Laos is still low and weak, and the balances worked out in various plans are not always very sound, the use of pricing as an economic level in this 5-year plan should be flexible. Together with the law of balanced and planned development, we should apply the law of value in the national economy with a view to benefiting production and people's lives.

10. Culture, education, public health and social affairs: In the 5 years under review we should focus our efforts to perform well the following tasks:

To build a 150-kilowatt mediumwave broadcasting station in Vientiane while installing small broadcasting stations in various provinces, thus making the network of broadcasting and transmitting stations 7.5 times greater than in the 5 years. To complete the construction of the ground satellite station built with Soviet Union help and put it into service. To broaden the system of television transmission and reception, to build filmscreening theatres in the number of districts while increasing the number of mobile film screening teams, organize professional and amateur artistic troupes, build circus theatres, museums libraries and exhibition halls to better serve the people. At the same time, we will build a printing factory in Vientiane, supply more technical equipment to printing houses in the provinces, raising the volume of printings twofold and the circulation of books and bulletins fourfold. We will try to supply radio sets for rural establishments, particularly in remote and scarcely populated areas.

To strive to complete the elimination of illiteracy and to make primary education universal among the people of all ethnic groups. Grassroots cadres' cultural standard must be higher than that of the masses. Cadres from district level upward must strive hard, if possible, to complete junior or senior secondary education.

To endeavor to harmoniously develop the system of preschool, complementary, general -- primary and secondary -- higher and vocational education with a view to helping cadres, fighters and workers who are engaging in production, fighting and other work acquire an uninterrupted general, scientific, technical and professional education and enabling children of workers, soldiers and cadres in collective organizations of factories and offices to receive education right from infancy.

The curricula of general education from secondary schools upward must closely combine study with practice, and general education with vocational guidance. In the 5-year plan, we should promptly consolidate and enlarge vocation schools, vocational secondary colleges, higher education colleges and universities with an eye to such necessary departments as agriculture, forestry, water conservation engineering, electricity, pedagogy, medicine, etc. So as to train and foster the contingent of skilled workers, scientific and technical workers to meet the requirements in economic construction, cultural development and national defense. Adequate attention should be paid to building schools and supplying material facilities for the educational service, issuing policies aimed at fostering professional skills and giving due material incentives to the contingent of teachers. We will endeavor to consolidate and build more schools to train and foster cadres, especially leading and managerial cadres of the party and state from provincial to central levels.

In the 5-years, the number of general education students will increase by 40.3 percent, in which the number of primary school pupils will be up by 27 percent. The number of junior secondary school pupils will increase 2.4 times and the number of senior secondary school students by 1.9 times. The number of pupils and teachers in preschool classes will increase 6.4 times. The number of vocational college students will attain a fairly quick increase. The number of students at higher education institutions will increase by 59.4 percent.

To strive hard to build and expand the network of public health service, sanitation and disease prevention, mother and child care, organize sports and physical culture activities down to grassroots levels, with adequate attention to cultural, economic and political centres and ethnic regions in order to preserve the health of the people of all ethnic groups, prevent and combat epidemics and dangerous diseases such as malaria, intestinal and lung diseases, and postnatal death.

Therefore, in the 5-year plan efforts will be made to broaden the network of hospitals and medical stations, etc. To raise the number of hospital beds by 32 percent — 32.5 hospital beds for every 10,000 people. The number of doctors will be up threefold — 1.2 doctors and 7.1 assistant doctors for every 10,000 people. We should vigorously develop the processing and use of traditional medicines while building establishments for processing pharmaceutical materials for home consumption and for export.

We should strictly implement the party's and state's policies concerning war invalids, families of fallen combatants and hanicapped people, and homefront policies toward army men. Efforts should be made to carry on the rehabilitation of victims of the old society. A law on social security for working people is to be worked out and promulgated.

Great endeavors should be made to develop and preserve the nation's cultural heritages. At the same time, we should selectively study the cultural quintessences of our time and learn from advanced experience of the world, especially from fraternal socialist countries.

Dear comrades, to fulfill the tasks and achieve the targets put forth in the first 5-year plan for economic and social development, we should concentrate our efforts on implementing a number of major measures as follows:

1. To firmly grasp the principles of democratic centralism, we should use all three -- economic, administrative and educational — measures, economic measures in particular. We should strive to consolidate and strengthen the system of economic management from the center down to localities and grassroots levels, and carry out the decentralization of management in which planning will be made at three levels: central, local and grassroots including the district level. But direct management of plans will be done at two levels: the grassroots level and the level near it. Attention should be given to consolidating the weakest links, levels and services.

Efforts should be made to do away with the mechanism of administrative management based on the state-financing system and materialize the system of socialist management and business in a gradual and steady manner. We should streamline the administrative and managerial apparatus at all levels, and all branches, with a view to enhancing the cadres' sense of responsibility and raising their work efficiency, strengthening the leading role of party organizations and the managerial role of the state bodies, and bringing into play the people's right to collective mastery.

2. To improve the work of planning and guiding the implementation of plans in line with the concrete conditions of our country, know how to combine planning with markets and use economic levers in a harmonious and flexible manner. At the same time, we should carry out control work over the implementation of the state plan in various aspects such as production, distribution, accumulation, consumption, etc.

Special attention should be given to consolidating and strengthening the system of material and technical supply, ensuring the balance between materials, technical means, finances, labor and transport.

3. To strictly practice thrift is a major policy of the party and state in national construction. We should mete out timely rewards and disciplinary sanctions in the attainment of planned quotas so as to encourage and enhance the sense of responsibility of all branches and all levels to raise the juridical character of the plan.

4. To train cadres, promote basic survey work, readjust and consolidate the departments of statistics and economic information. To build socialism is a very new task of ours, thus personnel work is of great importance. We should try our best to step up the work of training cadres in a well-coordinated manner, including leading cadres, cadres for economic management, and technical specialists for the key economic branches of the state, so as to ensure the implementation of the first 5-year plan and prepare for the execution of the plan for the subsequent years.

To strengthen the work of basic survey and statistics is aimed at helping leading cadres at different branches and levels, especially the offices of the party Central Committee and of the council of ministers, get timely and accurate information so that they are in a position to elaborate economic and technical projects for the annual plan for the subsequent years.

5. To launch a widespread, buoyant and continuous emulation movement to boost production, practice thrift, raise labor productivity in all branches, all units and all establishments such as factories, enterprises, state farms, forestry years, schools, hospitals, etc. Mass organizations should encourage their members to actively engage in the socialist emulation movement and strive to fulfill and overfulfill the state plan.

Comrade delegates, distinguished guests, the task of this 5-year plan is very heavy, but the Party Central Committee believes that with the spirit of fully grasping the resolution of the third party congress, with the strength of unity and oneness of mind of the whole party, army and people, with ardent patriotism and love for socialism, with lofty revolutionary heroism, and by bringing into full play the tradition of self-reliance and self-help, courageous struggle against the enemy, and industrious and creative labor, the working class, peasantry, soldiers, cadres, public servants and all other working peoples of different ethnic groups will strive in the emulation movement to boost production, practice thrift and energetically march forward to fulfill the first 5-year plan for economic and social development.

AFP INTERVIEWS THACH ON KAMPUCHEAN ISSUES

BK051436 Hong Kong AFP in English 1409 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, 5 May (AFP) -- The United Nations can help bring about a negotiated settlement in Kampuchea if it acts as a "honest broker" and stops backing Kampuchea's ousted Khmer Rouge government and China, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach said here today. In an exclusive interview with AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE, Mr. Thach said although the Hanoi-bolstered Phnom Penh Government had the right to occupy the Cambodian seat in the United Nations, it was prepared and so was Vietnam to accept an "empty chair" formula. Democratic Kampuchea (the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge administration ousted by a Vietnamese military intervention in 1979) is still recognized by the UN as Kampuchea's legal government.

"The empty chair policy," under which the Cambodian UN seat claimed by both the Khmer Rouge and the Heng Samrin government in Phnom Penh would remain vacant, would be a "good thing" for the world body, said Mr. Thach. "It would create a more serene atmosphere.... Vietnam itself was kept out of the Un for 33 years," he noted.

Turning to prospects for new internationally-supervised elections in Kampuchea while the Cambodian UN [seat] would remain vacant, Mr. Thach said Cambodians had made it abundantly clear that internal matter were their own business. "When one speaks of a political settlement in Kampuchea, one must make a distinction between internal and external matters. Internal affairs are the exclusive responsibility of the Phnom Penh government," he noted.

He indicated, however, that a political solution to Kampuchea's problems with its neighbors was possible, particularly through creation of a "demilitarized zone along the border with Thailand under international supervision." But he said: "Recent statements from Bangkok show that Thailand is not ready for a dialogue which may lead to a detente and a reconciliation." He pointed out that Thai leaders had initially proposed to meet him but had changed their minds after he agreed to the meeting. "They are playing hide-and-seek. But we accept talks at a lower level because that's better than no dialogue at all," he added.

Asked about the strength of the Vietnamese expeditionary crops in Kampuchea, he said Western estimates -- about 200,000 troops -- were "exaggerated." He also indicated that in the present circumstances, Phnom Penh government troops were in no position to meet foreign threats." "Training an army requires some months and to train a good general, it takes years," he said.

Mr. Thach reiterated that the Vietnamese military presence in Kampuchea could not be described as an "intervention" since it was "requested by Phnom Penh." "The Cambodians do not want us to leave, because if we did as some have asked, this would mean the immediate return of the Khmer Rouge, and behind them there is the big Chinese hegemony. If the (Khmer Rouge leader) Pol Pot people were alone, the problem would be easy to solve," the noted.

He stressed that a partial unilateral withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea was not on the cards for the time being but said "such a gesture could be envisaged if it were to lead to a positive gesture from the other side." He reaffirmed that Vietnam would agree to a full withdrawal if a treaty was signed with China and to a partial one should there be an agreement with Thailand.

He also confirmed a statement he made during his recent European tour that vietnam would consider joining the non-communist Association of southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) "if ASEAN countries agree."

Mr. Thach also denied press reports of a "chill" in Soviet-Vietnamese relations. "Vietnam is a very independent country, but also a very close friend of the Soviet Union," he said. He indicated that Soviet economic aid to his country had "increased considerably," with the amount for the 1976-80 period reaching the total for the 30 previous years. The amount for the 1980-85 period will mark a four-fold increase over the 1976-80 figure, he said.

Mr. Thach also expressed satisfaction with his just-ended foreign tour that took him to France, West Germany, Sweden, Belgium, India and the Soviet Union. Discussing specifically the European leg of the tour, he said it had been made "without illusions and with realism" to "better explain Vietnam's policy and improve cooperation relations with the countries visited."

NHAN DAN COMMENTS ON 'DARK SCHEMES' OF BUSH TOUR

[Text] NHAN DAN on 6 May carries a commentary by Le Ba Thuyen, entitled: "A Trip With Many Dark Schemes," on the recent visit by U.S. Vice President Bush to five countries in East Asia and the Pacific which ended in New Zealand on 5 May.

The commentary says that this visit shows that the Washington administration is accelerating the implementation of its global strategy in this vast region of the world.

It adds: U.S. Vice President Bush's visit, scheduled 3 weeks after the visit by Secretary of Defense Weinberger to Japan, South Korea and the Philippines, was aimed at carrying out various dark schemes to serve the Reagan administration's global strategy in the East Asian and Pacific region.

The forthcoming visit by Mr Bush to Beijing on 7 May [as heard] indicates that the United States is pursuing its China card policy to oppose the Soviet Union and the socialist community in order to serve the U.S. schemes in East Asia and the Pacific. Arthur W. Hummel, U.S. ambassador to China, openly told the New York TIMES on 26 April that the Washington-Tokyo-Beijing tripartite friendship is the foundation of "U.S.-style" stability in East Asia and that this tripartite cooperation has a great effect on global strategy. From this reality, the commentary concludes: The peoples in East Asia and the Pacific are watching the U.S. vice president's trip with their eyes wide open.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON FIFTH VCP CONGRESS

Minister of Forestry Report

BK041342 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 8 Apr 82 p 3

[Excerpt from report by Phan Xuan Dot, minister of forestry, to the Fifth VCP Congress]

[Text] Forestry is an important component of the national economy. As such it is always closely linked with the economic and social development of the entire country. Forestry cannot develop if it is separated from agriculture, industry and many other sectors. To develop forestry, we must quickly reorganize forestry production rationally and scientifically and advance our country's forestry from its fragmented and natural state to large-scale socialist production. On the basis of taking full advantage of the country's abundant potential and applying the formula of uniform development, comprehensive business operations and combined farming activities, the forestry sector must achieve the objective of preserving and building stable and concentrated economic forestry assets so as to meet two basic and long-term demands, namely, timber supply and flood prevention. First of all, it must effectively manage, preserve and exploit the existing forested areas and promote the planting of new forests by closely combining forestry with agriculture in such a way as to suit the natural economic characteristics of each area.

At present our most important task is scrupulously to protect the existing areas of natural and planted forests, including the forests of special trees, birds and other animals. We must strictly implement the regulations of forest preservation and promptly check forest fires and wanton logging. We must intensify and broaden the education of the people of all strata on the great usefulness and effect of forests so as to raise their sense of responsibility as citizens for the task of preserving and restoring the country's resources. We must gradually stabilize the forested areas throughout the country and in each locality and ensure that all forests and plots of land are effectively managed, protected and used.

We must accelerate the tempo of afforestation according to the formula of concentration, specialization and intensive cultivation so as to ensure stable and long-term production, thereby steadily meeting the demands for raw materials for industry, construction and export. We must plant trees on bare hills and coastal sandbanks where there is an urgent need for flood prevention and where there are proper conditions for this task to be carried out expeditiously. We must bring into full play the great achievements and rich experience of more than 20 years of carrying out lunar new year tree-planting drives in compliance with President Ho Chi Minh's instructions. We must continue to launch vigorous, constant and broad tree-planting movements throughout the country. We must see to it that trees are planted according to programs and plans, that the quality of this work is ensured and that it will become increasingly efficient. We must quickly increase the sources of firewood, forestry products and other special products to meet the demands of the local people and eventually to produce large amounts of valuable goods for export while contributing to increasing the ratio of the forest cover throughout the country.

On the basis of preserving and satisfactorily developing our forest assets, we must exploit them rationally to meet our minimum annual needs. We must ensure, however, that the trees felled are replaced and that proper conditions are created for the depleted forests to quickly recover and satisfactorily develop in conformity with our economic targets. We must practice thrift, make the fullest use of timber and other forestry products and use these resources more efficiently.

Combining agriculture with forestry production is a progressive and highly effective mode of production. Such a combination is not only an urgent requirement of forestry but also an objective demand of the country as this juncture. We must combine agriculture with forestry production not only to increase the supplies of grain, foodstuffs and other products for society but, more important, to accelerate afforestation on tens of millions of hectares of bare hills, prevent erosion, restore the fertility of degraded soil, protect the environment and maintain the balance of the ecological system. This is also an important measure aimed at fully exploiting our potential in land and manpower, stabilizing and developing various population centers and effectively implementing the labor redistribution policy nationwide.
